Six Persons Hurt In Zeeland Area During Week-End

Four Elderly People Injured When Auto Hits 96th Ave. Span

Zeeland (Special)—Six persons were injured in country road mishaps in the Zeeland area during the week-end.

Four elderly persons received injuries in a collision at 11:10 p.m. Sunday when their car ran into the end of the Black River bridge on 96th Ave. (South State St.).

Mrs. Gertrude Van Hattama, 67, of route 2, Zeeland, and Mrs. Dena Heyboer, 77, of Jamestown, each received a broken leg, bruises and lacerations. They were examined at Huizinga Memorial hospital and then sent to St. Mary's hospital in Grand Rapids.

Their husbands were injured less seriously. Gerrit Van Hattama, 68, received facial lacerations, and Jake Heyboer, 75, was treated for shock and bruises. Both were released after treatment at Huizinga Memorial hospital.

Heyboer was driving north on 96th Ave. when he approached the bridge. He told officers he was blinded by approaching headlights and rammed into the southeast corner of the bridge. Damage to the 1951 model car was estimated at $550, and the metal support of the bridge was buckled.

The two men were riding in the front seat and the two women in the back seat. Ottawa Deputy Nelson Lucas investigated.

Two young rural area boys are patients at Huizinga Memorial hospital recovering from wounds received in a mishap Friday night. John Ensign, 16, of route 1, Zeeland, received facial and head injuries. His companion, Melvin Hassevoort, 15, of route 4, Holland, received a severe scalp wound. They were reported in "good" condition Monday.

The accident happened at 8 p.m. Friday on Stanton St., about seven miles north of Zeeland. Hassevoort was driving the 1948 model car when he apparently lost control. The car slid along about 160 feet, according to Zeeland police who are continuing their investigation.

Mrs. Sandy Meek of 54 East 12th St. has been called to Edgell, Mo., by the critical illness of her father, Radius Hughes. She left Wednesday night with her sister, Mrs. M. E. Green, and brother, Ed Hughes and wife of Lansing.

Holland Coast Guardsmen are shown above hauling to shore the 14 foot boat which tipped over and caused the death of John Wehrmeyer of Holland in Lake Macatawa Tuesday noon. Body of the 32-year-old father of five was recovered late Wednesday, Coast Guardsmen inspected the inside of the boat to see if the body was there. The bow of the boat remained above water while the boat drifted toward shore. It was in this air pocket where rescuers found little Jo Ann, 2½, who was wearing a life jacket and became imprisoned in her safe position by an oar that became wedged under one of the boat seats. Body of Father Found In Lake Wednesday

The body of John Wehrmeyer, 32-year-old father of five children, was recovered here Wednesday from Lake Macatawa, where he died in a boating mishap at noon Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wehrmeyer and four young daughters were thrown into the lake when their 14-foot boat capsized as they were completing a pleasure ride on the lake. The mother and four girls were saved, but the father was drowned.

Dragging operations continued until dark Tuesday and were resumed Wednesday. The body was recovered about 30 feet from where the mishap occurred by two volunteers, Henry and Joe Prince.

Five boats assisting in the recovery work this morning included one in which Wehrmeyer's father and brother, Ernest Sr., Jr., were helping. The Coast Guard had one boat out, and the sheriff's department another with Deputies Nelson Lucas and Al Hildebrand of Hudsonville.

Coroner Gilbert Vande Water, in his official investigation has ruled that Wehrmeyer died of accidental drowning. Vande Water said the body showed no signs of sudden blows by an oar or any other boat equipment.

Mrs. Wehrmeyer said Wednesday that the family had just returned from a ride on Lake Michigan, with the mother driving when they ran out of gas on Lake Macatawa. The husband filled the gas tank and mentioned they should go in and he "would take it in."

Then the boat tipped, but no one could explain why. The mishap occurred about 100 yards off shore at the foot of Hillecrest Dr. on the north side.

Patty, 5 and Mary Lou, 6, had life preserver cushions under their arms but lost them when the boat tipped. Jo Ann, 2½, had a life preserver. She became wedged under the boat with one leg over an oar and was rescued when the boat was tipped upright by rescuers.

Mrs. Wehrmeyer was holding Judy, 8 months old, and neither had a life preserver.

All this time, the father was helping to get them above water and at one time they were about all on top of the boat, Mrs. Wehrmeyer said. However, the boat tipped over again, she said.

Wehrmeyer was holding Patty and by that time one of the rescuers was on the scene and took the baby from Mrs. Wehrmeyer and helped Mary Lou and Mrs. Wehrmeyer. As the mother turned, she saw Patty trying to come toward her and starting to go down. Mrs. Wehrmeyer said she didn't see her husband after that.

The Wehrmeyer family lives at 402 Fourth St.

John Wehrmeyer was born Oct. 7, 1919 in Sibley, Iowa, and had lived in Holland for about the past 13 years. Survivors include the wife and four daughters; a son, David, 11, who was picking blueberries at the time of the tragedy; two brothers, Ernest, Jr., of Holland, and Leroy of Grand Rapids; a sister, Mrs. James Hayward of Holland; the parents, Ernest Sr., of Holland and Mrs. Alice Wehrmeyer of Grand Rapids; and a grandmother, Mrs. Henrietta Dykema of Holland.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at the Dykstra funeral chapel, and at 2 p.m. at Beechwood Reformed church, where the deceased was a member, with the Rev. John Benes in charge. Burial will be in Pilgrim Home cemetery.

The family requests that flowers be omitted.

Area Woman Fails In Try to Protect Mate From Law

Grand Rapids (Special) — Howard Coon of 11563 16th St., route 2, Zeeland, surrendered voluntarily shortly after noon today at the Kent county sheriff's office.

Grand Rapids — A Holland woman's attempt to shoulder the responsibility and shield her husband who purportedly left the scene of a three-car accident has failed, sheriff's officers reported today.

Sheriff Hugh M. Blacklock said Mrs. Howard Coon, 34, of route 2, Zeeland (11563 East 16th St.) reported to his office yesterday and said she was the driver who left the scene of a three-car pile-up in which three persons were injured near Ada Monday night.

However, deputies said witnesses reported the runaway driver was a man and Mrs. Coon admitted she was attempting to shield her husband, who is a traveling man and was in Flint.

The husband, Howard Coon, 41, was convicted of a drunk driving charge three months ago in St. Johns and is not supposed to have a driver's license, Blacklock said.

Injured in the collision were Clarence Olin, 52, route 1, Holland, his wife, Sybil, 48, and Mrs. Barbara Vader, 20, of Ada.

Mrs. Olin suffered a hip fracture while her husband and Mrs. Vader incurred lesser hurts.

Olin and Mrs. Vader were drivers of two of the cars. Mrs. Olin was described in good condition in St. Mary's hospital today.

