Season at State Park Is Busier Than Last Year

No Accidents, Arrests
Or Drownings Listed;
Camping Load Heavy

Eighty per cent of the camp sites at Holland state park, Ottawa beach, this summer were for families, Park Supt. Alfred T. Sirrine announced today as he reviewed the season's activity at the park.

The percentage was the same for both tents and trailers. Of the remaining 20 per cent for tents, 18 per cent was for girls and two per cent for boys. Of the 20 per cent for trailers, seven per cent was for girls and 13 per cent for boys.

There were 1,233 camping permits for the entire season including 419 for camps, 793 for trailers and 23 for "converted" cars. Of this number were 58 out-of-state permits, 20 for tents and 38 for trailers. States represented were Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Nebraska, Colorado, Kentucky, Florida, West Virginia, North Carolina, Iowa and California.

Michigan campers at the park totaled 1,617 in tents and 2,848 in trailers. Out-of-state visitors totaled 67 in tents and 131 in trailers.

The total increase in the number of campers this season was a fraction over 33 per cent over last year. This represented 8 per cent in permits for tents and 40 per cent in trailers.

The management also reported that there were no accidents, no drownings and no bad incidents during the 1944 season.

Improvements listed for the park next year include three new drinking fountains, 12 new stoves, a new life guard stand higher than the present one. The management also hopes to have a sign to be used for signals.

The average temperature for the water in August was 70 degrees, the highest being 78 on Aug. 5 and the lowest 48 on Aug. 26.

The park closed officially on Labor day but will remain open until later and lights will be available until Sept. 15.

Grand Haven, Sept. 6 (Special)—Edward L. Morse, 69, who has been superintendent at the Grand Haven state park since 1928, will retire at the close of the season and will go to Grand Rapids to make his home with his daughter, Mrs. G. H. Barnum.

Although the park officially closed on Labor day it will remain open to the public until Oct. 1. The total attendance for 1944 was 732,165, 99,000 more than in 1943. On Monday there were 26,000 at the park, on Sunday 20,000 and for the past week 65,000. Camping permits this year totaled 2,054, 516 more than in 1943.

Cannot Exchange Blue Points for Extra Sugar

The local war price and rationing board today explained that there are no rationing regulations permitting issuance of extra canning sugar to persons who raise their own fruit for canning in exchange for blue coupons for processed foods.

The local office has received dozens of calls from persons who are of the opinion that they may obtain additional sugar on a basis of one pound in exchange for eight to 30 points.

Federal regulations allow a maximum of 25 pounds of canning sugar per person, 20 pounds issued by the boards and five pounds obtainable with sugar stamp 40. Last year a regulation allowed exchange of processed food points for sugar on a resale basis.

Restaurant in Coopersville Is Razed by Fire

Coopersville, Sept. 7 (Special)—Fire, caused by spontaneous combustion, completely gutted Tiny's restaurant in the Coopersville business district about 8:30 p.m. Thursday and also shattered windows and windshields of about six cars parked in front of the place.

The explosion ripped out the entire front part of the building, formerly owned by Elroy (Tiny) Mosher, but which had just been taken over by a Mr. Richardson of Grand Rapids who was having the place redecorated for an early opening under new management.

Persons who witnessed the explosion said the front windows seemed to swell out and then burst. The state fire marshal who investigated said the fire started in a waste paper basket in the kitchen and set off paint fumes. No one was injured.

A shoe store on one side and a super market on the other were both damaged slightly by smoke. Fire walls prevented further damage.

Loss was not definitely determined but will run into several thousand dollars.

Military Needs For Tin Salvage As Great as Ever

L. Philip Van Hartesveldt, who heads the tin can salvage program in Holland, today urged all-out cooperation by local residents in the tin can collection Friday starting at 9 a.m.

He pointed out that residents by their donations will bolster the home front as well as the fighting forces. Minimum military requirements so far have been met in the past, but the need remains as great as ever, he said. Failure to meet the home-front quotas has delayed manufacture of items from tin scrap for civilian use. Military needs are met before civilian needs are considered, he said.

In the first drives, Holland collected 90 per cent of the estimated tin scrap available, he said, but since that time, the collections here have fallen down and now the percentage of collections is at 45 per cent. This, however, is still slightly above the national percentage of 40 per cent.

He urged residents to prepare the cans today for Friday's collection. This consists of removing both top and bottom, washing the cans and flattening them. This collection is for tin cans only and for no other scrap, he said.

Rural and suburban residents coming into town Friday morning were urged to leave their tin cans in containers, on city curbs before 9 a.m.

Dutch Officer Always in Wrong Spot for Action

Lt. Klaas Metz of the Royal Dutch navy has an unfortunate talent for being in the wrong place at the wrong time.

