Drive-In Mail Box Removed

The drive-in mail box on the east side of River Ave. at Holland post office was removed today.

Postmaster Louis A. Haight said he removed the box after a sign was put up calling for "No Stopping, Standing or Parking" plus the fact that the curb had been painted yellow for the entire distance.

"I don't care to be named in a law suit over some accident that may occur there, so I thought it best to remove the box," he said.

The local Traffic and Safety Commission has long been concerned over tieups during heavy traffic periods at this box.

The box on the west side of River Ave. near Park Theater still remains.

Copies of a questionnaire relating to local traffic governing activities were distributed by Babcock to each council member.

Babcock explained that the questionnaire is an attempt to find out what percentage of time—in comparison with total hours per week spent on official matters—is spent with traffic problems and the type of traffic control activity involved.

Information is also sought on the number of city officials who have had formal traffic instruction.

New Zealand Middle School Reported Near Completion

ZEELAND — Sept. 7 will mark the opening of a new million-dollar educational facility for Zeeland and will also introduce a new "teacher training" session for Zeeland school teachers, according to Neil Hoezee, administrator of Zeeland's New Middle School.

The Middle School is exactly what the name implies—a school that will accommodate the middle grades of the school system—sixth, seventh and eighth grades.

The school, located on Roosevelt Ave., is a unique six-wing structure and promises to cause some confusion to students who will be attending until they become accustomed to it.

In addition, several new teachers will be in the school. Said Hoezee, "I shuddered to think about a new staff, a new school and new students all in one day." The result has been that the school board has approved a one-week teacher briefing session for the first time in Zeeland history to acquaint new teachers with the curriculum and all of the teachers with the new school.

Three hundred students will file into the new school on opening day—exactly one half of capacity. Hoezee said that this is the first time in Zeeland that a new school has been completed and not overcrowded at completion.

Three wings of the building are used for teaching stations, one wing accommodates administration, another is used for physical education, and the final wing is designed as a "Unified Arts Wing". The arts wing accommodates facilities for use in shop instruction, music, home economics and a kitchen and cafeteria.

One of the unique features of the educational wings is that every classroom is open along a hallway. In each classroom there is a sink that is not only used for clean-up after art sessions, but also for centers of instruction for science classes.

If a student must pass from one wing to another, he may do so by going outside under a protected sidewalk so other classrooms are not disturbed.

The school also features an open library that is located in a main foyer several feet below the surface of the main floor level. The purpose of such construction is to allow for better observation of the students and to discourage people entering the building from excessive noise or talking.

The hallways and classrooms of the new school are all carpeted. According to Hoezee, the main purpose of the carpet is to aid in the acoustics. From the standpoint of maintenance and construction, the carpeting is also less expensive.

Hoezee described the new school as adequate with some shortages for the first two weeks of school, by which time all construction will be completed. Some carpet and minor finishing jobs must be completed before the school is fully ready.

Because of the number of students, only two of the three teaching wings will be used when school opens.

Outside the building, most of the landscaping, including an underground sprinkling system will be ready when school opens.

Some shrubbery will be planted by the time the first school bell rings. All grass has been sown so that sod will be started by school time.

ATTEND WORSHIP — Shown are part of the audience which attended the first land-sea experimental ministry service held at Point West for cottagers and boaters in the area. In the cruiser is the Rev. William Burd, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, who is conducting the service. Services will continue each Sunday noon through Labor Day weekend.

Land, Water Service Held For Visitors

An experimental ministry to cottagers and boaters was conducted at Point West Restaurant when the Rev. William Burd, minister of the First Presbyterian Church, preached the 25 minute service.

Richard Den Uyl provided chairs for cottagers and vacationers as they worshipped on the land. Rober Linn saw that a pleasure cruiser was present for the land-sea ministry and a pulpit was mounted on the after-deck of the cruiser. Boats may anchor alongside to hear the amplified service.

The service is somewhat reminiscent of the afternoon services conducted some years ago at the former Macatawa Inn. It has a new twist now, however, with an extended ministry to those enjoying a weekend aboard their pleasure craft.

Rev. Burd said that 25 cottagers and vacationers worshipped on land and a family aboard their sailboat anchored to hear the service.

Rev. Burd said this ministry would continue at 12 noon each Sunday through Labor Day weekend.

