Mich. R'y at this station is now kept in good condition, all the rubbish and dirt, which accumulates on the tracks, being cleaned up and carried away.

The first appearance of the new band at the Skating Rink last Tuesday evening did not create a very great sensation, but they played very well, considering the short time they have practiced.

MR. T. KEPPEL has his fruit evaporator running this week. The apples which have been through his "machine" look very tempting. He will run his evaporator principally for apples.

The Right Reverend Geo. D. Gillespie, Bishop of the Diocese of Western Michigan, will hold divine services at the Opera House to-morrow, Sunday morning and evening, at the usual

The sophomore class of Hope College have purchased and are now wearing a 1st, for the purpose of making arrangements for the excursion to Indianapolis, Wednesday, Oct. 3.

nation; and Mr. Den Herder will be elected by a large majority.

class company and should be patronized.

THERE will be a grand Republican rally at the Opera House in this city next Thursday evening, October 4th, turn out.

NEXT Sabbath morning Rev. Dr.
Beardslee will occupy the pulpit in

THE Crystal Creamery is a busy place. Not only are its proprietors manufacturing a large quantity of delicious butter every day, but they are also running their fruit evaporator night and day. Peaches are the only fruit being evaporated this week. They will begin on apples in a few days.

OWING to the rainy and disagreeable weather of this week, the concerts given by the Otsego Band on Wednesday and Thursday evenings did not draw very good houses. The entertainments were of a fine order. The rendering of the different parts were well received and heartily applauded.

HON. G. J. DIEKEMA will address at Brinkman school house Tuesday evening, October 2nd; and will speak at school house on Friday, October 5th, and at Overisel Town Hall Saturday.

The democratic banner which was hung last Saturday from J. W. Bosman's clothing store to the Kanters block opposite, on Eighth Street, is a fine one. The lettering on it was done by H. Landis, of Allegan, who came here specially to perform the work. It rather put the Harrison and Morton banner in the shade—in the forenoon.

THE Republicans stretched a Luce and Belknap banner last Wednesday morning from the Headquarters of the Young Men's Republican Club to the furniture establishment of Meyer, Brouwer & Co., opposite. This banner trip, good to return Tuesday, October 9th.

LAST Saturday afternoon about four o'clock, a team of horses, attached to a lumber wagon, and belonging to a farmer by the name of Van der Schraaf, became frightened on Eighth Street and ran away. For about a minute and a half they had River and Seventh streets all to themselves. Nobody made any effort to stop them as they were going at the rate of forty miles an hour, and probably would be running yet if the exertion had not been too great. No damage was done. Another team ran away Tuesday, on the same street, but were stopped before going far, and no serious injury was incurred.

THE Chicago and West Mich. R'y Company have issued a new time card, can nominee for Congress for this District, with his family, and other prominent Republicans, will accompany the at 11 p. m. Returning train will leave union depot at Indianapolis at 6 p. m.

land early Friday morning. Fare for and West Mich. ticket office, or see hand bills.

Caned.

House Company was held on September 24th, at which Mr. W. H. Rogers presented his resignation as Manager of the Opera House. The following resolution was then passed:

Resolved, That it is with sincere regret that we accept the resignation of Mr. Rogers, as his efficient management of the Opera House has been both valuable to the Company and to the public, and we extend to him our whatever position he may occupy hereafter.

MILTON WESTON A FREE MAN.

The Pennsylvania Board of Pardons at Last Grants His Prayer.

A HARRISBURG (Pa.) special is as follows: Milton Weston, the Chicago millionaire who was serving a five-year sentence in the Western Penitentiary for contributory murder in causing the death of a man named Haymaker during a fight between the employees of the two men over the possession of a piece of land in western Pennsylvania about four years ago, has been pardoned.

In giving their reasons for the pardon the board review the case, going into many details of the trial. There was nothing in the evidence to controvert the allegation of Weston that in all he did he believed he was conforming to the strict letter of the law in his efforts to maintain what he believed to be his rights. It was difficult, says the board, to see wherein Weston was more guilty than others who were present and concerned with him. Weston's action was strongly recommended by many prominent people, all of whom declare he was a law-abiding and peaceable citizen. Weston at once returned to his home in Chicago.

PASSING PENSION BILLS.

The Widow of Gen. Sheridan to Receive $3,500 a Year.

The Senate passed all the pension bills on the calendar, 114 in number, on the 25th inst. Among them was the bill granting a pension of $3,500 a year to the widow of Gen. Sheridan. Mr. Berry said he was opposed to the bill, but would content himself with voting "No" on its passage. Among other bills passed were those giving a pension of $3,000 a year to the widow of the late Gen. John A. Maclean and the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad, for the relief of soldiers upon the old Camp Sheridan military reservation in Nebraska, and amending section 4474, R. S., as to permits for the use of petroleum in steamboats not carrying passengers. The bill to regulate the course at the Naval Academy was passed by the House, with an amendment making the maximum age for the admission of a cadet 21 years, and the minimum 16 years. A favorable report was made to the House on the Senate bill providing for the ascertainment of the amount due the Potawatomi Indians of Michigan and Indiana under certain treaty provisions. The House passed the joint resolution requesting the President to negotiate with Mexico for the creation of an international commission to determine all questions touching the boundary line where it follows the bed of the Rio Grande and Rio Colorado.

WESTERN HAPPENINGS.

THE jury in the celebrated Jones County (Iowa) calf case, after being out forty-eight hours, returned a verdict for plaintiff for $1,000. Robert Johnson, the plaintiff, says this will end the case. The trial has been pending in various courts for over fourteen years, and has bankrupted several well-to-do people. The calf was worth about $45.