As engineer officer of a Dutch submarine, he was in Java when the motherland was invaded in May, 1940, and he asked immediately to go to England, a request which was fulfilled a full year later.

He was in England in December, 1941, when Pearl harbor was attacked and hostilities broke out in the Pacific. So he asked to be sent back to that area, leaving England in March, 1942, for an allied base in the Pacific.

Now with liberation in sight in the Netherlands, the Dutch officer found himself this week visiting Holland, Mich., which is about as far from the active fighting fronts as almost any spot on the globe.

Lt. Metz, who left Holland this morning for Chicago, said he felt most apologetic that he was not able to be in his homeland fighting with the Americans and allies. He had come to this city from Philadelphia where he and his crew have been working for several months repairing their submarine which had gone through four years of combat. He will report back to Philadelphia next week.

The officer said he knew Peter de Klerk and Nico Visser, the two Dutch sailors who first visited Holland early this summer in search of tulips, windmills and pretty girls who talked Dutch. Unlike the two sailors, Metz speaks excellent English. The three met first in Soerabaya, Java, and their submarines arrived in Philadelphia for repairs at almost the same time.

Metz wears three service ribbons, one designating membership as a knight in the order of Orange-Nassau, presented to him on the queen's birthday in 1943; the second for the Bronze Cross award, comparable to the American Distinguished Service Cross, awarded him two months ago by his skipper for service in the Pacific, and the third ribbon denoting service in the present war with a bronze star for combat. He received this ribbon early in 1940.

The Netherlands and other countries do not award ribbons for service so freely as the Americans, the officer explained. One ribbon takes care of an entire war regardless of the number of theaters the veteran has fought in. Veterans of other lands are sometimes inclined to regard the American display of campaign ribbons with amusement, he said.

During this war, Metz has fought with the Dutch, the British, and the Americans in submarine warfare and said all allies work in close collaboration. Of the 16 months of service in the Pacific, Metz spent four with the United States forces and said up to now this country's submarines are the best equipped. He pointed out that the American U-boats are newer and have the benefits of experiences. The Dutch U-boats were built more than four years ago during peace time.

Richard Van Dyke Is First Paralysis Victim in Holland

Youth Is Confined in Butterworth Hospital;
23 New Cases in State

The illness of Richard John (Dick) Van Dyke, 15, 270 West 20th St., Thursday was definitely diagnosed as infantile paralysis and the patient was removed to Butterworth hospital in Grand Rapids for treatment. Routine Business Is Disposed of in Short
Meeting in City Hall

In a brief meeting which adjourned at 7:30 p.m., common council Wednesday night approved a recommendation of the health board that Mrs. Theresa Mellema be appointed city nurse in place of Esther Hallquist who has resigned. The proposal also provides that while Mrs. Mellema is to serve full time for Holland city at local expense, she will retain her standing on the Ottawa county health unit. Her salary will be paid jointly by the city and the board of education.

Mrs. Mellema, the former Theresa De Jong of Grand Rapids, took her nurse's training at the University of Minnesota, being graduated in 1936 with a degree of bachelor of science. She worked as a rural public health nurse in Navajo county for two years and taught health education and served as school nurse at Central Michigan college in Mt. Pleasant for three years.

Since last November, she has been working with the Ottawa county health department serving the southeastern part of the county while living in Grand Rapids. Prior to that time she taught part-time in Calvin college. Her husband, Martin Mellema, will enter Hope college this year as an advanced student.

The new nurse will assume her duties here Sept. 18.

End of War to Find Russia Top Power In Europe and, Perhaps, in Asia: Wood

By Junius B. Wood

The end of our two-ocean war is not yet in sight, but the final victory is certain and a picture is emerging of the lineup of nations when peace comes. Allied armies are moving across France and American forces in the Pacific are cutting Japan's lines of communication with the islands in the south.

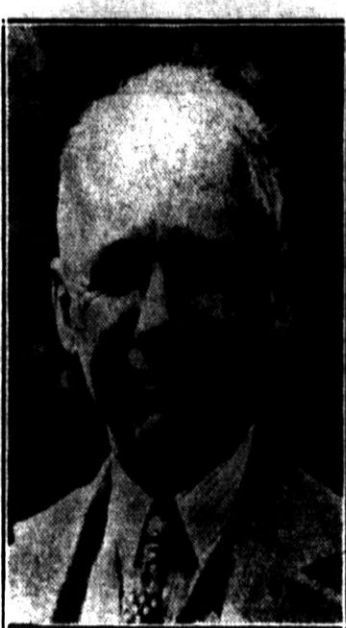

Today the eyes of the world are on Washington where diplomats of the United Nations plan an organization for future world peace. Before those plans can be realized, the war must end and Allied armies will be in many lands, boundaries will be changed, new spheres of influence will be set up and new voices in international affairs will be heard. Where each nation's armies will be can only be surmised now but their possession will be an actuality, not a theory of statecraft.

