Liquor Question Unchanged Comes to Vote.

FIRE WORKS BALLOON ASCEN- TION PARASCHUTE DROP

All In One Night At The Council

It was a warm council meeting that held sway last evening, in fact so warm that after the meeting blows
were nearly struck by spectators and council men. The meeting started out serenely enough. For instance the first thing that came before this honorable body was the woman's petition
on the liquor question signed by 486

The petition follows:—
To the Honorable. The Mayor and Common Council of the City of Hol-
land.

Gentlemen:—

We the undersigned, taxpayers,
homekeepers, mothers of the city of Holland, petition your Honorable Body not to submit to the voters the matter relative to the saloon question, as considered at your meeting
of August 14th, 1912, for the following reasons:

This question has already been twice submitted at request of those favoring the open saloon and twice
decided against them;

The open saloon endangers the welfare of our children, disrupts the homes, and, by making the city undesirable for residence, depreciates
the value of our property.

We earnestly petition for your protection;

We cannot vote upon this question.

The next matter to come up was an aftermath of the Chief Kamfer-beek-Hennessy case asking damages for false imprisonment. Bills were presented by attorneys Mc Bride and Sooy and payment was deferred until the next session of circuit court, to see if the case would be fought further. If the matter is dropped as it most likely will be no doubt the bill will be paid.

Then came the question of a raise in salary for Mr. Champion, superintendent of the board of public works.
This brought on a lively discussion.
A resolution brought in by a special committee whose private opinion
seemed to be that the board of public works did not consult the Common Council on proposition of this kind and also that the raise
was too great to make all at once,
and the committee deemed it no
more than fair, the council being a superior body, that they should be appealed to first before any action
should or could be taken in such matter.

The committee report follows:
To the Honorable the Mayor and Council your special committee appointed to investigate into the matter
of raising the superintendent of Public Works salary beg leave to report that we have had the same under careful consideration and recommend that the raise be not converted in at the time.

Benjamin Brouwer
Oth. J. Hansen
John Mersen
N. Bosch.

After the report was read by Alderman Brower, Mr. Harrington was on his feet and championed the cause of Mr. Champion and his point was well taken. Mr. Harrington said that if a man as superintendent of this Board isn't worth $2,000, a year,
the amount the Board wishes to pay,
he is not fit to manage the Board of Works affairs. Mr. Champion is now doing the work formerly done by
two men and he is doing it well.
Other places are willing to pay for brains, therefore don't lets be niggardly upon so vital a question.

Alderman Lokker also talked along this line, but the matter with the other alderman seemed to be more a question of authority or recognition
which they think the Board of Works
has usurped, and not a matter of a raise in the salary. In a vote alderman Harrington and Lokker voted for a raise, and aldermen Van Drezzer
King, Drinkwater, Dyke, Hansen
Brouwer and Sterenberg against.

Peter Brusse's raise in salary was also brought up. Pete is getting the munificent sum of $9.00 a week for working 12 to 14 hours a day. This was also turned down but afterward
it was recommended that he be paid $75.00 so he could live, and until such a time when the whole salary question would be settled.

Then a matter came up that was expected to send a rocket in the air, but it only proved a fizz. It was the question of having the treasurer
receive and collect all moneys for light and water as is provided in the new system of bookkeeping installed by the experts hired for that purpose. The board is strongly opposed to this new departure and says
so in the following communication:
Board Of Public Works report.

October 2, 1912

To the Honorable, the Mayor and Common Council of the City of Hol-
land.

Gentlemen:

In answer to the resolution passed by your honorable body September 18th, wherein you direct the Board of Public Works to turn over all light and water rentals and such other rentals and such other bills as they may have for collection to the City Treasurer, the Board would respectfully submit:

Whether it would not have been better for the Council before taking such radical action first to have consulted with the Board. Until the last very few years the Board has always been treated as a co-ordinate and not a sub-ordinate body. The relation between the Board and the Council was always harmonious. The Board recognizes the Council as its superior, but in authority only. Of late owing to the policy of interference
by the Council with the actions and recommendations of the Board and the mandatory language used by the Council has created a strained relation between the Council and the Board which is making continued
service on the part of the members of the Board unpleasant, and which does not work for harmony and will ultimately not be for the best interests of the City. In all matters of importance pertaining to the workings of the Board which are submitted to the Council for approval, the Board is entitled to be consulted before drastic measures are taken against it.

In the matter of the resolution
above referred to, the Board is satisfied that this action by the Council
is unwise and improper, and if carried out as directed would greatly inconvenience the public, and very materially increase the expenses of the city; and we further believe that it is direct contradiction of the language and intent of the City Charter, which prescribes the duties of the Board and the method to be followed in the collection of water and light rentals. We therefore refer the Council to the Charter and suggest that the Council rescind its action
and refer the matter of collection of bills due the Board to a joint committee of the Council and the Board.
Which resolution was carried.

Respectfully,

P. BRUSSE, Acting Clerk.

After considerable discussion pro
and con it was thought the wisest
plan to confer with the board, and most of the aldermen decided that this be done, by the Ways and Means committee.

The Board also brought in a communication relative to the Boulevard
lighting system which follows:

October 2, 1912.

To the Honorable, the Mayor and
Common Council of the City of Holland, Michigan.

Gentlemen:

At a meeting of the Board of Public Works, held September 30th, the following resolution was passed:

Resolved, that, with reference to the communication from the Common Council recommending that the Board install Boulevard lighting on Twelfth Street from First Avenue to Van Raalte Avenue, we ask the Common Council to appoint a committee to act with a committee of the Board
to get into this matter carefully, so that we all may be fully informed as to what a proposition like this may involve.

Respectfully,

P. Brusse
Acting Clerk.

The idea of this is to find out the exact cost and also if our present
electric light plant has a capacity
sufficient to carry a heavier load, and if so how much. When other people see how Twelfth street looks with this beautiful system both by day
and night, they may clamor to have it installed upon their street. To what extent can this be done, and upon what bases of cost, is the question to be decided by the Board and Council.

The proposition to be paid by each property owner along such lighted
streets will also be gone into.

Because the Gas Company's tests
were not quite up to the standard the City attorney and the Mayor were asked to see the company about it.
No doubt the Mayor will "go to it"
with a relish.

The price of a walk 161 feet long was assessed against the property of the Holland Veneer Co. The walk was laid by the city.

Alderman Lokker was after the Pere Marquette for neglecting to place signals on the crossings east of the city on Tenth and Eleventh streets. "This proposition was taken up over a year ago says Mr. Lokker,
and nothing seems to be done."

"If we don't look out," Mr. Lokker
says, "some of our school children,
playing there about, will certainly meet their death." I came by there with my auto and had with me five aldermen and owing to the fact that no signals are placed, or a watchman
on hand to guard the crossing, we were nearly run over." Which would have been a deplorable condition for the common council. "Use money
and other things (meaning force) to fight them and see who is boss."

City attorney Van Duren said that he had written Railroad Commission er Glasgow on the matter and was informed that he would be here to look into the situation soon. The Council decided that they are going to make the Pere Marquette come to time by making them fix every crossing in the city, laying cement sidewalks along the companies property
where needed, and such other improvements as they may deem necessary.

When the council adjourned last evening somewhere near 10:30 the net result of the meeting was absolutely nothing, as far as the saloon question is concerned. At the end of the weary discussion that took up a large part of the evening the matter stood exactly as it stood before

the meeting opened with the exception that in the course of the evening
a good deal of hard feeling had been engendered. The council went into the committee of the whole with the purpose of discussing the liquor
question and after a lengthy discussion it arose and Chairman King reported: "We have been in committee
of the whole for the purpose of discussing the liquor question and we have got out of it without doing anything."

Early in the evening the petition of the women was presented to the aldermen. It asked that the saloon question be not presented at the November election. This petition which had 486 signatures was received and filed and that was the end of that.

Later in the evening Mayor Bosch
read the following special message
to the council:

Holland, Mich., Oct. 2, 1912.

To the Honorable the Common Council of the City of Holland,

Gentlemen:—

At a special meeting of the Common Council of the City of Holland,
held in August of this year, a petition was presented to your honorable body, asking for the submission to the electors of the City of Holland,
the question of whether the Common Council should submit the question of licensing saloons in the City of Holland, the matter governing the submission of said question to be prepared in advance and presented to the voters for their approval or rejection.