A SPECIAL from Beaver, "No Man's Land," says that the Oklahoma Territorial Convention nominated O. G. Chase for delegate to Congress and put a full ticket for the Territorial Council in the field. The platform asks that "No Man's Land" be placed under control of the State of Colorado until it perfects laws of its own, and calls upon Congress to drop political strife and legislate in the interest of "No Man's Land," where it is badly needed.

BENJAMIN E. HOPKINS, assistant cashier of the defunct Fidelity Bank of Cincinnati, Ohio, now serving a term in the Columbus Penitentiary, is very sick with the dropsy, and has been in a comatose condition for several days. SOUTHERN INCIDENTS.

At the annual meeting of the General Masonic Relief Association of the United States and Canada at Louisville, Ky., J. R. Pope, of New York, was elected President.

A TELEGRAM from the Collector of Customs at Brownsville, Texas, dated the 23d, and received at Washington by Acting Secretary Thompson, gave information that an armed mob had taken possession of Rio Grande City on account of the killing of a Mexican named Catrino Garza, by a customs officer, who went to Fort Ringgold for protection. The civil authorities of Star County were reported powerless and a request made for orders to be telegraphed for the military at Ringgold to protect the Customs House and city. Secretary Thompson replied by asking if troops were still needed, but not receiving an answer did not take any action.

A COLD rain and drizzle, unfavorable to yellow-fever patients, continued all day and night at Jacksonville, Fla., the 24th, but only five deaths were reported. There were 113 new cases—85 colored and 22 white persons. It is impossible to give the number of cases not reported. One physician has had 130 cases, very few of which were reported. The Board of Health of Fernandina announces a case in that city.

FRESH AND NEW.

THE trade review of R. G. Dun & Co. for last week is as follows:

The volume of legitimate business continues to improve. Crop reports are altogether favorable as to corn. The general average of prices has again declined slightly. The yield of wheat is 50,000,000 to 90,000,000 bushels short of a full crop. Official reports show that the money in circulation of all kinds was about $1,300,000,000 Sept. 1, against $1,320,000,000 a year ago, and the Treasury has put out this month about $2,200,000 more than it has taken in, besides adding to circulation the amount of gold and silver coins. For the last week the addition to circulation was $3,200,000. Preliminary statements for August show that the exports of breadstuffs, provisions, cattle, cotton, and oil were $8,577,358, smaller than for the same month last year, or 23 per cent. Wheat has been moderately active, with sales of 207,000 bushels, and only one-quarter cent advance in price, while corn has declined one and three-quarters of a cent. Pork products are active, dressed hogs 10 cents and lard 50 cents per 100 pounds. Exports of wheat from this country for July and August amounted to 15,500,000 bushels. Flour included, against 35,700,000 bushels last year, and the supply remaining for export is probably about 20,000,000 bushels greater than last year's exports for the rest of the crop year. The business failures number 228, as compared with 217 last week and 224 the previous to the last. For the corresponding week of last year the figure was 183.

THE signal-service weather-report bulletin says that reports from the corn belt indicate that the unusually large corn crop is safe from frost. In portions of Kentucky heavy rains injured the tobacco and corn crops probably to the extent of 15 per cent, but the fruit crop has improved. The weather conditions have also been favorable for wheat seeding throughout the winter-wheat States as far south as Tennessee.

EX-MARSHAL BAZAINE is dead, his demise occurring at Madrid, Spain, from heart trouble. He had been ill but a short time.

Francois Achille Bazine, ex-Marshal of France, was born Feb. 13, 1811, and entered the French army as a private in 1831. He served in Algeria in 1839, and in Spain against the Carlists, where, for distinguished courage and ability, he was promoted to be a Lieutenant and then Captain, and also received the Cross of the Legion of Honor. He was promoted to be a General in 1869. He was promoted to be a Commander of the Legion in 1869. In 1870 he served in the campaign against Metz, when the French invaded Mexico in 1873 he held high command, and succeeded Marshal Forey as head of the forces in 1878 when he received the Grand Cross. The next year he was made a Marshal of France. In 1869 the Emperor Napoleon promoted him to be Commander-in-Chief of the Imperial Guard. The war with Germany, 1870-1, furnished the scene of Bazine's highest distinction and of his historic disaster. At the outbreak of hostilities he commanded the Thiers Army Corps, near Metz. When the battles of Woincourt and Forbach had been fought, disastrously to the French army, Marshal Bazine took command of the main armies of the empire. On Aug. 14, 1870, he began a retreat from Metz, and fought and lost the bloody battles of Mars-la-Tour and Gravelotte before being forced back into Metz. This stronghold was invested promptly by Prince Frederick Charles, and on Oct. 27, 1870, Bazine surrendered. One hundred and seventy thousand private soldiers, over six thousand officers, fifty Generals, and three Marshals of France were made prisoners of war on this occasion, the largest number of men ever taken at one time. Bazine fled to England. This awful blow to the military pride of the French people was followed in 1873 by the trial of a general by court-martial for having failed to do his duty. He was sentenced to degradation and death. MacMahon, President of the French republic, commuted the sentence to imprisonment for twenty years in a fortress. Bazine was taken to the Isle St. Marguerite, in the Mediterranean Sea, from whence he escaped after nine months imprisonment. He visited Germany and England, then removed to Spain, and made his residence at Madrid, where he had since resided.

CHICAGO'S NEW POSTMASTER.

THE President has appointed Gen. Walter C. Newberry Postmaster at Chicago, vice S. Corning Judd.