The war will end with the Soviet Union the strong power in Europe, possibly also in Asia. Germany will be broken, France and Italy prostrate and the smaller nations eager, or compelled, to accept a protector. Great Britain can challenge Russian influence but the British Lion must face the Russian Bear alone no longer able to play balance of power politics on the continent as it has for the past century.

The Soviet Union will be stronger than the Russia of the czars. It will take back what it lost in the last war—Bessarabia, Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia—and parts of Poland and Finland. Its influence, control of other governments, will spread even farther, over part if not all of Germany, over the Balkan countries of Romania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia and probably over France. Governments for Czechoslovakia, for so-called independent Poland and for the Slavic countries are ready in Moscow.

The plans of the Soviet Union for conquered Germany may differ from those of the United States and England. Moscow wants to exterminate the Nazi party and its leaders. Once that is accomplished, the German committee in Moscow and an underground Communist party in Germany will be the government. Russia does not bomb German factories as it will need them later to repair the damage in its own country.

This Soviet policy, in my opinion, explains the much publicized attempted assassination of Hitler. Presumably many German army officers realize that the longer they fight, the worse will be their defeat and that with an Anglo-American peace, Germany will be divided among several countries. They believe their army careers will continue under a Communist Germany as under a Nazi Germany. The attempted assassination sounds like another Nazi fake, another reichstag fire or Munich attempt. It is strange that an officer would leave a bomb on a chance that it might kill his victim when he might just as easily have shot him and been sure. Nor did any uprising or mutiny follow the attempt. If there ever was an attempted assassination, Hitler staged it again the little man who was not there—to get sympathy for himself and an excuse for executing officers ready to end the war now. Fake or not, the officer morale of the German army is shattered.

American and British armies are steadily advancing in France but we are farther from the German frontier than when we entered the last war. The Red army already is the same as in East Prussia and much closer to Berlin. Once that hard fought distance is covered, Moscow will be in possession and in position to dictate the peace and the government it wants. The Soviet Union with its wealth of undeveloped raw materials will use the industry of Germany, a new role in world commerce as in world politics. However, for the next decade what Russia produces will be needed at home if the living standard of its own people is raised.

In the Pacific Gen. MacArthur and Adm. Nimitz are advancing in 100-mile jumps but two more years of even bloodier fighting may be needed before Japan is crushed. Before that comes it is practically certain that Japan will advance peace proposals based on the hope that everybody is war weary. It will offer to return the Philippines; the British Dutch and Portuguese colonies and parts of China; to eliminate the military party from control in Japan, and fervently promise to behave in the future.

It is a hollow offer as Japan cannot hold the islands and territory it has seized and Japan's ambition to rule the world, a dream it has nourished for 2,600 years, is the same whether militarists, big commercial companies or suave politicians control the government. The militarists seize territory as Korea, Formosa, Kwantung and Manchuria. They retire and the industrialists consolidate the gains. When time is opportune for a new aggression, the militarists again are given control. Japan has a set formula and peace in Asia cannot be secured by the temporary expedients of the past.

The defeat of Japan is a long and costly task. Its fanatical warriors must be exterminated almost one by one. Its airforce is almost destroyed and its navy and merchant marine is decimated but the islands must be occupied to assure a real victory. Much of Japan's industry and the best of its army has been moved to Korea, Manchuria and the occupied Chinese territory. Blows at the heart of the island empire will not end its stubborn resistance. Better to die than to lose is the Japanese code of life.

Again the role of the Soviet Union is a big factor in the war in the Pacific. Obviously, Russia could not fight Germany in Europe and at the same time wage war with Japan in distant Asia. The two countries have a treaty of neutrality, no representatives of Moscow sit in United Nations conferences when China is present and we cannot use nearby Siberian bases for attacks on Japan. Troops of Japan will remove its fleet from Manchuria and their constant threat to Siberian territory. The Soviet Union may take part in that defeat or it may figure that, once Japan is broken, it can care for the future alone. Its role will not be known until the war ends in Europe.

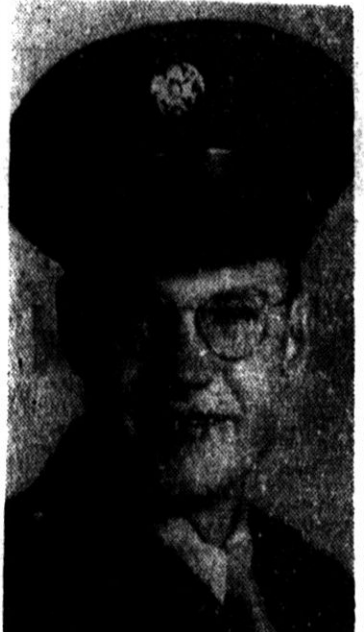

With Japan eliminated, the way is open for China. If it can settle its internal rivalries, to become the dominant Asiatic nation. Whether China grasps the opportunity, it is certain that Asia has changed. Domination of China by Occidentals is ended and though the island colonies will be restored to western powers, the natives, including India, will have a greater share of self-government and education and a higher standard of living the pattern which we set in the Philippines.

