Sugar Mill Will Be Busy Hive Of Industry

LAKESHORE SUGAR CO. WILL START CAMPAIGN LATE IN OCTOBER

Beet Crop Largest In Recent History Of The Local Plant

Manager, M. R. Allen, of the Lakeshore Sugar Co. stated this morning that he is well pleased with the tremendous crop of beets. He stated that in 1934 the best crop was the largest since the Lakeshore Sugar Co. reopened the old sugar mill at the West end of the city. However, the 1936 crop, it appears, shows a better stand and the beets are much larger. This is due, in a measure, because of the abundant rains all through August and September. Mr. Allen stated that while the beets were fine in the field, it was too early now to tell what the sugar content would be. Large beets do not always mean much sugar, although with the proper weather and the coming frost, sugar content begins to fill the beets and there is every indication that altogether the beet crop for this year is going to be very satisfactory.

John D. Kelly, the field manager, states that the showing of the beets is very gratifying everywhere. The timely rains started the beets going with a bang and he believes that altogether the crop is going to be very satisfactory to the farmers and to the Lakeshore Sugar Co. as well. There are many by-products that help the farmer as fodder, the beet tops are large and large beets mean more pulp and if the sugar content holds up it simply cannot help but be a wonderful sugar beet year all around. It is expected that the ponderous wheels of the large sugar mill will be turning late in October and the campaign will keep on for not less than 55 days and nights, for remember, a sugar mill can't stop, but the wheels must remain turning constantly from the time that the first beets go in the hoppers, to the slicers and through the various processes and finally comes out granulated sugar, and the other by-products, such as syrup, brown sugar and other auxiliaries. There is no stopping for the more than 250 men who will be employed over the different shifts scheduled for the twenty-four hour a day run.

Farmers and commercial trucks will soon form a motordrome from the beet districts in Ottawa and Allegan counties and beyond, rolling towards Holland. It won't be long before the large yards at the sugar factory will appear rather "Egyptian-like" as pyramids upon pyramids of beets begin to form after these are weighed and dumped. It is rather an interesting sight to watch the long line of waiting trucks file over the gigantic scales and the weighmasters "do their stuff," first weighing the beets and truck together, then the truck alone, subtracting the weight of the truck from the first total. There is something fascinating about the interior of a sugar mill. There are so many mammoth cylinders and turning reservoirs, centrifugal machinery that look like huge washing machines, sugar bins, bag fillers, coolers and wheels of all types, which to a layman is only a labyrinth of turning objects. To your editor these were conundrums which the genial Mr. Allen, the manager of the plant, endeavored to explain.

Sugar making, it would appear, is an intricate proposition. Four floors of that large factory seem to be chock full of some sort of machines. Room was made for considerable more necessary machinery a year ago, bringing about faster production and more economy.

Mr. Allen stated that many undoubtedly believe that the sugar factory was idle during the summer, that is only true in part. While no sugar was being made there were at least 30 men constantly employed, overhauling machinery, rejuvenating the plant here and there, making repairs and repainting wherever necessary. These were constantly employed the year round and augment the larger force of 250 men when the great campaign is on.

The Holland sugar factory always has been a boon to the city. In the early days it brought a new market for the farmers in our neighborhood, and the agriculturalists spent their money with our merchants. And then the "shut-down" came when for years the large building stood like a giant spectre against the western skies denoting a large, inactive industry. The surrounding yards were devoid of any activity, a place where for years all was hustle and bustle and the pyramids of beets were an indication that the fall crop was being harvested.

However, after this long vacation, nearly four years ago the factory was rejuvenated, the gates were reopened, the cobwebs were swept out of the general office, new machinery of more economical type was installed, and a rehabilitation took place from end to end of this large plant.

An inspection of the sugar factory in general during the day time when the sugar campaign is on, is very interesting and there is plenty of activity.

However, during the night time and in the gloaming, the large steeped building is aglow with light. The area contrasts decidedly with neighboring properties which are closed for the night. The sugar mill, however, looks all the world like a light-filled castle and the murmuring of ponderous wheels and mechanisms that eventually make crystallized, granulated particles called sugar, indicates that there is great activity on the inside.

For many years before the Lakeshore Sugar Co. management was in charge, the Holland-St. Louis Sugar Co. was a boon to Holland. It was considered a local mainstay, industrially speaking. It created an-

RESORT ACTIVITIES REASSURING FOR HOLLAND

Holland, like many other sections, has just experienced one if not the best resort season from a business standpoint. The records of the Chamber of Commerce show the largest number of inquiries. They sent out huge quantities of descriptive matter. Efforts are being made to improve the facilities for the convenience and enjoyment of the resorters by additions to the State Park, by the construction of an airport, by urging an enlargement of the dock at Kollen Park for visiting cruisers and yachts. Jesse Bros. have added a marine Jetway which is unmatched in Western Michigan and have applied for a permit for duck extensions.

The Annual Meeting of the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association will be held in Grand Rapids Thursday evening, October 8th. All interested in this activity are urged to attend and should make reservations for the Grand Rapids dinner at the office of our local Chamber of Commerce. The committee on tourist and resort activities is headed by C. C. Wood.

Activities In Building Here Are Gratifying

SIX NEW PROJECTS AT EXCAVATION STAGE; EIGHT
INQUIRIES FOR LOANS

Holland's home building activities have now reached such impressive importance that a request comes from Washington for photographs of the fifty homes just completed or under construction during the Chamber of Commerce and FHA drive which was instituted a year ago. Holland leads all cities in Western Michigan in home construction according to E. L. Mc Colgin, FHA field representative.

William M. Connelly, Manager of the Chamber of Commerce, has been called to Grand Rapids to address the Building Supply Dealers Wednesday evening, October 7th, on which occasion a drive for home building will be instituted in that city.

Photographs now on display at the Chamber of Commerce illustrate dwellings varying in value from twenty-five hundred to twenty-five thousand dollars, with the total value approaching two hundred thousand dollars. There are at least six new projects at the excavation stage and eight new inquiries for loans reached the banks yesterday. The aim for one hundred homes that was thought to be extravagant a month ago now appears to be within the realm of probability. Since these homes are not built in groups but scattered in and around the city, few people realize the extensive activity.

A survey shows two new homes at Pine Creek School, four miles north on US-31; six in the Waukegan and adjacent territory; four on the north side, east of US-31; four in the Federal School district; five on or near the Lake Drive and the remainder are scattered throughout the city. When the pictures are all taken and records completed they will be reproduced with information on costs, ownership, location and method of financing.

HOLLAND HIGH PLAYS HERE SATURDAY

With two men out of the lineup for the entire week, Coach Jerry Breen does not know just what lineup will face Grand Rapids' Ottawa Hills in the second year of the year for the Dutchman at Riverside park on Saturday.