Gen. Walter C. Newberry was born in Onondaga County, New York, on Dec. 23, 1833. He lived on a farm until 1855, when he was elected to a position of two years' term in the Legislature of New York. He was elected to the Senate of New York, and one year at Dr. Prentice's school, Geneva. His father, Amasa S. Newberry, was extensively engaged in the hop trade, and at the time of his death, in 1855, sent out on the road as an agent, a business in which he was very successful for four years. He spent a portion of each year in Chicago. In 1859 he entered the large lake shipping firm of Oliver Newberry & Co. at Detroit. But when the call to arms came he hastened back to New York, and was elected to the Legislature of New York in 1860. A few months later found him an ambitious young private on the banks of the Potomac. He received his commission as First Lieutenant in the Regular Army, which rank he participated in the Fenian campaign, through which he rose to a Captain. In 1863 he returned to New York and helped to organize the Twenty-fourth Cavalry, returning to the front as its Major. In August of that year he became Lieutenant Colonel and in 1864 Colonel of the regiment, succeeding its commander, who fell in the first action of the Wilderness. He was seriously wounded there, and on July 1 was transferred out of the service. Brigadier General "for gallant and distinguished services at Middle Creek House," which was the scene of the first day's battle of Five Forks. Gen. Newberry was seriously wounded there, and on July 1 was transferred out of the service. Brigadier General at the age of 30. In 1876 G. N. Newberry removed to Chicago, and with Col. Hamilton engaged in the brewer's supply business on Market street, and later at 79, 81, and 83 Kinzie street, where the firm is still located.

CHIEF JUSTICE FULLER.

A MAGNIFICENT BANQUET GIVEN IN HIS HONOR.

A Memorable Gathering of Noted Jurists and Others in Chicago to Bid Goodspeed to Melville W. Fuller—Eloquent Addresses by Prominent Men.

[Chicago special dispatch.]

It was a historic banquet given at the Palmer House in this city in honor of Melville W. Fuller on his assumption of the office of Chief Justice of the United States. The organizers of the banquet were his fellow members of the bar and bench, and they were joined in their manifestation by the foremost citizens of Chicago. Republicans and Democrats all united in their tribute to a man whom the city delighted to honor. When the doors of the Palmer House dining-room were thrown open before Judge Drummond and Mr. Fuller about 6:30 p. m., the breath of Eden touched their nostrils. The Rev. Dr. Fleetwood, on the Judge's left, probably thought of Paradise with its unending flowers, its golden light and silvery stream. Mr. Fuller will be forgiven if he thought it the garden of the gods and the strains of music were from Olympus. He might have hesitated to take Jupiter's seat or even a place in the row of American gods who sat behind the long table at the head of the dining-room. But Mr. Fuller is the greatest god in American politics. He is greater than any politician and beyond their reach. He is higher than the rulers and their laws, for he establishes them or sets them aside. He is the Chief Justice of the highest tribunal this side of heaven, and the banquet was in his honor. Half hidden behind the stands and banks of flowers that stood in the center of the tables were rows of glasses, thin as paper and translucent as a fancy. From the chan-dellors hung strands of smilax entwined with yellow roses, and pendant from the center, balls of Marechal Niel roses. The white shades and the glittering electric lights looked like huge daisies. A rope of smilax, looped with pink and yellow roses, festooned the front of the honored guest's table.

In front of Judge Drummond, who presided, was an immense bank of dark-red American beauty roses. Behind the venerable Judge a pointed arch of daisies, roses, asters, and smilax supported a floral piece representing the scales of justice. A basket of flowers was suspended in the arch. Banks of white and pink roses, baskets of cardinal, floral scales, white daisies, and a path of fern leaves strewn the Chief Justice's table. On each of the forty-five tables in the body of the room stood a different floral design.

On Judge Drummond's right sat the guest of the evening, the Chief Justice of the United States, Supreme Court, the Hon. Melville W. Fuller. His hair was no whitener, his face no ruddier than those of "Mel" Fuller, as his associates called him a few months ago. He laughed and chatted with the venerable Judge with the white fringe and high collar under his chin, or said some pleasant thing to the handsome and distinguished-looking Judge of the Federal Court, Walter Q. Gresham. Gresham, Judge Gresham was no frequent conversation with Gen. Crook, United States army, the Indian fighter who so narrowly escaped Geronimo.

Next the General was Judge Bradwell and Judge Caton, the white-haired old pioneer with his old-fashioned frilled shirt. Beside him was Judge Trumbull, once an honored Republican leader and prominent candidate for the Presidency, an ex-United States Senator, and a man full of honorable years. Judge Jenkins sat next, and beside him Joseph Medill. Judge Gregory was at the extreme right. To the left of the President sat the minister, a youngish man with brown skin, whiskers and mustache, plenty of hair, and a pair of eye-glasses. Further on were Judge Magruder of the States Supreme Court, Judge "Josh" Allen of the Federal Court at Springfield, Gen. Williams, Judge Bunn of Madison, Wis., Mayor Roche, Dr. Johnson, and B. F. Marsh, brother-in-law of Mr. Fuller.

The Chairman and a number of the guests present recalled the banquet given to the Hon. John Duke, Lord Coleridge, Chief Justice of England, five years ago. That banquet, as this was given by the Chicago Bar Association. Then Judge Drummond also presided. At both banquets Judge Trumbull and Mr. Fuller responded to toasts. Five years ago E. B. Washburne, an ex-Minister of this Government, spoke, the brilliant Emory Storrs responded, to a toast, Isaac N. Arnold delivered an address, and Senator John A. Logan and T. Lyle Dickey, Judge of the Illinois Supreme Court, were present. All are now at the feast spread for immortals—in the great Somewhere met the President and the President's family. Many members of the bar were present to meet the President and the President's family. Many thousands of American citizens remember the scant courtesy accorded Chief Justice Waite when he visited England two years later. Lord Coleridge was banqueted and carried about with obsequious homage. The American lord went and came with a notice to the banquet. This last banquet was history—at least an embellishment of it. Early last March Chief Justice Waite died. Mr. Fuller was appointed to the vacant place the 1st of the following May, and was confirmed late in July. Justice Fuller is the first Illinois man to receive this distinguished honor and the second to attend the banquet. At the tables sat judges of the local courts and from the Federal and State bench in this and adjoining States. The city and county legal departments were represented, and the bar sent its leading practitioners. The business community, the commercial circles, were present in a large delegation. Nearly four hundred persons sat at the tables.

menu was a complement to the other arrangements.