Mrs. Coon told sheriff's officers her husband would appear voluntarily here to face charges.

She said she first became suspicious when her mother-in-law informed her the husband had phoned and said he had been involved in an accident after she read accounts of the mishap here.

Assistant Kent county Prosecutor Henry Milanowski said a warrant would be held in abeyance pending outcome of the condition of Mrs. Olin and Coon's appearance.

Hospital Reports Shortage of Room For Polio Patients

Two More Cases Added To Ottawa County List; 24 So Far This Year

Grand Haven (Special) — St. Mary's hospital in Grand Rapids is now filled with no more beds available for polio patients except in extreme emergencies, according to Charles Bugielski, officer of the Ottawa county chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Two more cases have been added to the county total, bringing it to 24 for the year.

Mrs. Arnell Racosky, 26, wife of Laverne Racosky, Nunica, is the county's 23rd case. However she is staying at her home. David Cote, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Cote, 16933 Fruitport Rd., the latest victim was taken to St. Mary's hospital at 3 p.m. Wednesday. He has involvement of the neck and back. He became ill Monday. However his condition this morning is reported good.

Mrs. Racosky, mother of two sons, was taken ill Aug. 20. She has weakness of the left arm and left leg. Her condition is also reported as good.

A call has been sent out for nurses who are urgently needed and for which the nation has made an appeal through the Red Cross. There is no age limit for these nurses. Others also are needed for work in the convalescent wards. A request also is being made for hot pack machines.

Wednesday a double iron lung which accommodates two patients was flown in and is now being used in Grand Rapids.

Meanwhile an all-time record of 1,369 cases of poliomyelitis has been reported in Michigan so far this year. Ernest L. Bates, state representative of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, reported today.

Last year up until Aug. 27 there were 585 cases of polio recorded and for the similar period in 1950 the figure was 464 cases, Bates said.

The 1,369 reported so far this year surpasses the previous record of 1,024 victims established during the entire year of 1949.

In Washington, the public health service said today that 3,503 new polio cases reported last week amounted to an 11 per cent increase and was a new high for this year.

The weekly summary of communicable diseases noted that increases in the week ending Aug. 23 were mainly in nine northern states, including Michigan — apparently an indication that the current polio outbreak first centered in Texas and the southwest now is hitting sharply in the northern part of the nation.

The survey reported that the yearly total to date, 19,980 cases, still is below the 20,527 cases reported during the same period in the record year of 1949. Only 11,886 cases were reported in the same period last year.

This year's summary made no mention of the approach of the peak for the current polio outbreak. The health service has indicated, however, that the peak is to be expected any time.

Cabrera is the president of the Nicaraguan Red Cross and has just returned from a Red Cross convention in Canada. Nicaraguan Visits City En Route to His Home

The president of the Nicaraguan Red Cross is visiting Holland this week while en route home from the International Red Cross meeting which was held in Canada July 23 to Aug. 9.

He is Rafael Cabrera who is renewing his friendship with Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Wilson, who live in the Temple building. Cabrera left Holland Sunday for visits to Chicago, New York and Mexico before returning home.

Cabrera and the Wilsons first met on a boat en route from Guatemala to Philadelphia back in 1939. At that time the Wilsons lived in Philadelphia. Cabrera's daughter attended a school in Philadelphia and the Wilsons sort of looked after her while she was in the country. The daughter visited the Wilsons a few years back while on her honeymoon.

Cabrera was graduated from Columbia university in 1914 where he majored in chemistry and pharmacy and is now employed by a wholesale drug company in his native country.

Of the International Red Cross meeting, Cabrera said there were 650 persons attending and they represented 66 societies in as many nations. Largest delegations were from Communist China with 18 and Russia with 20.

The meetings were supposed to be non-political as always but Russian and the Chinese Reds charges of germ warfare in Korea, inhuman treatment of war prisoners and other propaganda swayed the convention from this rule for short times.

However, the other nations thwarted these baseless charges at every turn. "Their charges had no effects on delegates," Cabrera said.

The International Committee of the Red Cross is made up of 25 Swiss members who inspect POW camps and all other things pertaining to rules of the Geneva convention. But the Russians and the Chinese Reds will not allow such inspections. They claim they are "protecting their security," Cabrera said. The Chinese did not elaborate on this point.

The Russians attacked the international committee on grounds it is not international but only Swiss. They wanted to make it "international" by having members from Russia, Poland and other countries behind the Iron Curtain.

However, they were defeated easily by the free nations in a showdown vote.

One incident that drew chuckles from most delegates came when a Russian-sponsored resolution to outlaw the atomic bomb was defeated and a resolution on the same subject, introduced by Great Britain, was passed which "recommended the atomic bomb and germ warfare not be used."

The Russian delegate demanded a re-vote on the resolution but was silenced when the chairman said, "In all democratic countries, the minority inclines to the decisions of the majority and I suppose the same is true in your country."

The Russian delegate sat down without comment.

High School Band Has Exciting Day

More than 80 members of the Holland high school band and their conductor, Arthur C. Hills, returned to Holland at 4:30 a.m. Sunday after a full and exciting day in Chicago and at the Chicago-Land Music festival.

The group left Holland at 5 a.m. Saturday, the beginning of a busy day. In the morning, they played for criticism at the Lake Shore club. In the afternoon there was a massed band rehearsal at Soldier's field and then, from 7 to 11 p.m., the big show which attracted an audience of almost 80,000.

Zeeland Defeats Dutchmen in Tilt Going 11 Innings

Zeeland (Special) — Although doomed to last place in the final standings of the Southwestern Michigan Baseball league, the Zeeland Chix gloated Saturday after knocking over the league-leading Holland Flying Dutchmen 5-4 in an 11-inning thrill-packed contest Friday night.

Michigan State ace Bob Dangel for Zeeland and former Hope star Clare Van Liere hooked up in the pitchers' duel that was hampered somewhat by 11 errors made by the two teams—Zeeland had five and Holland six.

The winning run crossed in the 11th frame when Sherwin Louwama got a life on an infield error and romped home as Gus Walters pounded out his fourth hit of the evening. That was the ball game.

Holland jumped off to a two-run lead in the first frame on a walk, triple by Willie Rink and infield out. The Chix came right back with a single run in the first on a walk and Walters' double, and then tied it up with another tally in the second on an error, walk and single by Louwama. The Chix forged ahead with two in the third on an error, single by Gene Talsma, two more Dutch misplays and single by Dangel.

The score stood at 4-2 until the seventh. Ed Setter singled and stole second. He scored on a single by Butts Kool, who crossed a moment later on an outfield error. That knotted the count where it stayed until the 11th.