Capt. Pogy Morris, who is the only experienced back on the squad, was injured in the leg in the Creston game and has been forced out of practice this week. Morris is playing his second year at the fullback post for the locals. Jimmie Grissen, running mate to Ken Matchinsky, has been out of practice the entire week with a bad case of boils on his face. Matchinsky has been throwing his bullet-like passes to Cunningham, who will very likely fill the halfback post of Grissen. Don Kramer may be placed in the backfield post for Morris.

Coach Breen has been bolstering his line, as he was dissatisfied with the line work. Mape will be back at an end and it is possible that Blanchard may replace Kronmeyer at an end.

Pass offense was worked upon as the locals missed two chances to score in the Creston game when passers were dropped by the receivers—G. R. Press.

Hol and High won last Saturday at Riverview Park 14 to 0 over Grand Rapids Creston.

The Holland reserves won 14 to 7 over the Grand Rapids reserve team. It was in the last half that the youngsters piled up the 14 points.

ther market for the farmers and it brought a diversified product on the farm that created rather a safe and staple crop annually. Circumstances not of their own choosing compelled the management to close the plant. It had been well managed for many years. Four years ago the Lakeshore Sugar Co., by installing some later machinery and refitting the plant, opened the doors of the factory again, and the market for the farmers and the tremendous benefits the City of Holland receives, was re-established. Mr. Allen has proved to be an able manager and understands the sugar-making business. He is ably assisted by Mr. Kelly, who is thoroughly conversant as a field man, in other words, he "knows his beets." The H. J. Heinz Co. has just closed a tremendously active season and now activity will begin with another farm crop at the sugar mill next door.

Many Holland Stores Are Provided
With Hunting Licenses

Hunters in Holland and vicinity are busy these chilly days digging out their paraphernalia and limbering up the trigger finger for the opening shot of the season at 8 a. m. eastern standard time, Oct. 10.

Although hunting licenses have been in the city only a few days, a check of the outlets selling them show many devotees eager to take to the field and water's edge.

No deer and bear license tags have yet been sold. It is too early for the season, the opening being scheduled Nov. 15 to Nov. 30, inclusive, including all of the upper peninsula and in the lower peninsula.

News Items Taken From the Files of Holland City News Fifty, Twenty-five and Fifteen Years Ago Today

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

A very ludicrous joke was played on some folks about town lately. One, in particular, was on P. J. Koning. Peter felt a foreign object crawling up his trousers, leg and not knowing what it might be imagined all sorts of creeping things, including rattlesnakes of which several were killed lately in the wild blackberry undergrowth around Holland. Anyway, Mr. Koning set up a commotion which soon collected a large crowd, including two local doctors who were ready to scalp the reptile or administer "snake bite" medicine as the case might be. The trousers were soon "shed" and explored and croaking proceeded therefrom. A large bull frog hopped forth and the street was soon filled with side splitting laughter. The wag who perpetrated the trick upon Peter was never discovered. Note:—Small town stuff in Holland's village day, no doubt.

Quite a number of immigrants arrived in Holland from the Netherlands by way of the Chicago & West Michigan Railroad. There were little and big ones; father first with long pipe, mother next, followed by the children in "step fashion" trooping on behind. There was a clatter of wooden shoes (klompen) on the wooden walks on Main street. Most of them were soon cared for by friends who had provided for their passage over, and the Netherlands were placed upon farms in this neighborhood.

Note: Many prosperous farmers in this vicinity originally were the immigrants of 50 years ago and their children are the fine American farmers of today, still on the farms upon which their immigrant parents settled.

Messrs. Walter C. Walsh and Ben Van Putten started Saturday evening on a trip to the Minneapolis Exposition. They go by way of Chicago, Milwaukee and Ashland, stopping a few days in each city.

The ringing of the school bell last Monday brought the children scurrying, after a long vacation, to the classrooms. On the first day there was a total of 751 pupils, of which 55 were in the high school. The following is the teaching staff and the rooms to which they are assigned: Miss Ray, Bennet, high school teacher; Mrs. S. J. Higgins, grammar school No. 3; Addie Clark, grammar No. 2; Reka Verbeek, primary No. 4; Maggie Pfantstiel, primary No. 4; Miss E. G. Vander Meulen, primary No. 3; Minnie Mohr, primary No. 3; Frances Westveer, primary No. 2; Christina Vaupell and Addie Cunningham, primary No. 1; Miss Carpenter, teacher in fourth ward school. Note: George P. Hummer, superintendent, also taught some classes in his office. This office was also headquarters for the more modern boys—those the lady teachers' division.

The school days of the writer who often tip-toed up the long dark hall to hear what the professor was going to do to my seat-mate, Frank. Generally there was an ominous silence of several minutes when the very pointed lecture was in progress. Then there was commotion in the little north side office, several resounding swishes of a strap, a yell of pain and a crest fallen youngster with his arm over his tear stained cheeks, hobbled from the torture chamber. There was more noise than hurt, however, personal experience and well deserved punishment in that same little school room.

That Mr. Hummer has a high school master, on the contrary, he was popular and greatly loved by all the students of that period. That was the day when the strap was the disciplinary and in common use in every school. The school at that time was centralized, with the exception of the Fourth Ward school, then a small brick building with one room, located on the site of Washington school. All the classes were held in the new Union school, and now East Junior High school. The high school was located in the north-east room on the third floor of that building. The room of Mrs. Higgins was to the north-west and Miss Reamer's room to the south-west and Miss Clark to the south-east. There were four grammar rooms on the ground floor and the primary rooms were in the basement. Geo. P. Hummer, the superintendent, received a salary of $1,000 a year. Mrs. Higgins received the highest salary among the teaching staff. It was $350 per year. Salaries then graded down to $300, $275, and as low as $210 per annum. Prof. Shepard of Grand Rapids, a tall spare man with bushy beard, taught music to the classes once each week. He would go from room to room and teach the classes for a half hour each. There is where the writer learned to sing "Three Blind Mice" in rounds supposedly to stabilize the concentrate. The "Alps Yodel" with every round is more harmonious. Anyway the professor got $150 a year for that. H. Toren, the janitor, who was elected by the board of education each year, received $327.55. The total teachers' payroll 50 years ago was $3,700.00 annually. W. H. Beach was president of the board and Dr. O. E. Yates was secretary. But where was Henry Geerlings? Mayor Henry Geerlings was at Hope College getting his degree—some where in the "D" class "Prep" Dept. Remember Henry was only 19 years then, despite the fact that he has now been secretary of the board for 36 years.

Wm. Mulder, a local carpenter, 171 West 19th, died as the result of an accident a week ago when he fell from a second story porch where he was at work. The fall paralyzed the man and death followed. The building was at College Ave. and Ninth St.

One of the balloon peddlers at the Holland fair has had hard luck. His large consignment of real gas balloons slipped from his fingers as he was selling them in front of the race track and shot skyward to the delight of the thousands of race fans. The colorful mass soon disappeared from sight, sailing toward Allegan, where they will have a fair next week.