The eating was faithfully and industriously attended to for nearly three hours, when Judge Drummond arose and tapped on the table. He briefly defended the Chief Justice from the attacks of those who opposed his confirmation. The Judge had been Mr. Fuller's friend for many years, and he thought that a man who had gone in and out before the people for thirty years without a blemish on his moral character could not be smirched by political envy or malice. In answering the charge that Mr. Fuller was not well known, he said that the new Chief Justice was exceedingly well known in Chicago, and Cook County contained more than twice the population of Vermont. This subtle reference to Senator Edmunds' opposition was received with repeated cheers and clapping of hands. The speaker thought Mr. Fuller would be an honor to the bench of the United States Supreme Court, and the banquet was a complete vindication.

At the conclusion of the Judge's remarks the proposed health of Melville Weston Fuller, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. The guests arose to their feet and some one proposed three cheers for Mr. Fuller. The cheers were given with a combination roar of jury argument.

Mr. Fuller's voice was soft and tremulous when he arose. His eyes were in sympathy with his voice. Mr. Fuller ran briefly over his experience with the early Chicagoans and Drummond the lawyers arose and cheered until their throats were scorched. Many other names, as those of Judge Caton and Leonard Swett, were also loudly applauded. He expressed his keen appreciation of the honor conferred on him, which he took as a recognition of Chicago and the great West rather than a personal compliment. When he took his seat the audience again arose and gave him a round of cheers.

Judge Gresham spoke to the toast, "The Bench," sketching the powers of the Supreme Court, and concluding with an expression of confidence in the President's selection of a Chief Magistrate of the highest court in the land. The Judge's speech was very brief, for Judge Moran was on the program to help him wrestle with the same subject.

Judge Moran's address dealt chiefly with the lower courts and their duties. He thought the people of Illinois had peculiar cause to be proud of their judiciary. In all the seventy years of its judicial system no Judge had been impeached nor within fifty years had there been a judicial scandal. In this time great corporate relations had been adjusted, and though many judges had been elected in political contests the integrity of the judiciary had never been questioned.

He compared the bench courts with the American tribunals. Many newspaper editors liked the speedy trial of criminal cases in the English courts, but the speaker questioned the efficiency of such trials. He got a twist at the British lion's tail by declaring that while we were catching a Irishman of the judiciary he could catch a Britishman of the American tribunals. He got a twist at the British lion's tail by declaring that while we were catching a Irishman of the judiciary he could catch a Britishman of the American tribunals.

W. C. Gundy and James L. Hinz responded to "The Bar." Ex-Senator Lyman Trumbull spoke for "The Law-Makers," and Charles L. Hutchinson of "Commerce."

Letters of regret were read from a number of prominent persons. Before the banquet was half through the old lawyers began to leave, and Mr. Fuller saw his relations with the bar dissolve in a great cloud of smoke and float out on the strains of "Home, Sweet Home," and for the last time a Chicago lawyer he shook hands with his fellow members of the bar. He emerged from the banquet hall the people's supreme judicial ruler and belonging to them.

LYNCHING IN STEELVILLE, MO.

Lewis Davis, Who Murdered His Friend and Neighbor, Hanged by Masked Men.

Lewis Davis, who was under indictment for the murder of his friend and neighbor, David Mills, was taken from jail at Steelville, Mo., and lynched. The tragedy was of a sensational character. Davis, who had been in St. Louis for six months for six months, was returned to Steelville for trial. His case was to have been called the morning following his arrival. Three hours before daylight forty masked men rode into the town, and, after placing pickets on all the streets, leading to the jail, proceeded to attack the structure. Tools were secured from a blacksmith shop, and the doors were soon battered down. While the attack was in progress a Deputy Sheriff and one guard were captured, Davis fought like a demon. He knocked down four of the lynchers with a piece of bed-post. He was finally overpowered and with a rope around his neck was led out of town and hanged over the grave of Pat Wallace, who was lynched for the murder of the Logan family in 1886. Davis did not confess. The crime for which Davis was lynched was committed January 2. Davis and Miller started to town to pay their taxes. Miller's body was found with a bullet in the head and his pockets rifled. The bullet lifted Davis' pistol. It was a peculiar rifle bore, and the circumstantial evidence was strong against him.

THE WHIPPING-POST STATE.

Seven Whites and Two Negs Get an Aggregate of 225 Lashes.

(Wilmington Del. special.)

The whippings at New Castle jail were remarkable for the number of victims, the heavy penalties, and the number of lashes laid on. Not for many years have such a large number been made to "hug the post" in one day. There were ten colored victims and seven whites. One man got forty lashes, four others twenty-five lashes, nine others ten, and three others five lashes. All three were 225 blows struck, an average of thirteen blows. In addition to the whipping five men were compelled to stand for an hour in the pillory. "Sugar Auld," one of the colored men, was whipped the sixth time for twelve years. He has been a thief for twelve years, and has been before the Chief Justice eight times.

TWO HALF-BREDS were killed near Pembina, D. T., while trying to break a colt to saddle.

THE tax levy in Grand Rapids this year will be about $750,000 dollars. The assessed valuation is $200,000,000. The rate of taxation will, therefore, be nearly four per cent. We have some chronic kickers who always consider our taxes too high. These gentlemen had better move to Grand Rapids, The effect of this high taxation in the Valley City, if continued, will be to keep out manufacturing establishments and capitalists.