At that time the Council decided that the question should not be submitted on Aug. 27, as in said petition asked for, but that instead there
of should be postponed and future
preparations made for action at the general election to be held on Nov.
5, 1912.

Since that time a petition has been circulated among the people of this City, and has been very largely signed, asking the Common Council
to reconsider the action heretofore taken, and that said question should not be presented to the voters at the November election.

Personally I am unalterably opposed to the saloon, system, or the open saloon in any form, and I shall exercise my personal vote to carry out
my individual idea in the matter.
However, inasmuch as the Council
has voted to present the question, it did not seem to me wise to have the counter petition presented at this time, and I therefore met with the committee having the matter in charge, and earnestly requested them
not to present their petition, as it did not seem to me to be quite the proper thing to ask the council to go back on the action previously taken, and that in my opinion it would not tend to promote the good feeling at present
existing in the Council which would not advance the best interests of the Council, its work, or the City at large, and in this spirit I ask that the petition being circulated should not be presented. Agreeing with me in the reasons for my request, the Committee consented to it, and as a result thereof, the matter is not now brought to your attention in the way intended.

While thus thoroughly convinced
that it was not best for the petition to be presented asking the Council
to undo what it had previously done,
nevertheless I also feel that the issue
should be fairly and squarely drawn,
and in that manner be presented to the voters at the coming election.
Therefore I would recommend, and request that the question be submitted to the voters as to whether the Common Council shall license saloons in the City of Holland, "Yes"
or "No", and that the question be not burdened with any other conditions. I think this is a fair and honorable way for the submission of this question, and trust that the Council will see its way clear to submit in such form.

Respectfully submitted,

Nicodemus Bosch,
Mayor

Immediately Ald. King arose and presented the following resolution:
"Whereas, the petition heretofore
presented to the common council
asked that the council of the City of Holland prepare an ordinance relative to saloons to be submitted to the people for their approval or rejection, therefore,

"Resolved, That the Common Council go into the committee of the whole on the general order of the day, for the purpose of preparing an ordinance to be submitted to the voters of the City of Holland, at the election to be held November 5, 1912."

Ald. Lokker immediately proposed another resolution and he was supported by Ald. Sterenberg. But Ald.
King objected and there was a split-ed parliamentary tilt, Ald. King declaring that his motion to refer to committee of the whole had precedence. Rules of order were read and City Attorney Van Duren declared that motion to refer was always in order. On Mr. King's motion to refer the matter to the committee of the whole the vote stood three to seven in favor, and that postponed action for

The citizens of Zeeland have interested themselves in the question of installing a sewer system in their city. A petition has been circulated the past week among the citizens in regard to this question. This petition will be presented to the common council of that city at its next meeting and the council is asked to bring this matter to a vote of the people in the near future. They think that by installing a sewer system in Zeeland the condition of the city water could be improved. At present the water is contaminated and unfit for drinking unless it is first thoroughly boiled.

The Zeeland High school athletic association has elected the following officers:

Pres.—Emerson De Spelder;
1st Vice-Pres.—Harmon DenHerder
2nd Vice-Pres.—Theodore De Pree;

Training has started and by the time the basketball season starts the team will be in good shape.

During the past week all the water has been pumped from the large city well on the corner of Main and Church streets in Zeeland and the walls have undergone a thorough cleaning and have been given a good purifying wash under the supervision of the City Engineer, Roy Fritschie. Mr. Fritschie is doing his utmost to learn from what cause the water became contaminated and to remedy the same if possible so that it will again be fit for drinking purposes.

This opens the season at the local sugar factory and from now until some time in January the campaign there will be on in earnest. The slicing of the beets will not be begun until about a week from now. A considerable quantity of beets have to be collected in the sheds before the machinery can be started up and the actual work of converting the beets into sugar can be started.

During the summer a pulp drying department has been added to the local factory at a cost of between $90,000 and $100,000. This department will revolutionize the methods of the pulp disposal that hitherto has been quite a problem. During the first years of the local concern it was often hard to get rid of the pulp since the farmers had not learned how to use it. Later many farmers were in the habit of using the pulp for fodder for their cattle and they used a great deal of it. But because it came out of the factory dripping with water it was extremely heavy and only comparatively small quantities could be carried.

The pulp drying machinery will change all this. All the pulp will come out of this department as light and dry as bran and it will be used in something of the same way. It will decrease the weight enormously and will make the pulp worth a neat sum per ton. From some sugar factories it is sent all over the country and sold as fodder for cattle and fed in something of the same way as is bran. Some factories send it as far as Germany and it commands a good price.

The entire factory has been overhauled and numerous repairs have been made so that the plant is in better shape than it has been for a number of years. While the beet crop is perhaps not quite as heavy as it was last year a good harvest is expected and the percentage of sugar is expected to be very satisfactory.

HON. PAT. H. KELLEY MAKES Eloquent Speech in KNICKERBOCKER Candidates for Governor Makes An Earnest Plea for True Progressivism Along Conservative Lines

"There should be no division in our ranks unless we are prepared for Democracy."

That was the message that the Hon. Patrick H. Kelley of Lansing brought to the Republicans of Holland Monday in his speech at the Knickerbocker Theater. That was the message on which he put special emphasis and that was what he insisted on again and again in the course of his remarks. He said there were this year two ways of turning over the government to the democrats. One was by voting that ticket directly; the other was by withdrawing enough strength from the republican party by voting the Progressive ticket. In either way, he said, the Republicans could be defeated.

"Let there be no mistake about this," said Mr. Kelley, earnestly. "We must face the issue and face it fairly and squarely. If we do not stand shoulder to shoulder there is grave danger that our divided strength will not avail against the forces of the democrats. This is the thought that I wish to leave with you and that is the one point to remember."

In illustrating this point Mr. Kelley recalled the campaigns of Napoleon. The great general was throughout his campaigns opposed by forces much stronger than his own; but he always managed to meet these forces piecemeal and to defeat them one by one. Then at Waterloo his own forces were divided and he went to his defeat.

After a street band concert the meeting in the Knickerbocker opened at 8 o'clock. The house was comfortably filled and the audience throughout was attentive and seemed deeply interested in what Mr. Musselman and Mr. Kelley said. The speakers were introduced by Attorney G. E. Kollen. He declared that the Republican party in Michigan was exceptionally fortunate in the character of its standard bearers. He introduced Mr. Musselman as a seasoned business man and a progressive, not only in word, but a progressive who had for many years put his progressivism into actual practice. He said Mr. Musselman believed the Republican party the best vehicle for carrying progressive measures into effect and for placing them on the statute books. In introducing Mr. Kelley, Mr. Kollen told the story of Mr. Kelley's great "key-note" speech at Detroit last week and said that Mr. Kelley was one of the best speakers and political thinkers in the state.

Mr. Musselman made an earnest plea for a business administration in state affairs. The purely political point of view should not obtain in the great office of the governorship, he said. The governor was at the head of a great many business institutions; and he should bring to that office, a mature knowledge of business affairs. That experience, he said, he had and he believed he was qualified by training and by nature for the work that devolves on a governor.

The present day restlessness in politics, he declared, showed that humanity was reaching out after a higher standard of citizenship. If efforts for betterment are guided along conservative lines they will bring good to the state and the nation. Formerly the people let others do the thinking for them, but now the primary system has compelled the people to think for themselves and it has brought them the new responsibility of investigation on their own account.

Mr. Musselman said he was seeking the governorship for two reasons. 1st because his nomination had been obtained by honorable means, and secondly because the office was a business man's job. Either Ferris or he, he declared, would be the next governor. He was a business man who has had years of actual experience, while Mr. Ferris, scholar and thinker, and gentleman that he was, was after all only an academic or theoretic businessman.

Coming back to Progressivism, Mr. Musselman said that way back in 1894 former Governor Pingree had started his progressive campaign by an open letter to him and that ever since then he had stood for all progressive legislation. Then he enumerated ten progressive measures that the Republican party had put on the statute books as follows:

- 1—Primary Law;
- 2—Advisory Vote in Primary on U. S. Senators;
- 3—Railroad and Public Utility Commission;
- 4—Income Tax Amendment;
- 5—Inheritance Tax Law;
- 6—Child Labor Law;
- 7—Law governing women labor;
- 8—Presidential Primary Law;
- 9—Workmen's Compensation and Employers' Liability Law.

Home Rule Law.

After explaining these progressive measures Mr. Musselman said that he could see no reason why this party had done these things should be doubted and the country turned over to a party of negation.