Joe Rowan, who for 16 years has been identified with the Holland Rusk Co., resigned that position. Starting from the bottom of the ladder, he was finally made manager of the concern. Henry Etterbeek, who has been with the firm for five years, will take over the management. Mr. Rowan will be at the head of the Ottawa Sales Service from now on.

Rev. Jacob Vander Meulen was installed as professor of Greek at the Western Theological Seminary. John Pieper of the Pieper Jewelry Co., who has been living in Zeeland the past year, has purchased a home at 52 West 17th St. Note: Mr. Pieper is now an optometrist.

The Zeeland veterans of the Spanish-American war are circulating a subscription list to help raise funds wherewith to purchase a large silk banner. The Zeeland veterans, with those from Holland, form one post and the banner will be for the use of the organization.

James Lyons of Holland, age 78, has spent most of the summer fishing in Black Lake, and has the record of catching more fish than any other angler thus far. When he figured his several catches these totaled 1,064 fish. He finished up the season Friday with a pickered of 6 pounds.

"Johnny" Boone of Holland drove Charles Harrington, the pacer, from the Boone stables here at the Marshall fair and pulled down the $1,000 purse, winning easily in the 2:20 pace. The horse was sold immediately afterward to a Detroit horseman who paid a fancy price for the equine.

Nick DeRose, an Italian fruit dealer on River Street, and his family, left Holland over night and is said to be on his way to "Sunny Italy."

G. Bontekow of Holland died at the age of 76 years and leaves eight children.

Three barns in Drenthe were struck by lightning during a severe electrical storm early in the week. These belonged to John Wiggers, Wm. Tanis and Hubert Karsten. The barns burned with a loss to each of approximately $2,000, or a sum total of $6,000, fully covered by insurance.

John Van Hoef caught a black bass of five pounds 2 ounces in Port Sheldon lake. He brings as witnesses Charles Kelly and Walter Drinkwater—so this fish story is absolutely true.

Prof. Pete H. Brouwer of Zeeland Musical "bell ringers" will give an entertainment and will introduce for the first time their little "Johnnie" ten years old, who is the youngest musical "bell ringer" in the world. Note: The Brouwer bell ringers surely were a "card" 25 years ago. The entire family, father, mother and the children played all manner of bells and rubbed tumblers to make music. They appeared in Holland often in public, then they got the vaudeville "bee," left these parts, were heard from occasionally as being rather successful. Of recent years nothing has been heard of the Dutch family but, remember, that youngster of 10 is now a man of 35 years. Their stage "get up" was much the same as our Tulip Festival garbs.

The Zeeland school junior class elected the following officers: President, Wm. Jonkman; Vice Pres., Frank Van Broe; Treasurer, Tena Lubbers; Vice Treas., Roy Heasley. The class consists of 24, the largest in history thus far.

Rev. Henry J. Veldman, pastor of the First Reformed Church, has received a call from the Second Reformed Church of Muskegon.

The Holland City News devotes at least a column to the marriage of Miss Adriana Sara Kolyn, daughter of Mrs. Matthew Kolyn, 66 West 13th St., and Theodore Henry Elferink of Grand Rapids. It was easily the outstanding social function of early fall in Holland in 1921, according to the elaborate description of the affair. The marriage was the culmination of a Hope College romance, both having graduated from the local institution. Mr. Elferink also graduated from Michigan Law School and started to practice in Grand Rapids. Note: Attorney Elferink, who by the way was a Holland man, his parents living on River Ave. at the time, is now a prominent attorney in the "Furniture City" and stands high in the councils of the Democratic party there.

HOLLAND MINISTER SPEAKS AT FREMONT TODAY

Rev. Leonard Van Laar of Holland, a member of the mission board speaks today on "Forty Years of Mission Support," at the Sunday school convention being held at Fremont Thursday, Oct. 1, where more than 800 delegates are present from midwestern Christian Reformed churches. One of the features of the convention is the attendance of two delegates who have been to every convention since the association was organized in 1896. These two men are William K. Bareman and Albert B. Johnson, both of Zeeland, where they are members of the Third Christian Reformed church.

in the Peters Block.

The Holland Country Club is now an assured fact, and 126 acres have been purchased half way between Holland and Zeeland with Black River running through the acreage. The price paid for the land is said to be $18,000 and the grounds will be adorned by a beautiful club house costing $25,000. The building will be the crest of the hill with a view from the verandas that is unsurpassed. The club already has 110 members.

TOMATO 2 1/4 POUNDS

The News is grateful to Ed Scott of the North Side who brought up a fine basket of perfect tomatoes from his farm. Besides the basket he also gave the editor a single tomato weighing 2 1/4 pounds. It was of a yellow variety rather than the dark red kind. Yellow or red tomatoes are still favorite in the Mulder family and our thanks to "Ed."

CHILD OF MR. AND MRS. WOOD DIES

John Etton Wood, four year old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Wood, passed away after an illness of scarlet fever. The death took place at their summer home near Lake-wood Farm. The remains will be taken to Detroit for cremation. Arrangements for the services have not yet been fully made.

HOLLAND BOY MARRIES AN EASTERN GIRL

Announcements have come to Holland telling of the marriage last week in New York City of Madelyn Odell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Ferris Odell of Gordon City, Long Island and Gordon Van Ark, son of Henry Van Ark of Holland. The ceremonies took place at the First Reformed church of Kew Gardens, Long Island, where the young couple are making their home.

Mr. Van Ark is connected with the advertising department of Standard Brands, Inc., New York City. Gordon Van Ark is well known in this city as he graduated from Hope College and was editor of the Hope College Anchor as well as business manager at one time. He was sport writer at one time in the Holland City News and a co in the Holland Evening Sentinel. As a young man he received his initial experience in the advertising field in this city and has broadened in that knowledge at Columbia University where he took a course along these lines and also in business administration. He has been in the East for the past six years.

FORMER HEAD OF GRAHAM & MORTON CO. DIES

Captain Austin Harrington received word late this afternoon informing him that J. Stanley Morton, one of the founders of the Graham & Morton Transportation Co. of Holland and Benton Harbor, died at the age of 86 years. Mr. Morton, it will be remembered, was coming to Holland often when he was still the manager of the local boat line. Those are the days when the Soo City Puritan, City of Grand Rapids and City of Holland were steamers plying out of this port to Chicago and when there was still double daily service to the metropolis of the midwest from Holland. Later the Goodrich Transportation Co. took over the line. Mr. Morton did a great deal for the Holland resorts and made this a pivotal shipping point from Chicago by steamer. Mr. Austin Harrington stated today.