The war will end with only three nations strong enough to enforce—or menace—the peace of the world. While China is unquarable, it has no ambitions outside its own boundaries. Other smaller nations have the same nature-given right to happiness and existence and if peace is to be just and if any league or union is to endure it must protect the rights of the smallest—be based on moral grounds and not on the size or military might of a few.

The United States is paying dearly in lives and treasure for such a peace not for itself alone but for the world. Other nations should adopt the same high ideals and grant our country the material returns in territory and rights of trade and travel necessary for its future safety. The agreements should be written while these nations are depending on the United States to win their victory. Once that help is no longer needed, it may be too late as after the previous war.

Brondyke, Who Crawled 2 Miles After Being Hit at Anzio, Is Home

Pfc. Edward E. Brondyke, 20, who crawled on his stomach about two miles to a first aid station after he was hit in the right ankle by shrapnel fired from a Nazi tank last Feb. 16 at Anzio beachhead, arrived in Holland Saturday night to spend three weeks with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Brondyke, 125 East 21st St., before reporting to a rest center at Miami Beach, Fla.

Brondyke, veteran of the Salerno and Anzio campaigns, went through the entire Salerno battle and was at Anzio five weeks before he was wounded. The shrapnel broke a bone in the ankle which kept his foot in a cast 2½ to 3 months after he received hospitalization.

Reluctant about details, Brondyke indicated that several buddies with him at that moment at Anzio received worse wounds, including some fatalities. After receiving treatment at the first aid station, Brondyke was taken to a field hospital about 10 miles behind the front lines. This distance represented the depth of the beachhead after more than five weeks of concerted warfare on the part of the Allies.

After spending about four days in the field hospital, Brondyke was transferred to a hospital in Naples where he remained two or three weeks and then was sent about March 1 to a hospital in North Africa where he remained until July. His return to this country was made aboard a Liberty ship and he landed on the east coast Aug. 28.

In the year he spent overseas, Brondyke met only two Holland men. One was Sgt. Gerald Bax who was attached to the hospital unit in North Africa and the other was Sgt. Roy Muller, who had heard Brondyke was around and looked him up in North Africa.

While in the Naples hospital, Brondyke was awarded the Purple Heart medal for his wounds. Other service ribbons are for the Mediterranean theater of operations with two bronze stars, representing Salerno and Anzio, and the Good Conduct ribbon.

The soldier has a brother also in the army, T/Sgt. Lewis Brondyke, now at Edgewood arsenal, Md., who entered service in January, 1940, as the fifth man of Holland under selective service. He has not been overseas.

Pfc. Brondyke, who says he does not even retain a limp, entered service March 4, 1943, took his basic training at Camp McEllan, Ala., and was transferred to Camp Shenango, Pa., and Camp Shanks, N. Y., before leaving for overseas Aug. 18, going first to North Africa. On Sept. 14 he was sent to Salerno, landing there the second day after the beachhead was opened. There, according to the soldier, the going was pretty rough and the second day was as bad as the opening day.

His company was sent within two or three miles from the Cassino front and then was shifted to Anzio, participating in the first days of bitter fighting. Yet it was five weeks before Brondyke was hit.

After a stay in the Miami Beach rest camp, Brondyke will go through the reclassification center for assignment to limited service.

A graduate of Holland High school in 1942, he was employed by Chris-Craft Corp. before entering the service.

William von Stein, head of the General hospital staff in Maywood, Ill. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's brother, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Warren, in Woodlawn, Chicago. The wedding could not be carried out quite as soon as planned as many Normandy casualties were arriving at the hospital at that time, obliging a brief postponement. The young couple is making their home in Oak Park for the present. Mrs. von Stein spent a number of her vacations here. Her mother had located here, planning to make this a permanent home. However, the house she had was sold and, unable to get another one, she moved to Chicago. Miss Martin for the past year had been engaged in dangerous Red Cross Clubmobile work in south England.

Pvt. Robert J. De Ridder, 22 East Ninth St., has been serving as a platoon guide with the 351st regiment in Italy, one of General Mark Clark's fifth army units that helped to drive the Germans from the Gargano river to the Arno. Except for a brief rest period, the regiment marched and fought almost continuously for more than five months. Soon after Rome's fall, the regiment was given a well-earned rest but three weeks later it was again slashing enemy lines and backing the defeated Germans to the north. At times the infantrymen had to move rapidly to keep up with the flooding enemy but in other instances important points were captured only after bitter house-to-house fighting.

