CITY AND VICINITY.

The Rev. G. C. Nettinga, of Spring Lake, Mich., has received a call from the Reformed church of New Kirk, Iowa.

A meeting of the North Ottawa
Teachers' Association will be held in Coopersville, Saturday, October 20, at 10:30 o'clock a. m.

Louis P. McKay has removed to Grand Rapids where he will reside in the future. Mr. McKay will study pipe organ music under Prof.
C. N. Colwell.

Rev. Wm. D. Vander Werp of the 5th Avenue Christian Reformed church of Grand Rapids, who has been called to the Church street
Christian Reformed church of Ze-eland, will be installed Sunday, October 14 by Rev. A. Keizer of Holland. Services there last Sunday were conducted by Rev. De Groot of Graafschap.

The Rev. John Banninga, who has for four years served in India
under the auspices of the American Board, is disabled by a debilitating disease, and on the way home with his family. It is expected that he will soon recover here and be qualified for the regular work of the ministry, or missionary service in another climate. May this hope be fulfilled, as we can ill afford to lose those who are in the ministerial ranks.—Christian Intelligencer.

J. H. Simpson, land and tax commissioner for the Pere Marquette railroad, was in the city last Friday on his way from Ottawa Beach to Detroit. Mr. Simpson has been at the Beach taking inventory of the railroad's hotel property
there and getting it in shape for the winter. The railroad's investment at Ottawa Beach is much larger than the general public thinks. Mr.
Simpson estimating that it would take in the neighborhood of $100,000
to duplicate the plant at the summer resort.

Very light shipments of peaches are now going to market and but few really good ones are to be had.
Many of the Smocks and Salways are cracked and spotted and yet they bring about $1.25 per bushel here. The apple deal is now on in earnest; many crews being busy in packing winter fruit. The best orchards are now sold, as high as $2.40 per barrel having been paid for some fine apples on cars here.
Many of the poorer kinds from poorly cared for orchards will have to go to market in bulk, at from 40 to 50 cents per hundred weight.—
Fennville Herald.

Although no order has as yet been issued, the life saving stations on the Great Lakes will undoubtedly be closed on November 30 this year as has been the custom for the past several years. Several times attempts have been made toward keeping the crews at winter harbors in commission all winter but the matter has never been acted upon favorably by the department and sailors entering these harbors after December 1,
are compelled to depend upon volunteer crews for protection.

November 1, 1901, the Allegan Fair had a debt of $588.50. This was increased the next year, 1902, because of a wet fair week and consequently light attendance, to $711.56. The premiums were paid at sixty per cent on the dollar the following year, and November 1, the debt was about the same. The premiums were paid in full—100 cents on a dollar—in 1904. That was the first year of Secretary Warner's work. The debt was reduced to $636. In 1905 the premiums were paid at seventy-five cents on a dollar, although there was money enough to have paid in full. At the meeting of the finance committee the Monday after the fair it was decided to pay such per centage. One member was absent.
The secretary had no vote, but was in favor of paying the premiums in full and applying the balance on the debt. Instead the debt was reduced to $400, which, including interest, will be $424 the first of November of this year. Twice in five years, then, the premiums have been paid in full.—Allegan Press.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter A. Dogger have moved to San Diego, Cal., where they will make their permanent home.

Benj. Brower has sold his residence at 188 East Eighth street to H. Korterling of Chicago, who will occupy the same in the spring. Mr.
Korterling is engaged in the retail and wholesale butter and eggs
business.

Casper Belt's game little mare,
Sadie Brooks, won second money
at the Benton Harbor fair last week in the 2:28 trot. Johnny Boone drove her. Johnny also drove Neil Ball to second money in the 2:20 pace.

Holland people will have to wait awhile before they go to South Haven and Benton Harbor on the Interurban as work has been discontinued on the road that has been started from Douglas.

O. A. Byrns has commenced the erection of a tenement house on Maple street. The new structure will contain five eight-room flats with all the modern conveniences and cost about $6,000. Mr. Byrns recently sold his property on the south side of the bay to Edward T. Bertsch.

Attorney General Bird has given a decision that penalties collected from the railroad companies for failure to pay their taxes shall be credited to the primary school fund.
This will enrich this fund by about $1,500,000, and bring the total amount to be apportioned this fall among the school districts of the state up to about $11,000,000.

Edward H. Andres, who for many years was one of the most prominent officers in the Michigan National Guard, being captain of Company F,
Grand Haven, down around Tampa during Spanish war days, and who became a lieutenant in the regular army three years ago, has just been promoted to a captaincy in the Eighth United States infantry.
Captain and Mrs. Andres are now in the Philippines and the captain during the last three months has been seeing active service in fighting rebellious bolomen in one of the southern provinces.

P. Pleune of the Sophomore class was Friday elected president of the Hope college oratorical league.
He takes the place held last year by Benj. Bush and will represent Hope college in the meeting of delegates representing the different colleges in the state league. The election was conducted on a new plan. Formerly the president was elected by acclamation. This year a candidate was nominated by each of the college classes and from these four Mr.
Pleune was elected by ballot.

A party of young men placed themselves in a sorry plight, while enjoying a marshmallow roast on the beach at Macatawa. Having no wood with which to build a fire one of the shutters of a cottage was torn from its fastenings and used for the purpose. One of the men lost his watch and while searching for it early the following morning revealed the secret to one of the cottage owners.
Being threatened with arrest he promised to make good the loss, estimated at $3.

Rev. R. L. Haan, pastor of the Central Avenue Christian Reformed church, announced to his congregation last Sunday morning that he declined the call extended to him two weeks ago by the church of that denomination at Oakdale Park,
Grand Rapids. Mr. Haan came here two years ago from Muskegon and during his pastorate the congregation has been very prosperous, being at the present time the largest church in the denomination. It is supported by 416 families and has a membership of nearly 700. A magnificent $4,000 organ was installed about six months ago.

The Story & Clark Piano company
of Grand Haven has installed a merit system in all departments of its great plant and has set aside $2,000 in cash prizes, which will be awarded men
in different departments on Nov. 1, 1907. The deportment of the men, their arrival at the shop morning
and noon and their work will all be averaged up and at the end of the year the prizes will be awarded. The head prizes in the different departments are in most cases $100 and a second prize of $50 is generally awarded in each department. The superintendents and foremen are not included in the contest and only the workingmen will compete.

The county Republican campaign was opened Monday in Allendale with a large and enthusiastic meeting addressed by Congressman Smith, Senator Huntley Russell and Luke Lugers. In the evening a great Republican rally was held in Coopersville. * Congress-

and Jesse Woodbury spoke.

Alice Mac, Wm. Bracelin's trotting mare, of Allegan, made a record at the Holland fair that will be hard to beat. She is nineteen years old, yet won third money in the 2:24 trot with four entries. She went the first heat in 2:30½, the second in 2:22½, and the third in 2:26½. Few, if any, horses in Michigan of this age can make so good a showing.