PICKET BOAT FOR HOLLAND PRACTICALLY ASSURED

"Bill" Connelly has practically received assurance that the picket boat, a high speed craft, will find its way to Holland harbor to be put in the Coast Guard service. Captain A. Wessel has given his recommendation in writing and so has the Commander of the District, Leroy Reinberg. Those are the men who are consulted and with their sanction Holland can practically be sure of a life-saving boat of high speed so necessary at resorts and gathering beaches where thousands gather at one time. The picket boats are seaworthy and can get to a given spot in a fraction of time as compared to the heavy, cumbersome or boats, which do excellent duty during severe storms and are also necessary.

Three new picket boats, with a speed of 25 miles per hour, assigned to the 10th district of the United States coast guard, arrived in Grand Haven, Monday, where they will be reconconditional after a 30-day trip from the Atlantic seaboard. Surflan Forest H. Flaughter of the Holland coast guard, one of the crew accompanying the boats returned to the city Monday night. According to Capt. E. J. Clemens of the local station, the boats will be assigned soon to Holland, Muskegon and Grand Haven for duty, by Capt. Reinberg, head of the Chicago district.

SUGAR GRINDING MEANS SUGAR BUYING

With the opening of the sugar mill, the white crystals will soon form thousands and thousands of pounds of sweetness. It is well to remember that Holland sugar is made by a Holland enterprise and Michigan sugar is made by industries in one of the greatest states in the Union. We are proud of Michigan, we are undoubtedly proud of Holland sugar, which is of fine quality. We should emphasize our belief in Michigan sugar by buying it for family use. Your purchases help so many avenues of trade and agriculture right at home.

HIGHLIGHTS OF LONDON'S TALK TO 30,000 FARMERS AT DES MOINES, IOWA

I favor protection of the family-type farm. This philosophy runs like a thread through the Republican platform. It is in keeping with the American tradition, which is based upon preserving individual opportunity.

The Republican party does not believe in having our farms operated by large corporate enterprises. It is our conviction that it is the duty of the government to preserve the family type of farm for all time.

The security of our social and economic system rests upon our having millions and millions of individual farmers and home-owners. These are the people that give us security and give us our spirit of independence as a nation. We must not let them be driven to the wall!

All the farmer asks is that his name be on a parity with the rest of the nation; that he may enjoy the same standard of life; that his home be made secure; and that he be able to build up a reserve for the future.

I know that these aims cannot be realized overnight. Miracles are no more common in Washington than they are in Des Moines.

Let me make this one point absolutely clear. If I am elected, I shall fulfill all outstanding obligations made by the present administration with the American farmer. Those of our farmers hard hit by the drought will be generously provided for until they can raise a crop.

CROP INSURANCE

I am now going to mention a subject that is in neither platform nor program. It is a question in which we have long been interested in Kansas. In fact, some of our Republican leaders in farm legislation have been in the forefront in working on it. We realize there are difficulties. But insurance companies are writing policies today covering risks that they did not consider feasible a few years ago. I believe the question of crop insurance should be given the fullest attention.

We need also to resume our once remarkable progress in introducing new crops for the use of our lands. This work seems to have slowed down. Yet it is exactly what the Department of Agriculture should now be pushing.

Not only must we take care of the problems of the land, but we must develop more domestic demand and different uses for the products of the land. I am far more interested in seeing farmers paid for growing the things we need, than in paying them for not growing the things we think we don't need.

Most of us co-operated with the triple-A in its early days, since we had been promised it was only an emergency measure. It was the only important agency working for the relief of the farmer at that time, and it was entitled to a fair trial.

But as the program progressed, we discovered that the administration was trying to stretch the triple-A into a means for the permanent control of American agriculture from Washington. I cannot agree with such a policy. I cannot agree with the President. I believe the American farmer should be a lord on his own farm.

The Tulip City Triplets, Al Berkompas, Budd Van Liere and Jene Seaver, have returned from an enjoyable four weeks' tour through the southwest. They also visited the Texas Centennial.

BATTLE CRY OF GOP

Excerpts From Republican Speeches Made Monday Night

By Arthur H. Vandenberg, U. S. Senator from Michigan.

The truth is that we are at the crossroads. * * * We shall move forward in sound liberalism for the benefit of our whole people. But we shall keep our feet upon the ground.

A new Declaration of Independence is being written this year in the American conscience.

We will stop the needless outflow at the treasury bungalow while we are balancing our budget.

The automobile industry would still be in the slough of despond if it had followed the Roosevelt theme.

We want labor to be free in every sense of the word.

We would restrict and punish sinful business. But we would not burn down the barn to kill the rats.

The new deal has committed itself to the false economy of "scarcity" which is at war with the laws of God and man.

HEINZ MAGAZINE OF THE AIR

The "Heinz Magazine of the Air," introduced this month as a major program in the season's newest broadcasts, is commanding nationwide interest as a morning feature, which is especially interesting to housewives. Fan mail is pouring in from scores of listeners to members of the large cast presenting music, drama and famous personalities. The program is heard three weekly, Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 11 to 11:30 a. m. (E.S.T.) over WABC coast to coast network.

Delmar Edmondson, as editor, turns the pages of this novel "magazine" for dialers and Bill Adams does the announcing in convincing tones. Leith Stevens and his orchestra transmit an appealing selection of rhythm, high-lighted with intermittent songs by the splendid baritone voice of Red Kennedy, who is aided by a large chorus of mixed voices.

"Trouble House," a domestic drama by Elaine Sterne Carrington, unfolds many interesting and amusing incidents in chapter form on each program. The serial is centered at the farmhouse of "Martha Booth," a sacrificing soul, portrayed by Ann Elster. "Phoebe," who has been in the family for forty years, takes an important role in this mixed-up household. Elsie Mae Gordon, creator of more than 1,000 radio characters, plays the part. On October 2nd you will hear the fourteenth chapter of "Trouble House."

Maxine McBride Tells Rotary About Fiction

CONNELLY GAVE YOUNG LADY UNIQUE INTRODUCTION — WANTS TO HEAR HOW BEGINNERS BEGAN STORY

The Rotarians and guests at the regular week-day luncheon at the Warm Friend Tavern were privileged to hear from a talented young lady who has made her way in the world as a story and fiction writer.

Her offerings are in great demand and she has several flattering contracts with publishers in the East and has had for some time now.

The guest speaker at the Club was Miss Maxine McBride, daughter of Attorney and Mrs. Charles McBride, College Ave., this city.

Wm. N. Connelly, director of the Chamber of Commerce, introduced Miss McBride in the following pleasing manner:

"Due perhaps to the highly charged state of the nation, many of our recent speakers have exhibited a form of political rash and they keep us in a constant state of anticipatory jitters. I think they should be quarantined."

"Politicians are like fish. They live by eating one another. Perhaps we could invoke the statute that prohibits cannibalism."

"It is refreshing to be privileged to sponsor a speaker who gives us no concern in that respect; one who lives in a world of fiction; one apart from stern reality; one who even wrote a story on the highly mythical and erroneous idea that 'Nice Men Are Married.' To disprove that, just take one look at this aggregation of Rotarians."