Dangel limited Holland, to six safeties, with Rink banging out a single, double and triple. The winning moundman struck out 14 and walked only two. Van Liere allowed only eight safeties, including two singles, a double and triple by Walters. Talsma also had two safeties. The Holland hurler walked six and struck out 10.

Chloromycetin Is Cleared by FDA For Many Diseases

Detroit—The Food and Drug administration has ruled that the Parke, Davis & Co. produced antibiotic chloromycetin may be used to treat any number of diseases.

The decision followed in the wake of recent reports that chloromycetin produced serious and even fatal blood disorders in certain cases.

Harry J. Loynd, president of Parke, Davis, said, "The FDA decision certainly reflects new credit on the research scientists who discovered and perfected chloromycetin and the clinical investigators who made exhaustive tests before chloromycetin was first made available to the medical profession.

"In the course of a nationwide study on reported blood disorders, the FDA contacted physicians and hospitals throughout the country and also obtained recommendations of the national research council. Thus this antibiotic, with which physicians have treated more than 8 million patients since 1949 has now successfully passed three intensive investigations — originally by Parke, Davis, and more recently by the FDA and the division of medical science of the national research council.

"Physicians may continue to prescribe chloromycetin for the treatment of any disease as they see fit, but are cautioned against using the antibiotic indiscriminately or for minor infections. The studies show that blood disorders may be associated with intermittent or prolonged use not only of this antibiotic but a number of other drugs, in which case adequate blood studies should be made."

Reporters Tour Aluminum Capital Of World in Northern Canada Town

by Esther Van Wagoner Tufty
Arvida, Canada (Special) —Up here, 10 miles beyond the end of civilization, "a dam site" is not swearing, but something to swear by.

Some 40 American reporters found that out in this isolated but picturesque town of 12,000, where "more aluminum is produced than in any other community in the world."

The Alcan plant turns out 350,000 tons annually (the largest plant in the United States, at Mead, Wash., has an annual output of 150,000 tons.)

Everything and everybody here has a French name. The first of two new dams and powerhouses, just opening on the Peribonka river, a few miles distant from Arvida, is called Chute du Diable. That means "The Rapids of the Devil" and it's well named for those fast leaping waters.

The second is Shute-a-la-Savane, meaning Rapids of the Marsh.

This aluminum capital of the world is situated on the Saguenay river, 300 miles northeast of Montreal. From the windows of the Inn, a French manor oasis in this lonesome North country, can be seen the Shipshaw hydro-electric power development with an installed capacity of 12 million horsepower, a near rival to Boulder Dam with its 14 million horsepower.

All this old and new power makes possible an expanding aluminum industry.

The Canadian chapter of that story begins at the wharfe at Port Alfred, a 20-mile drive from Arvida, where the boats from British Guiana on the northeast coast of South America discharge their reddish brown cargoes of bauxite ore.

The trick is to get the aluminum out of the bauxite. That takes a vast amount of electricity. To watch that happen, we put on goggles to protect our eyes from fine dust and visited the "pot-line" of the huge smelter plant in Arvida.

Three other ingredients were added to the bauxite. Petroleum coke from Texas. Cryolite from Greenland. Fluorspar from Newfoundland.

Treated in a soda solution, the bauxite yields a chalky-white powder containing a high concentrate of aluminum. This is fed into a coke-lined reduction furnace, called a "pot," where it is dissolved and through which electricity travels.

Finally the silvery aluminum liquid is poured into rectangular ingots weighing 40 pounds. To watch in the hot, dust-filled air, the potline in action was awe-inspiring even to a pioneer in the aluminum industry such as Edwin J. Mehel, the vice-president of Aluminum Limited, the parent company of Alcan.

He's fond of calling aluminum "package power." Stockpiling of those ingots is seen as "insurance against any defense emergency." It represents storage of electric power. In an all-out war, a power shortage is always feared.

Mehele admits little worry about a surplus of aluminum. True, the war-that-isn't-a-war in Korea might end and curtail immediate defense needs. But the peacetime uses of aluminum are almost boundless. For example, the automotive industry, which could eat up a lot of aluminum, is welcoming the lighter metal in the planning of new models.

By seeing aluminum in the making, the American reporters have convincing proof of the gigantic expansion of natural resources going on in Canada.

More meaningful was the recent remark of Bernard Baruch: "If I were a young man today, I would go to Canada."

Holland Township Board Rejects New Plant Request

Holland township board of appeals Tuesday announced it has denied an application from A. P. Kleis and Sons, doing business as Holland Rendering Works, to erect a new building on a site purchased four years ago.

In a formal statement the board said: "The appeal board of Holland township after properly considering the facts presented at the meeting Aug. 19 feels compelled to deny Mr. Kleis' application to erect a rendering works plant on the location named in the application."

NAMES COME ALIVE

The Chinese Reds have renamed Mt. Everest. They have decreed that in future it shall be called "Chu-mu-lan-ma," the name that the Tibetans gave to the earth's highest mountain centuries ago. The name "Mt. Everest" dates back only to 1858 when the peak was named after the British director of the Indian survey office. The Chinese Reds are not unreasonable in this question of naming their own baby, for Mt. Everest is theirs, and for them the name "Mt. Everest" is a foreign name. The Reds have decreed that the ancient Tibetan name is henceforth to appear on all Chinese maps.

That is their privilege, but that is probably about all they can do about it. To the rest of the world the name of the world's highest peak will remain "Mt. Everest." For names have a curious habit of coming alive and taking on a personality of their own. This is true of Mt. Everest in a special sense. Because the peak is the earth's highest, the name "Everest" has become a symbol of ultimate achievement. We speak glibly of an "Everest idea" and everybody knows what we mean. The name has become a figure of speech so deeply imbedded in consciousness that no Chinese decrees can possibly dislodge it.

Changing a name is one of the most difficult of human enterprises. The people of this section of Michigan, a century ago, gave the names of their dear homeland places to towns and villages and cities. Today, to the outsider at least, some of those names seem rather quaint and not representative of the inhabitants of those places. But they have taken on a life of their own, and any attempt to change them would result in failure.

The same thing is true of much of the rest of America. "New England" as we know it is not in the main descriptive of another England. There are more Irish in Boston alone than there are Englishmen or even descendants of Englishmen in the whole area; and the area is swarming with non-British citizens. When Captain John Smith gave the section the name "New England" it was representative and appropriate. It has ceased to be either, but who would dream of changing it? The name has come alive in its own right.

In the same way "Mt. Everest" will probably maintain itself in world consciousness regardless of Red decrees.

David, the Statesman
2 Samuel 5:6-10; 8:13-18
By Henry Geerlings

David had the necessary qualifications for his high office as king of Israel, and he knew how to use them in the operation of the government. He was a real statesman, who had the good of his country at heart.