Wheat.

There has been a big "boom" in wheat in Chicago this week. The price here reached 92 cts. on Friday and everything indicates that those farmers fortunate enough to have some wheat on hand will get high prices paid for it.

The Dakota and Minnesota crop was badly injured by frost, many fields not being cut at all.

Ottawa County Orators.

Our local speakers are doing good work away from home; and receiving complimentary notices of their efforts. We clip the following from our exchanges:

"Capt. Geo. W. McBride of Grand Haven addressed the Second Ward Republican Club in the lecture room of Hartman's Hall, last night. The attendance was good, about 200 members of the club and others being present. After a few preliminary remarks by the President, Mr. David Forbes, Capt. McBride, the speaker of the evening, was introduced. The principal theme and on which the speaker dwelt at some length, was a comparison between the condition of the laboring classes in protected America and those of free trade England. Capt. McBride's comparisons and deductions were sharp and concise, his speech was listened to with close interest, and he was frequently interrupted by enthusiastic bursts of applause. He gave one of the clearest, most effective discussions of the effect of a protective tariff ever heard in this city.—Grand Rapids Eagle.

Hon. G. J. Diekema, of Holland, who is speaking in this city this week, has a bright future. He represented his district in the last Legislature, and was counted one of the leaders, if not the leader of the lower House, and there is no doubt but that he will be called higher in the political world. He has been renominated for Representative.—Grand Rapids Telegram Herald.

Why don't some of the Kent county orators come and talk to our people?

For Prohibitionists.

Many persons have joined the Prohibition party under the mistaken idea that the Republican party had become, like the Democratic, the representative of the saloon and whisky interests. The Republican party when first organized was one having as its cornerstone the noblest of principles; and while selfish and unscrupulous men are found in its ranks, yet the great majority of its supporters have always been the men who have the best interests of the Nation and State at heart. The grand old party favors every cause which will advance the prosperity of the State and the happiness of its people. It is, therefore, a party opposed to the saloon and in favor of legislation which will close its doors. The majority of temperance men see this and they are joining hands with the Republicans, instead of helping the Democrats by voting for Fisk and Brooks.

The following letter is from Bishop John P. Newman, of the Methodist Church. It should be carefully read by every man who is thinking of voting the Prohibition ticket. The letter was written to General Cyrus Bussey, the sturdy temperance worker in the Republican ranks. He says:

"MY DEAR GENERAL BUSSEY—I am in receipt of your favor of the 12th inst. and feel bound to give you a frank reply on a question of so much importance. In these supreme times, when so much is at stake in our national welfare, no Republican can afford to desert that party memorable by the most noble mission, by the most heroic achievement on the field and by the most beneficent results in legislation to personal liberty, to private and public morals, and to the cause of temperance, of which you specially write. As a citizen, whose duties I am bound to discharge, and as a life long Republican, proud of the history of our party and assured of its glorious future, I give you an emphatic denial of its report that I had joined the third party. The thought has never entered my mind, and no one has the right to assert that I had. On the question of prohibition we are in accord, on the methods to attain that desirable end we differ. The final triumph of temperance principles is with the Republicans, who have done so much for temperance legislation in all parts of our country. And this is the apparent conviction of the people I meet in my travels. Whether clergymen or laymen, whether in the church or out, patriotism, gratitude, temperance, should inspire every Republican with new zeal, should induce any who have left the party to return at once; and should give decision to those who may now hesitate as to duty. The supreme duty is to place the control of our government in the hands of Harrison and Morton. I vote as I pray and pray as I vote.
Your Friend,
JOHN P. NEWMAN."

"Bright for Harrison."

The Chicago Daily News, is an independent newspaper, so called. It has inclined very strongly toward the Democratic party and Cleveland and Thurman. Many Democrats in the city have taken it and been cheered by its prophecies of Democratic success. They were completely demoralized on Saturday at seeing on the first page of the paper, the headline "Bright for Harrison," followed by their New York letter from W. E. Curtis, who is one of the ablest newspaper men in the country. Mr. Curtis has the very best opportunities for knowing what he writes about. In the letter referred to, he says:

"If the election depends upon New York—and people generally concede that it does—Benjamin Harrison will be our next president. There seems scarcely room for a doubt that he will carry this state, and democrats who have been about much concede it. I met W. D. Kerfoot of Chicago on the streets yesterday, and as everybody knows, he is a democrat and a man not given to wild words or hasty conclusions. I asked him what he knew about politics.

"It's all one-sided here," he said, "and Harrison will carry this state by 20,000 majority. I never saw such a change. It seems as if the bottom had dropped out of the democratic party in New York."

The fact is that the men who subscribed most liberally to the Cleveland committee four years ago are indifferent this year or are working on the other side. Mr. H. K. Thurber, for example, the head of the largest grocery house in the world, was enthusiastic for Cleveland in 1884 and gave $25,000 to the democratic national committee. I met him yesterday at the Chase national bank and he told me he was putting in about half his time electioneering for Harrison; that he had spoken at a republican meeting every night this week and expected to speak almost every night from now until Nov. 7.

"I thought you were a great Cleveland man," I said.

"So I was," he replied; "but I have quit. I like Cleveland, but he has repudiated his first letter of acceptance, has violated his pledges to the civil-service reformers, has sold himself to the south, and I can't stand his free-trade policy. Harrison will carry this state by 25,000 majority and will be elected. There will be a tidal wave in November like that of 1884."

New York casts 36 electoral votes. The solid south, which can be counted for Cleveland, has 165 votes. The number necessary to elect this year is 201 votes.

The Democrats would have three more votes than they needed if they carry New York and the Southern States. The loss of the Empire State, however, would be almost fatal to the free trade party.