Mr. Kelley began by telling the story of the Republican Party's 50 years of power. He said the story of the 50 years was more wonderful than that of the Arabian Nights. At the very start the party has made the country all free instead of part slave and part free and it had saved the financial credit of the country soon after. All in all through these years of power the party had worked first for making the people ready for popular government and next it had furnished the machinery for government by which government can most effectively be administered. The people had been prepared for popular government by our marvelous school system, he said. In the United States we are spending $150,000,000 each year on the public school system. Porto Rico and other possessions were sending teachers to prepare the people for self-government there. Our treatment of Cuba we have shown the world a noble example of self-rule that has spread the passion for self-government to all the countries of the world so that even China has become the United States of China.

The highest function of government, he said, is to improve the condition of the common man; and that is what the Republican party had always stood for. The Republican party, he declared, has done more for above the human rights of the common man than any other political party in any age.

He called attention to the party's child labor law in Michigan; to the Workmen's Compensation law; he said that if as Gov. Johnson of California said America was the only country that put property rights why was it that so many European emigrants came to this country to better their condition, a million each year?

While the Republican party had done all these great things, Mr. Kelley declared, yet it was not to be denied that other great questions had still to be settled. There were great social questions that new social conditions brought with them and great economic questions as well. Today there were corporations that had more power than empires had in former years, as for example the steel corporation. And we are not even sure, he said, that our policy toward these great corporations has always been the right one. We must feel our way and meet new conditions cautiously. Only one thing the Republican party is sure of and that is that these great corporations must serve the people and not rule them.

"But," continued the speaker, "is the country ready to turn the government over to the democrats? Are the farmers ready for it? In 1897 there were 20 billion dollars invested in farm property; today there are 41 billions of dollars, the property of the farmers. During fifteen years of Republican rule they have more than doubled their capital. Is the laboring man ready for change? Is he ready to go back to 1893-97? Labor is the most sensitive commodity on the market and the laborer is the first to feel hard times. Can he afford to go back to democratic times?"

"Great parties are not founded on men but on principles. The principles of the Republican party have stood the test for half a century. It is the party of progress and advance and if the party will stand united today it can continue to serve the people with a beneficent government."

growsome discovery about 10:30 last night and he immediately reported to headquarters at the station. Coroner Cook was notified and after an examination of the body he gave his opinion that the man had been in the water about three weeks. The body was taken to the Nibbelink undertaking parlors in this city.

The drowned man appeared to be about forty or forty-five years old. He had red whiskers and was baldheaded. He was dressed in overalls, tan shoes, badly worn, black shirt, corduroy coat. There were absolutely no marks of identification about him. In his pocket were found a drinking cup and a Chicago paper.

Decomposition had set in and the face of the man was hardly recognizable. It is supposed by members of the station that he was a deckhand on one of the Goodrich boats. Nothing is known about him however and no case of man lost on the lake has been reported to the local station recently.

SUFFRAGIST ASSOCIATION WILL BEGIN "STRAW VOTE" VERY SOON.

The Holland Equal Suffrage association will make a systematic canvass of the city of Holland in the near future with a view of determining how the city is likely to vote on the woman suffrage amendment in November. The association has had cards printed which will be used in this "straw vote." The cards read as follows: "I believe in the right of Suffrage for Women and will vote for the cause in November." This is followed by a blank space for the signature.

These cards will be distributed in a house to house canvass that is to begin very soon. The city will be blocked out and each canvasser will have a certain section to cover. This will mean a complete canvass of the city and when it is over the association will have a pretty clear idea of the sentiment here.

MERCURY DROPPED TO 46 DEGREES AND THERE IS MORE COLD IN PROSPECT.

The first moderately heavy frost of the season occurred Friday night. It is not believed that any serious damage will result. The cucumber and tomato vines were probably the hardest hit. Grapes and potatoes were not seriously affected. The first heavy frost as a rule kills the foliage leaving the fruit and vegetables very susceptible to a repetition of the frost. This section has been visited twice before this month by night frosts, on September 16 and 23.

The grape crop is considerably behind in ripening, and a series of very heavy frosts would ruin it. The lateness is due to the cold and damp weather. Grapes require continuous hot weather to ripen early.

Friday marked the coldest day this fall. The temperature at 7 o'clock in the morning was 46 degrees, and although it registered 43 degrees during the day, it dropped back to 46 degrees at 6 o'clock last night. The mercury averaged from 36 to 48 degrees in the western and some of the southwestern states.

Killing frosts have been reported in many states. The cold spell is general over the west and is steadily traveling eastward. At Detroit the temperature was 50 degrees and at Buffalo 64 degrees yesterday. From all indications the cold spell will last several days, altho the weather men believe that we are still to have some summer weather. Despite the arrival of the cold period, there has been a gain of 110 degrees on the deficiency in temperature of 1.081 degrees, which was reported September 1. The deficiency now is 971 degrees.

LOCAL MAN WANTS TO ESTABLISH HOLLAND COLONY THERE.

Monday night John Brouwers will left with a party of men from Holland and Zeeland for Emmett county Michigan, where they propose to establish a Holland colony of farmers from this part of the state. The party is conducted under the auspices of the Pellston Realty company of which Mr. Brouwers is the secretary. The party consists of Mr. Brouwers, Henry Derks of Zeeland, Robert Leenhouts of Zeeland, Henry Lugers of Holland township and L. Brouwers. They will look over the prospects there and make a short stay. Mr. Brouwers expects to conduct another party to the place next week and others later as the demand for land arises. The real estate venture is in fruit and farm lands and Mr. Brouwers declares there is good prospects of establishing a very desirable Holland colony there.

The ADVENTURE OF THE RED CIRCLE

"Well, it figures out that way, doesn't it? Here he is, sending out messages to an accomplice—there are several of his gang in London. Then suddenly, just as by your own account he was telling them that there was danger, he broke short off. What could it mean except that from the window he had suddenly either caught sight of us in the street, or in some way come to understand how close the danger was, and that he must act right away if he was to avoid it? What do you suggest, Mr. Holmes?"

"That we go up at once and see for ourselves."

"But we have no warrant for his arrest."

"He is in unoccupied premises under suspicious circumstances," said Gregson. "That is good enough for the moment. When we have him by the heels we can see if New York can't help us to keep him. I'll take the responsibility of arresting him now."

Our official detectives may blunder in the matter of intelligence, but never in that of courage. Gregson climbed the stair to arrest this desperate murderer with the same absolutely quiet and businesslike bearing with which he would have ascended the official staircase of Scotland Yard. The Pinkerton man had tried to push past him, but Gregson had firmly elbowed him back. London dangers were the privilege of the London force.

The door of the left-hand flat upon the third landing was standing ajar.

The Red Steps Pointed Toward Us.

Gregson pushed it open. Within all was absolute silence and darkness. I struck a match, and lit the detective's lantern. As I did so, and as the flicker steadied into a flame, we all gave a gasp of surprise. On the deal boards of the carpetless floor there was outlined a fresh track of blood. The red steps pointed towards us, and led away from an inner room, the door of which was closed. Gregson flung it open and held his light full blast in front of him, whilst we all peered eagerly over his shoulders.

In the middle of the floor of the empty room was huddled the figure of an enormous man, his clean-shaven, swarthy face grotesquely horrible in its contortion, and his head encircled by a ghastly crimson halo of blood, lying in a broad wet circle upon the white woodwork. His knees were drawn up, his hands thrown out in agony, and from the center of his broad, brown, upturned throat there projected the white haft of a knife driven blade-deep into his body. Giant as he was, the man must have gone down like a pole-axed ox before that terrific blow. Beside his right hand a most formidable horn-handled, two-edged dagger lay upon the floor, and near it a black kid glove.

"By George! it's Black Gorgiano himself!" cried the American detective. "Some one has got ahead of us this time."

"Here is the candle in the window, Mr. Holmes," said Gregson. "Why, whatever are you doing?"

Holmes had stepped across, had lit the candle, and was passing it backwards and forwards across the window-panes. Then he peered into the darkness, blew the candle out, and threw it on the floor.

"I rather think that will be helpful," said he. He came over and stood in deep thought, while the two professionals were examining the body. "You say that three people came out from the flat while you were waiting downstairs," said he, at last. "Did you observe them closely?"

"Yes, I did."

"Was there a fellow about thirty, black-bearded, dark, of middle size?"

"Yes; he was the last to pass me."

"That is your man, I fancy. I can give you his description, and we have a very excellent outline of his foot-mark. That should be enough for you."