The conquest of Palestine had never been complete from the days of Joshua on. Not only were there heathen tribes on the border of the land of Israel but there were some right in their midst, and Hebron had been the nation's capital during the reign of King Saul.

David had a preparation for statesmanship that few have had. He knew men from the grass roots up. He had contact with all sorts and conditions of men. He knew that there were some who would be true and loyal. He knew that there were others who were treacherous whom he could not trust. Added to this he had an unswerving faith in God. God to him was real. He feared Him in the true sense of the word. He lived not in terror of Him but he revered Him and was desirous of always walking in His ways. He had many experiences in trusting God and at being delivered by His power. Before he undertook any venture he asked counsel of the Lord.

Another thing that made David a great statesman was that he was unselfish. He worked for the best interest of the nation. He could not be flattered or bribed. Because of this he could see problems clearly. This in time became known and it gave him the confidence of his people.

David showed his statesmanship in that he never attempted to hurry things to his own advantage. He was the anointed of the Lord to succeed Saul. Saul was his open enemy and sought David. He drove him into exile and pursued him. Twice David had an opportunity to kill Saul but he forebore. He would not lift his hand against the Lord's anointed.

And when he was made king in Hebron he reigned there for seven years. The other larger part of the nation was his by right, but he would not force himself on them. He waited until they came voluntarily. In waiting until they came he had not engendered any bad feeling. If he had set out immediately to bring them in by the power of the sword, this would have resulted in needless bloodshed and he would have made a host of enemies that would have plagued his reign.

David showed his statesmanship in working for the peace and security of the nation. Ever since the death of Joshua more than 400 years before Israel had little peace. She was surrounded by strong hostile nations which had an inveterate hatred of her and all she stood for. They never lost an opportunity to harass her. The people had no peace or security. Their lives and property were in constant danger.

These enemies had encroached upon Israel's lands and held them. Some of them were of the nations that were under the judgement of God and due for extermination. David did not have to start the war on these nations. As soon as they heard that David was king of Israel they became aggressors. It took a long time to subdue these enemies. It was not until the reign of Solomon that peace in all borders was secured.

Another way in which David showed his statesmanship was that he had re-established the worship of God on a national scale. Since the days of Eli, the priest, the services of the tabernacle had been suspended. The tabernacle was in one place, the ark of the covenant in another. David issued a wide proclamation to all Israel and especially to the priests and Levites and invited them to come together. His first attempt to bring the ark to Jerusalem was not successful. They put the ark on a new cart. On the way the oxen stumbled and Uzziah put forth his hand to steady the ark and he was punished.

In establishing the religious services, David was also laying the groundwork for a system of education. It was the duty of the priests and Levites to teach the people the Law. The parents were required to teach their children what they had learned from the Levites. This made for an intelligent, instructed people in the things that pertained to their spiritual life.

Another thing which marked David as a statesman was that he built for the future. He had a desire to build a temple in Jerusalem as a dwelling place for God. But since he had been a warrior and shed much blood he was not allowed to build the temple. But his son Solomon was to be a man of peace and he would build the temple. But David had a part in it. He saved great sums of money and prepared material for the building of the temple. The Lord also gave him the plan of the temple. David knew that if he could keep the people close to the temple it would be well with them.

David was a great statesman in that he had an interest in the spiritual welfare of the people. He did not think it enough that they would have food, clothing, shelter and peaceable relations with their neighbors. He saw them as sinners, precious to God, and he labored to bring them to the true knowledge of God.

The first lighthouse in the United States was built at the entrance of Boston harbor in 1716.

On Sept. 10, they will board a ship at Seattle and sail to Juneau. From Juneau, they will have to fly the short distance to Yakutat.

Company D Begins Final Training At Camp Grayling After Week-End

Sgts. Duane Rosendahl and Harold Volkema

As always, the week-end was a busy one for the guardsmen at Camp Grayling. On Saturday the inspection took place. In the morning all the tents had to be furled.

In other words everything had to come out of each tent, the ropes loosened, and then the tents were wrapped around the center pole. Then all field equipment was laid out on the bunks for inspection. Capt. Robert Koww inspected the Holland outfit. Capt. Russell Kempker wasn't around for the inspection nor for the parade. Saturday morning he made a fast car trip back to Holland for the day because of an addition to his family, a baby girl born Friday night. The trip was made possible by Pfc. James Smith who drove the company commander to Holland.

The parade in the afternoon was as colorful as usual. All the troops paraded for the governor and general, Governor G. Mennen Williams and Gen. Ralph W. Loveland. At the parade the Stewart medal was presented to Sfc Charles Cook of the 119th Field Artillery Battalion. This award is given annually to the "best soldier in the Division."

Many visitors from Holland were present for the week-end. Former guardsmen present at camp as visitors included Henry Geerts, John Kempker, Les Pool and Horace Troost. Approximately 90 visitors came to camp during the week-end, most of them coming on Sunday. These visitors were fed a delicious chicken dinner Sunday noon by the cooks of company D.

Sunday morning was a big morning for the company D Glee club. The Glee club is made up of some 24 members and is under the direction of Sgt. Roger Northuis. This Glee club was first on the program at the Memorial Day Services on Division Hill. Not only did the entire division hear their rendition but many hundreds of visitors as well. Gov. Williams spoke briefly at the services. Chaplain Thurston directed the scripture reading and offered prayer.

After a cold day and two extremely cold nights the weather warmed up considerably for the week-end "festivities." Lake Michigan, which borders the north side of the camp has been ideal for swimming throughout the entire camping period this far. It is hard to describe the scenic beauties surrounding the camping area.

This week will find an overnight bivouac and company problems. The volleyball team will play for the camp championship tonight. Opponent will be the 125th Infantry Regiment.

This year as in other years the men of the company received considerable enjoyment from reading the Holland Evening Sentinel which is daily received by the company. There are enough copies to be able to give one to every tent. Company D has 22 tents with from two to six men sleeping in the tents. Each tent has its tent leader whose duty it is to "keep the men on the ball." Then every day the tents are inspected and the "worst" tent receives the "eight ball flag"—A white guidon flag with a large eight ball on it. The tent receiving this flag then gets the undesirable details.

FERRIS BOARD ELECTS
Big Rapids — The Ferris institute board of control re-elected Federal Judge Raymond W. Starr of Grand Rapids as chairman. Col. Roy C. Vandercook of Lansing was elected vice chairman.