A picture in the news section of the Sentinel the other day portrayed American soldiers passing along the eight-foot steel and concrete wall running the length of the beach in southern France which was intended to stop such an invasion assault. If the invasions of France and Italy have proved nothing else, they have at least established the fact that walls have become obsolete.

France learned that bitter lesson with its Maginot line. Strictly speaking, that was not a wall, but it was intended to serve the purpose of one. France owed its four years of agony to the fact that it put its trust in a wall. Instead of learning the lesson that they themselves had taught the French, the Germans straightway proceeded to make the same mistake themselves. They dreamed of building a wall around Europe; not, of course, a literal wall but one that would serve the same purpose. The German people will have to pay with generations of agony for that delusion.

An American writer once wrote:
"Something there is that does not love a wall." He was speaking of New England stone fences but his words have wider application. For thousands of years the nations built physical walls, so that every city had a high wall around it.
Occasionally a nation tried to build a wall about a country, as for instance China. The Romans built a wall clear across England; and there are other vestiges of walls in most of the older countries.

The invention of gunpowder made the walls around cities obsolete. The invention of the airplane has made the modern military "line" obsolete. The nation that in the future puts its trust in such walls is likely to disappear. There is something in the very inventive genius of the human race that does not love a physical wall.

There are other walls less obvious but more formidable. There are the economic and commercial and cultural and racial walls between peoples that are fundamentally the reason for all wars. More than gunpowder and airplanes is needed to level such walls. Something there is in the organization of life upon this globe that does not love such walls anymore than stone walls. Demolishing them costs millions of lives, but the chances are that those deaths have levelled many a wall in this war.
We are as yet too near to the event to be able to see what has happened. The people of 50 years hence will probably be able to see it.

THEY ALSO SERVE

Yes, the war is won by our fighting forces; and the determined spirit of our people. But it is being won no less by all the millions of Americans going quietly about their normal business and by the spirit in which they do it.

Here is not something to brag or make speeches about. It concerns a branch of the war effort of people who do it as a matter of conduct voluntarily, by millions course, and would be surprised if anybody praised them for what they are doing.

This comment is made in the face of the recent strike in the Philadelphia transportation system, and corresponding labor difficulties in various other places.
They are lamentable and a disgrace to the people who enter into them. The spirit of most war workers, like that of the fighting men, is sound.

THE CHURCH INVITES YOU

Chester W. Nimitz, Commander-in-Chief of the United States Pacific Fleet, says, "Every effort has been made to harden the muscles of our fighting men, increasing their physical ability to accomplish their difficult tasks.
But even the finest weapons and skill to use them, and the standards to keep them in sustained use is not enough. There must be added to these a spiritual armament to give the strength born of simple faith, and the ultimate triumph of the Christian ideal through the world."

In ministering to the spiritual needs of our fighting forces the church is making a solid contribution and a greatly appreciated contribution to our coming victory." In view of these facts every patriotic citizen needs to accept the invitation and go to church next Sunday.

David Anointed King
— 1 Samuel 16: 1-5, 11-18
By Henry Geerlings

The story of David is the story of a shepherd boy who became a king. There are many elements in the story that make it fascinating. It is the kind of story that would appeal to the imagination of an ambitious youth who, anxious to succeed in life, would be interested in learning how others have succeeded.

The life of David includes traits of character which deserve approval but also has elements less favorable. This factor makes the story appear more real. Too glowing an account of a human individual is apt to create suspicion as to its accuracy. There are enough of the human traits of character in the story of David to make one feel that it is authentic.

Early in the history of David we encounter his contest with Goliath. His skill outstripped the physical prowess of Goliath. The results of contests of various kinds are surprising at times. The victory occasionally goes to those whom we least expect to win. One should not be too sure that his qualities are not the ones that will win. So many factors enter into the game of life that we cannot very readily predict in advance which qualities will cause one to succeed and another to fail. David's skill was more valuable than Goliath's strength. Human nature is so subtle that certain elements of character often win out over other traits that may appear on the surface as more sure of winning. Christian men and women have traits that can win out over the Goliath's of life.

As a king David had many things to commend him. He won many victories and it seems as though his intentions in most circumstances were good. He was marked by a sincere patriotism and love of his country and people.
This characteristic he showed in his enthusiasm to defend his people and to advance their interests.

David also had religious interests and can be thought of as a devout man. While he is probably not the author of all the psalms that bear his name or are at least attributed to him, he is the author of many. These religious hymns show his truly religious nature and pious disposition.

His psalms bring out the fact in addition to being a ruler and king, he was a poet and musician. It is possible that a mark of genius is a diversity of interest.
David had talents in several directions. It is notable that a number of men in public life have hobbies or talents in several directions. Such a diversity of accomplishment may minister to success in one's special and particular field of endeavor. At least a diversion is conducive to good physical and mental health.