"Not much, Mr. Holmes, among the millions of London."

"Perhaps not. That is why I thought it best to summon this lady to your aid."

We all turned round at the words. There, framed in the doorway, was a tall and beautiful woman—the mysterious lodger of Bloomsbury. Slowly she advanced, her face pale and drawn with a frightful apprehension, her eyes fixed and staring, her terrified gaze riveted upon the dark figure on the floor.

"You have killed him!" she muttered. "Oh, Dio mio, you have killed him!" Then I heard a sudden sharp intake of her breath, and she sprang into the air with a cry of joy. Round and round the room she danced, her hands clapping, her dark eyes gleaming with delighted wonder, and a thousand pretty Italian exclamations pouring from her lips. It was terrible and amazing to see such a woman so consoled with joy at such a sight. Suddenly she stopped and gazed at us all with a questioning stare.

"But you! You are police, are you not? You have killed Giuseppe Gorgiano. Is it not so?"

"We are police, madam."

She looked round into the shadows of the room.

"But where, then, is Gennaro?" she asked. "He is my husband, Gennaro Lucca. I am Emilia Lucca, and we are both from New York. Where is Gennaro? He called me this moment from this window, and I ran with all my speed."

"It was I who called," said Holmes.

"You! How could you call?"

"Your cipher was not difficult, madam. Your presence here was desirable. I knew that I had only to flash 'Vieni!' and you would surely come."

The beautiful Italian looked with awe at my companion.

"I do not understand how you know these things," she said. "Giuseppe Gorgiano—how did he—?" She paused, and then suddenly her face lit up with pride and delight. "Now I see it! My Gennaro! My splendid, beautiful Gennaro, who has guarded me safe from all harm, he did it, with his own strong hand he killed the monster! Oh, Gennaro, how wonderful you are! What woman could ever be worthy of such a man?"

"Well, Mrs. Lucca," said the prosaic Gregson, laying his hand upon the lady's sleeve with as little sentiment as if she were a Notting Hill hooligan, "I am not very clear yet who you are or what you are; but you've said enough to make it clear that we shall want you at the Yard."

"One moment, Gregson," said Holmes. "I rather fancy that this lady may be as anxious to give us information as we can be to get it. You understand, madam, that your husband will be arrested and tried for the death of the man who lies before us? What you say may be used in evidence. But if you think that he has acted from motives which are not criminal, and which he would wish to have known, then you cannot serve him better than by telling us the whole story."

"Now that Gorgiano is dead we fear nothing," said the lady. "He was a devil and a monster, and there can be no judge in the world who would punish my husband for having killed him."

"In that case," said Holmes, "my suggestion is that we lock this door, leave things as we found them, go with this lady to her room, and form our opinion after we have heard what it is that she has to say to us."

Half an hour later we were seated, all four, in the small sitting-room of Signora Lucca, listening to her remarkable narrative of those sinister events, the ending of which we had chanced to witness. She spoke in rapid and fluent but very unconventional English, which, for the sake of clearness, I will make grammatical.

"I was born in Posillipo, near Naples," said she, "and was the daughter of Augusto Barelli, who was the chief lawyer and once the deputy of that part. Gennaro was in my father's employment, and I came to love him, as any woman must. He had neither money nor position—nothing but his beauty and strength and energy—so my father forbade the match. We fled together, were married at Bari, and sold my jewels to gain the money which would take us to America. This was four years ago, and we have been in New York ever since."

"Fortune was very good to us at first. Gennaro was able to do a service to an Italian gentleman—he saved him from some ruffians in the place called the Bowery, and so made a powerful friend. His name was Tito Castalotte, and he was the senior partner of the great firm of Castalotte and Zamba, who are the chief fruit importers of New York. Signor Zamba is an invalid, and our new friend Castalotte has all power within the firm, which employs more than three hundred men. He took my husband into his employment, made him head of a department, and showed his goodwill towards him in every way. Signor Castalotte was a bachelor, and I believe that he felt as if Gennaro was his son, and both my husband and I loved him as if he were our father. We had taken and furnished a little house in Brooklyn, and our whole future seemed assured, when that black cloud appeared which was soon to overshadow our sky.

"One night, when Gennaro returned from his work, he brought a fellow-countryman back with him. His name was Gorgiano, and he had come also from Posillipo. He was a huge man, as you can testify, for you have looked upon his corpse. Not only was his body that of a giant, but everything about him was grotesque, gigantic and terrifying. His voice was like thunder in our little house. There was scarce room for the whirl of his great arms as he talked. His thoughts, his emotions, his passions, all were exaggerated and monstrous. He talked, or rather roared, with such energy that others could but sit and listen, cowed with the mighty stream of words. His eyes blazed at you and held you at his mercy. He was a terrible and wonderful man. I thank God that he is dead!

"He came again and again. Yet I was aware that Gennaro was no more happy than I was in his presence. My poor husband would sit pale and listless, listening to the endless ravings upon politics and upon social questions which made up our visitor's conversation. Gennaro said nothing, but I who knew him so well could read in his face some emotion which I had never seen there before. At first I thought that it was dislike. And then, gradually, I understood that it was more than dislike. It was fear—a deep, secret, shrinking fear. That night—the night that I read his terror

"One Moment, Gregson," Said Holmes.

—I put my arms round him and I explored him by his love for me and by all that he held dear to hold nothing from me, and to tell me why this huge man overshadowed him so.

"He told me, and my own heart grew cold as ice as I listened. My poor Gennaro, in his wild and fiery days, when all the world seemed against him and his mind was driven half mad by the injustices of life, had joined a Neapolitan society, the Red Circle, which was allied to the old Carbonari. The oaths and secrets of this brotherhood were frightful; but once within its rule no escape was possible. When we had fled to America Gennaro thought that he had cast it all off for ever. What was his horror one evening to meet in the streets the very man who had initiated him in Naples, the giant Gorgiano, a man who had earned the name of 'Death' in the South of Italy, for he was red to the elbow in murder! He had come to New York to avoid the Italian police, and he had already planted a branch of his dreadful society in his new home. All this Gennaro told me, and showed me a summons which he had received that very day, a Red Circle drawn upon the head of it, telling him that a lodge would be held upon a certain date, and that his presence at it was required and ordered."

"That was bad enough, but worse was to come. I had noticed for some time that when Gorgiano came to us, as he constantly did, in the evenings, he spoke much to me; and even when his words were to my husband those terrible, glaring, wild-beast eyes of his were always turned upon me. One night his secret came out. I had awakened what he called 'love' within him—the love of a brute—a savage. Gennaro had not yet returned when he came. He pushed his way in, seized me in his mighty arms, hugged me in his bear's embrace, covered me with kisses and implored me to come away with him. I was struggling and screaming when Gennaro entered and attacked him. He struck Gennaro senseless and fled from the house which he was never more to enter. It was a deadly enemy that we made that night."

"A few days later came the meeting. Gennaro returned from it with a face which told me that something dreadful had occurred. It was worse than we could have imagined possible. The funds of the society were raised by blackmailing rich Italians and threatening them with violence should they refuse the money. It seems that Castalotte, our dear friend and benefactor, had been approached. He had refused to yield to threats, and he had handed the notices to the police. It was resolved now that such an example should be made of him as would prevent any other victim from rebelling. At the meeting it was arranged that he and his house should be blown up with dynamite. There was a drawing of lots as to who should carry out the deed. Gennaro saw our enemy's cruel face smiling at him as he dipped his hand in the bag. No doubt it had been prearranged in some fashion, for it was the fatal disc with the Red Circle upon it, the mandate for murder, which lay upon his palm. He was to kill his best friend, or he was to expose himself and me to the vengeance of his comrades. It was part of their fiendish system to punish those whom they feared or hated by injuring not only their own persons, but those whom they loved, and it was the knowledge of this which hung as a terror over my poor

"All that night we sat together, our arms round each other, each strengthening each for the troubles that lay before us. The very next evening had been fixed for the attempt. By mid-day my husband and I were on our way to London, but not before he had given our benefactor full warning of his danger, and had also left such information for the police as would safeguard his life for the future."