This new Roebach Auto-Stitcher in operation at the Steketee-Van Huis Printing Co. represents the greatest advance in saddle stitching and will handle any saddle stitching job in fold sizes. The stitches are placed mechanically and present a neater appearance than when placed by guesswork. A girl gathers various signatures and places the collated booklet on the saddle. The conveyor carries the booklet under the stitcher heads where the automatic stitcher operating mechanism places either one or two stitches as required. The stitched booklet then is automatically ejected onto the stacker delivery table with the binding edge up for easy inspection and counting. Variable speed control enables the operator to run the machine at any desired speed. A foot control switch governs stopping and starting at any point in the stitching cycle. Interested parties wishing to see the mechanism in operation are welcome to visit the plant at 9 East 10th St.

Title Hopes Fade As Dutchmen Bow To Muskegon Nine

Muskegon (Special) — The Holland Flying Dutchmen all but bowed out of contention in the race for second half honors in the Southwestern Michigan Baseball league race Monday night as they lost to Muskegon CWC 7-2.

The loss was the sixth for Holland in second half play against eight wins. South Haven leads the pack with a 9-5 record and has one game to play, tonight against Grand Rapids Black Sox. Holland closes its schedule at home Thursday against the Black Sox.

The Dutchmen still could tie for second half honors if the Sox whip South Haven and Holland defeats the Black Sox. The Grand Rapids nine has six wins, five losses with four games to play.

Against Muskegon, it was a case of not hitting in the right spots that doomed the Dutchmen. Each club batted out 11 safeties, but Muskegon bunched theirs to produce seven runs.

Only two Holland scores came in the seventh on a double by pitcher Roger Eggers, triple by Zeke Piersma and single by Loren Wenzel. In the other eight innings, Holland left 12 men on base.

Muskegon scored two in the second, added a third in the third, and rounded out with two in each the sixth and seventh frames.

Wenzel led the Holland hitters with three safeties and Clare Van Liere two. First baseman Paul Gilbert contributed three hits to the Muskegon attack. Doug Jacobson was the winning pitcher.

The victory was the eighth against seven losses for Muskegon and winds up its second half schedule.

10-Inning Game Helps Ring Down Softball Curtain

A 10-inning thriller featured the final night of the regular season in Holland City Softball league play Friday night.

Central Ave. scored four runs in the 10th inning to defeat Main Auto 6-2 and win a one-hitter for pitcher Matt Numikoski. In the second game, Skippers turned back Pelon Sunoco 10-3.

The four-run outburst in the 10th frame broke up a tight pitcher's duel between Numikoski and Jason Ebels. Until that point, Ebels had allowed only three safeties, all coming in the second inning for Central's two runs. But in the 10th, a walk, singles by Paul Vanden Brink, Bob Altena and George Knoll and a triple by Rog Zuidema sent home the four runs.

Central scored first in the second on a single by George Brinks and doubles by Skeet Bouman and Lou Altena. The Autos tied it up in the third on a walk, single by Roddy Maat and a three-base outfield error.

Numikoski struck out 12 men along the way while Ebels whiffed 13.

Skippers put together six hits and eight bases on balls to down Sunoco. All eight men who walked eventually scored.

Meanwhile, Bud Hamming was setting Sunoco down with four safeties, including two by Will De Neff. Of the six hits for Skippers, two came off the bat of Herb Colton. Case Velderman was the losing pitcher.

Holland Student Ambassador Sums Up Some Oddities While in Germany

By Guy Vander Jagt

Holland's Community Ambassador

On Board Bus With Munich, Germany, as Destination (Special) Aug. 10—When our busload of 10 Americans and 10 Germans left Bonn this morning, the first phase of our summer abroad had ended and we were started on a three-week tour of Bavaria, the Swiss Alps and Austria.

For three weeks we had the novel experience of living with the Wullenwebers and until the last morning when Mama Wullenweber and I said "auf wiedersehen" with a catch in our voices, my stay was marked with memorable moments.

I will not soon forget my original repulsion at eating raw bacon, which the Germans consider a delicacy; nor my breathless relief at reaching solid ground after my first swim in the Rhine river where the deceiving water seems so peaceful but actually carries even the strongest swimmer three yards downstream for every foot he moves toward shore. And I was amazed at paying only 22 cents for a haircut.

As an American in Bonn I was eagerly questioned by all my German friends. Many of them were surprised to find an American who did not have a "butch cut" and was not a boogie-woogie addict. Again and again I explained that Chicago was not a nest of gangsters and that the average American was far from rich even though he owned his own car.

America is highly respected throughout all Germany. In everything from cigarettes to automobiles the American make is considered best. Even though Germans are an extremely proud race, America and its way of life has completely captured the German imagination; and America is the land of wealth and power in their eyes. Virtually every young person longs to visit this land of fabulous splendor and many of them dream of migrating to the "land of promise."

True, Germany is proud of her great men and her heritage. But that pride rests in the castles and places of a few men. America's majesty is in her vast empire of assembly lines that pour out automobiles for the average man and washing machines for the simplest of homes. My German "brother" summarized Germany's great pride in her past. "America's power is of today and tomorrow."

Some primitive peoples kill all twins as soon as they are born because they are believed to bring bad luck. Other tribes, however, regard twins as good luck omens.

Work Will Start Soon on Testing Cattle in County

Grand Haven (Special)—Work will start in the near future on the second test of cattle in Ottawa county for Brucellosis (Bang's disease). This control program was started three years ago. Retesting of infected herds, along with vaccination of calves in infected herds has continued down to the present time.

On the first test three years ago about 3,000 herds containing 30,000 cattle were tested with 20 per cent of the herds and 4.5 per cent of the cattle found to be infected with Brucellosis. Since then about 400 herds of the more than 600 herds infected have sold their reactor cattle and have been retesting their cattle in the program to control the disease. During this same period some 4,000 calves in these infected herds have been vaccinated against the disease.

The program has been carried on by the joint efforts of the Michigan Bureau of Animal Industry and the United States Bureau of Animal Industry with the co-operation of L. R. Arnold, County Agricultural agent, and the active participation of the practicing veterinarians working within the county. The same organization will conduct the retest this year.

The work this year continues the eradication program and is the result of a resolution adopted by the Ottawa County Board of Supervisors in their June meeting of this year which requested the Director of the Michigan Department of Agriculture to conduct a retest for Brucellosis in Ottawa county.

There are a few important changes in the conduct of the program this time. On this test the milking herds in the county will be surveyed first by the use of the "milk ring" or "ABR" test for Brucellosis. This is a procedure that has gained widespread use in this country recently as a means of rapidly and economically covering the area to be tested. The test itself involves the laboratory analysis of a pooled sample of herd milk from each farm. If the sample is found negative, the owner is so notified and nothing further is done within the herd.

If the sample is suspicious, the individual animals in the herd are blood tested by a veterinarian participating in the program to determine if any infection is present within the herd. Milk samples will be collected from farm by a resident of each township. Beef herds or other non-milking herds, will be blood tested as before.