"Holland should be and is justly proud of the number of its people who have become widely famous. They have reached high places in the field of education, theology, statesmanship, science, journalism, as novelists, as short story writers; they have even made Robert Ripley's column."

"Probably the two most crowded avenues to fame are the stage and writing. Some seeking these careers become a bit barmy. In the case of the forensic vocation we refer to the neophytes as being stage-struck; in the other case I presume it would be writer's cramps. We expect the speaker to diagnose that phobia today."

"I now present one of Holland's finest contributions to America's literary hall of fame; Maxine McBride, in private life known as Mrs. Thos. Horgan."

Miss McBride graciously acknowledged the introduction and gave the following very interesting discourse:

"Stories don't grow on trees, for writing means work and is real business. Often a writer can see the story on the tree which he would like to pick. And he can tell it quite beautifully to friends or agents. But when he goes to pick it from the tree—actually begins to write it—the words just don't come."

"After weeks of hard work on it, he may be able to get a story written, but it is not as it was when seen on the tree. And the editor who gets it will soon return it with a notation, expressing his wonder at the disappearance of the original idea."

"An author might have a list of 10 or 20 possible stories which he might show to agents, but after the agent has made his choice the author still has trouble getting to the tree."

"When you actually go to write the story, sitting down at your typewriter, your thoughts wander to things other than the story. 'Let's see,' an author might muse, 'I might get an extra bonus on this story and if I wrote three or four like this one I could go home for Christmas.' By this time, the author begins to draw fables, and then it is lunch time. That is getting to the tree."

"Most stories must be written according to a plan. Although my first two stories sold were 'just written,' I have since found that almost nothing will sell unless it has been written according to plan. 'First one must endeavor to keep the story accurate by authentic material. This bit of material about the subject should not be put into the story at all, perhaps, but the information must be kept in the writer's head to keep the action of the plot within the limits of the characters and properties used."

"I cannot start a story unless I have already written at the top of the page, my intended title. After that is written, and words have started to come, the picking is much easier."

"There are times when description comes too easily, and after completion the writer finds he has more description than story, making it necessary to rewrite the entire work."

"A thing is never lost in writing, because a vague impression a year ago may sometime become a real thought or idea in your plot."

"A test of a good story is, whether it is real. The description and conversation and action must all look real to the reader. If it does, you may have written a good story."

"The popular belief that spontaneous stories are better than those that have been worked over for weeks or months is untrue."

"There is no rule about that kind of thing, it may happen either way."

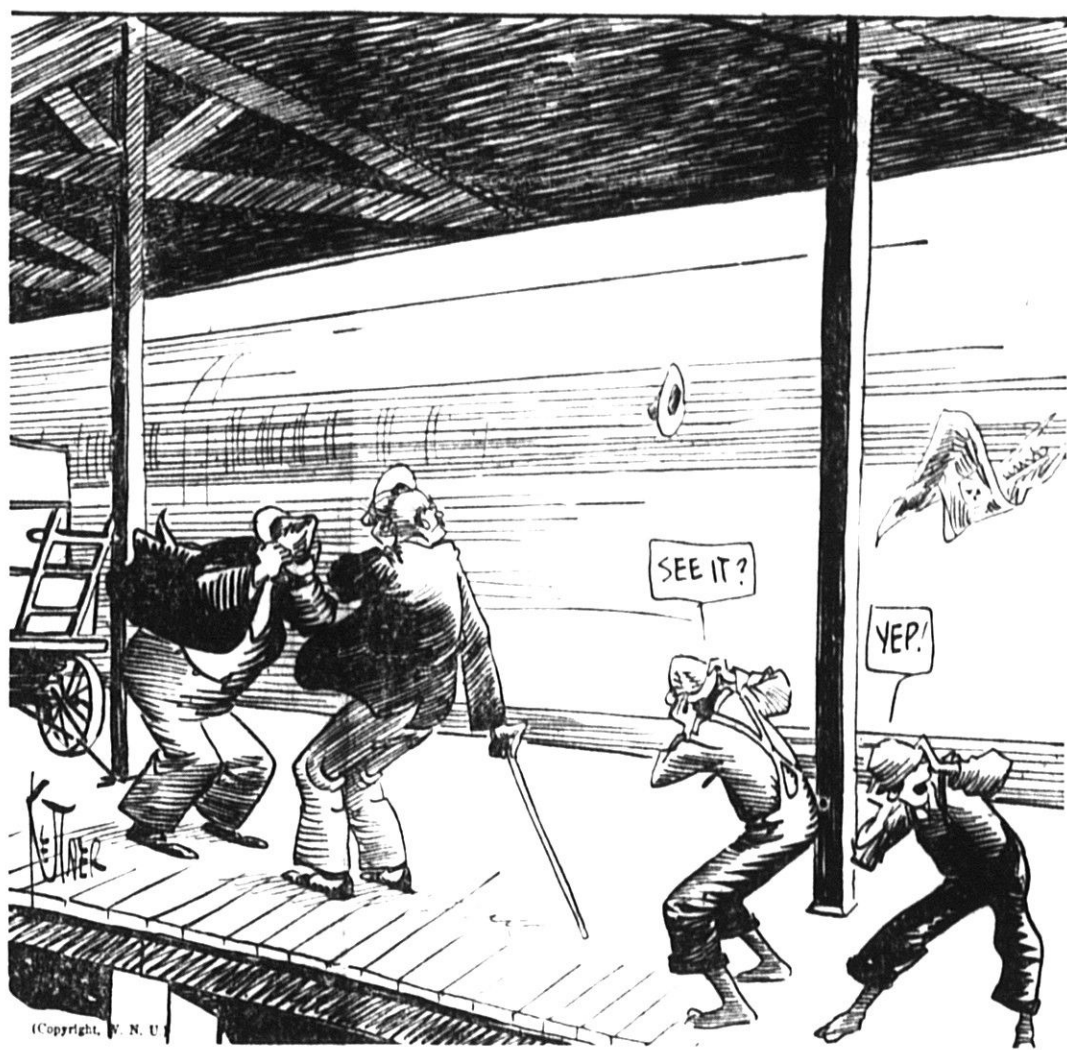

In closing her talk, she told what she called the only real complete story she has ever heard. She plans to write it at some future time.

Miss McBride was presented a pair of wooden shoes by the club, inscribed "Maxine McBride." She gratefully accepted these with thanks.

The Grand Haven Rotarians Monday, at a luncheon at Hotel Perry, also heard Miss Maxine McBride, author and writer tell of her personal experiences in learning the art of successful writing.

is progressive, but something that has to be developed.

She obtained her first experience in Holland High School and in Holland College where she contributed to school publications. Later she worked as reporter on the Boston American, Miami Tribune and New York Sun.