But with all his greatness David drifted into sin for which he suffered and also repented.
Here lies one of the universal lessons of the story of David and the universal message of the Scripture. Righteousness wins God's favor and sin suffers his punishment. Let it be clear that this law of God is not arbitrary, but the working out of a logical plan of cause and effect. Punishments are the logical consequences of wrongdoing.

David's life represented a constant warfare with sin and evil.
His failures might well be attributed to the overwhelming task he faced. If we knew all we might be more charitable.

The people had a share in electing David as their king. It was always been a problem as to the manner in which the leaders of people shall be chosen. We condemn kings and rulers and long for a truly democratic state in which the people shall rule. But no sooner do we secure a large measure of control than we learn that our high hopes of the people's rule are not being fulfilled and that disappointment meets us on many hands. The people think they want power; but when given that power they abuse it. Frequently we clamor for rights, but fail to assume responsibilities.

Many studies have been made of greatness in men and women.
Students have drawn from the careers of individuals the outstanding characteristics of their activities and traits. No one trait is the secret of greatness and no lists of traits exhaust causes of greatness. Christians can well turn to the teachings of Jesus on greatness where he makes service the true test. The truly great have been unselfish. With all his weaknesses David was motivated under many circumstances by a true love of God and true devotion to the people of Israel.

football team had just become in-vacant lot on the corner of 15th complaints from persons living near where the team practices, that windows had been broken and that they were otherwise annoyed by the boys playing. An effort will probably be made by Drew to continue practice on those

Remember the Apple Days?

Remember those grim days during the Great Depression when men who couldn't find work stood on street corners selling apples?

Many of those apple peddlers had been prosperous... had had good jobs. They'd been making extra money... just as you are today. But the trouble was, they thought things would always be like that.

Are you making that mistake today? Or are you saving your extra money so that no matter what happens after the war you will have some money you can get your hands on?

The best way to make sure that you will never be a street corner peddler is to put your extra money into War Bonds.

War Bonds are the best investment in the world. Every $3 you put into them today will pay you back $4 ten years from now. And... best of all... you can never be broke while you've got a sheaf of War Bonds in your pocket!

So buy War Bonds... and more War Bonds. And hang on to them!

CASTLE PARK MICH.

CASTLE 50 YEARS OLD

The Castle, vine-covered landmark which is the nucleus of Castle park, marked its 50th birthday during August.

Designed after a castle in the Rhineland familiar to the late Michael Schwarz as a youth, the structure was built in 1893-94 by Mr. Schwarz as a family home. James Huntley of Holland was the contractor and Diethelm and Roy of Chicago were the architects.

The site, 40 acres situated on the Lake Michigan front, was purchased by Mr. Schwarz in 1892 from Henry Pyler. The previous owner was Felix Kelly of Chicago, whose daughter, Mrs. Charles Knutson, the former Margaret Kelly, resides at Macatawa park. Mrs. Knutson, 86 last July 10, recalls girlhood days at Castle park and around the small lake near the Castle which was formerly called "Kelly's lake," named for her father.

The Castle was completed for occupancy in August, 1894, and the Schwarz family, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Schwarz, the latter's mother, Charlotte Mehde and six daughters moved there from Chicago, their household goods being brought with them across the lake on the old steamer Glen of the former Holland and Chicago line.

A son, the first in the family, was born in the Castle the following October.

In 1896 the Castle passed into the hands of Wisconsin and several New York residents.

The hotel accommodates about 100 guests and a colony of 70 cottages has grown up around the Castle. Among those staying the entire summer in Castle park cottages are several Holland residents.

More than ever has the Castle been popular this summer, Mr. Brown said. People come with their families by train and make a longer stay than in pre-war days. Already the hotel is booked full for next summer.

Features of the resort are the directed play enjoyed by children, dances on the outdoor dance dunes, sports events, swimming, tennis, baseball and the old-fashioned Southern Barbecue enjoyed by guests as a Labor Day tradition, climaxing the season.

For 22 years the Castle has been host to exhibitors from all parts of the country who participate in the well known Holland-Cast park horse show, a highlight of each resort season.

In contrast to the medieval castle is the Manor house with its wide porches, constructed in the mode of the South, and several smaller guest houses.

The natural amphitheatre at the park, a combination of nature and man's handiwork is one of the park's beauty spots. It was built as a memorial to the late Flora Pennell Parr, wife of a previous owner, and was the scene in past years of concerts and programs featuring noted artists. In more recent years Castle guests have enjoyed

Cub Scout Offers Tryouts for Two

Pitcher Lefty Van Wieren and Catcher Loran Wenzel of the Holland Flying Dutchmen will go to Chicago in September for a tryout with the Chicago Cubs.