Beets are being delivered to the Holland Sugar company and it is expected that enough will be on hand to warrant the starting of the factory early next week. It is too early to make a positive estimate upon the season's crop, but indications point to a larger one than last year. The factory will be in charge of the following men: Superintendent, Will Kremer; Chief Engineer,
Henry Van Eyck; Chief Chemist,
Otto Kohn; Assistant in laboratory,
Ernest Beerstecher; Mack Atwood
and Edward Luther; Weighmaster, Frank Van Ry; Tareman, Wm.

M. W. Palmer of this place, inventor of a patent beet puller manufactured here, is meeting with great success in the sale of his machines. The gentleman attended the state fairs at Detroit, Grand Rapids and Holland, and the favors he received at each place have put many of his pullers on the market for this year's work.

A. J. Klomparsen has received a carload of wheat (1,000 bushels) from Chicago and it will be made into flour as there is plenty of water in the Rabbit river at this time.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Fisher of Holland were in town two days last week visiting relatives and friends. They came in their automobile.

The Reason Why.

We So Strongly Endorse and Recommend Vinol to the People of Holland.

Our local druggists, Mr. De Pree of Con De Pree & Co., says: "We do not believe there is a man, woman or child in Holland whom our famous cod liver preparation, Vinol, will not benefit at this season of the year."

"We believe there is no need for so many people to drag around run-down, tired out and debilitated, or for old people to remain weak and infirm when we guarantee Vinol will restore health and strength."

Continued Mr. De Pree: "For centuries cod liver oil has been recognized as the grandest of all body-building agents for wasted human strength and vitality, but on account of the nauseating and system clogging oil which enveloped its curative properties few could take it with benefit."

"In Vinol you get in a concentrated form every one of the curative and strength-creating elements of cod liver oil actually taken from fresh cods' livers, the useless, system-clogging oil eliminated, and 20mc iron added."

"Vinol is guaranteed by over five thousand of the leading druggists of the United States to create strength for old people, for the run-down, tired and debilitated, weak, sickly women and children, and after a severe sickness."

"We ask every such person in Holland to try Vinol. It costs nothing if it fails." Con De Pree & Co., Druggists.

NOTE.—While we are sole agents for Vinol in Holland, it is now for sale at the leading drug store in nearly every town and city in the country. Look for the Vinol agency in your town.

The work of excavating for Doc Heath's new building has been begun as the frame buildings which occupied the grounds have now all been removed.

At the last Village Board meeting there was strong talk of taking steps to prosecute certain people who had broken cement walks by driving over them but no action was taken in the matter. As cement walks are being put in all the while there is need of some action to protect them if the people do not take better care of them than they have in the past.

Mr. Ganes of the Grand Rapids Bridge Co. was in town last week looking after the bridge work his company is doing east of town here. He measured the new iron bridge between here and Douglas and claims it has not settled for a number of months past. He did not say when he would straighten the structure and claim the remaining $400 which was to be paid when the bridge was completed and in good order. He wants to be sure it will settle no more before he fixes it so that the work will not have to be done over again.

Women's Woes.

Holland Women are Finding Relief at Last.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing down pains; they must stoop over, when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with racking pains and many aches from kidney ills. Kidneys cause more suffering than any other organ of the body.

Keep the kidneys well and health is easily maintained. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that helps and cures the kidneys and is endorsed by people you know.

Mrs. Jan De Kok, formerly of Holland, now living at Grand Rapids, says: "I was bothered for years more or less with heavy, aching pains in my back. I could not rest comfortably and it was painful for me to stoop or straighten up. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills so highly recommended I got a box at J. O. Doesburg's drug store and tried them. They relieved me right away and in a short time my complaint disappeared entirely."

Doan's Kidney Pills are a fine remedy.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no other.

REPORT ON COURT-MARTIAL

FIFTY OFFICERS TRIED DURING FISCAL YEAR.

Unlawful Selling of Clothing and Accoutrements by Soldiers Source of Loss to Government.

Washington, Oct. 8.—During the last fiscal year, according to the annual report of Gen. George B. Davis, judge advocate general of the army, 4,596 trials by general court-martial were held.

Fifty of these trials were of commissioned officers, 42 of whom were convicted and eight acquitted. Fourteen officers were dismissed by sentence. In four cases the sentences were commuted to loss of rank; in two cases resignation "for the good of the service" were accepted in lieu of confirming the sentences, and in one case the sentence was disproved.

About 50 per cent. of the enlisted men convicted by general court-martial received sentences involving dishonorable discharge and about five per cent. of these sentences were awarded in view of previous convictions.

The trials by general court-martial during the year showed a decrease of 204 as compared with the previous year.

Many of the men tried were charged with unlawfully selling clothing or accoutrements issued by the government to the soldiers. The practice of selling clothing issued to enlisted men, the report says, continues to exist, in spite of all efforts looking to its suppression. The clothing so disposed of represents a considerable sum to the United States and the offenders, both those who sell the clothing and those who buy it, have been prosecuted vigorously. Gen. Davis recommends that where soldiers are convicted of selling clothing issued to them by the government, they be dealt with as severely as are those who are convicted of buying it.

MYSTERY IN DEATH OF WOMAN

Shelbyville Church Worker Found in Bed with Bullet in Brain.

Shelbyville, Ind., Oct. 8.—Mystery surrounds the death of Mrs. Laura Ayres, 50 years old, a well-known and active church worker of this place, who was found dead in bed Sunday morning with a bullet in her brain. The coroner and prosecuting attorney are making a rigid investigation, but would make no statement as to what conclusions they had reached.

Charles J. Ayres, the husband of the woman, awoke Mrs. Armbruster, in whose house the couple had a suite of rooms, and informed her that he believed his wife had shot herself during the night and was dead. Ayres maintains he heard no shots during the night, although he was sleeping in an adjoining room with the door ajar.

There were no bruises on the woman's body, but on the forehead where the bullet had entered there were powder marks.

HILLS SELLS MINING PROPERTY

Steel Corporation Secures Holdings of President of Great Northern Road.

New York, Oct. 6.—James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern railroad, sold 750,000,000 tons of ore to the United States Steel corporation Friday for $400,000,000.

There may be a few million tons of ore and a few million dollars more or less, involved in the sale, but it is the biggest transaction in the history of finance in this country since the formation of the steel corporation itself, and the whole gigantic deal was accomplished by five men in the space of a couple of hours.

BRIDGE OVER FALLS COLLAPSES

One High School Student Killed When Crowded Structure Gives Way.

Menominee, Mich., Oct. 6.—While a party of 25 students of Oconto, Wis., high school were standing on a foot-bridge at Oconto Falls, Wis., Friday watching the falls, the structure collapsed, hurling the whole party 40 feet into the stream.

William Ballou, aged 14 years, was killed and Viga Sentil, Hazel Denizen and Frank Donley seriously injured. Prof. Newcomb, the instructor, was badly hurt, and several others were slightly injured.

Judge Lenient to Lawyer.