Another change in the program this year relates to vaccination of calves in infected herds. This was done previously in all infected herds wishing the service. In the future it will be done only in those infected herds agreeing to sell their reactor animals in six months from date of blood testing. The majority of the owners of infected herds have disposed of their reactor animals within this period in previous work. Disposal of reactor animals as rapidly as possible is the quickest and best way to eradicate the disease, which is the reason for the modification in the vaccination program.

It is anticipated that work will get under way in the western part of the county around the first of September and it is hoped that testing can be completed in six months by the end of February.

Ernie Penna of The Sentinel was on the north breakwater at the Holland channel Thursday afternoon when the above sailboat was tossed onto the south pier. He used a long range lens to get the picture. Three youths had come down to Holland to go sailing and despite rough water, went out into the channel. The heavy sea tossed the boat onto the south breakwater where it rested for 10 minutes before another wave washed over the pier and took the boat with it. The three youths can be seen as tiny specks on the far pier to the left of the pilot house in the bottom photo as they wait for Casey Landman to come after them. They scrambled onto the sailboat when it was tossed onto the breakwater. The Coast Guard took the boat in tow as shown in bottom photo.

Sailboat Tossed Onto Breakwater During Windstorm

The 22-foot sloop "Maggie-Mike" was unceremoniously left high, but not dry, on the south breakwater at the Holland channel entrance Thursday afternoon during a 35-mile-an-hour windstorm that rolled up huge whitecaps along this section of Lake Michigan.

Three teen-aged boys who were sailing the boat scrambled out on to the breakwater before the boat was washed off by another big wave 10 minutes later. The stranded youths were rescued by Casey Landman in his boat after the Coast Guard motor launch captured the runaway sailboat and took it into tow.

The three youths, David Milanowski and Pat Scanlan, both of Grand Rapids, and Don Staiton of Berwyn, Ill., came down to Holland for a day of sailing. Coast Guard lookout Richard Rossiter warned the youths of the bad sea that was churning waves over the breakwaters. In trying to tack through the channel they lost control and the waves did the rest.

In the Crew of the Coast Guard launch that picked up the boat were EMI Edwin Feddick, CSI Glen Basham, BM3 Louis Gwynne, SM Eugene Basta and SN Norman Bernadine.

John Owen, 264 Rose Ave., told The Sentinel today of a similar occurrence in the fall of 1896 when he was 18 years old and working on the breakwater that was just being erected.

A two-masted lumber schooner was trying to make the harbor in a storm when a huge wave carried the schooner over the north pier and lifted it to the north side of the channel where it landed right side up without tipping.

Owen recalled at that time the breakwater and piers were not as high as they are today.

Local Girl Describes Crayfish Dinner in Sweden, Gives Recipe

By Colombe Yeomans Piccadilly, London, (Special)—Crayfish dinners are festive events for Swedes in August. This delicate and delicious fish forms the high spot of their "Smorgasbord."

The crayfish season begins Aug. 7 and the fish cannot be bought until that date. Fishermen are permitted to catch them with nets on the midnight of Aug. 7 until the end of September.

The gay occasion is similar to our July 4th with fireworks. The displays signify the beginning and conclusion of a crayfish dinner. Bright red napkins are essential for the colorful table decorations. A crayfish can be best described as something right in between lobster and shrimp as to size and looks. They have a taste of their own which can't be described. They are served cold, and are usually boiled one day before being eaten.

Crayfish can also be obtained in Michigan. A great number are caught in Minnesota and Wisconsin.

I enjoyed a delightful crayfish party with the Olav Lanning family near Stockholm. The description on how they were prepared was particularly interesting.

The crayfish are sensitive to handling. If prepared correctly they constitute a rare treat. After complimenting our chef cook, Olav Lanning, I was very fortunate to obtain his prize recipe. He also gave me hints on how to buy them.

Each guest will eat on the average of 10 or 12 crayfish if they are not too small. You should buy a few more, since you might find several dead ones which must be discarded.

The female crayfish is highly esteemed. Particularly among connoisseurs. She can be recognized by a slightly broader tail. The male is rather slender at that portion of the body. When you buy crayfish see that the females do not comprise less than 40 per cent of the total or else you are being cheated!

Give the crayfish a good rinse in cold water. Approximately a gallon of water will be sufficient for boiling 50 crayfish.

Other requisites for the preparation are dill (same as is used for dill pickles) and salt. In addition, the crayfish will need two lumps of sugar and a teaspoon of butter to make them glossy.

The dill should be with flowers, but with little or no seeds. Dill without flowers is not good, and dill with all seeds and no flowers can ruin the preparation. Use only the fresh part of the dill stems and have at least one stem for every two crayfish.

The salt concentration is important and should not be chosen haphazardly. The correct way is to obtain a certain proportion between water and salt, no matter how many crayfish you put in the water. The proportion is 2.6 to 2.9 per cent salt in the solution—no more and no less.

Put the salt into the water, add two lumps of sugar and a small amount of butter. Then add the dill. The water should be boiling when the crayfish are put in (but will probably cool off after they are down).

Let them boil again for 8 to 10 minutes (not more), and then immediately cool the kettle. This can be done in a large tub. When they are fairly cool, the kettle should be stored in a cold place until the next day when the crayfish feast is to take place.

Before storing the crayfish, the dill should be removed, because it will give too much aroma to the brew. When serving, put some fresh dill flowers on top of the crayfish heap as a decoration.

Lenning, a civil engineer from Stockholm, was my first hand advisor on eating the Crayfish. He remarked that it is not only an art to know how to eat them, but a skill to consume them faster than your neighbor!

The art of eating crayfish, however, includes all that is edible, and in Sweden it is considered bad taste to discard anything of this kind.

There are only two parts which you must throw away. The first is the black stomach portion in the head part of the animal. The other includes digestive tract which runs through the middle of the tail.

Margareta Lenning, a young college student, excelled in saving up a heap of tails for one big crayfish sandwich at the end of the feast. This is a marvelous idea except for the risk that a neighbor might steal the whole heap when the owner looks away to say that traditional "skaal" to somebody else.

Dutchmen Back On Top With Win

After spotting South Haven six runs in the first innings, the Holland Flying Dutchmen came from behind to whip the Merchants 14-7 Thursday night and move into first place in the Southwestern Michigan Baseball league.

Five hits and two walks off starting Holland hurler Warren Victor gave South Haven six runs in the first frame. Roger Eggers took over mound chores in the second, and although reached for 11 hits the rest of the way, Eggers slammed the door on runs except for one.

Holland, meanwhile, scored in spurts. The Dutchmen scored twice in the first, three times in the third, four in the fourth, two in the fifth and three more in the seventh. They raked three South Haven hurlers—Jack Turner, Bill Kelly and Art Bowie—for 11 hits and took advantage of 11 bases on balls. Kelly, who relieved Turner in the third, was charged with the loss before giving way to Bowie in the seventh.