"The rest, gentlemen, you know for yourselves. We were sure that our enemies would be behind us like our own shadows. Gorgiano had his private reasons for vengeance, but in any case we knew how ruthless, cunning, and untiring he could be. Both Italy and America are full of stories of his dreadful power. If ever they were exerted it would be now. My darling made use of the few clear days which our start had given us in arranging for a refuge for me in such a fashion that no possible danger could reach me. For his own part, he wished to be free that he might communicate both with the American and with the Italian police. I do not myself know where he lived, or how. All that I learned was through the columns of a newspaper. But once, as I looked through my window, I saw two Italians watching the house, and I understood that in some way Gorgiano had found out our retreat. Finally Gennaro told me, through the paper that he would signal to me from a certain window, but when the signals came they were nothing but warnings, which were suddenly interrupted. It is very clear to me now that he knew Gorgiano to be close upon him, and that, thank God! he was ready for him when he came. And now, gentlemen, I would ask you whether we have anything to fear from the law, or whether any judge upon earth would condemn my Gennaro for what he has done?"

"Well, Mr. Gregson," said the American, looking across at the official, "I don't know what your British point of view may be, but I guess that in New York this lady's husband will receive a pretty general vote of thanks."

"She will have to come with me and see the chief," Gregson answered. "If what she says is corroborated, I do not think she or her husband has much to fear. But what I can't make head or tail of, Mr. Holmes, is how on earth you got yourself mixed up in the matter."

"Education, Gregson, education. Still seeking knowledge at the old university. Well, Watson, you have one more specimen of the tragic and grotesque to add to your collection. By the way, it is eight o'clock, and a Wagner night at Covent Garden! If we hurry, we might be in time for the second act."

Sacredness of the Cow in India.

The killing of animals is abhorrent to the Hindoo. You may see the pious Jain, who carries the doctrine of the preservation of life to an absurd extreme, moving about on the Esplanade or near trees and fields with a packet of flour and sugar, in search of ants and other insects, that he may feed them from his store. In towns and villages you will occasionally come across the sacred bull, who roams about at will, and helps himself to grain and other foodstuff placed in shops as he pleases. He is a symbol of divinity. None will molest him; everybody will hold him in reverence. But in the case of the bull the reverence is limited to the one who, so to speak, is born in purple.

As for the cow, the entire species is sacred, and to kill it is a cardinal sin. Whenever the pious Hindoo passes by a cow, he touches it with his hand and salutes it.

"Life" 34 Days After Death.

Some years ago Dr. Alexis Carrel an English scientist, showed that the various organs and tissues taken from a living organism can be maintained in a live state for a more or less prolonged time by placing them in a suitable medium at the right temperature, and that such tissues may even grow for several days. His results have been contradicted by other authors, but more recently Dr. Carrel has achieved even more striking results. By taking the preparations out of their nutritive medium at the right time and transferring them to another medium consisting of three parts of the normal plasma of the animal in question and two parts of water, and repeating the operation at proper intervals up to as many as nine times, he finds that the connective tissue shows great activity, even as long as thirty-four days after its removal from the body.

Auto-Irrigation.

Luther Burbank, the plant wizard, dismissed with a jest, at a spring luncheon in Los Angeles, a somewhat overwhelming compliment.

"Really," he said, "I hardly deserve such a compliment as that. Even if I could do what the comic actor proposed, I'd hardly deserve such a compliment as that!"

"A comic actor, you know, was talking about the spring planting that was under way in his suburban home."

"I propose," he said, "to plant onions with my potatoes, the idea being that the onions' tear-compelling powers will work on the potatoes' eyes, and thus cause the plants to irrigate themselves."

No End to It.

Dubley—it's too bad the average man can't be satisfied with a good living and not be forever hungering for more money.

Wise—The average man is satisfied with a good living. The only trouble is that his idea of a good living grows with his income.

LATEST ATTEMPT BY WOULDBE BURGLAR IS IN THE OFFICE OF HOLLAND FUEL CO.

Breaking into buildings is becoming something of an epidemic in Holland, several jobs having been pulled off during the past few weeks. The latest attempt at burglary was in the office of the Holland Fuel company, corner of Harrison-avenue and 12th street. The would be burglar gained entrance to the building through a window. The state of the room showed that he had looked into most of the places in the office where there was any chance of finding money or valuables but nothing was taken.

The police department was notified as soon as the attempt at burglary was discovered. The housebreaker did not leave any clue.

CHARLES DEMENTE AND LESTER TEDD BEGIN THEIR SENTENCES.

Charles Demente and Lester Tedd the two Chicago young men who were recently sentenced to a term of imprisonment in Jackson prison for the burglary of the Titus and Boone stores at Zeeland, were taken to Jackson Saturday to begin their sentence of from three to five years.

Demente is a firstclass chef and has worked at the Pantlind in Grand Rapids and a number of other first class hotels and cafes in Chicago. According to the story told by the men they were beating their way from Chicago to Detroit where they hoped to find work.

At Zeeland according to their story they were waiting at the station for a freight to come along when they met a hobo, who made the remark that he had a good mind to break a window in the town and get a couple of watches. Dement stated that he then spoke to his companion Tedd, with the remark: "We'd better get away from here or we'll get into trouble." The two men then started for Grand Rapids along the track. They had gone a short distance, when it began to rain and they decided to go back to Zeeland. Going back through the village, the suggestion made by the hobo came into their minds and they pulled off the robbery of the two stores.

The young men were a very repentant pair after their quick arrest and with Jackson prison staring them in the face they realized the seriousness of their crime.

LOCAL ATTORNEYS HELP JENSON PARK WOMAN FROM BEING A VICTIM.

A neatly planned swindle scheme was nipped in the bud in Holland yesterday through local attorneys who set a trap for the would-be swindler and saved ten dollars for a Jenison Park woman that she could ill spare. Some days ago a woman giving her name as Lizzie Rector, and her home as Chicago, came to a Jenison Park woman and offered her the exclusive Holland territory for the agency of the California Perfumery Co. Since it represented a chance to make a little money which she very much needed the Jenison Park woman paid the ten dollars.

She happened to tell a friend in Holland about the agency. Now this friend had been approached by the same "Lizzie Rector", but not being able to take the "exclusive agency" for Holland and vicinity, she had referred her to another Holland woman.

Seeing that she had been swindled the Jenison Park woman sought out local attorneys and asked their advice. One of the members of the firm got into communication with the woman who was to be approached by "Lizzie Rector" and made arrangements with her to call him up as soon as the Chicago woman should appear.

The plan worked beautifully and "Lizzie Rector" walked into the trap. The attorney secured the contract for the "exclusive agency" and then confronted "Lizzie Rector" with the other contract for "exclusive agency" issued by her to the Jenison Park woman. When threatened with arrest the woman returned the ten dollars and naturally, the little game having been exposed, this field of operation is closed to her.

Let's Be Fair

It is unfortunate that the Common Council and the Board of Public Works should again be at loggerheads and all the more because this time their differences arise over the payment of a decent salary to a good man. The Board has asked the council to raise the salary of their Superintendent and the Council either deems the raise too high or is not satisfied with the way the Board handled the matter. The "News" does not know who is right in the controversy and does not care, we do know that Mr. Champion is worthy of his hire and is now doing the work that formerly was done by two men. He has shown himself to be a capable and a specially efficient official and he should not be made the football of any grievances that might exist between the Council and the Board. The News happens to know that Mr. Champion is in demand elsewhere and we know that a man of his high calibre and worth does not care to be the subject of any such squabbles as this. We would not like to see him become disgusted as he naturally would, if this matter were not amicably settled soon.

THE CLASS SCRAP

It is wholesome sign that this foolish and barbaric custom of class rushes is growing obsolete. Hope College classes in its test of strength in their tug of war, and the Holland High school in their friendly demonstration on the new school site have shown that they do not belong to that class of rowdies.

Once we expected that in college towns there would sometime early in the term be a cessation from real duties and, an indulgence for the time being in conduct which is more becoming to savages than to civilized nations as the contending classes strove for supremacy. The results were sometimes disastrous and never elevating. Of late we have seen the custom invading high schools, until even the rural districts have fallen into the foolish line. But the reaction has surely come to stay. Now we hear of a college in which students are promptly expelled for hazing. Again there comes another to the front, the upper classmen, not content with the warnings of the faculty, taking matters into their own hands deciding that the Freshmen and Sophs can better prove their worth than through the old time "rush," and planning in the future for them some stunts which, under proper direction and discipline, shall prove as harmless as they are amusing.