Springfield, Mo., Oct. 6.—James B. Dodson, a prominent lawyer and politician, was fined $400 by Judge Phillips in the federal court for making false affidavits in cash entering government land. Judge Phillips said that the fine was made light because of the lawyer's misunderstanding of the law and because the land had not been lost to the government.

Well-Known Missionary Dead.

A Sure Indication of Prosperity

The movement of a country's freight trains are the best possible index to the real status of its activities. There has not been the slightest halt in that direction from the busiest days and nights of the best months of recent years. It is reported from railroad centers that the leading roads all over the country are now actively engaged in piecing out their roads and adding branches, as well as hurrying in the direction of making necessary repairs. These preparations are prophecies for the future more to be depended upon than any other possible source of prediction or information.

Must Find Something to Say.

Governor Warner publicly declared a few days ago that he is quite willing to defend the policy of the present administration in the matter of its support of the state's educational institutions. As a matter of fact the increase in the cost of the University and Agricultural college and the State Normal schools has not equalled the proportion of their growth in a number of students and in the advanced character of the work they are providing. Their cost to Michigan is far less than the provision made by other states for educational institutions that return much less than this state receives in direct value for its investments. Governor Warner made it quite plain that he had very little sympathy with any effort to make political capital through attacks on Michigan's educational institutions.

Governor Warner Makes Kimmerle's Question Look Childlike.

Governor Warner while in Detroit Monday took occasion to discuss the letter sent by C. H. Kimmerle to Land Commissioner Rose asking for information regarding the purchase of state lands by state officials. "It is true," said the governor, "that I have made purchases of state lands in different counties and I am glad that attention has been directed to them at this time. These lands were all appraised and then put up for public sale at the office of the land commissioner in Lansing."

"These sales were advertised for weeks previous in a newspaper printed and circulated in the county in which the lands were located. In many instances no purchasers could be found for the lands, which left them open for purchase at any time at the appraised value. All bids had to equal the appraised value, which was not made known, in order to give everyone an equal chance."

"Some purchases were made by me at these sales, but only in cases where I was the highest bidder, and against the keenest competition."

"As a matter of fact, in several instances I paid more than I could get for the same lands today. In no case did I ever purchase land other than at a public sale or until months after persons had opportunity to buy them at the appraised value."

"In Gladwin township, where I bought state lands, there are hundreds of acres of similar lands to mine that the state still owns and is unable to find purchasers for."

"Mr. Kimmerle or anyone else can purchase these lands from me today for the price I paid, together with the accrued taxes and 6 per cent interest on the amount I have invested."

"I have always believed that state lands are worth something, and my purpose in purchasing them was to demonstrate that fact."

"Thousands of acres of state lands are not contributing anything towards the maintenance of any townships or county, or even towards the building of schools and roads, and it strikes me that it would not be amiss for those who are seeking to insinuate improper motives or something else on my part, to purchase some of these lands so that they might be placed upon the tax rolls."

San Jose Scale Still Threatens Spray.

Trees and shrubbery of this city are in danger of being devastated by the San Jose scale. H. G. Welch, representing the state in the matter of San Jose inspection, was here last Friday and in company with Nurseryman Clark made a thorough examination of conditions here. Mr. Welch says that the work done by the commission in this city last winter was effective but that there should be no letup in the warfare on the pest as it has obtained a good start and drastic must be resorted to check it. In some of the places where Prof. Taft made inspections last year and found none of the pests, pests now exist, showing that the disease is spreading. In an interview regarding the scale Mr. Welch said:

"Perhaps one of the greatest difficulties that the fruit growers of Michigan have to contend with is the San Jose scale. It has not been many years since its introduction into the United States, and not more than twelve or fourteen since it has been found in Michigan; but since its introduction it has been a faithful worker, and now there are only a few sections that are free from it, and the probabilities are that it won't be long until all will have it."

"I don't know as it would be out of place to give the life history of it, so I will quote what Smith's Economic Entomology says about it's life. He says the insect winters on the infested trees in the garval state and usually about half grown, both sexes being found. Males mature soon after spring opens. On or about the 10th of June the females become fully developed and begin to bring forth living young. That is to say the species produces no eggs. The garval do not differ essentially from those of other scale, and fix in from twelve to thirty-six hours, depending somewhat upon circumstances. At that time a thin white pellicle forms which soon turns yellow, and a little later becomes gray around the edges. The insect is then a fixture and continues its growth much as previously described; but reaches the adult condition and is ready to reproduce in a little more than a month. This short period enables it to mature several broods and during the entire summer and until late in the fall reproduction continues, the broods becoming mixed and all stages being present continuously upon the plants soon after summer opens. With such a life history the insect is exceedingly difficult to control and practically we are reduced to winter work. The scale infests all the usual deciduous fruit trees, roses, currants, gooseberries—in fact the entire class and occasionally occur on chestnuts, walnuts and elm. It is probable that other plants are subject to infection and this amnivorous habit and the wonderful power of reproduction makes the scale especially dangerous, so that you can readily see what you have to contend with here. Not only the fruit growers but those who live in the cities and small towns. It is estimated that one scale will produce one million scales in one season and farther south several times more than that. It only takes a few years for the insect to kill the trees, so that it is a good plan as soon as it is found in a neighborhood to prepare to fight it. When a fruit tree has so few that it is almost impossible to find a scale the fruit will be so readily infected that it will be worthless."

"The best remedy to fight the scale with is lime, sulphur and salt. But it is not necessary to use the salt unless you want to. If you have the scale don't try some new remedies until you know they are recommended. The sulphur, lime and salt solution is made with 15 pounds of sulphur stone, lime unslacked, 25 pounds; salt, 8 pounds. This will make 50 gallons of spray. Put the lime in a kettle with about 12 gallons of water, then add your sulphur and boil for an hour, then add the salt if you wish to use it. Thorough boiling is what is required. Spray on the trees while hot. To do a thorough job of spraying get the trees covered all over. It is a very good plan to head back the trees if infested with the scale as the job of spraying will be easier and it won't take as much spray."

"Spray in the winter while the trees are dormant. This spray serves two purposes. It is the best spray for all fungus trouble that we have, and would pay to use if you did not have any scale."

"The kerosene emulsion is a very good spray for summer use. Hard soap, one pound; kerosene, 1 gallon; water, from 4 to 14 gallons. Dissolve the soap in two gallons of boiling water, add the kerosene and thoroughly agitate it until it forms a thick, creamy mass. If to be used upon growing plants add twelve gallons of water. In Holland where you have a few trees in the yards it would be a good plan to make a stock solution of the kerosene emulsion and spray every three or four weeks while the scale is being grown, as you will be able to kill the young scale, and in so doing you will be able to get rid of all scale."

Dyke Pays Heavy Costs.

The jury in the assault and battery case against John Dyke of Olive, brought in a verdict of in Justice Wachs' court at Grand Haven guilty late Friday afternoon. The jury had the case under deliberation for about twenty minutes. Justice Wachs sentenced Dyke to pay a fine of $5 and costs, amounting in all to $38.