Hitting for the Dutchmen was a community job. Everyone in the lineup except catcher Ned Suits and Victor had at least one safety, with Clare Van Lier, Dave Kemper and Ed Setter each getting two.

South Haven's offense also was a team project, with everyone but Bowie hitting safely at least once.

Community Ambassador Describes Trip Through Red Zone to Vienna

by Guy Vander Jagt
Holland Community Ambassador

Lake Constance, Germany — From rags to riches and back to rags again is the story of the past week of my European tour. On the morning of Aug. 10 I climbed out of a hay mow bed in Munich, said "good bye" to the Experiment group, and headed for Vienna—deep in the heart of Russian territory. One week later I was back in the hay mow bed of a youth hostel in Garmisch describing the luxury of a thrilling Vienna trip to the 10 American and 10 Germans in our touring group.

The Vienna excursion—from the preparatory stages of securing a "grey card" permit in a desperate trial that led from Bonn to Munich to Salzburg to Linz and back to Salzburg until the last lingering look at the beautiful Blue Danube—was packed with a more prolific author to write a volume on the "Tale of One City."

What was perhaps the tensest moment of the trip came when our train stopped at a little spot on the edge of the mountains, and six somber faced Russian soldiers stomped on board. Breathlessly we waited while the Russians checked passports and "grey cards" and occasionally we stole a glance at a dusty road down which three Americans had marched at rifle point only a week earlier. But all was in order and our train was soon on its way across 100 miles of Russian territory to Vienna.

That train ride provided three fascinating conversations. One conversation was with an escapee from Hungary who hoped to immigrate to America because "America is the one place left in the world where there is real opportunity for a man who is willing to work." Another 40 minutes passed quickly when a former German fighter pilot now living in the Russian zone of Vienna expounded his thesis that force is the only language the world understands. He said, "We ought to use force against Russia and use it fast!"

As the train pulled into the Vienna station we were talking with a short stout Austrian hotel owner who entertained Americans royally but inexpensively so that "when they go home they will never forget Vienna and never permit her to fall into Russia's clutches." As we parted he said, "I hope you have such a good time you will always remember Vienna because your country is the last hope of European culture. You must not forget us."

Not only at this obliging Austrian's hotel but everywhere in Vienna one can live like a king on a beggar's bank roll because of the high exchange rate of the American dollar. My friend and I lived in a luxurious downtown hotel with twin beds, sofa, spacious closets and huge bath for $1.20 per night. In one of Vienna's finest restaurants we enjoyed the excellent service of tuxedoed waiters and the dinner music of an ensemble that created a gay Viennese atmosphere wandering from table to table. In these pleasant surroundings a delicious steak dinner cost only 48 cents.

In spite of the low prices the average Austrian can afford few luxuries as work is hard to find and wages are very low. The average worker earns about $12 per week. To alleviate the poverty of some of its citizens, the city of Vienna has erected a huge settlement house that stretches for three-quarters of a mile along the Blue Danube. Here eight thousand people live in modernly equipped four room apartments for a $3.20 monthly assessment.

This city of 1.8 million inhabitants has a rich cultural heritage. For centuries the palaces of the Hapsburgs in and around Vienna were gathering places for the world's great literary and musical figures. In Vienna there are as many plaques announcing "Beethoven wrote here" as "George Washington slept here" signs in the eastern part of the United States. In fact one begins to suspect the Austrians of an over active imagination until Beethoven's knacker for quarrelling with his landladies explains the 33 Vienna homes claiming one time Beethoven residence. Because of his deafness Beethoven was inclined to bang too loudly upon the piano. His landladies' requests to play pianissimo instead of triple fortissimo incensed the irritable Beethoven and invariably he would leave in a huff to look for a new home.

Vienna is one of the few places in the world where French, English, Americans and Russians work together with a minimum of friction. The heart of the city is an international zone with the four powers alternating each month as supreme authority. The zone is policed by "four men in a jeep"—a soldier from each of the four occupying powers rides through the streets in an American jeep. Although the rest of the city is divided into four zones, there are no obvious boundaries between them. Only the huge pictures of Stalin and the Russian peasant tell the tourist when he has wandered into the Russian sector.

Vienna is famous for the Blue Danube, the Vienna Woods, its gay music and beautiful women, and the friendliness of its people. On all four scores the city lived up to advance notices. The sight from the top of Mt. Kahlenberg where one looks down on the colorful night lights below with the Blue Danube winding its way through the heart of the city and the mountains, just visible in the moonlight, rising in the distance is one of the world's most beautiful. The Viennese atmosphere of this scene was momentarily suspended, however, when the man at the zither in the cafe from which we were looking at the city shifted from the melodic strains of the Blue Danube into the catchy American tune "If I Knew You Were Comin' I'd Baked a Cake."

Figuratively speaking, the Viennese people will "bake you a cake" if they know you're coming to visit their city. They are extremely friendly, especially to Americans. One middle-aged housewife spent two and a half hours helping me on a shopping tour after I had asked her for directions simply because she "likes Americans."

Altogether the Austrian hotel owner's wish had come true. The beauty of the Blue Danube and the Vienna Woods, the friendliness of the people, the inexpensiveness of luxury, and the charm of the colorful Viennese atmosphere left an unforgettable impression. I for one "will always remember Vienna!"

Head-On Collision On US-31 Called Worst in Allegan

One Driver Believed To Have Gone Asleep,
Veered to Other Side

Five persons were killed early Sunday morning in the worst traffic accident in Allegan county history about two miles north of Saugatuck village limits on US-31.

The head-on collision of two cars brought death to four young people from Grand Rapids, who were traveling in a 1949 model convertible, and a teen-aged youth from South Haven, who was traveling alone in a 1950 car.

Victims were:
Delma Ann Luetnitz, 20, of 3500 Clyde Park Ave., Grand Rapids, who was dead on arrival at Holland hospital of head and internal injuries.

Barbara Bratte, 23, of 1010 South Division Ave., Grand Rapids, who died at the accident scene of head, shoulder, and internal injuries.

Jack Sullivan, 26, of 42-43rd St., Grand Rapids, who died at the scene from head and chest injuries, fractured shoulder and two fractured arms.

Donald May, 26, of 612 Platt St., Grand Rapids, driver of one car, who was dead on arrival at Holland hospital of head, chest and internal injuries and a fractured left leg.

Alone in the other car was Paul Thompson, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ozzie Thompson, 737 Wilson Ave., South Haven, who died en route to Holland hospital.

According to state police accounts and witnesses, Thompson apparently fell asleep and veered across the centerline into the path of the oncoming May car. It was estimated both cars were going about 65 miles per hour.