On Monday Mr. Curtis again stated in the Chicago News:

"I understand that the democrats have about given up all hope of carrying New York and will concentrate their strength in Michigan, New Jersey, Indiana and Nevada, which states cast forty electoral votes and will be sufficient to elect Cleveland. There is to be a "still hunt" in Michigan, directed by the postmaster-general in person.

This is too large a contract for the Democratic party to fill, when they carry Michigan, New Jersey, Indiana, and Nevada, it will be pretty late in the next century.

No wonder the Democrats in all parts of the country are deserting the Cleveland ranks and declaring for Harrison and Protection! All that is needed to make success assured, is to have the Republicans of Michigan and New York do their duty in November.

THE FAIR.

Another Grand Success.

In Spite of Rain, Hail and Wind.

The fourth annual fair at Holland is a thing of the past. It had been looked forward to by thousands of our farmer friends; and great preparations were made by the officers of the society to make this year's fair superior to the preceding ones. When Monday came with warm, beautiful weather, all hoped that the entire week would be of the same character. Tuesday morning, the opening day of the fair, appeared with cloudy skies and pouring rain, which continued until evening, when a beautiful sunset gave new hope for the morrow. Wednesday, brought another dreary drizzling rain in the forenoon, a howling northwest gale for the afternoon. The equinoctial storm had been let loose to try to discourage the Association. Thursday contributed a strong wind from the North pole.

Notwithstanding such a combination of wretched weather, this year's fair has excelled all others. The entries closed Wednesday at noon, at which time the Secretary's books showed the following entries:

In Stock Department..... 299
Pomological and Floral..... 724
Agricultural..... 262
Art and Miscellaneous..... 373

Total Entries..... 1658

In accordance with the programme, Gov. Cyrus G. Luce was present at the fair on Wednesday. He is a farmer and not afraid of the weather, so he bravely bared his head to the gale, and delivered the speech he had promised. About one thousand persons were there to hear him, and it is but repeating the opinion of all present, when we say that it was an excellent address. Governor Luce is a man who has cleared up and made one of the best farms in Michigan; and unlike too many farmers, he has a just pride in his calling and he looks upon the farmer's life as a noble and grand one. He gave to those present some good practical advice about matters connected with farming. Hon. M. H. Ford was present and showed his smiling, good natured countenance to the crowd; and made the customary "few remarks." Capt. Chas. E. Belknap was also on hand. He was introduced to the audience at the close of Gov. Luce's address, and responded to the applause with which he was greeted, in an appropriate manner. These three prominent candidates were shown the fair by their friends, and given an opportunity to shake hands with all the farmers present.

Thursday has become the principal day at all fairs and it brought a multitude of visitors to town. From early morning until noon every road leading into the city was thronged with farmers wagons coming to the fair. The trains from Grand Haven, Grand Rapids and Allegan, brought hundreds of people,—the cars being crowded so that many passengers were obliged to stand in the aisles. The schools and factories were closed on Thursday, and everybody put on their winter clothes and visited the grounds. It is estimated that there were fully 8000 persons at the fair on that day. The crowd was a good natured one and no accidents of any kind occurred to mar their pleasure. The wind was so strong that the balloon ascension did not take place until about 6 p. m. Prof. Hogan then made a fine ascent in his monster balloon, to the great delight of the crowd, which had patiently waited for several hours to see him.

Friday furnished the same bad weather as that of the preceding days. The attendance was good for the last day of the fair. The tracks were heavy; but several good races were made and the balloon ascension by Prof. Hogan, made this the best day of the fair for visitors.

The News will publish the list of those awarded premiums in its next issue. The various departments were all well filled; but some were worthy of special mention. The fruit exhibit was an excellent one. Many expert judges pronounced the display of apples, pears and grapes, superior to that at the Grand Rapids fair last week. The same is also true of the vegetable show. A number of plates of fine plums were exhibited, which were grown in this vicinity. A collection of plums belonging to Mr. W. S. Gebhardt, of Mears, Oceana County, was greatly admired. Mr. Gebhardt could not enter this fruit for premiums as he resides outside of the district; and his generosity in displaying it here is, therefore worthy of notice. He made 31 entries of plums at Grand Rapids and received 30 premiums there. It was a matter of disappointment that our Saugatuck and Fennsville friends did not show more of their beautiful peaches.

The following persons secured premiums on collections of fruit. Grapes and pears: A. Bosma, first premium, I. Marsilje, apples and grapes; H. Kromeyer, Fillmore, pears; George Souter, peaches and plums; J. Coatsworth, Geo. S. Harrington, G. Vredevelde and T. S. Purdy, for apple collections.

The floral display was an unusually fine one this year. The principal exhibitors being Slabbekoorn Bros. Zeeland, George Souter and Jacob Van Dyk, of Holland.

The number of entries of stock, was much larger than in any previous year. This indicates that our farmers are improving their stock very rapidly. Some valuable horses were shown. Among others, Mr. John Schippers, of Overisel, exhibited some beautiful animals. He carried off the first premium at the Grand Rapids fair last week. In cattle some good stock was shown by Fillmore, Overisel, Jamestown and Olive farmers. Many of these valuable cattle were brought to the fair during the pouring rains of Tuesday and Wednesday, from a distance of nearly twenty miles. This indicates the great interest taken in the fair by our farmer friends.

The leading stock exhibitors were: Horses: A. De Kruif, and P. Coburn, Zeeland. Cattle: G. S. De Witt, Fillmore, J. and M. Snyder, Jamestown, B. Van Raalte, Holland, Thomas Watson, Olive. Sheep: J. Kleinheksel, Fillmore, Harm Kragt, and A. De Feyter of Holland. Swine: J. D. Merritt, Olive, J. Cochran, Holland.