Dyke was arrested upon complaint of his brother, James Dyke, who claimed that he had been assaulted and badly beaten by his brother John. The case was tried before some weeks ago but the jury disagreed. Practically no new testimony was introduced in the trial yesterday. The trouble between the Dyke brothers has stirred up the community in which they live for some time, but it is believed now that there will be no more fights as John claims to have resolved that he will pay no more attention to his brother's nagging, which he claims has provoked him to action before.

Report of Fair Very Good

At the meeting of the board of directors of the Holland fair held in the News office last Tuesday afternoon the report of the recent fair was submitted by the secretary. It showed that after all expenses of the fair had been paid the society was about $890 to the good. This is an exceptionally fine showing in view of the heavy expenses incident to running fairs, the amount paid for premiums alone for the Holland fair being $750. The improvements, including the 36 foot addition to the grandstand, the fifteen new stables for trotters, the Page wire fencing, the roofing of the implement building and other minor repairs cost the association $1,210. There was some money on hand so that the sum that the association will have to borrow to settle all affairs will be small.

Last year the mortgage on the grounds was $2,375. Eight hundred dollars was paid upon it, leaving a balance due of $1,575. Had the improvements not been made this year the indebtedness would nearly all be cleared, but the policy of the directors in making the improvements is a wise one, for the improvements made this year, proved a good investment.

It was decided yesterday that all the new buildings erected this year should be given a coat of paint at once.

Upon the suggestion of President Lokker a resolution was passed providing that Henry Sierma be empowered to make experiments in an effort to obtain water near the dwelling house on the grounds.

A resolution was passed providing that Secretary Whelan be presented with a purse of $25.

Supervisors In Session.

The board of supervisors met Mon. at two o'clock for the October session with a full quota of members present. The meeting was called to order by Chairman Walter H. Clark and proceeded to business at once.

At Tues. morning's session of the board of supervisors, Probate Judge Kirby's annual report of the insane cases was read. Judge Kirby stated there were 14 patients at the asylums, who were charges of Ottawa County on October 1. Twenty new cases had been admitted during the year from Ottawa and of these, ten were transferred to the state, three died and six were discharged as cured. On the first of October of 1905 there were 13 cases, which were Ottawa county charges at the asylums. The judge recommended that the board set aside $2,300 for the insane fund this year. The matter was referred to the usual committee.

George W. Aiken of Peach Plains is occupying the seat of the supervisor from Grand Haven township to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of John C. Behm from the board.

More Talk of an Opera House.

D. J. Robson of Lansing and Edward Pennell of Detroit have rented the store building in the Slagh block occupied by the City Mission and will take possession after October 15, when the term of the mission expires. They will open a vaudeville show of moving pictures etc., and will give entertainments each afternoon and evening. They propose to ascertain whether or not the people of this city will manifest a disposition to support an opera house and if the showing is favorable they will build an opera house in the near future.

Mr. Robson recently built a new opera house in Lansing, and is looking for a place to build another one. Mr. Pennell has been a revenue man in Detroit for five years.

Both were in the city Tuesday and arranged with Tiemmen Slagh for the lease of the building for a year.

Baumgartel vs. Jarvis.

In the case of Baumgartel vs. Jarvis brought by Photographer Baumgartel in Justice Post's court to collect $4.50 from Sidney Jarvis, it being alleged that Jarvis owed the money for work done on a photograph and frame, the justice handed down a decision Tuesday to the effect that there was no cause of action. Attorney Arthur Van Duren represented Jarvis and Attorney Fred T. Miles represented Baumgartel. The photographer claimed that Jarvis had ordered an enlarged photo and frame and refused to pay for it. Jarvis claimed that he never ordered the picture. He had some photos taken by Baumgartel, for which he paid, but he declared the photographer made the enlarged picture and framed it without an order and he refused to pay the bill. The Justice's decision assesses the costs to Baumgartel.

Van Putten-Dempsey.

A very pretty wedding took place Tuesday evening October 9, in one of the Baptist churches in Chicago when before a congregation of relatives and friends that completely filled the church, Jacob Van Putten, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Van Putten, sr., of this city, and Miss Mae Dempsey, were pronounced man and wife.

The church was beautifully decorated and trimmed for the occasion, and the wedding was conducted under the auspices of Mr. Van Putten's base ball friends, four of whom acted as ushers, and one of whom was best man. Four generations of the bride's relatives were represented at the wedding, namely her sister, her mother, her grandmother and her great grandmother. Among the guests from here were Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Van Putten, sr., and family, Lane Van Putten, Jacob Verschure, Dr. A. Knooihuizen and other relatives.

Many handsome and costly presents were received among them being a check of large denomination from the great grandmother of the bride.

The newly wedded couple left for a trip to Yellowstone Park after the ceremony and reception. They will live at Chicago where Mr. Van Putten is employed as correspondent for the John A. Roebeling Construction Co. The groom has a host of friends here who join in congratulations.

Notes of Sport.

Football according to the 1906 gentlemanly rules is not what it is cracked up to be according to the Grand Haven Tribune which comments as follows:

If ever a bedraggled, knocked out lot of athletes arrived from a foreign shore it was the members of the Grand Haven Independent football team. Some of them looked as though they had been put through threshing machines. A young man who officiated in one of the important back field positions was especially well done up. He had fought valiantly for the team, had gone down fighting and was a hero, but what a difference after it was all over. His comrades picked him from the field and carried him to the Hotel Benton, where they dressed and fed him and then carried him to the train. Now that he is home his people take turns in getting him ready to get down to business in presentable shape. Oh no, 1906 foot ball is not a rough game. It should be recommended for that tired feeling and taken in large doses, especially by fat, untrained exathletes. As a builder up of constitutions and a preventive of heaves it is the proper thing to take.

The Holland Interurban indoor baseball team has been organized for the winter with Oscar Peterson as manager and John H. Schouten captain. Practice work will soon begin and a team will be selected from a field of 25 experienced players, who have applied for membership. The pavilion at Jenison Park will be placed in first-class condition and the bleachers will accommodate about 500 people. Captain Schouten says the team will be the strongest ever maintained here and be able to compete with any leading club in Grand Rapids, Muskegon and other cities.

Though defeated by the Allegan High School foot ball team at Allegan Saturday afternoon, the Holland High school team showed itself of good calibre and held the Alleganites to a 10 to 0 score. The game was played under adverse circumstances on the part of the local boys. They drove to Allegan and the long trip was very trying on their supply of ginger. They went into the game tired and stiff but nevertheless kept their opponents guessing although Allegan outweighed them. Brilliant plays were made by Te Roller, Deto and Hansen, although the latter two were on the crippled squad. The boys play at Muskegon Saturday.

West End Football Association has issued a challenge to any 100—105 lb. team in the State for games. Games can be arranged with Edward Lawson, 171 Gold street, Grand Rapids, Mich.

BECOMES AN INTER-NATIONAL PROBLEM

SALTON SEA CREATES TROUBLE FOR MEXICO AND UNITED STATES.