In explaining the technique of writing, Miss McBride said, first is the idea or germ of the story. This may come from something you hear in conversation, something you see or just an idea that pops into your mind.

FACTS IMPORTANT

Fiction today demands that the background of your story be founded on facts.

The background must be gained from talks with people who live in the place where your story is centered and by use of the library.

Creative writing must be done where the writer is free from interruption, but the successful writer must mix with people and thereby make the contacts with people so necessary to characterization.

The speaker said that men prefer stories with plots while women were particularly interested in character portrayal.

Stories today must be timely and seasonable and although today offers more freedom, readers today demand realism. The test of a good story "it is real."

Among the magazines to which Miss McBride contributes are The American, Delineator, Good Housekeeping and Red Book.

HAVE FLOWERING BULBS PLANTED NOW

Hyacinths, tulips, and narcissi for spring flowering in 1937 should be in the ground now in order to get a good start, advises P. R. Krone, extension specialist in horticulture at Michigan State College.

Hyacinths should be set two to five inches below the surface of the soil, deeper in sand than in heavy soil. Tulips should be placed three to four inches in the soil except Darwins which go an inch deeper. Narcissus should be planted two to three inches deep. None of these three flowering bulbs will do as well in clay as they will in a light, fertile loam.

Beginning next Sunday, Oct. 4, and continuing on the first Sunday of each month, students of Hope college and townspeople will again listen to strains from the organ. For those of you who think you are lacking in the cultural side of college, or for others who would like to "brush up" on the masterpieces, Mr. Osborne has a real treat in store. The background for most of the programs will consist of standard organ literature, chiefly by Bach and Franck. Handel's "Largo" from the Oratorio Xerxes, "Toccata and Fugue in C Major" by Bach, and the toccata, "Thou Art the Rock" by Mulet, will be the highlights of the first vesper. The recital begins at four, so be there on time.

ALLEGAN FARMERS HONEST WITH GOVERNMENT

Less than .007 cents per man! That was the damage caused in Allegan county last month by the 4,000 troops participating in the vast Second Army maneuvers, and officers of the Army's Rent and Claim section said today that it was "a remarkable record."

Despite the fact that two divisions of National Guard troops from Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin and a brigade of Regulars spent nearly two weeks in simulated warfare over 41,272 acres in Allegan country, damage claims submitted to the War Department for settlement amount to only $158.20.

These damages, which consisted principally of broken fences, were represented in six claims filed with the army by civilian land owners in the county.

The remarkably small damage, as contrasted with the intense activity which existed in the maneuver area between August 8 and 18, was viewed by army officers as a triumph for discipline, careful advance planning and wholehearted cooperation on the part of the civilian population.

Timely rain eliminated 75 per cent of the damages by fire and that a small amount of damage was not taken into consideration by many of the land owners.

There were one or two cases of crops during the early part of the maneuvers but those fires were extinguished before they did any serious damage to crops or timber.

Although Allegan county is the center of some of the largest orchards in western Michigan, the army received no damage claims for fruit taken by the soldiers. Officers said that this probably was due to the fact that the farmers gave the troops all they could eat.

Ten buildings were taken over for use as army, corps and division headquarters at a total cost of $476.77. In Allegan, Pennville and Pearl where school buildings were used, no rent was charged. The cost of renting the vast acreage was $2,768.36. These two figures plus the claims for damage to civilian property amounted to $3,393.33.

"The citizens cooperated with the officers of the Rent and Claims section to the fullest extent," Col. Keck said, "all were more than anxious to help."

Aside from the fact that they suffered negligible damage during the "war," Allegan county residents profited in other ways. The army quartermasters bought large quantities of fodder and foodstuffs from farmers and merchants and troops spent between $25,000 and $30,000 in personal purchases and Holland got some of this money.

Skunks Overrun Sand Dune Homes

Those who own summer or permanent residences along the dunes on Lake Michigan near Muskegon are complaining that they are being overrun with skunks. The air is filled with the odor of skunks while they come to the homes and climb into the garbage cans. Dogs owned by the resorters are constantly battling with skunks.

At the summer home of Dr. Edward O. Foss, of scenic Drive, skunks have caused much damage. Three times during the last few weeks they have put his electric pump out of order. They do this by getting under the house where the pump is located and covering the machinery with dirt. Although there is a closed season on the animals, the resorters have turned finally to traps in self protection and have captured many of them.

The residents along the dunes have been annoyed by skunks in previous years, but nothing compared with this season. It is a daily sight to see two or three skunks near one of the houses.

Rattlesnakes In Muskegon Public School

LIVE ONES FOUND IN BIOLOGY "LAB," FIFTY-FIVE KILLED IN MUSKEGON COUNTY

(Muskegon Chronicle)

Rattlesnakes all gone in Muskegon county? Not on your life, and if you don't believe it go up to Fred Kiskey's biology lab for junior college students in the Hackley school and hear the reptiles buzz.

Mr. Kiskey has three lively grown up and four baby rattlers. The latter, although having no rattles are nevertheless just as venomous as the adults. All were presented to Mr. Kiskey by Edward Foy, in charge of white pine blister rust eradication work in this area. Mr. Foy has killed 55 rattlers in Blue Lake township alone in recent weeks during his canvassing the fields for wild gooseberries and black currants which are host to the rust in one stage of the scourge to the white pine.

Rattlesnakes are quite plentiful also in Black Creek valley where persons have been bitten almost every summer.

Safely Locked

Mr. Kiskey makes a practice of having a rattlesnake or two in his laboratory every fall, for study. They are safely locked up in screen covered boxes, and are alert. At the slightest disturbance they will rattle, if the temperature is sufficiently comfortable, and appear to be afraid of visitors, coiling for protection, and quivering with excitement. It is this agitation which causes the tail to rattle. For food, Mr. Kiskey has placed several frogs in the snakes' cage, but the rattlers did not seem to be hungry. The frogs were greatly frightened at first, but soon got over their fear and hop about unconcernedly.

The rattlesnakes, which are not more poisonous than chemicals which the biology instructor has to use occasionally from locked up containers, also enable the students to know what a rattler's warning really is. Many have been old it sounds like a bee, or a baby's rattle. However, the captives resemble nothing more closely than the sound made by a cicada, or true locust as he starts and closes his loud weather song, only the rattler's buzz is lower pitched.

Has Other Snakes

Mr. Kiskey also has a live blue racer, a big fellow who strikes at the edge of his cage when anyone comes near. He has teeth which could scratch, but he is harmless to humans. The rattlers never strike at their visitors, as if they realize the danger of breaking their delicate, poison fangs on the wire.

Students brought a spotted water snake to the laboratory recently, and the next day there were 14 baby water snakes born. Several were chloroformed and preserved in formaldehyde, and this is to be the fate of several of the rattlers, equally attractive and useful but have the misfortune to be a potential danger to persons who might step on them or tread too near.