When asked "Why do you not put up more signs inviting these vacationers to the church?" Rev. Burd replied "Sunday is increasingly the day of the family and as the family diversifies its activities, the church must be where the family is. The lakes are drawing more people each year who are not dressed for a formal worship service but would like to worship God. This ministry provided that kind of service for these people."

THE NEWS COMES ALIVE

To the historian the daily flow of events often finds an echo in the past. It becomes even more of an echo when the span is many centuries.

During the past few years, the Israelis have been reclaiming some of the desert areas in the south of their country. Archaeologists tell us that there was a time when this area gave life to early shepherds, and dozens of villages dotted the landscape. Today the Israelis are using some of the ancient wells for storing water and reclaiming the area.

More recently in Tunisia an American drilling team has struck a gusher that spurted water more than 150 feet into the air. The water was tapped at a depth of 3,000 feet, and, according to the drillers, is part of an aquifer that stretches 400 miles to the south-south-west. It should last for two generations.

Tunisia expects to plant the area with fruit trees and forage crops. This would take the area back many centuries, just after Roman times. It was then that history tells us a man could travel from Tripoli to Tunis under the shade of trees, an area that today has great stretches of steppe and desert. Water, that important harbinger of a better life, may once again transform the area to its former splendor. And, as the Israelis are doing, the desert will again blossom.

It is a simple story reported by the press, the finding of an ample supply of water. But to the careful reader, a whole past history comes into view. And maybe this is the clue to understanding a good deal of what we read. Only he who has a real appreciation and understanding of the past, can really appreciate and understand the present. And isn't this the story of all of life?

Sunday School Lesson

Honesty in All Things
Exodus 20:15; Amos 8:4-5;
Mark 12:38-40; Titus 2:7-10
By C.P. Dame

There are millions of dishonest people in our nation. It is high time that the virtue of honesty be esteemed again in America where it was held in high regard years ago. God commands us to be honest.

I. God forbids theft. "Thou shalt not steal." This commandment teaches the right of private property. Stealing is taking by force or by crookedness something that belongs to another. There are three ways of getting things—by gift, by work and by theft, the first two ways are legal, the last way is wicked and illegal. The person who steals violates the law of love and of work. We must respect each other and each other's property. The thief does not do this.

People steal variously. Some use violence and force to steal. Most thieves use trickery. Employers steal billions of dollars from employees. Some employers give meager wages, some employes do not put in a fair day's work. Shoplifting is common. Gambling is wrong for the gambler gets the property of another without working for it. Padding the expense account is sinful.

Cheating is the classroom is wrong. Handing in false tax accounts is lawless. The person who borrows money he knows he can't pay back is dishonest and the man who goes bankrupt in order to escape from his obligations is wicked. Some people get welfare checks who could work and some apply for workman's compensation when they are not honestly entitled to it. To make debt in order to live luxuriously is not honest.

The violation of this law often leads to the violation of other laws. Some people will lie, cheat, do all kinds of things in order to get out of a mess they got into due to dishonesty. The simple honest life pleases God and is good for society.

II. Greed often leads to dishonesty. Amos lived in a time of material prosperity and hence his book is suitable for our age. In his day the rich were getting richer and richer and the poor were becoming poorer. The greedy rich begrudged their workers a holiday and they grumbled because they could not sell their produce on the sabbath, and they tampered with the vessels which they used in order to measure grain, and with money. "Open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sundays for your convenience" these words one can read in big advertisements of supermarkets in a time when people have more leisure than ever.

III. Religious leaders should avoid pretense and perform. False piety hurts. The religious leaders in the time of Jesus were popularity seekers. They coveted honors from the people but they were religious racketeers, they prayed long but practiced sinfully.

Paul left Titus in Crete which was a hard field to work in and that is why Paul wrote him a letter in which he urged him to set a high example. His counsel is good for all Christian workers. Piety is commendable when it is followed by performance. The virtues which Paul commended to slaves are still deserving of imitation. Christian workmen should be obedient, efficient, honest and faithful.

Cheese Dairy, Mountains Among Ambassador's Tours

By Sharon Howard

When the word "Switzerland" is mentioned, I am sure that "cheese" is one of the first things that comes to your mind. One day last week I visited a small cheese dairy near Cham. It was quite interesting to see the entire process of making spring cheese at this dairy. It is also with great pride that the Swiss tell us Americans that the cheese we refer to as Swiss cheese is really Emmentaler cheese and only one of many kinds of Swiss cheese.