Thompson was en route to Holland in his parents' car to pick up Sunday editions of a newspaper.

The official state police accident report showed that the two cars met almost head-on on the west side of the road, indicating the Thompson car was on the wrong side at the time of the crash. Police said the right wheels of the Grand Rapids car were off the pavement, indicating May tried to avoid the collision.

May and his companions had attended a wedding reception earlier where Miss Bratte, an accordionist, had been an entertainer.

Witnesses included some boys from Holland who were following in other cars. They were: Jay Bos, 129 West 29th St.; Leroy Knipe, 991 Post St.; Ernest H. Wingard, 244 West Ninth St.; Bernard Wiersma, 264 West 17th St.; and Marvin Klomparsen, 120 Clover St.

Bos and Knipe told The Sentinel that they were the second car behind the Thompson car. They said one body fell out of the convertible and the others were hunched over inside. They removed the bodies immediately and lay them on seat cushions. Both witnesses said all five persons were alive immediately after the crash, but they died soon after.

Three were taken to Holland hospital. One died en route and the other two were dead on arrival.

Bos and Knipe estimated speed of 65 miles an hour for each car. About five minutes after the accident, Dr. C. O. Shafer of Benton Harbor happened on the scene and went to work giving medical aid. He received help from a Dr. Ayers from Grand Haven.

Allegan county Deputy Henry Bouwman, State Troopers William Kichler and Walter Villaneau of South Haven, Allegan county Sheriff Louis Johnson and Saugatuck Police Chief William Gore and Holland Patrolman Leonard Steketee, who just went off duty, investigated.

Coroner William Ten Brink of Hamilton was called to the scene. Three bodies were taken to Holland funeral homes and later sent to Grand Rapids and South Haven. Two bodies were taken to Hamilton.

Bouwman credits Holland police for calling police, ambulances and the coroner.

Woman in Hospital After Motorcycle Mishap Near City

A young Battle Creek woman, who was injured in a motorcycle mishap near Holland late Sunday afternoon, was reported in "fair" condition Monday at Holland hospital.

Mrs. Eleanor Jex, 23, of 571 West Van Buren St., Battle Creek, is being treated for a skull fracture and severe laceration on the back of her head.

Her husband, Robert Jex, 22, who was driving the motorcycle, was treated at Holland hospital for bruises and lacerations and then released.

The two young cyclists, riding double on the bike, were in a group of three motorcycles when the rear tire on the Jex machine suddenly went flat. Jex lost control and the motorcycle skidded 129 feet on the pavement on its left side.

The mishap occurred at 5:15 p.m. Sunday on US-31, about four miles north of the M-21 intersection. Other cyclists in the group, following the Jex machine, were Henry F. Rainwater and Ward Balch, both of Battle Creek.

Investigating Ottawa Deputy Nelson Lucas said Jex told him he did not have a blow-out, but rather the tire just went flat. Jex said he had been having trouble with the valve-stem.

Dr. Kenneth L. Matson of Chicago, a passing motorist, rendered on-the-scene aid to both injured persons.

In another highway mishap during the week-end, a Holland man received broken fingers and broken ribs when he lost control of his car and it hit a lightpole at the corner of River Ave. and Ninth St. Friday afternoon.

Injured was William N. Haan, 76, of 233 Felch St., who was driving south on River Ave., and attempted a left turn. Haan received treatment at the office of a local physician.

A lovely ballerina-length gown of Chantilly lace and a matching short veil were chosen by the bride. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and mums circled with gladioli florets. Her attendant wore a yellow organdy ballerina gown and carried yellow carnations and mums edged with lavender florets.

After the rites, a reception was held in the church parlors for 100 guests. Attending from Holland and vicinity were Mr. McCormick, the groom's father, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Andringa, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Greening, James Lambers and Rudy Bilek. Miss Kalmink Becomes Bride of Alvin Venema

In a pretty wedding solemnized Thursday evening in Ninth Street Christian Reformed church, Miss Norma Mae Kalmink became the bride of Alvin H. Venema.

The double ring ceremony was read at 8 p.m. by the Rev. Henry Venema, brother of the groom. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kalmink, 115 East 18th St., and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Venema of Hoppers, Ia.

In the wedding party were Mrs. Henry Venema, the bride's sister, matron of honor; Mrs. Donald Vander Linde, sister of the groom, and Miss Esther Sterken, friend of the bride, bridesmaids; Richard Venema, brother of the groom, best man, and John Venema and Herbert Peters, brother and brother-in-law of the groom, respectively, ushers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose for her wedding a gown featuring a white Chantilly lace bodice with long sleeves tapering at the wrists and small buttons down the back extending to the waist and a jewel necklace. The full skirt consisted of three tiers of tulle, the top forming an apron effect and extending into a cathedral train.

Her finger-tip veil of English illusion was held in place by a Juliet cap of tulle trimmed with seed pearls taken from the veil of her mother's wedding gown. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, a gift of the groom. She carried a white Bible with white roses.

The matron of honor wore a hunter green gown with a fitted taffeta bodice and nylon tulle cape, a full tulle skirt over taffeta with an apron effect, a nose tip veil of matching tulle and matching tulle mitts. Her semi-colonial bouquet consisted of yellow pompons centered with a yellow mum.

The bridesmaids gowns of gold color were fashioned identical to that of the matron of honor. Their bouquets were of bronze pompons centered with a rust colored mum.

The church was decorated with palms, ferns, white gladioli and seven-branched candelabra. White satin bows and gladioli marked the pews.

Lohengrin's wedding march was played by the organist, Mrs. John Tibbe, who also accompanied the Rev. Arnold Brink who sang "O Perfect Love" preceding the service and "The Lord Bless Thee and Keep Thee" while the couple knelt.

About 150 guests gathered in the church parlors for the reception. Waitresses were the Mesdames Patricia Nonhof, Carolyn Slenk, Jane De Weerd, Myra Kemme, Charlotte Kleis, Anita Bratt, Donna Kalkman and Ellen Branderhorst. Presiding at the punch bowl were Mr. and Mrs. Jason De Kock and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Bloem were master and mistress of ceremonies. In the gift room were Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Vryhof.

The bride, a graduate of Holland Christian high school and Calvin college, is employed in the Grand Rapids Public Library. The groom graduated from Calvin college and at present is attending Calvin seminary.

Following a wedding trip to northern Michigan and Iowa, the couple will be at home Sept. 1 at 2166 Horton St., S. E., Grand Rapids. For traveling the bride wore a beige shantung suit with gold and brown accessories and a white rose corsage.

Saugatuck

(From Monday's Sentinel)
William Hancock, an old time resident of Saugatuck, spent a few days here renewing old acquaintances.