The biology instructor, while on excursions in the open country, always watches where he steps. While never yet bitten by a rattlesnake, he has had them strike at him several times. Persons who wear heavy boots that come as high as their knees are virtually safe from a rattlesnake, as few of the Michigan variety are long enough to extend that high in launching themselves against an enemy. In Muskegon county, rattlesnakes usually seek winter quarters for hibernation, towards the middle or end of October.

In the third period, Williams, East fullback, went over for the second, and Jones, subbing for Baker, caught a pass for the third counter. Ellis scored the fourth touchdown when he went over the line in the fourth period.

Travelogue on Interesting European Trip

By Mrs. Mae Van Drezer Bush

July 30th, Berlin.

Dear Ones:

I am skipping a conference this morning in order to write you. I have so little time that I can call my own. Every minute is filled to overflowing. There isn't time enough to do half the interesting things one wishes and has the opportunity to do.

First of all I want to tell you that there is a state of tension here. Our Seminar has been in two parts, the one arranged with the Nazi government at Carl Schurz House and the other arranged quietly and held in various places. A few meetings were held in a private dining room of the hotel with windows closed (remember it's summer) and a member of the party seated at the door to prevent any outsider entering. We went to tea one afternoon at the home of Dr. — but it was suggested we go and leave in small groups. One night Reinold Niebuhr who has been studying conditions in Germany, talked to us. Our room was a meeting place and about fifty came. People sat on the beds, davenport, suitcases and floor. Twice that evening someone walked past our balcony.

It has been a fascinating experience studying this new Germany. You feel her power everywhere you go. In the shops people say "Heil Hitler" instead of "good day," etc. Soldiers are everywhere. The swastika seems to be omnipresent.

Each day the decorations for the Olympics grow more beautiful. Great red banners with the white swastika float from every building. Almost every window has some sort of flag. There are great groupings of the flags of all participating nations. In open places dozens of masts are twined with holly wreaths and gold ribbons and from their tops, fifty feet in the air, are beautiful banners. Under den Linden is all afire with flags and banners; in many places long, narrow banners—some red, some gold—glitter in the sun.

The streets are so crowded one can hardly walk. Many corners have six policemen regulating the traffic. Great masses surge by. One sees people from the far corners of the earth. The French athletes arrived at midnight last night and were given a royal reception. They quite outdid themselves welcoming the French.

This afternoon we were guests of the Government and were taken in buses out to the Boy's Recreation Camp and a Girls' Work Camp. You know all German youth has to go to a work camp for six months. They live a Spartan existence—simple food, straw mattresses, work and recreation. Hit through his youth. There is developing almost an adoration for this man, "die Fuehrer." It is really almost reverence.

The church is having a hard existence. The Nazis are determined to control all thought and fit it into their neo-pagan philosophy. Pastors know spies are in their congregations every Sunday. It has grown to be an honor for a minister to have been in prison. Churches point with pride to the preachers who have suffered for their convictions. The church has been the only force that has successfully defied Hitler so far.

We leave tomorrow morning for Poland. We have two days in Warsaw which we shall enjoy thoroughly, I'm sure. Then from there we leave for Moscow, the great adventure. How often I have been asked, "Why go to Russia?" I have always wanted to see Russia. When I was a little girl I dreamed of it, and the desire has never abated. I shall not find the Russia of Czarist days, but I shall find—I wonder what I shall find? It is now late so I must say good-night. I am thinking of you in beautiful America. You are all probably eating your dinner.

Lovingly, Mae.

(Allegan Gazette) Miss Louise Wyeth of Segragan, Mass., arrived in Allegan Tuesday to begin her work as music teacher in ten rural schools in Trowbridge and Cheshire townships. DON'T LOSE YOUR DEER HUNTER'S TAG - OUT OF LUCK

The attitude of the department of conservation toward deer hunters who lose their identification tags while in the woods this fall is going to be "stiff-bitted." H. R. Sayre, chief of field administration, said that problems will arise from the new license-tag regulations which will necessarily require strict interpretation and application of the law.

"The hunter who loses his tag will be one of these problems," Sayre stated. "No doubt there will be many of them, unless the tag is securely sewed on so that brush can't take it off. But many hunters will want to change garments; they won't be sewing the tags on the backs of their coats."

"When the license tag is lost in the woods, there is only one thing the hunter can do to avoid embarrassment and that is to unload his rifle and quit hunting until a new tag can be obtained. He will be able to get a new tag from the nearest license agent for a fee of 50 cents by surrendering his old deer license and antler tag for new ones. It will not be legal for a hunter to improvise a new tag, even though he uses the correct numerals."

"The conservation officer who finds a hunter in the woods without a tag cannot know whether the tag has been removed purposely or accidentally; he is not supposed to know. He is obliged to make an arrest."

CAN USE "SNEAK BOATS" HUNTING DUCKS

Duck hunters in Michigan may legally use "sneak boats" during the hunting season this fall, even though the summary of federal and state migratory bird regulations accompanying the 1936-1937 act at the game law digests implies that it is forbidden.

"As a matter of fact neither federal nor state regulations limit the operation of sneak boats this year," commented H. D. Ruhl, chief of the game division, department of conservation. "Sneak boats, which are not camouflaged, may operate anywhere in open duck waters. Last year, on account of federal regulations, they could not be used legally beyond 100 feet from well-defined emergent aquatic vegetation and so were of little use. That technicality has been removed from federal regulations this season."

A discrepancy appears between state and federal regulations, involving use of temporary blinds and the state regulation takes precedence.

Federal regulations place no restriction on the place where a temporary blind may be established this year, but Michigan regulations do and the Michigan law will be enforced. The Michigan ruling on use of temporary blinds forbids their use beyond 100 feet from well-defined emergent aquatic vegetation.

BEDBUGS DO NOT BOTHER MARTINS

The idea that swallows and bats spread bedbugs is not based on fact, according to W. L. McAttee, U. S. Bureau of Biological Survey. Insects that resemble bedbugs prey upon both of these wildlife species, McAttee explains, one variety on the swallows and another on the bats. But neither of these will attack man or have the same habits of life as the bedbug.

Scientific Hens Look Pretty Good to Thief

Fred Marks is a refrigerating engineer, but for the past three years his hobby and real life interest has been the cross breeding of chickens. Marks hoped for a hybrid larger than the common hen, which would yield more and bigger eggs.

In the rear of his home at 7235 South Oakley avenue, Chicago, is the Marks garage. On one side is the family automobile, but in the other half is an ultra-modern henery and experimental laboratory. Every night after work and on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, Marks has practically lived in his henery, watching the result of his experiments.

All Sorts of Tests Within a few months the engineer thought he would know definitely what type of hybrid would lay the finest egg. He had crossed Plymouth Rocks with Rhode Island Reds, and White Rocks with Leghorns.

But the chicken coop was a desolate place yesterday. Marks sat alone beside the bare roosts. Some time Saturday night a thief broke into the laboratory and stole all the 50 pound hen and a chicken.