Another excursion this past week for our group took us to Rutli, the site of the forming of the Swiss Confederation. The formation place is marked by a high-flying Swiss flag and is surrounded by a beautiful, green meadow. We ate our picnic lunches there and thoroughly enjoyed the natural surroundings overlooking Lake Lucerne.

We went from Rutli by boat to Lucerne where we spent the afternoon in the Verkehrshaus, a museum of transportation and communication. It is very similar to the transportation and communication sections of the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D.C. The most interesting thing to me was that the whole display on space travel was about United States programs and trips—nothing about Russia's space program.

Summer really came to Switzerland for about four days. We had very hot weather with a high per cent of humidity. The heat was especially noticeable while shopping since air-conditioned stores are very rare here. However, the last two days have again been cool and rainy.

Today I returned from a three-day trip with my Swiss family to the Jura Mountains. This mountain area, which I had not previously seen, is located in the northwestern part of the country. This part is just as beautiful as the rest of the country, but has its own characteristics. Fir trees, rocky soil, and fine horses are quite typical of the Jura area. Many of the horses wear bells similar to those worn by the cows. Also in this area I observed that there are many more cows and horses making their paths down the middle of the roads. Thus, drivers must be very cautious as they travel the winding roads.

I am now going into the final week of my stay with a Swiss family. There will be many things to do this week, and the most important activity will be a big farewell party for all the families with whom members of our group have lived. After leaving Switzerland we will go to Berlin and Paris for a few days.

On sale Aug. 30 will be a stamp commemorating the 50th anniversary of the Marine Corps Reserve. The vertical stamp portrays a World War I Marine, a World War II Flyer, a frogman and today's combat Marine. A fifth Marine in colonial uniform stands at the rear of the procession symbolizing creation of the Marines in 1775. Production of the stamp requires two passes through the presses.

French Farce Brings Laughs At Red Barn

Red Barn Theatre has added a new dimension to the season's fare with a French farce, "Pajama Tops," which opened to a full house Monday night.

Seven Red Barn professionals gave the comedy the right combination of the light touch and robust treatment which keeps a farce of this kind palatable and in good taste.

Producer-Director James W. Dyas used all the tricks of the paced phrase and sight gags, plus a few acrobatics, to keep the laughter peeling. There was enough French accent to keep the action ever-French but not enough to confuse an American audience.

This adult play by Jean de Létraz and adapted by Mauby Green and Ed Feilbert, followed the usual farce pattern of a husband devoted to his wife yet interested in other women getting involved in a plot that mixes up the affairs of six persons, complicated by a French inspector who wants a juicy scandal so that he can retire in a blaze of publicity.

Red Barn favorite Bruce Hall appeared as the harried husband faced with wife and mistress under his own roof. Dorothy Lee Tompkins appeared as the loving but suspicious wife and Ann Benson as house guest who is hastily paired off with a poet-friend to allay suspicions of the aging inspector played by Buck Anderson.

Alan Causy appeared as the lyrical poet who somehow gets involved with wife, mistress and a cute French maid played exceptionally well by Kathy Preston. Rounding out the cast was Don Bonevich as husband of the mistress hired as butler.

$15,000 Sought In Civil Suit

GRAND HAVEN — A $15,000 damage suit was started in Ottawa Circuit Court Monday by a Holland girl, through her guardian and next friend, Lucille Mc Bride, of Holland.

The girl, Susan Mc Bride, claims she was sitting on the hood of a car owned by Harry Gladden of Holland and driven by Jacqueline Mapes, also of Holland, on July 12, 1965.

The plaintiff claims the driver started the car in motion and then suddenly stopped, throwing the Mc Bride girl to the pavement and causing serious injuries.

The successful defender of Gallopini in 1915-16 was Gen. Otto Liman von Sanders.

Birth, Death Records Now With County

Local residents hereafter must apply to county clerks either in Ottawa or Allegan counties for certified copies of birth and death certificates.

A new state law provides this service must be taken over by the counties and cities with population of more than 50,000 persons.

Since Holland city is less than 50,000 population, persons seeking certified copies must apply to Ottawa County Clerk Harris Nieuwma in Grand Haven or to Allegan County Clerk Esther Hettinger in Allegan, depending where death or birth took place in the city.