DIPLOMATS TRY TO FIX RESPONSIBILITY

Big Ditches, One in Mexico and One in Arizona, Cut for Irrigating Purposes, Result in Diverting the Waters of the Colorado River.

Washington, Oct. 9.—Who is responsible for the creation of the Salton sea, in southern California, which already covers an area of 400 square miles, and threatens to spread over 2,000 square miles, if some means of diverting the Colorado river cannot be devised? This question is perplexing Mexico and American diplomats, but for the time being diplomatic representations have been suspended and both the United States and Mexico are bending every effort to check the river, which has been accidentally turned from its course through the efforts of the California Development company to irrigate lands in northern Mexico and southern California.

The Colorado Twice Tapped. Interesting complications of an international nature are threatened when the two governments attempt to settle their differences and make good the damage which has been wrought by diverting the Colorado from its old channel. The California Development company originally tapped the river below Yuma, Ariz., and carried water from Arizona through a canal into northern Mexico and back into a great valley in southern California. In 1904 it was found that this canal was inadequate to supply water required for the irrigation project and a Mexican corporation, controlled by the California Development company, was authorized by Mexico to take water from the Colorado in Mexico, a short distance south of Yuma. The irrigation canal was only one-fourth of a mile from the river at this point in Mexico, where a ditch was cut through the sandy bank of the Colorado connecting with the great irrigation canal.

No gates were provided, and with the high water of 1905 the Colorado river was diverted from its channel, cut away its bank, and went raging into the lowlands in California far below the sea level. Repeated attempts have been made to turn the river back into its old channel, but without success.

Small Towns Swallowed Up.

Several small towns are now beneath the waters which the Colorado has poured into the basin, and in many places only the tops of the railway telegraph poles indicate where the roadbed formerly was. In the lowest part of the sink the water is now 70 feet deep. For a time the water from the Colorado raised the sea at the rate of six inches a day, and it has been estimated that, granting the failure of engineers to check the river, in 40 years all the basin located beneath the main course of the Colorado will be covered with water. A part of this basin is in Mexico, and the failure to control the river would give this country and Mexico a lake comparable to the great lakes separating the United States and Canada. At present the lake is greater than any body of water wholly within the United States, except Salt Lake and Lake Michigan.

The Mexican company to which permission was granted to take water out of the Colorado in Mexico was merely created in Mexico to assist the California Development company in making a success of an irrigation project which was a partial failure when water was taken from the Colorado in Arizona. Most of the land to be irrigated was in the United States, and the Mexican government had comparatively little to gain from the concession granted to the irrigation company.

To Coin Mexican Silver.

San Francisco, Oct. 9.—Telegraphic advices were received at the United States mint in San Francisco ordering preparations to be made at once for the coining of 2,500,000 Mexican half dollars, which the Mexican government has arranged with the United States to have put out within the next six months. The force of men employed at the mint will be doubled.

Fire at Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 9.—Fire which broke out mysteriously at 11:30 o'clock Monday night on the top floor of the chamber of commerce building on the east side of Broadway and between First and Second streets, caused damage roughly estimated at $100,000, 90 per cent. by water.

Union Pacific Train Wrecked.

Evansville, Wyo., Oct. 9.—The east-bound Overland Limited on the Union Pacific was wrecked a half mile west of here Monday night. Four coaches, including the diner, are off the track and partially turned over. No one was seriously injured, though many received painful cuts and bruises.

JAPANESE FOOLED THE FAKER.

Fingers Had Been Trained for Just That Kind of Thing.

The street faker who was selling cement near the steps of the court-house stood behind a little table on which was conspicuously displayed the sign: "A box of this cement given free to anybody who can break any of these apart."

There were spools, blocks of wood and other articles that had been cemented together, and most of them bore marks of having been struggled with by persons with grimy hands in vain attempts to wrench them apart.

A swarthy little fellow who had stopped in front of the faker's stand pointed to a round peg that appeared to have been dipped in the cement and driven into a good-sized chunk of wood, and asked him what would be the reward for pulling it out.

"If you can pull that out," said the peddler, "I'll give you a silver dollar."

The peg projected a little more than a quarter of an inch above the block.

The swarthy little fellow placed his left hand on the block to hold it down, took the peg between the thumb and forefinger of his right hand and pulled it out with apparent ease, a portion of the wood coming away with it.

"Great Scott!" gasped the man behind the table. "What are you?"

"Me Japanese dentist," replied the little fellow, pocketing the silver dollar and walking away with a grin on his face.

THE EARS OF CRIMINALS.

Said to Differ Widely from Those of Normal Persons.

Before the annual congress of German anthropologists at Gorlitz, Prof. Blau, a well known authority on diseases of the ear, read an interesting paper on the formation of the ears of criminals and lunatics. Prof. Blau has taken accurate measurements of 1,061 ears. Of these 255 are the ears of lunatics and 343 those of male criminals. The examination, moreover, was confined to men of one race and one country.

The professor comes to the conclusion that in the vast majority of cases the various parts of the auricle, or external ear, are larger in the case of criminals and lunatics than in the case of normal persons. This is especially noticeable in the helix, or incurved outer border of the ear, and also in the lobe. According to Prof. Blau, the larger the helix is the lower the state of mental development. The hearing faculty, on the other hand, is keener, and Prof. Blau illustrates his theory by reference to the auricle of apes, who are all in possession of this extended outer border. Prof. Blau added the curious remark that an abnormal development of the outer border was more noticeable among criminals charged with sexual crime than among other classes of criminals.

LINGERS IN THE MEMORY.

Simple Words of "Now I Lay Me" Seem Forgotten.

If a census could be made, one would probably be amazed at the vast number of grown folks who close their day with the unrecalled "Now I lay me."

Many of them make it the conclusion of prayer involving more elaborate petitions, prayer actually said as they kneel at their bedside. Many, in subconscious protest against the formalism which dominates so much of the public and private devotions of the times, do not kneel, but they do not forget the words they learned to lisp as babies.

Some, immersed in world affairs and carrying their business cares and worries into the real of their dreams, may not consciously plan to pray, but they find their minds dwelling at midnight upon the familiar lines and they are better men and women for that.

Such folks naturally resent the recent suggestion of revision of the line "If I should die before I wake." They are not afraid for any terror by night, and many of them, as they close their eyes in final sleep, will give their last thought to "Now I lay me."—Southern Farm Magazine.

Latest.

The night officer found the old farmer sitting on the steps of a vacant house contentedly shewing a straw.

"Waiting for anyone?" asked the officer, suspiciously.

"Yep," responded the old man in confidence, "I am waitin' for the scientist to get back."

"What scientist?"

"Why, the one with my ten dollar bill. He slapped me on the back and told me that that be 17 different crawling germs on every ten dollar bill. He said if I'd let him have a ten dollar bill a few minutes he would take it down to the arc light around the corner and stick a pin through each germ so I could see them with my own eyes. He's been gone about half an hour, but I reckon it takes him quite a little while, cause them germs are pesky small to see."