This was decided Thursday night when Ray Schalk, Chicago Cub scout, issued an invitation after watching them in action here against the Kalamazoo All-Stars, Russell Vander Poel, booking manager for the Dutchmen said. Chuck Lester, All-Stars hurler, also was invited to try out.

Schalk's visit to Holland was the result of observations by Roy Paine, chief government inspector at the Holland-Racine Shoe Co., former semi-pro player who knows several big league performers.

Paine, whose home is in Massachusetts, arrived in Holland in June and has been following the Dutchmen's season with interest. He believed the Cubs would be especially interested in Van Wieren's talents, and he wrote Jimmy Fox, Cub player who is now in South Carolina, serving in part as a scout.

Fox relayed the information to Jimmy Gallagher, general manager of the Cubs, who in turn advised Head Scout Jack Sheehan. Paine was asked to obtain further information, and the correspondence was climaxed by Schalk's visit to Holland. Paine got some of the information from Bill Hietbrink, scorekeeper for the Dutchmen who works at the shoe company.

Paine, who expects to be here another four months, said he last saw Fox in Maine two years ago.

'Post-War India' Subject Of Address at Rotary Club

Rotarian John J. Banninga, retired missionary to India, addressed members of the Holland Rotary club Thursday noon at the regular weekly luncheon in the Warm Friend tavern on "Post War India." Drawing from his extensive experience and intimate knowledge of the country, Dr. Banninga traced the history and government of the country and his hopes for a "better India."

He told of the situation as it now is and spoke of the new attitude of Mahatma Gandhi in which he promises India will work with the Allies against the interest of Japan if they are granted immediate independence from Great Britain.

Although Great Britain and her allies realize the importance of India as a bulwark against Japanese invasion and a springboard from which an Allied invasion could be launched she does not feel as though India is as yet ready for independence, he declared.

At present Indians are fighting with the Allies in China, Burma, Africa, Italy and France and, realizing this fact and thankful for this help, Great Britain has promised that upon cessation of hostilities, when India, small meet in India to write a new constitution, complete independence shall be granted.

It is from this promise and India's sincere wish for independence and desire to work for it that Dr. Banninga expects a better postwar India.

The speaker was introduced by Rev. W. F. Kendrick.

Out-of-town guests at the meeting were Brig. Gen. Lyle H. Miller of the U.S. Marines, Peter H. Plume of Louisville, Ky., Dr. D. R. Vaughn of South Bend, Ind., Clair V. Frelham, Frankfort, Ind., O. S. Reimold, Yonkers, N.Y., Fred Bos and Bert Schuitena of Zeeland.

Legion All-Stars Of Muskegon and Holland to Clash

Friday's Game Here to Be for Championship Of Western Michigan

In a game which American Legion officials of Muskegon and Holland describe as the championship of western Michigan, the Muskegon American Legion All-Stars will battle the Holland American Legion All-Stars in Riverview park Friday at 8 p.m.

The Muskegon team was picked from a list of 23 teams and three leagues and should be a battle of young stars as the Holland players have definitely established themselves as an outstanding team by defeating Allegan Blood Brothers, 1-0, earlier in the week. Horace Winteringham is manager of the Muskegon outfit and well known promoter of American Legion baseball in that city. Logic would have it that the Muskegon team, coming from a much larger city than Holland, would have a powerful nine to tackle the local All-Stars.

Ernie Victor will start the contest for Holland and on his shoulders will be the main hope of a victory. He has twirled three no-hitters already against formidable competition and specializes in whiffing at least 10 or more batters per game.

Muskegon believes their All-Stars can whip Holland and proof of that is in the fact that they eagerly accepted challenge when the contest was announced as a Western Michigan championship fracas.

Shop Early! No Foolin', Postmaster Means It

Although the blistering heat waves experienced by local residents the last two weeks have little in common with jingle bells and Christmas trees, Postmaster Harry Kramer now urged persons interested in sending Christmas gifts to servicemen overseas to make preparations now so that parcels will be ready for mailing from Sept. 15 to Oct. 15.

Because strong twine, heavy paper, boxes and fiberboard will prove of real help in making delivery of gifts possible, the postmaster urged local persons to start saving these materials now since they will become even more scarce than they are at present. The great demands upon shipping and the need for giving preference to arms, munitions, medicine and food is the prime reason for the early mailing date. Moreover, gift parcels must travel great distances to reach army and navy personnel who are located at remote points, and frequently the transfer of large numbers to new stations necessitates forwarding of the packages and additional time is required.

Falshoods not only disagree with truths, but they usually quarrel among themselves.—Daniel Webster.

Benefiting from last year's experiences, Postmaster General Frank C. Walker warned donors that more care must be taken in wrapping and packing parcels securely and addressing them clearly and correctly.