Holland City Clerk D. W. Schippers is hopeful that county clerks may appoint him a deputy clerk to continue the service in Holland, but this awaits an attorney general's opinion, and until such time as the opinion is given, no copies can be issued in City Hall.

There are no cities of 50,000 or more population in Ottawa or Allegan counties.

Under the newly enacted state law, hospitals and funeral directors now must forward birth and death certificates to the county clerk instead of the city clerk. Burial and removal permits may be obtained at the county clerk's office.

Israeli Leader in Country To Study Sand Stabilization

GRAND HAVEN — Sand stabilization, something which we now take for granted in the West Ottawa Soil Conservation District, is being studied by D.E. Tsurieil, from Israel, who will report back to his country on our methods.

Israel, since becoming a country in 1949, has had a problem with the blowing sands. The sea shores, inland sandy areas and sides of the main roads are covered by sand, which causes erosion and decreases acreage.

Dr. Tsurieil is studying plant species and problems with water balance in the hopes of finding the best possible set of conditions for the climate of Israel. William Miller and Bill Allred of the Soil Conservation Service escorted Dr. Tsurieil on a tour of area sand stabilization efforts and results.

Sand used to be a problem in our area, but the West Ottawa Soil Conservation District was formed in 1938 to combat this problem. Thousands of tiny sand grass plants were planted by hand along the sandy areas.

Dr. Tsurieil will be spending two months in our country, traveling to various areas and noting results of conservation practices. Programs that have already been instituted are studied for maintenance and care, and best sand binding.

We in this area are also learning from him. In Israel, they are experimenting with a new type of beach grass that can be planted by machine as seeds. Our system involves the use of hand labor planting seedlings much more costly and time consuming.

Dr. Tsurieil was educated in France and later in Jerusalem. He has been working on the sand problems since 1949. Dr. Tsurieil is the chief of the experimental station for sand binding plants, under the minister of agriculture.

The trip was sponsored by the government, the academy of science and a private company. Upon his return he will report of his findings.

The personal contacts that he has made on his tour with stabilization experts are one of the important features of his visit. It will be possible to continue correspondence and exchange information in the future.

On August 26 he will speak before the American Meteorological Association in New Brunswick about the findings of his trip. Then he will return to his own country, with new ideas for helping them in their soil erosion problems.

G.E., Union Begin Talks

Bargaining is currently under way between General Electric and Local 931, International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (IUE), to reach agreement on local issues prior to expiration of the present contract between IUE and General Electric.

Don Boerman, president of the Holland local, said current negotiations are centered on lay-off and rehiring procedures, shift preference, return to work after illness and request systems.

Boerman said he was hopeful the union and company would come to an agreement on these issues within the next few weeks. The IUE contract with G.E. expires Oct. 2.

Negotiations on a nation-wide basis were proposed for next Tuesday by IUE president Paul Jennings following the granting of an injunction ordering General Electric to bargain with the IUE.

Jennings, following the court order, said that the major stumbling block to getting negotiations started had been removed. He said the IUE and associated unions would do everything possible to attain fair agreements early and peacefully.

"No crises are necessary, no strikes are necessary," Jennings said, "if G.E. will join us in good-faith bargaining."

Approximately 180,000 workers in plants across the country are affected by the contract negotiations.

Beatrice H. Cammenga Wed to Arlyn Schaap

Mrs. Arlyn Schaap

Mr. and Mrs. Arlyn Schaap left for a northern wedding trip following their marriage Wednesday, Aug. 10, in the Sheldon Christian Reformed Church in Sheldon, Iowa.

The bride is the former Beatrice Harriet Cammenga, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Sebastian T. Cammenga of Zeeland and Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Schaap of 1690 Pleasant Ct. Dr., Sheldon, are the groom's parents.

Candelabra arrangements of white gladioli and mums decorated the altar before which Rev. Cammenga performed the double ring candlelight ceremony. Arthur Koelima of Rock Valley, Iowa, was soloist and Miss Dee Lockerman of Delavan, Wis., organist.

Robert Cammenga, brother of the bride, and William Van Otterloo, cousin of the bride, lit the candles.

Preceding the bride down the aisle were her sisters, Miss Wilma Cammenga as maid of honor and the Misses Harlyth and Joane Cammenga as bridesmaids. Their floor-length modified empire waist gowns with elbow-length sleeves were fashioned from moss green satin.