And the old farmer settled himself comfortably to await the return of the "scientist."

Spoiled.

"Are you making anything of a hit with Miss Prettygirl?"

"I fear not. Can't seem to interest her. I have lauded her beauty, but my strongest superlative make absolutely no impression."

"Hold on! I forgot to tell you, old man. She was formerly engaged to the press agent of a circus."

Keep Your Nerve
It is nerve energy that runs the organs of your body. The storage battery is the nerve cord, and from this battery nerve force is sent out through the system of nerves. To keep the body healthy you must have plenty of nerve force; if you have not, the organs work imperfectly, the circulation is sluggish, digestion bad, appetite poor, kidneys inactive, and aches, pains and misery are the penalty.
You can keep the system strong with Dr. Miles' Nerve. It assists in generating nerve energy; it strengthens the nerves and makes the whole system strong and vigorous.
"I take pleasure in recommending Dr. Miles' Nerve to those suffering from nervous prostration, insomnia and melancholy. After several months suffering from above diseases I tried this medicine and found immediate relief. It soothes and strengthens the nerves, chases away the gloomy and depressing thoughts and gives the sufferer renewed strength and hope. It is a superb nerve restorer."

GETTING EVEN.
Her hair hung in a flaxen braid about ten years ago. A very pretty little maid—I didn't like her, though. I had poor taste, I am afraid. But most boys have, you know? The reason, I have little doubt, was that she tagged me so about. I couldn't go a single place but she would go along; I'd pinch her. Once I slapped her face. A thing I know was wrong—A burning shame and a disgrace—And I so big and strong! But you'd have done so, I'll be bound. If some fool girl tagged you around. Just then she didn't seem to care. When once she dried her tears; I think, though, that she's getting square with the advance of years. I am—the instance isn't rare—Just paying up arrears. You see, that things have changed a bit. We still play tag, but I am "it."

The Silence of Fernwood.
BY ALICE NORES SAULET.

THE Clifford station was crowded; like every other small town the arrival of the passenger train was the supreme recreation of its inhabitants. Vehicles of every description lined each side of the platform, whatever the circumstances; not so with population that the weather alone at times cruelly disappointed. But neither weather nor circumstances ever prevented the presence of a man who for several years almost every day stood in the same place, in the same unobtrusive position; and most curious did it seem, for he was apparently unconcerned. Still, a close observer might readily see that while no muscle moved, his deep-set eyes searched each halting car; then as they slowly again moved away, gradually increasing their speed, and the shrill whistle rent the evening air, something of its dreariness fell upon this man's soul as he retraced his steps homeward. At times some few would meet him on his way back to his suburban villa, and as he quietly blew upward the smoke of his cigar his apparent insouciance would bring forth the remark: "Here comes the colonel from his evening stroll." Colonel Hunt was of medium height; his square shoulders, erect carriage and energetic countenance, even to the curve of his grey mustache, revealed the officer. Years before, while fighting the Indians, a wound about the eyes caused him to retire with a modest income. At 40 he was married to a gifted woman, who was ambitious and abreast of all new ideas. The married state soon became to her one of dull monotony; inasmuch as Mr. Hunt's complete retirement from public life had been a keen disappointment to her. She was not prepared to appreciate the quiet waters in which her bark was moored, nor the change in her husband brought about through inevitable circumstances as well as through her vagaries. The little interest shown by him in the great movements in her world exasperated her to a degree. This gradually brought on a state of mind and of things that eventually destroyed all hope of happiness between them. One day after weeks of silence, growing more painful every day, Colonel Hunt with enforced calm advised his wife to realize her dream and leave for the great city where, of all others, social problems were ever questions at issue, and he added sarcastically: "I must be in touch with the times, if not educated to follow the trend of thought; the new idea seems this: not so much of a home, but good men without it. You desire to provide for yourself; I will see to that, consider all settled." This ambition which caused such a painful estrangement between two beings eminently fitted to understand one another, seemed to have warped Mrs. Hunt's generous nature. Frank to a fault, she had become strangely secretive. Col. Hunt had been keenly alive to the mystery which pervaded his home, and when what he feared had come at last he felt no surprise. He had long been aware that his wife carried on a secret correspondence with some one, but Helen remained coldly impenetrable, and with the easy dignity that characterized the man, her husband left her free. After her departure his carriage became more erect, his mouth more firm. Those who wondered learned that she had at last decided to cultivate her wonderful voice; he was supposed to see her at times, which he never did. Five years had gone by. The old servant still attended to the lonely home, which was still closed but for a few windows. The Colonel was always impenetrable, as could be expected of a supremely proud nature. As the shadows of the evening deepened he would stroll back from the station to the outskirts of the picturesque town towards the quaint house nestling among the oaks and wrapped in gloomy silence. One evening the moon had risen upon a silver cloud that loomed up from great mountains of blackness, the shadows of the stately trees wrought exquisite traceries upon the sward; the fragrance from the wealth of flowers brought back such memories as almost to overpower him. Here was a winding path, a rustic seat and table where she had sat and read; through yew archway, formed by two slender olives and trailing roses, could be seen a huge marble vase; beyond was a stone bench where, years ago when seeking her, he would find her dreaming there, those dreams, alas!