Class spirit may be displayed with out striving to butcher some one. The class colors should be worn with out provoking in the opposing faction a belligerence more dangerous than that of good natured jests. There is no more apology for one student wilfully destroying the clothing of another at such times than in his entering the room and taking property forcibly. One is just as lawless as the other. Students are supposed to be learning the elements of good citizenship and they cannot be impressed too soon with the fact not even for love of class are they justified in making hoodlums of themselves. All honor to the system which recognizes courtesy as a necessary element at all times; which proves that fun may be had without descending to the depths of rowdyism.

Holland Students in both college and school have shown the past week that they are living up to the higher standard.

TATTERED SHIRT SOPHISTRY

Many a man's small measure of success has been due to the proverb, "A tattered shirt may cover an honest heart." Not that the proverb is untrue, but that it is misinterpreted. One of its harmful interpretations is that which leads a man to excuse himself to himself for lack of care in his dress. He may know he has an honest heart, but the world is looking at the tattered shirt—and the world is wont to judge men by what it sees of them. It is coming to be understood that an honest heart can be most effective when it does not neglect to give outward expression to inward worth. The truly honest heart is not willing to let itself be covered by the tattered shirt when there is a better one to be had.

It behooves every man who has ever listened to that easy-going alibi philosophy to stop and try to count up what it has cost him. He cannot really count it because he does not and cannot know how very much the cost has been. But it is well, perhaps, that he does not know, or else he might be discouraged in his effort to regain the ground he has lost. The only course open to him is to regain as much of it as he can—by laying aside the tattered shirt and wearing a more worthy covering for his honest heart.

G. Vreeland of Saugatuck picked a quart of strawberries from his garden last Friday and enjoyed a strawberry short cake for supper. This day was the 47th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Vreeland.

BUD IS STILL A SPORT

Bakersfield, Cal., September 25, 1912.
Mr. Ben Mulder,
Holland, Michigan.

Friend Ben:

I see in your paper that you are giving away another kitchen set, so enclosed please find $1.00 for one year's subscription to your valuable paper, and one of those kitchen sets, and don't forget that, and let me know how everything is coming.

I made a funny bet for an old Republican Saturday night. I bet $50.00 even money that Wilson has more electoral votes than Teddy. Now I think that is a funny bet for a Republican to make, don't you; but I would be foolish enough now to bet $100.00 to $70.00 that I will gather the money.

Best regards to all inquiring friends, and don't forget to send that kitchen set.

Yours truly,

BUD SMITH.

NEW TELEPHONE LAW

The law under which the telephone companies of Michigan are working when they raise the rate of rentals, is one of the most peculiar laws ever passed by the legislature of Michigan and it ought to be amended or repealed. Under this law no company can organize a telephone exchange in any town or township unless they get the permission of the railroad commission who has the full say as to whether a company can raise or lower its rates. The law cuts off all hopes of competition and no matter how bad the services may be of an existing company the people will have to put up with it unless they can persuade the commission to remedy the matters.

Busy on Road Work

The county road commission is holding its monthly session in Grand Haven.

No road roller has as yet been purchased although some of this machinery may be brought in for trial on the roads before the work is completed for this fall. Grading is going forward at a rapid rate and in some places gravel is being put in. Barney Riksin of Holland has the contract of the county at present, having bid low for most of the grading being done for the jobs.

The county road building has caused a big jump in the gravel industry in the county, and more gravel will be taken out of the county gravel beds than has been used for some time by one purchaser. The Walsma & Van Toil company has installed machinery at their Bass River bed particularly for getting out the gravel contracted for by the county road commissioners. This machinery consists of cranes and derricks hoisting engines and tramways, by which the scoops can be loaded very rapidly for transportation down the river to points designated by the commission.

Sheriff Aydre has completed the installation of considerable machinery on his property near Jenison to supply contract gravel to the county for the new roads. The sheriff's property is said to contain about the only gravel bed of that vicinity, and the output is of excellent grade, as well.

LOCAL HORSEMEN WILL HOLD RACES ON FAIRGROUNDS FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Local horsemen are all enthused over the matinee races to be pulled off at the fair grounds Friday afternoon. Rivalry among the horsemen has been very keen for the past year and the races held at the time of the fair have made it still more so. Those who lost out claiming the track at that time was so muddy that it was more of a question of a mud horse than a race horse and that with a good track results would have been very much different. Those who won of course maintain that they have the best horses on any kind of a track and that they can repeat the trick Friday afternoon. The races will be started at 1:30 and every effort will be made to have the shortest possible intervals between heats. The list of entries is exceptionally good including Zealand horses owned by John De Pree and Gill Van Hoven, names which are familiar to all Holland horsemen. De Pree recently purchased his horse and judging from the quality and length of his pedigree he ought to be a crackerjack. Gill Van Hoven always has one or two that can step along and the two Zealand horses will probably be pitted against each other although there will be several other entries in the same race. The list of entries will be published tomorrow.

A JOKE ON THE OTHER FELLOW

Allegan Gazette—Speaking of those olden days reminds that a relic of them was walking the streets in ghostlike fashion a few weeks ago. He was Guy W. Allen who after tossing about as 83 much flotsam has drifted into the calm harbor of the Michigan Masonic home. Back in the seventies he cut a figure in Allegan as the owner of the principal livery stable in the town. It stood just back of the Gazette building. Allen liked fine horses, but he had rivals in this respect as in the livery business also. His chief pride was a span of lively bays, Deck and Flora. Allen having sought to honor his brother in the naming of the former. Allen thought his team had no equal, but both the horses and their owner were a butt of ridicule on the part of the men who thought Guy was quite properly named—who "Would not deny in regard to the same, who that same might imply." It was county fair time and C. W. Flisk and a few kindred spirits thought they would have some fun with Guy. So they got out some big posters announcing that there would be a prize of $50 for a race in which Deck and Flora might enter but all others would be barred, as there were no others of their superlative class. The little town rang with laughter, and for a week Allen was the object of ceaseless raillery. But the racing afternoon came, and to carry out the joke to the limit the judges banged their bell and called on the race. While the fun was at its height, on to the track went Allen and his team. They really were a handsome and spirited pair, and envy of them was the basis of the jeers of Flisk and his cronies. Allen got the word to go, and four times he went around the sandy quarter-mile track at no mean gate. He drew up before the judges and demanded the fifty dollars—and got it; for the temper of the crowd had turned in his favor, and his tormentors had to make good their offer, and that was the end of the tantalizing. The joke was on the jokers.

HOPE GRADUATE GETS HIGH HONOR

Dr. Zwemer Chosen for Head of New Missionary Movement in the Orient

Known throughout the civilized world as one of the keenest, most active, energetic, vigilant missionaries among the benighted nations of the globe, Rev. Samuel M. Zwemer, who has founded and been the representative of the Reformed church in the Arabian mission for twenty years, has been selected for the high and responsible position of heading a new movement of great significance and promise with headquarters at Cairo Egypt.

Dr. Zwemer is a Michigan product and is a graduate of Hope college. Early in life he became imbued with the missionary spirit and during his college days championed the cause of missions among his fellow students. His father was one of the first two ministers ordained in the Holland colony. When young Zwemer completed his theological course in 1890, he volunteered his services as missionary in Arabia and the board of foreign missions of the Reformed church sent him abroad. A year later his brother Peter, joined him, but he died a few years later while on furlough in America.

Dr. Zwemer's work in Arabia was watched with interest. The movement spread rapidly. Many volunteers followed him. He explored new fields which won for him a fellowship in the Royal Geographical society in England. He became recognized as one of the greatest and most zealous workers in heathen countries. When he came to America on his second furlough, it was feared that Dr. Zwemer would lose his eye sight, but nothing could keep him from returning to the land he had chosen for his life's work. Leading specialists were consulted and Dr. Zwemer was advised to spend a few years in this country for rest and recuperation. He was prevailed upon to accept the position of field secretary of the board of foreign missions in New York and his influence was far-reaching. Meanwhile his eyes were saved.

During the mission conference at Lucknow, which was attended by 163 delegates from eleven countries, representing 54 mission boards, Dr. Zwemer was honored with the presidency of that representative gathering. He was one of the speakers at the world's missionary conference at Edinburgh, Scotland two years ago and has been heard at conferences in nearly all parts of the civilized world. His writings on the "Unoccupied Fields in Asia and Africa," and his books on Mohammedan problems are considered among the best contributions to missionary literature.