The agricultural machinery men were on hand in strong force. The old favorites, the McCormick, the Deering and Champion self binders, were all there. The Gale plow, the Oliver, South Bend and a host of others were seen. Road machines, cider presses, harrows, traction engines, hay rakes and many other machines were there for the farmers to look at. Mr. P. H. Wilms made a display of his pumps and patent harrows. Takken and De Spelder, showed some good specimens of their wagon work. E. Takken, of Douglas, made a creditable exhibit of wagons. Dangremont and Nykerk, of Overisel were there, of course, and made a good show. Ben. Van Raalte, H. H. Karsten and H. De Kruif, were on hand shaking hands with their farmer friends and showing them the machinery they sell. Nichols, Shephard and Co. and the Advance Thresher Co., of Battle Creek, exhibited their machines.

In Art-Hall, the displays made by Messrs. Meyer, Brouwer and Co. furniture dealers, by H. Vaupell, of their harnesses and robes, J. Lafayette, photographer, Kanters Brothers hardware, and the Te Roller Manufacturing Company, furniture manufacturers, were all excellent. The department of woman's work contained many specimens of artistic needle work, which were greatly admired by the ladies. A case of very fine specimens belonging to Dr. W. Van den Berg, of North Holland, was very much admired. Aldert Kanters exhibited a fine collection of stamps. Bernardus Grootenhuis, one of our old citizens, carried off first premium on his drawings. Harry Doesburg obtained the blue card for his coins and currency. Dr. Wetmore exhibited some very good paintings; and secured several premiums.

Agricultural hall had a fine exhibit of vegetables. The mammoth cabbages, pumpkins (one weighing 130 pounds) fat potatoes and luscious watermelons indicated that our market gardeners and farmers have had a good season.

This being an election year, the crop of politicians is a large one. The number of men anxious to serve the public is greater than usual this fall. They have all survived the early frosts and the majority of them were on exhibition at the fair. Among the county candidates we noticed, Hon. Chas. E. Soule, Walter L. Lillie, Walter Cole, Edward Vaupell, William F. Kelly, L. T. Kanters, J. Den Herder, Col. E. P. Gibbs.

The enlivening music of the band was a feature of the fair. The Otsego band which furnished the melody, is one of the best organizations of the kind in the State. We hope that Holland will some day have a first class band, but until this is the case the association cannot do better than stick to the Otsego boys.

FAIR NOTES.

A large number of our local politicians were on the grounds Thursday.

There were twenty-five refreshment stands on the grounds and all did a fair business Thursday.

During the running race Red Drop bolted the track, but was stopped before anybody was hurt.

Meyer, Brouwer & Co., dealers in furniture, sewing machines, etc., made a fine display in the Main Hall.

Mr. John A. Kooyers and E. B. Westhof had the largest collections of vegetables in Agricultural Hall.

Marshal Hollis and his assistants were kept busy Thursday afternoon keeping the people off the track during the races.

Every young man from the country, and his best girl, had their pictures taken Thursday at the photograph gallery of H. Edelman.

Almost the entire north side of the Main Hall was taken up with the display from H. Vaupell's harness shop. There were harnesses of all kinds, saddles, whips, bells, fine robes, and every thing pertaining to the business.

"Tony" De Kruif was the happiest man on the grounds, having received first premium on Woodlark four-year-old colt; first premium on Eli Wilkes, three-year-old colt, and first and second premiums on two Woodlark sucking colts.

Chris Van den Berge of Zeeland, had a Chicago Cottage organ on exhibition in the center of the Main Hall; and furnished some good music.

Pessink Bros. had a case filled with cookies, crackers and cakes of their manufacture on exhibition in the Agricultural Hall, which was much admired by all visitors.

Mr. J. H. Purdy had some fine specimens of different varieties of vegetables on exhibition in the Agricultural Hall, which were raised on land in Olive that was a cranberry marsh a year ago.

The Otsego Band was the center of attraction during Wednesday and Thursday. This is one of the finest organizations in the state, and well deserved the many compliments which they received.

Dr. J. D. Wetmore had on exhibition twenty-two paintings in the Main Hall, which were painted since February 1st, 1888. He received two first premiums, five second premiums and a diploma on the collection.

The display of photographs, crayon and ink drawing, which attracted so much attention in the Main Hall were from the photograph gallery of J. Lafayette, Eighth street. The specimens on exhibition were indeed fine, and cannot be excelled anywhere. If you want good work done, do not go to Grand Rapids or elsewhere, but call on Mr. Lafayette. He received first premium on all of his displays.

The races Thursday afternoon did not create much excitement. Charley Boy captured first money in the Farmers' Green Race, Jennie B., taking second place. In the walking race, double team, D. S. Barbies, Dick and Ned, being the only entry, received the 1st prize. The double team race was captured by Dr. Van Putten's team, which had everything their own way winning three straight heats. The last race on the programme was the running race and was won in two straight heats by Bob Harkaway.

There are small sized people in every community. Notwithstanding the fact that the fair association had spent several thousand dollars to provide a show for which the entrance fee is but twenty five cents, a number of big men and boys, tried to sneak into the grounds without paying. They crawled around the end of the fence at the edge of the Lake and so got into the fairgrounds, where they found Mr. Roseboom waiting for them. He marched 39 of these deadbeats up to the Secretary's office. The big men were released on paying one dollar each, the boys got off for fifty cents. Guess they will come in at the gate, like white people, next time!

A VOYAGE TO ALASKA.

Coasting Along the Inward Channels for a Thousand Miles.

TOWNS, MINES, FISHING STATIONS, GLACIERS, THE TWILIGHT GLOW AND OTHER STRANGE PECULIARITIES OF A SEMI-ARTIC REGION.