which had taken her from him. And from the silvery radiance that so vividly brought his past into life again he turned away with anguish, sternly entered his study, and as on similar occasions the wee, small hours found him working at his civil engineering plans. But to-night he seemed destined to suffer yet more intensely. While looking among his papers he came across a scrap found long ago, a half-burnt fragment of one of those accursed letters from Helen's mysterious correspondent. It read thus: "My sympathy, even love, you have won through your depth and nobility of character. . . . your majestic presence and enthusiasm must break down all barriers . . . once beyond the seas. Here was a mystery such as had never confronted him. Which was it, ambition or this influence? And dawn found him thus, while he braced himself to face life, silent and alone, amid the silence of his shattered hopes and home. "It is with its main outline I am here concerned. . . . These words, reaching through the vast assembly gathered in the rooms of the Progressive club, caused the listeners to lean forward as if attracted by the well-modulated voice, the eloquent words, and majestic presence of the lecturer. The unusually animated debate lasted two hours; then the reporters, their swift work over, followed the various groups, so expressive each of the foremost thoughts or struggles of the day. For many of these thinkers these meetings held their measure of benefit, received in one way or another, but with a woman like the lecturer they seemed but minutes of delightful interchange of ideas on topics of ever-increasing interest. She felt herself foremost among those who were united in furthering the cause of universal sisterhood. Yet there were times of late when her expressive eyes would fill, times when she felt a sudden terrible void, a heavy silence; then she would shake the burden from her shoulders and think with pride of the final emancipation of woman and the universal moral and mental enlightenment which was the aim of progressive thinkers. The work accomplished for these holy causes, the enthusiasm she created in whatever circle she moved, caused Helen Hunt years of delightful existence, for already five years had elapsed since death had fallen upon Fernwood. She had now reached her apartment, very simple but for the handsome desk, easy chairs and valuable books it contained. As she entered, radiant with the exhilaration of an intellectual feast, she plunged her face in a beautiful bunch of flowers handed by her maid. Suddenly she paused, putting them away from her. "Take them—take them away—that fragrance!" Yes, it haunted her—so did the silence of Fernwood. Was it only to-night it clung to her, that it dimmed the melody of her flatteries, the hum of society, of applause? Her soul was awakening and yearned for some kindred spirit—she thought of the dear friend and correspondent from whom she was now expecting news, such news as would thrill her with its great joy, or turn her cold with a sad foreboding. She was full of contending emotions now that she had at last yielded and it had been arranged that they would both sail for Europe in the spring. "It might be the story of Ulysses and Penelope reversed," had sarcastically exclaimed a society woman, which biting remark Helen had overheard. Such comments galled her; and she was annoyed, as well, by the discreet attentions of a wealthy barrister. At this thought Helen arose and walked to the window; as she looked up to the cold radiance of the frosty night, her firm lips quivered, and two tears stole down her cheeks, but bracing herself against any weakness, she turned to the table and took up a paper, for she was more than ever eager to ascertain if, according to the letter received, the departure of the steamer might have been hastened. Yes, there was news, absorbing news. One dismal February evening the train pushed along the station of Clifford. The town just then was being visited by a severe epidemic. Owing to the inclemency of the weather the station was almost deserted, and the light from its lamps could barely pierce the thick mist, through which a woman who had just alighted tried to find her way. Her anxious look at last discerned a tall form muffled in a gray overcoat; as his keen glance shot across the space, he slowly advanced to meet her. One minute of rigid self-repression—and then, in the same silence with which she had left her home, he led her back to it. Could any words have been spoken after this barrier of five long years? He led her to the cozy bedroom, always kept in readiness as she immediately saw, and tears sprang to her eyes upon finding there every comfort. As he helped her settle down in the armchair near the fire, just as he had done the night he brought her there as a bride, the Colonel spoke for the first time in a strangely subdued voice: "This is your sanctum; all the house is yours, but here live, and do as you please. Good night." The light kiss on her forehead, as cold and kind as the few words, chilled her. How remote she felt, how little hope there seemed of beginning life anew! He little guessed, it seemed, that through fear of his being taken ill she had left all else behind. The pleasant, gabled house was spared the visitation of illness; all seemed well within; Helen resumed her old habits; she also had hours for herself, and continued her writings for a periodical. As she detected her husband's eyes following her, she felt his look to be like his words—coolly indifferent. "You must have grown tired of it all," said he, one day, after dinner. She flushed. "Do you say this because I have returned?" He hesitated. "No—yes—I can see no other reason," and with the slight, rather dreary smile of one who knows much of life and the nature he deals with, he added: "I expected you." Helen paled but remained speechless; there was that in her which condemned her to silence. Day after day she went about those little duties that added so much comfort to his life. He noticed how perfect had become her beauty, how easy and graceful all her movements, the dignity that rested on her brow. On the other hand she saw how gray her husband's hair had grown, how sad the handsome mouth, how stern the eyes that of yore lighted up so easily. The evening was dreary; the Colonel had not been in to dinner. It was drizzling and the atmosphere was heavy with sadness. Of late Mr. Hunt was frequently absent, and his silent moods seemed to have become habitual, so much that he spoke with evident effort. Was this home? Was it life? Was this state of affairs the price to be paid for the eminence whence she had shone for a while? Could she keep this up? The great world had not yet forgotten her, she learned from the letter before her. It was one of those letters that had always thrilled her. Should she hesitate? Should she go across the seas with this loved one? The letter fell at her feet while she mused; then, turning to the table, she took up a card requesting that Colonel and Mrs. Hunt would be present at the opening of the Clifford library, and an accompanying note asked "if she would lend the attraction of her voice to the programme, etc." She had given much time to this, years before; now that the good was at last accomplished what did she care?—to be seen with him, smiling her part—what a farce was this! Her hands were tightly clasped. Five weeks since her return, and not a word of welcome, not a sign of joy; her quiet efforts were met with distrust. Nothing but this intolerable silence! What attitude could she take but to seek refuge in pride? At last she heard her husband's footsteps in the hall; he hesitated, then walked into the bright sitting room, so elegant and snug since her return. After a space of oppressive silence, as he stood on the hearth rug, he picked up the letter lying at her feet. The sight of the writing made his heart stand still, his delicacy once more caused him to hesitate; but, suddenly resolute, he turned to the closing words and signature, which ran: "In conclusion I beg you not to consider my pleasure nor interests at stake. Lady W— knows how you are situated, and, like myself, approves of my noble Helen's choice. With loving friendship, FRANCES." The letter fell from his hand, and his voice, as he spoke, sounded cold and distant: "Helen, it is a relief to know at last that your mysterious correspondent is the woman whose spirituality has won for her the reverence of two worlds. This choice referred to—" but his wife's listless air, as she gazed into the fire, made him add bitterly: "You must excuse me, I once more intrude upon your privacy." Again there was silence. "You must be cold," said she, at last, in a voice of studied calm. "Yes, but I might be still colder in a few days." "How so?" "I might take a journey to the far northwest, and be absent many weeks, nay, months; in fact, it is hard to say how long. The railroad company needs a man of energy in those wilds, and it has honored me with the choice." Her voice was still cold as she asked: "Is it of much advantage to you? Could the journey be avoided?" "Yes, there is some advantage, though I have work on hand. I must give a definite answer within 24 hours." "Well," said her clear, proud voice, "you must not go. It is too much exposure; I see a way out of this situation. I feel I have once more disturbed your life, and should not have returned; clearly my presence is unwelcome. No, do not speak. At last you give me occasion to say that which I have long wished to say to you. I intend once more to take up the career I had chosen and in which I met with success." Mistaking the nature of his silence, her pride rose above her suffering, and she continued: "Two persons who have become utterly indifferent cannot thus impose their presence upon one another. My journey to England—" She was near the door against which he already stood; already he caught her wrists in his strong hands and in a hoarse whisper asked: "Is this your choice?" She remained silent. "Why have you returned? I must have the truth." With tears in her eyes, she said: "I am not welcome enough to answer." "Welcome! O woman, woman!" Then looking into her upturned face, and pressing her hands against his breast, he cried: "Speak, speak! tell your husband why you have come back to him." With a radiant smile she said: "Because—because, I could not well help myself; because, the law decrees; a good home to a good man!" And the sweet rippling laughter once more banished the silence of Fernwood.—N. O. Times-Democrat.