The Lucknow conference, a conference of missionary workers among Moslems, following the general missionary conference in Edinburgh, reached the conclusion that united work was now possible and desirable along certain lines, notwithstanding the wide separation in distance and the diverse character of the Moslem fields. Two of these lines were the publication of missionary literature for the fields and the special training of the missionary workers, such as can only be given on the field itself. This new movement was adopted by the Arabian mission and its trustees, and the American mission of the United Presbyterian church in Egypt. Dr. Zwemer's recognized fitness for this special work was seen and he was subsequently chosen for the position, although he will still retain his relationship to the Arabian mission.

Dr. Zwemer's new work includes the following points: Teaching in the theological seminary of the American mission or lecturing on problems relating to Islam; conducting special missionary work for Moslems at Cairo; having charge of the English services of the mission at Cairo; cooperating in literary work in connection with the Nile mission press. Also two hours daily, or twelve hours approximately each week, will be reserved for the special

HONEST MAN CAUSES HIS OWN ARREST AND IS FINED

There is one law-abiding citizen in Kalamazoo, a man who arrested himself when he found out that he had violated the law. George P. Wigginton today entered the police department and told the officers that he was under arrest.

"What for?" was asked. He then told the amazed officers that he had driven his automobile without a tail light last night and that he knew he had broken an ordinance, so he considered himself arrested. He paid the smallest fine ever assessed for the offense to which he pleaded guilty, $5.

To all new subscribers who pay $1 in advance we will give the Holland City News from now until January 1, 1914 and as a premium we will throw in a fine three piece Kitchen Carving Set. All old subscribers who pay in advance will also receive one of these Kitchen Carving Sets free. The set is worth the price alone—Come quick before they are all gone.

MEXICAN CACTUS GROW IN NEWAGO COUNTY

A considerable "patch" of prickly pear cactus exists in Newago county, and as the cacti commonly grow only in warm and usually arid places there has been much speculation as to how the prickly pears came to be away off north in Michigan. It would indeed be interesting to know, as it would to know with certainty a great deal more than is known about the distribution of species; but the guess that some migrating Indians brought the plant from the far southwest seems quite improbable, for the reason among others that the same cactus is found occasionally in the sandy pine lands of Allegan county. Besides the species found there (Opuntia vulgaris) exists also in many places in the northern Atlantic states and doubtless may be found elsewhere in Michigan.

MISS FLORENCE TAYLOR ENTERTAINS FRIENDS AT LUNCHEON LAST NIGHT.

In a most delightful manner, Miss Florence Taylor entertained twelve young ladies at a three course luncheon, at her home 48 West 16th street Friday evening.

Although the guests surmised the reason of this special occasion, the truth was not made known until the close of the last course.

After all the others had given their congratulations, Miss Taylor asked if they knew why she had planned this affair.

As no one ventured an answer, she displayed the beautiful diamond ring and announced that it was the gift of Mr. John Prakken.

Congratulations were then showered upon the betrothed.

THE WOMAN'S LITERARY CLUB STARTS PROGRAM WITH DISCOVERER.

Makeup for Columbus After Famous Painting in Washington Gallery.

The Woman's Literary club Tuesday afternoon listened to a most enjoyable program on the occasion of the first meeting of the club this year. Very appropriately the study of the United States was begun with a program on Columbus, the discoverer of this country. The club was entertained by Mrs. L. E. Van Drezzer and Mrs. J. B. Mulder and the program opened with the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" by the club.

After welcoming all the members back to work, Mrs. J. P. Oggel, president of the club, said a few words of the work and then Mrs. Boyd, gave a reading, Joaquin Miller's "Columbus." Miss Helene Keppel sang a solo after which the life of Columbus was given in pantomime the committee in charge being Mrs. M. A. Sooy and Mrs. C. H. McBride.

The committee presented four of the most important historical scenes during the life of Columbus; First, The dreams of Columbus, in which he dreams of a new world; second, Columbus at the court of Spain, seeking aid to further his expedition; third, his welcome, return to Spain; fourth, the closing days of his life. The scenes in pantomime were enlivened by the story of the events proceeding given by Mrs. Garrod.

Mrs. George E. Kollen, impersonated Columbus. The makeup for this impersonation was after the painting by Carl Von Tilly, which hangs in the court room gallery at Washington D. C. It is considered the only authentic portrait of Columbus and represents him in brown hair and brown beard.

The other characters were as follows: King of Spain—Theo Thuber; Queen Isabella—Miss Metz; Page—Harold Price; Priest—Mrs. Price; Ladies and Gentlemen in Waiting, Miss Keppel, Miss Hobson, Mrs. Burkholder, Mrs. Pifer; Indian Boys—Master Davis and Master Vaupell.

HOLLAND LOSES LANDMARK

With the dismantling of the consistory building of the Old Van Raalte church, Holland loses a landmark which figured prominently in the days of the seceder movement during the early eighties, when the church was split in two factions and the deed to the property after a bitter fight in the courts. The consistory building at that time served as the meeting place where the Free Mason question, which caused the rupture, was discussed, and it is alleged an attempt was made to blow up the building while the consistory was in session. Two holes had been drilled through the brick walls, but the discovery was made in time to frustrate the plot.

CAPTAIN PARDEE IS DEAD

Word has been received in this city of the death of Captain George W. Pardee at Kalamazoo, where he has been taken treatment for several years. The remains have been brought to Holland Tuesday. He was taken ill while he was serving, as inspectors of hulls of the United States inspection service. Previous to that time Captain Pardee has served many years as a ship master in the Goodrich Transit company service. At the time of his appointment he was in command of the steamer Virginia, and was considered one of the best commanders in the entire fleet. He also served in the Graham and Mortan fleet between Holland and Chicago and served as captain on the old Soo City.

As a government official Pardee also made a record for thoroughness and efficiency and was well thought of in service, when his health gave way, and he was compelled to relinquish his duties. During his several years as a resident in this city Captain Pardee made many friends here who have felt genuine sympathy for him during his long hopeless illness.

Deceased is survived by his wife, and one son who reside here. A brother Captain Frank Pardee resides in Erie.

The funeral at the home was held under the auspices of the Masonic Lodge and Rev. F. O. Granniss officiated. Interment took place in Pilgrim Home Cemetery.

HOPE CHURCH GIVES RECEPTION IN HONOR OF BRUSKE FAM- ily LAST FRIDAY NIGHT

A reception of welcome was given Friday in Hope church parlors
in honor of Dr. and Mrs. A. F. Bruske
by the congregation of Hope church.
It was a most enjoyable event and practically the entire congregation
came out to welcome the new pastor
and Mrs. Bruske as well as Miss Bruske to Holland and to Hope church.

In the receiving line were Dr. and Mrs. Bruske and Miss Bruske, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. McLean, Dr. and Mrs.
A. Vennema and Prof. and Mrs. J. H.
Kleinheksel. The punch bowl was in charge of Mrs. A. C. V. R. Gilmore and those who assisted her were the Misses Theo. Thurber, Irene Bruske, Florence Vennema, Maude
Van Drezer, Evelyn De Vries and Emma Cathcart.

The church parlors had been most beautifully decorated for the occasion. The color scheme throughout was red and in the center of the room
was a mound of salvia. The decorations received the highest praise and it was in fact a work of art. The dining room was also decorated with salvia and red candleabras. The Ladies' Aid society presented Mrs.
Bruske with a beautiful arm bouquet
of American Beauty roses.

C. M. McLean presided at the reception and Frank Kleinheksel opened the program with a solo. In the course of the evening music was also furnished by an orchestra. Prof.
E. D. Dimment gave an address of welcome in behalf of Hope church.
The Rev. P. E. Whitman, pastor of the M. E. church spoke on behalf of the local churches and Dr. Vennema welcomed the Bruske family on behalf of Hope College. Dr. Bruske
then responded in a short address
while Dr. J. W. Beardslee closed with prayer.

a hundred bushels of these apples
and finds no difficulty in disposing of them. They are beautiful apples and hardly a blemish can be found on any of them.

JURY GIVES JUDGMENT OF $15 AND COSTS AFTER BEING OUT AN HOUR.

Another automobile case was tried in the court room in the city hall
Friday this being the second one within a week. The principals in the case were Cornelius Luidema, and H.
Vander Heuvel. On the evening of Labor Day, Luidema, driving a horse

damages sustained in the collision.
The case began about nine o'clock
Friday in the forenoon and the jury did not bring in a verdict till about 7:30 in the evening after having been out about an hour. They returned a judgment of $15 and the costs to Luidema. Attorney Daniel Ten Cate appeared for Luidema and Miles & Van Eyck defended Vander Heuvel.