"It is not a pleasant thing to visit a postal concentration center and see the number of Christmas parcels which will never reach servicemen and service-women. Post office personnel have orders to do everything they can to effect delivery of such gifts, because we know how important they are for the happiness of the armed forces. Too frequently, nothing can be done."

"I am sorry that anyone ever mentioned that the size of a shoe box is the approximate limit for packages intended for gift mailings overseas. Unhappily, many people became convinced that a shoe box is the best possible container. We must be mindful that these gifts must travel far, with shipping space crowded. If the gifts are to be protected in transit, they must be packed in boxes made of metal, wood, solid fiberboard or strong double-faced corrugated fiberboard, reinforced with strong gummed paper tape or tied with strong twine. If both tape and strong twine are used, so much the better."

"We were unable to deliver many parcels which families and friends sent to men and women overseas last year because they were crushed in transit and the outside wrapper became separated. To that end, we advise everyone to write the address of the sender and addressee inside the package as well as outside," the postmaster general said.

Relatives and friends who know that the personnel to whom they plan to send gifts are at far distant points should begin to mail their packages on the opening day, Sept. 15. Last year late mailings, causing concentration of great numbers of packages in the final days of the period, threatened to defeat the program. After Oct. 15 no gift parcel may be mailed to a soldier without the presentation of a written request from him.

Among the more important rules for Christmas mailings to the armed forces overseas are the following:

The parcel must not exceed five pounds, and must not be more than 15 inches in length or 36 inches in length and girth combined. It should be marked "Christmas parcel" so that it may be given special attention to assure its arrival before Dec. 25.

Not more than one parcel may be mailed in any one week to the same member of the armed forces by or in behalf of the same mailer.

When combination packages are made up of such items as miscellaneous toilet articles, hard candies, soaps, etc., the contents should be tightly packed so that they will not become loosened in transit and damage the contents or the cover. Hard candies, nuts, caramels (including those covered with chocolate), cookies, fruit cake, and chocolate bars individually wrapped in waxed paper should be enclosed in inner boxes of wood, metal, or cardboard.

Perishable goods, such as fruits and vegetables that may spoil, are prohibited. Intoxicants, inflammable materials such as matches or lighter fluids, poisons, and anything that may damage other mail also are prohibited. Gifts enclosed in glass should be substantially packed to avoid breakage. Sharp instruments, such as razors and knives, must have their edges and points protected so that they cannot cut through the coverings and injure postal personnel or damage other packages.

Mysterious Anesthetist

Mattoon, Ill., Sept. 7.—The "Mad Man of Mattoon," a phantom prowler who has terrified residents of this city where he has anesthetized more than a dozen persons in their beds, remained as much of a mystery to police today as the "gardenia" anesthetic he uses to overcome his victims.

No further attacks were reported last night, and apparently the phantom was replenishing his supply of the anesthetic which leaves his victims partly paralyzed and ill, police said.

Police admitted they were baffled and asked the Illinois state crime bureau to aid them in tracking down the tall, thin man who wears a skull cap and sprays his victims with a "sickly sweet" anesthetic.

Each of his 14 victims was overcome, but recovered without serious consequences.

Dr. E. E. Richardson, mayor of Mattoon and a practicing physician, said it has been impossible to determine the nature of the mysterious gas used by the prowler, who apparently sprays the anesthetic through bedroom windows.

Police theorized that the man may be a crank who believes he has something against the residents of the city, a berserk scientist who is testing a weird gas, or a fanatical high school chemistry student.

Robbery has been ruled out as a motive because the skull-capped figure never has entered any of the homes.

The latest attack occurred Tuesday night when Mrs. Carl Cordes, 45, was overcome after she had sniffed a damp cloth she found on her back porch. She was hospitalized with severe burns about the face and throat and swollen lips. This attack was the only one reported in which the gas was not sprayed on the victim, police said.

SERVES AS COOK OVERSEAS
An Eighth AAF Bomber Station, England.—The army cook is a long suffering individual who endures the caustic comments of his customers whatever the results of his efforts, or at least so says Corp. Clarence Brower, the 29-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harm Brower, 325 Central Ave., Holland, Mich., who is a cook at this veteran Flying Fortress station.

The preparation of food has the ever present problem of putting out a balanced meal yet maintaining a variety of dishes. It is also a 24-hour job, once the day's shift starts for men eat at all hours depending on the day's bombing operations. As the food is a standard issue for all units, the caliber of a mess depends on the work and ingenuity of the individual cooks. The mess hall in which Corp. Brower works is the best on this station as can be vouched for by the men who eat there.

Prior to entering the AAF on May 5, 1942, Corp. Brower was employed at the Hayes Corp. (Sheet Metal Work), Grand Rapids.