The backs were accented by a slender panel train falling from a flat bow. Moss green satin rose-shaped headpieces with shoulder-length veils complemented their gowns. They carried cameo pink roses on moss green satin evening bags.

Miss Shaun Michelle Van Kley was flower girl, attired in a moss green satin A-line floor-length gown which was accented with moss green velvet ribbon.

Lyle Schaap, brother of the groom, carried the rings.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, wore an ivory satin gown styled with a fitted bodice, elbow-length sleeves and a notched bateau neckline. This was enhanced by appliques of lace and pearl. The slim fitting skirt featured a bow at the waistline and a side notch in the skirt which also was carried out in the chapel train. Her imported silk illusion elbow-length veil was secured to a crown of ivory pearlized orange blossoms. The bride carried a white Bible with stephenotis.

Darrell Schaap served his brother as best man and ushers were Darlo Schaap and Terry Jonker.

A reception for 170 guests was held in the church parlors. Miss Yvonne Schaap, sister of the groom, registered the guests and Harwyn Berens and Miss Judy Berens of Zeeland poured punch. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Van Vliet assisted as dining room host and hostess and the Misses Esther Vis, Glenda Ver Berg and Nancy Visser were in charge of the gift room.

The bride's mother wore a banana colored sheath crepe dress with avocado accessories and the groom's mother was attired in a turquoise silk sheath and white accessories. Both had cameo pink rose corsages.

The newlyweds will be at home in Lebanon, Iowa, where the bride will teach at the Lebanon Christian School. The groom will complete his final year at Dordt College in Sioux Center, Iowa.

Miss Catherine Anne Weidenhamer became the bride of David Christman Cox of St. Joseph in an afternoon ceremony Aug. 6 in St. Francis De Sales Church with Msgr. J. A. Mole-ski officiating.

The church was decorated with white fuji mums, deep pink pompon daisies and ivy for the occasion which united the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Weidenhamer of 562 Lawdale Ct. and the son of Dr. and Mrs. Roland Cox, Riley Center, Indianapolis, Ind. Traditional music was provided by organist Vera Kay Lewis and the mass was sung by the children's choir.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of silk organza over taffeta. The empire bodice was accented by a Swiss applique which was repeated on the kabuki sleeves. The detachable chapel sweep train in matching silk organza was caught by a self bow at the waistline. Her pillbox of heirloom lace appliques held an imported English illusion shoulder length veil. She carried a cascade of white gardenias and sweetheart roses.

Miss Mary Schaffer of Dedham, Mass., the maid of honor, and Mrs. Paul Weidenhamer and Miss Mary Jane Christie, Cleveland, bridesmaids, were attired identically. They wore floor-length gowns of rose pink satin with matching bow headpieces. Each carried a bouquet of white and deep pink pompon daisies. Vicki and Cathy Cox were the flower girls.

Steven Cox of Los Angeles, Calif., was the best man. Paul Weidenhamer and Malcolm Binder seated the guests. The bride's cousins, Michael and John Christie of Cleveland, Ohio, served as altar boys.

Mrs. Weidenhamer donned a linen sheath dress with matching accessories and the groom's mother selected a beige silk dress with matching accessories. Each mother wore a corsage formed of pink sweetheart roses.

A buffet luncheon was served to 175 guests at the American Legion Memorial Park Club. For traveling the new Mrs. Cox changed to a black linen sheath dress complemented with a white gardenia corsage. The couple will honeymoon at Jackson Lake Lodge in Wyoming.

The couple will reside at 2900 Cleveland Ave., Apt. 316, St. Joseph.

The bride was graduated from Michigan State University and will teach at Brown Elementary School. The groom received his M.B.A. from the University of Indiana and is employed as a sales promotion manager by Whirlpool Corp. in Benton Harbor.

Holland Community Theatre enters its seventh season this year and "has some mighty fine plays, new ideas and plans and a resident director," according to re-elected president George Steggerda.

Steggerda who was elected president for his third consecutive term said the theatre would be experimenting with a resident director this year who will coordinate all activities in addition to directing the shows. The position is a paid one.

"Life With Father," the number one play in the history of modern theater boasting a 9-year run with 3,224 straight performances, will be presented by the Community Theatre group Oct. 13, 14 and 15. It will be followed by the children's show scheduled to run Dec. 3.