OIL SUIT IN OHIO SETS PRECEDENT
INFORMATION REPLACES WORK OF GRAND JURY IN ANTI-TRUST CASE.
Standard and Its Alleged Constituent Concerns in Buckeye State Placed on Trial in the Probate Court at Findlay.
Findlay, O., Oct. 9.—Charged with "conspiracy against trade" in violation of the antitrust laws of the state, the Standard Oil company of Ohio and its alleged constituent companies, the Buckeye Pipe Line and the Manhattan Oil company were placed on trial here Tuesday before Judge Gideon C. Baker and a jury in the probate court of Hancock county. In the original information filed last June by County Prosecutor William L. David, John D. Rockefeller was made a party to the suit, but through the granting of a request for a separate trial Mr. Rockefeller will not be called as a defendant until the case against the company has been disposed of. Mr. Rockefeller, it is said, will not be summoned as a witness and will not attend the trial. Suit Sets Precedent. If the manner of instituting the suit—by information instead of by grand jury indictment—and the jurisdiction assumed by the probate court are upheld in the higher state courts, the case will assume added importance, as indicating an easier and more direct method for action against alleged trade conspiracies. Both the manner of bringing the suit and the jurisdiction of the probate court have been questioned by the attorneys for the defense, but Judge Baker has decided against them on all points, and no appeal can be taken on these preliminary questions until after the case has been tried. Judge Assumes Jurisdiction. Judge Baker ruled that a violation of the Valentine law constitutes a misdemeanor and that the last session of the legislature gave probate courts concurrent jurisdiction with common pleas courts over all misdemeanors. To this ruling as well as that on other technical points, the defense took exception. The Valentine law, under which the action is brought, was passed July 1, 1898. It defines a trust elaborately as a combination of capital, skill or acts by two or more persons, firms, etc., to create or carry out restrictions in trade. The violations of the act are defined as "conspiracy against trade" and punishable by a fine of from $50 to $5,000 or imprisonment for from six to 12 months. As to the evidence required to convict, the statute says: Outline of the Law. "It shall be sufficient to prove that a trust or combination as defined exists, and that the defendant belonged to it, or acted for or in connection with it, without proving all the members belonging to it, or proving or producing any article of agreement or written instrument at all. The character of the trust or combination alleged may be established by proof of its general reputation as such." The information, to which the plea of "Not guilty" has been entered, alleges the formation of the "Standard Oil trust" in 1882, and its continuance to the present time in domination of the oil industry of the state, contrary to the statutes of the state. TO BUILD CANAL BY CONTRACT Chinese to Be Employed by the Successful Bidders. Washington, Oct. 9.—It has been finally decided that the Panama canal will be completed by contract. In a few days the commission will make public a statement setting forth its reason for favoring the contract system and at that time a form of contract will also probably be published showing exactly the sort of document believed by the commissioners to be necessary for safeguarding the work. President Roosevelt is known to support the commission in its position that the work can be done more satisfactorily by contractors than by the government. This change in the building of the canal will in no way affect the employment of Chinese labor. Proposals for furnishing the Chinese labor were made under such conditions that they can be transferred to contractors and the terms can be fulfilled in such a manner that the government can give the coolies just as much protection as it could if the government were the direct employer. He left two notes insisting that he be buried in a striped shirt and overalls, and that the funeral expenses be not over five dollars. He left $300 to his wife. Sultan Receives Leishman. The discontinuance of the post-office at New Holland established over 30 years ago, will take place October 15 when the additional rural service goes into effect. With the closing of the New Holland office nine country postoffices will have been discontinued since the inauguration of the rural free delivery service out of Holland. The other eight offices discontinued are: Ventura, East Holland, May, Noordeloos, Crisp, Ottawa Station, New Groningen and Gibson.

According to a new ruling of the Department of Commerce and Labor, which goes into effect on Jan. 1, 1907, vessel enrollments and vessel licenses will be consolidated into one document by the customs authorities. At the present time all boats have two papers—enrollment and license. Under the old law all masters who do not surrender the license of their boat within three days after expiration are fined $50, but few if any of these penalties ever stood. The master simply applies for a remission and he invariably obtains it. Under the new act, however, a fine of $10 will be collected for every failure after Jan. 1, and this amount will not be refunded under any circumstances.

Besides the new vinegar plant in the course of construction by the H. J. Heinz Pickle Co. in this city, another large building will be constructed. This is in line with the idea of the company to make Holland the western branch of the business after the plan of the general plant at Pittsburgh. Surveys for additional sidetracks have been made by the P. M. officials. A clause in the Michigan pure food law requires that manufactured products must bear on the label the location of the plant manufacturing them and hereafter the products of the Holland institution will not lose their identity under a Pittsburgh label but will reach the consumer with "H. J. Heinz Co., Holland, Mich." blown in the bottle.

Fred R. Minuth of Robinson township appeared before Justice Wachs' Saturday charged with shooting quail out of season. He entered a plea of not guilty and the hearing was set for October 27. Minuth was released under bail of $200 with Ed C. Smith and Peter Van Zyl as sureties. The complaint was entered by Chief Deputy Game Warden, Charles K. Hoyt. The officers were notified of the alleged violation some time ago but did not make the arraignment until Saturday. It is understood that Minuth will fight the case. Mr. Minuth has resided in this county but a few months, coming here from Chicago. He is a graduate of one of the great German gymnasia and technical schools and is a skilled mechanic. For years he held a responsible position with the Baldwin Locomotive Works in Philadelphia, and while with that company was once sent to Asia Minor to superintend locomotive work and remained there several years.

Gov. Warner's campaign is the real sensation of this political year. The state papers are marveling at the improvement in his speeches and the many friends he is winning along the tracks of his automobile. When the campaign closes he will have traveled a good many hundred miles by auto in his speechmaking tours and the value of his work to Republicanism is hardly to be overestimated. Country papers are beginning to demand that he shall visit their counties, so successful and popular have been his tours. He has yet to make a mistake in his speeches which would give Candidate Kimberle a chance to pounce upon him. "We hope Gov. Warner will find it possible to spend a day or two in the county," is the way the Adrian Times puts it. "His honesty and straightforward manner of doing what he thinks he ought to do, has made him popular with all our people and he can help us."—Detroit Journal.

Some would-be-burglars broke into the house of Mrs. B. J. Veneklasen at Zeeland. The old lady is living alone with her granddaughter and was entirely without a weapon of defense, had she the ability to use it. The plunderers carefully examined everything that had the least possibility of containing money. When Mrs. Veneklasen heard the noise she courageously arose and at her approach the robbers fled. It is thought they secured only 83 cents in cash.

The Pere Marquette railway company has started two freight runs between Muskegon and Benton Harbor: requiring two more train crews. One freight will leave Muskegon at 7:30 p. m. and at the same time one will leave Benton Harbor for Muskegon, the latter hauling all north bound freight for the Muskegon and Big Rapids divisions, while the southbound train will go direct to Benton Harbor where the cars will be picked up by the Chicago bound trains. Heretofore a freight was run from Muskegon to Allegan and cars for the west were sidetracked at Waverly to be picked up by a train from Grand Rapids, necessitating much switching. Hereafter this freight will be made up at Waverly and leave for Allegan at 6:30 a. m., and on its return in the afternoon will do necessary switching at Waverly. A freight from Grand Rapids will bring cars to Waverly where they will be switched to the local factory tracks by the Holland switch engine.