TACOMA, WASH. T.—Leaving Tacoma July 2, we sailed on the steamer Ancon, an old side-wheeler built in 1863. The only places of importance in Alaska are Juneau, Sitka and Fort Wrangel. Juneau is much the largest, and is a mining town, situated on the side of a hill, with less than a thousand white inhabitants and perhaps twice as many natives. Both classes are very fluctuating. The town has no proper streets and hardly any beasts of burden. Opposite Juneau, on Douglas Island, is the Treadmill gold mine, said to have the largest stamp mill in the world. Here, also, is quite a collection of native huts. Fort Wrangel was once a military post. It has now very few white people, and all things seem in rapid decay. There are more Indian totem poles here than elsewhere.

The most interesting place in the territory is Sitka, the capital, an old Russian town. It is beautifully situated, surrounded, save on the sea side, by high mountains, and the harbor is formed by many low, small wooded islands. There is some level ground on which a town might be built. Nearly all the houses seem going to decay, and there is almost no building going on. Our government officers reside here, and there is some pleasant society. There is a large and flourishing mission school of the Presbyterian Church, where 160 young natives of both sexes are educated. The old Russian church is the great attraction, with its paintings and Greek service. I attended service, but was not able to see much difference between its ceremonial and the Roman Catholic, save at the end all the congregation went up and kissed the cross in the hands of the priest. Some of the paintings are covered, save the face, with silver and gold in a manner I never saw elsewhere. The Church is small, with a congregation of perhaps 100, mostly natives or half breeds. Besides the three towns mentioned, we stopped at no place in Alaska save at a few places for canning fish. Mining, fishing and hunting seem the only industries of Alaska worthy of mention. The former is so undeveloped, save in one instance, that its future cannot be predicted. Fishing occupies, but three or four months of the year. There is no evidence on the coast that there can ever be any agriculture of importance. Almost everywhere the hills, where not snow clad, are covered with small spruce, too small for lumber. There seems no reason to think that the forests will be cleared, either for the lumber or the rocky soil beneath.

The most of the native huts seem of the poorest, with an opening in the center to let out the smoke. Alaska, with the fishing and hunting, is well adapted to a savage population. Unless through its mines, it is difficult to see how it can support any considerable number of civilized people. The natives are fairly teachable, but the most difficult problem is to find occupation which will support them in a civilized way.

Tourists go to Alaska for the scenery, and I must try to say something about it, though words give a most inadequate idea of the grand or beautiful in nature. Conceive of a deep water channel a thousand miles in extent, varying in width from twenty rods to ten or fifteen miles, and winding into many bays and among all sorts of islands. This waterway is shut in from the ocean save in two places, each about forty miles wide, and here only is there any danger of rough weather. Everywhere on this way, in clear weather, snow-capped peaks are in sight. The highest, of which there is a really good view, is Mt. Tacoma, formerly Rainier, 14,444 feet high, which is visible through Puget Sound and much of the Georgian Bay, and is most grand and beautiful, covered to the top with the whitest snow, and looking like a round pyramid. Next to it is Mt. Baker, also in Washington Territory, also very grand and beautiful. The higher mountains, Fairmount and Crillon, which are seen in clear weather from Glacier Harbor, one of the most northern points reached by our steamer, are too much hidden by intervening mountains for a good view.

We passed for hours along channels two or three miles wide, in near and full view of ranges of mountains down which were plowing into the sea great glaciers.

The greatest of these glaciers, the Mair, in Glacier Bay, is said to be four miles in width where it enters the sea. At this point there is a wall of solid ice, white at the top and blue below, from 200 to 500 feet in height above the sea. This wall is in some places unbroken ice, in others cut into straight pillars extending from the top to the sea. It is everywhere cracking and crumbling. It is perpendicular, save that the top white part crumbles first. Almost constantly loud reports are heard and great pieces are falling into the sea, throwing up waves. Our vessel went within about 200 feet, too near for safety, many of the passengers thought, and while there a large piece broke off, and, falling, made a great wave which rocked the vessel more than we had experienced in passing along the open Pacific. We stayed near this glacier five hours, but could not satisfy our eyes with seeing the tempting walls of ice, or our ears with listening to the constant reports.

There are five or six other great glaciers and many small ones, and they are seen, not as in Switzerland at the expense of climbing, but from the boat's deck. There is almost every variety of scenery in the Alaskan trip. Sometimes we passed into winding channels among low islands. At others in narrow ways between mountains of 3,000 or 4,000 feet, almost precipitous. In many places there are beautiful bays. Often it is difficult to see an opening, and we seem to be steering upon some high mountain. Generally the islands and shores are high, and almost always thickly wooded with small evergreens. The trip includes the beauties of Lake Champlain, Lake George and the Thousand Islands, and greater beauties which are peculiar. In pleasant weather and on a boat as comfortable as ours, it is linked sweetness long drawn out.

The greatest drawback is the possibility that the whole time may be rainy or, what is much worse, foggy. Though the rainfall of Alaska is very great, yet in fair weather the climate is peculiarly dry. It is said that nothing becomes moldy. Where fog does not obscure there is the greatest clearness in the sky. Remote objects seem near. After a clear sunset there is an afterglow of purple tinged with gold on the high mountains, more beautiful than any I ever saw in Switzerland. We have had several fine sunsets. The twilight is greatly extended, and is fine beyond description. The trip has given universal satisfaction to the passengers. I wished that it might have been continued for weeks longer.—Free Press.

Best Brewing Co., Milwaukee, Wis.* GENTLEMEN:—Having tested "The Best Tonic" and observed its effects when used by my patients, I find it both invigorates and promotes digestion, giving a normal tone to the stomach and thereby increasing the appetite. That it is a pure concentrated liquid extract of Malt and Hops and is really and properly a food tonic, and as such I can very cheerfully recommend its use. Very respectfully,