Continuing along the lines of selecting winning plays, the local community players will do "Damn Yankees" for their musical production of the year. It will be given Feb. 3 and 4 and return Feb. 9, 10 and 11. "Barefoot in the Park" (if released) will conclude the season with its presentations on April 27, 28 and 29.

A preview of the season will be given at the general meeting to be held Sept. 1 at 8 p.m. at the Community Theatre workshop. Steggerda encourages the regular members and "one-timers" to attend the meeting as plans for the season ticket campaign will be outlined. A special invitation is extended to new members.

Del Koop Begins Second Season as NFL Official

When the National Football League begins its regular season Sept. 10, Del Koop of Holland will open his second season as a NFL official.

Koop has worked two exhibition games so far this season and is scheduled for appearance in Green Bay and Chicago to round out the exhibition schedule.

He was in Memphis' new 50,000-seat stadium for the Chicago Bear-Philadelphia Eagle contest Aug. 6 (the Eagles won 40-21) and in Bloomington, Minn., for the Viking-Los Angeles Rams game last Saturday (the Vikings won that one 24-10).

In his final two exhibition appearances, Koop will work with the Pittsburgh Steelers-Green Bay Packer game in Green Bay Saturday and the Armed Forces benefit contest between the Chicago Bears and the St. Louis Cardinals in Soldier Field in Chicago Friday, Sept. 2.

Koop is one of the 45 NFL officials, and since 42 are in action each week (six officials each for seven games), he expects to be in action nearly every weekend this season.

National Football League officials are assigned to games about one week before the contest takes place.

Earlier this summer (July 21-24) Koop attended NFL officials' meetings in Chicago. During one of the afternoons the officials worked out with St. Louis Cardinals in their Lake Forest, Ill., training camp.

Koop is an umpire in NFL games. He is positioned near the defensive middle-linebacker and is, thus, quite vulnerable. Koop was knocked down three times during his rookie season.

One of the instances was nearly disastrous. Koop relates that he was playing next to the Los Angeles Rams' middle-linebacker when Jimmy Brown, then of the Cleveland Browns, moved through the line on a quick opener during the Rams' big upset of the Eastern Division champions late last season.

Del Koop ... second season gain, by eight Rams and Koop was hit from the blind side while watching the ball carrier (Brown). Koop said that if the turf had not been soft from considerable rain, he might have been seriously injured in the giant pileup.

Koop said that the quick opener is the toughest play for him to be involved in, as he has, "no place to go." He plays three to five yards behind the line of scrimmage, just off the shoulder of the middle-linebacker.

Other officials are stationed further away from the immediate action. The referee is located behind the offensive backfield, the head linesman and the line judge are situated opposite each other on the line of scrimmage, the back judge is to the side of the defensive halfbacks and the field judge is located behind, and to the side of the defense.

Koop said that most of the NFL officials, "wouldn't give a nickel to work from the position of umpire," but that he enjoys it.

As an umpire, Koop is primarily responsible for calling offensive and defensive line violations (primarily illegal use of the hands and illegal procedure). In addition, Koop said he is expected to, "keep the action down, even after the play is over."

Koop commented that in high school games, he was expected to let players fight, then throw them out of the game.

In professional football, officials are expected to, "do everything they can to break up fights," according to Koop, as owners don't want to lose their players.

On pass plays Koop and other umpires are the officials who detect linemen downfield. The job is not too difficult, according to Koop, unless the quarterback is a scrambler, "like the Vikings' Fran Tarkenton." Tarkenton often rolls out and weaves back and forth for some time before locating a receiver or running. The umpire must make sure the linemen are on the line of scrimmage (or behind it) if he decides to throw.

Fights most frequently occur on the line, and Koop is usually the first official on the scene. Koop has often said that the primary difference between high school (or even college) players and those in the professional ranks, "is the size and speed."

A NFL official is not allowed, by league rules, to officiate in any other games during the National Football League season. This includes high school, college and other professional games.

When Koop was selected as a NFL official a year ago, he was forced to turn over his college contracts to Dick Dolack of Muskegon. Dolack became a NFL official this season and he and Koop have already worked a game together (last Saturday's Ram-Viking contest).

Dolack is the supervisor of officials for the North American Basketball League, of which Holland is a member. Koop also works in the NABL. Koop and Dolack are also scheduled to work together in the Sept. 2 Armed Forces benefit game in Chicago.

Koop feels the NFL officiating is a rewarding experience.