The case was hard fought and a number of witnesses were examined
so that nearly the whole day was consumed in the case. The jury was composed of C. Hoffman, J. W. Flo-man, John Buchanan, Lew Bouman, L. E. Van Drezer and John Stritt. The

DELIGHTFUL ENTERTAINMENT GIVEN TUESDAY EVENING AT HOME OF MR. AND MRS. F. W. HADDEN

Opened Brilliantly the Season's Meetings for Both the "Daughters" and the "Sons"

The members of Holland chapter, Sons of the Revolution, with their wives, were delightfully entertained
Tuesday by Elizabeth Schuyler
Hamilton Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Hadden on West Eleventh street. The parlors were beautifully decorated for the occasion
with American flags, shaded candles
and masses of Japanese palm, a portrait of the Chapter's patron saint occupying a prominent position. Mrs.
C. M. McLean, regent of the chapter,
received with Mr. and Mrs. Hadden.

When the guests were seated, Mrs.
McLean spoke a few words of welcome, after which Mrs. J. E. Telling, sang two beautiful solos, "From the Land of the Sky Blue Waters," from the Indian Lyrics by Cadman, and
"Dawn" by d' Hardelot. She was accompanied by Mrs. G. W. Van Veret.
Miss Avis Yates then took charge of the program, announcing that a series of pictures of Colonial woman
would be presented by lineal descendants of Revolutionary soldiers.
The parlors were darkened and a huge American flag, surmounted by the D. A. R. emblem, was draped back by Miss Cecil Smith revealing
a cleverly arranged frame. Miss Yates, who wore a Colonial costume introduced each picture, soft musical accompaniments from the writings of the American composers, Edward Mac Dowell and Ethelbert Nevin, being played by Miss Marguerite Plet-
ers. Each picture was artistic in effect and enthusiastically received by the audience of sixty. The characters chosen, and those impersonating
them were: "Virginia Dare" Miss Katherine Mc Bride; "Pocohontas," Mrs. J. Van Putten, Jr.; "Priscilla,"
Mrs. I. C. Sooter; "Betsey Ross,"
Mrs. H. P. Burkholder; "Martha Washington," Mrs. F. W. Hadden;
"Lydia Darrah," Mrs. F. J. Congleton;
"Abigail Adams," Mrs. A. G. Gowdy;
"Dolly Madison," Mrs. M. W. Hanchett; "Elizabeth Schuyler Hamilton," Mrs. C. H. McBride; "Goddess of Liberty," Mrs. J. W. Kramer. As the last picture was shown the audience arose and sang one verse of the "Star Spangled Banner"

The social hour was in charge of Mrs. O. P. Kramer and Mrs. M. A.
Sooy.

Last evening's entertainment opened brilliantly the season's meetings
for both the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Sons of the Revolution. Both chapters meet once a month from October to June for historical research and social enjoyment.

a little while.

Later in the evening the council went into committee of the whole with Ald. King in the chair. To open the discussion the petition of the liquor dealers presented some time ago was read asking that the matter of saloons or no saloons be put to a vote of the people with an ordinance attached. That fairly opened the debate. Ald. Hansen was the first speaker.

"If the question is submitted with an ordinance," he said, "how many voters will read that ordinance or understand it if they read it? The whole question should be simplified as much as possible so that even the most unlearned voter can understand just exactly what's what. I am opposed to the drafting of a long ordinance that perhaps not a third of the people will read or understand. The object of the proposed vote is to get the sentiment of the people. If the majority of the people want saloons I am willing to abide by the decision, but if not I am willing to abide by that. But I want the question put in its simplest form so that we as aldermen may find out without mistake whether the people of Holland want saloons or not."

At this point Ald. Lokker's resolution was moved. This resolution said in effect that the message of Mayor Bosch should be received and its suggestions carried out; that the question should be presented to the voters in November as simply "saloon or no saloon" without any other qualifications and unaccompanied by ordinance.

Ald. Mersen declared that it was not the province of the council to initiate action on this question. If the question were put up as saloon or no saloon as proposed, he said, the council would be initiating action on it and on them would be the responsibility of opening up the liquor question. If petitions are presented let the council act on them but let them not go further than that.

Alderman Lokker declared that many who had signed the petition of the so-called wets were wishing to-day that they had not done so; that there had been misunderstanding all along the line; that he for one had not realized that he was voting to submit the question when it came up at a previous meeting; that he had merely meant to gain time at that time because he had believed that the drys had not had a chance to work up their side of the case; that now the drys had about as large a petition against submission as the wets had for submission but that this dry petition had not been presented to the council because they had had no wish to put the aldermen in a bad fix and ask them to rescind former action, thus creating dissension and discord; but that now, as stated in his resolution, the question should be put in the simple form of saloon or no saloon.

Ald. Mersen said the council had the power to grant licenses and that the question was merely submitted for the aldermen to be guided by the will of the people; but that if the open saloon as it had existed here before were again voted in he for one refused to be guided by that vote because he was not willing to return to that condition of things.

Ald. King said that the resolution called for the submission of the question without an ordinance while the petition asked for the submission of the question with an ordinance. He declared that it was the duty of the council to abide by the referendum of the people.

Ald. Lokker replied that if the question was presented in that form the city would again have saloons most likely.

Ald. Dyke declared in favor of putting the question as "saloon or prohibition." Ald. Van Drezer seconded this suggestion. He said he did not favor the saloon but he did favor a square deal; and if the sale of liquor were prohibited in saloons, let it also be prohibited in drug stores and all other places; let the whole town be made dry.

A recess was taken during which one man from the dry forces in the audience and one man for the wets were given an opportunity to speak. The audience part of the council room was crowded and the interest in the debate was intense. Prof. J. E. Kuizenga was urged by the dry forces to take the floor which he reluctantly did.

Mr. Kuizenga declared that he believed the question should be submitted in its simplest form so that everybody could clearly see just exactly what was what. He endorsed the statement of Ald. Hansen in this respect. "Let us not lose the ground we have gained," was the speaker's plea. The city has voted to have the wholesale system rather than the open saloon, he said. If the question has to be put again, he said, let it be put as at the beginning so that we may not take a step backward. Let the people of Holland by all means hold the ground gained so far and gain more if possible. While disclaiming that he was discussing the liquor question as a whole, he said that the liquor business had never done any city any good; that by experience he had learned that the hardest problems of law enforcement came in connection with the liquor traffic; that the dream of a "good saloon" was only a dream because the grade of the traffic was absolutely down.

When the wets were called on for a speaker Mr. Duijze arose and said that the wets in presenting their petition had wished to show the people that they were willing to take all possible steps toward running absolutely decent saloons; that they had suggested five or six places instead of twelve so that the dealers could make a living and would not have to go to questionable methods to do their business. He said they wanted an ordinance printed telling of these restrictions and send a copy of this ordinance to each voter.

Mr. King again declared that the council should give heed to the referendum of the people; that if the aldermen took any part of the petition it should take it all and the question should be submitted with an ordinance as requested by the people.

Ald. Mersen made a number of charges that the whole thing had not been conducted on the square; that promises had not been lived up to; that the question had been postponed till November on the understanding that then it should be allowed to come up and he said he was tired of the whole business and was in favor of dropping all.

Ald. Harrington declared he was in favor of putting up the question simply as "saloon or no saloon" and he again moved the Lokker resolution. This was lost by the following vote: Yeas—Lokker, Harrington, Hansen and Sterrenberg. Nays—Van Drezer, King, Drinkwater, Mersen, Dyke and Brower.

Ald. Mersen then moved that the whole matter be dropped. This was supported by Ald. Lokker but the motion was lost.

Ald. Mersen then moved that the committee of the whole arise and report and this was carried by a vote of six to four. This ended the long discussion and nothing had been done. In the hall after the meeting, excited little groups continued the discussion and matters became pretty warm at various stages of the game.

The Professor of Holland are taking a live interest in the liquor question judging from there number at last night's meeting. There were Pres. Vennema, Prof. Kleinheksel, Prof. Gezon, Prof. Dimment, Prof. Nykerk, Prof. Blekkink, and Prof. Kuizenga.

We handle a line of mattresses that are as good as the best, the only difference is in price, our prices are lower than that which is being asked for the much advertised brands, but it is not extensive or expensive advertising that makes a mattress good, its the cotton that goes into it and the material and workmanship connected with it. On these two points our mattress cannot be beat. Our mattresses are guaranteed for 60 days and can be returned within that period if not satisfactory. We show you the cotton that is being used in our different grades.