"They were just chickens to the thief, I suppose," said Marks. "But to me they were friends. I knew each one by name. There was Armenta, whose leg I set last winter when she broke it on the runway. And Broken Comb. Part of her comb froze in the cold spell."

Double Yolk Starts It Since he first became interested in the idea of breeding bigger and better hens, Marks has kept a daily record of each chicken, its growth and the size and number of eggs. All of this work is lost unless he recovers his brood.

A little red hen started him on his experimentation three years ago when she produced a large egg with a double yolk. If this happened once, Marks thought, it might eventually be developed into a habit.

Marks crossed this marvelous hen with a rooster of a good breed. Their offspring were superlative. Some of the eggs, in just a few months more, said Marks yesterday, he would have had the solution of what is the best hybrid. He and his wife even intended to buy a farm.

EAGLES LESS DESTRUCTIVE THAN THE GULL

While interviewing U. S. Fisheries Commissioner Frank T. Bell, Grand Rapids recently, we asked him if the bounty now being paid on eagles in Alaska was justified.

Mr. Bell, who had just returned from that territory, stated that he had his doubts on this policy. "The gulls and black bears do more damage to the salmon as they come up the rivers to spawn than all the eagles in Alaska," he said. "The gulls are particularly bad. They swoop down on the fish as they pack the streams and pick out their eyes and continue doing this until the fish disappear. This habit brings about the death of untold numbers of fish. The eagle is more of a scavenger and will devour fish before seeking out another."

The bear will stand in a spawning stream and as the fish attempt to pass it will use its paws to toss out large numbers on the shore and proceeds to eat enough to satisfy its appetite leaving the rest to rot. We have always believed that the eagle bounty is entirely unjustified and Mr. Bell's statement bears this out.

YOUNG WRENS EAT 1,000 INSECTS A DAY

An ornithologist who kept close watch of the activities of a single pair of wrens while the latter were rearing their offspring reported that the parent birds carried 1,000 insects to their young in a single day.

COURTS CAN FIX A LAKE LEVEL

The supreme court affirmed a lower court order fixing the level of two Lenawee county lakes. The board of supervisors petitioned the lower court to define the levels of Round and Devils lakes. The proper level was placed at 1,043.33 feet above sea level. The village of Addison appealed, contending nature, and not the courts must fix levels. The supreme court upheld the lower court finding, declaring it is within the jurisdiction of the courts to determine natural levels.

Another new industry in Holland which will employ—when operations are fully under way—from 50 to 100 persons, largely men, was announced last week by William M. Connelly, director of the Holland Chamber of Commerce. The new firm, to be known as the Fiasco Products, is being incorporated for $15,000. They will manufacture a newly designed line of modernistic shelving for use in homes, stores and other establishments where deluxe shelving is used for display purposes. The shelving is made of plywood, chromium tubing and mirror plate. Officials have taken over the plant at 131 River avenue, which has 12,000 square feet of floor space. The building was formerly occupied by the Holland, Inc., which has moved to larger quarters. C. V. Miller of this city, who is proprietor of the Zealand Wood Turning Works, is president of the concern and Mr. Langius of Zealand is the designer. There is a heavy demand for the Fiasco product at Christmas time and many large department stores have already placed orders with the firm, according to Mr. Connelly. SOCIALIST PARTY VICE-PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE TO SPEAK IN HOLLAND NEXT TUESDAY

George A. Nelson, Wisconsin farm leader and Socialist candidate for Vice-President of the United States, will speak in Holland next Tuesday, so the local socialist Club was informed.

Nelson, a "dirt" farmer, operates his own farm in Milltown, Wis. He was recently elected vice-president of the National Farm Holiday association. For many years he was the president of the Wisconsin Society of Equity, a militant farm organization. He is one of the national directors of the Farmer's Educational and Co-operative Union. He is the Polk County president of the Farm Holiday Association, and is taking an active part in preventing mortgage foreclosures and keeping the farmers on their farms.

He served three terms in the Wisconsin state assembly and was speaker of the house for one session. He also served on the board of regents of the University of Wisconsin for four years.

In 1934 he was the candidate of the Socialist Party of Wisconsin for governor and received over 50,000 votes.

The address will be given in Labor Hall and is free to the public. Farmers are especially invited. The meeting is scheduled for 8 P. M.

County Agent Suggests New Farm Program

LARGE COMMITTEE OF FARM VISITORS NAMED. MEASUREMENTS OF FARMS TAKE.

L. R. Arnold, agricultural agent, states that a definite step toward completion of the new farm program was taken September 24, when all field reporters were present to receive instructions for carrying on field work at the agent's office. Herbert Aue, district supervisor, spent the day in conference with these men. Due to the fact that some equipment failed to arrive, a second meeting was called for October 3, when the men will be instructed in the use of measuring devices. Work will start in the field October 5.

D. H. S. Rymer, Spring Lake, will be county supervisor in charge of all field men. Part of the force will be placed under the supervision of C. L. McNitt of Chester township, a member of the county committee. Glenn Taylor, a county committee member, will act as chief clerk and schedule the men to definite areas and specify which farms are to be measured.

The new program is much more complicated than past programs and much closer supervision is needed. Over 4,000 application cards have been sent out by Mr. Arnold, who acts as secretary of the association. Any farmer may request measurement of his farm by filling in the card and returning it to the agent's office. Field men will visit only farms requesting an inspection. Farmers may contact field reporters for more definite information. Below is a list of men who will visit farms this fall.

Allendale — John Rotman and Eugene TenBrink.

Blendon — Herman H. Vrugink and Andrew Hoffman.

Chester — Guy Barrett, Olen Davenport and John Bolt.

Crocker — Richard Gordon, Mac Easterly and W. H. Fitzpatrick.

Georgetown — Thos. Wilson, Henry Timmer and Stanley Alward.

Grand Haven — Robinson — B. Berghorst, R. Berg and Wm. Kueken.

Jamestown — Abe DeKleine, Dick DeKleine and John Van Oss.

Olive-Port Sheldon — Gerrit Lievens, Abr. Anys and John Nienhuis.

Polkton — John Laug and Ellis Peck.

Tallmadge — Henry Harmsen and Harry Sutter.

Wright — Horace Walcott, A. Zahm and Lyman Brown.

Agricultural Agent L. R. Arnold has set a series of meetings for the purpose of securing suggestions from farmers on the 1937 farm program. If a new farm program is to be written leaders wish to get opinions of farmers, and farmers will be called together throughout the county to formulate the new farm policy. These meetings will be in charge of the present county committee, Glenn Taylor, Sam Rymer and C. L. McNitt. These men will not in any way suggest provision of the new farm program. All ideas will be taken down and transmitted to officials in charge. In other words, the new program will be a farm program made up from recommendations of farmers. These meetings offer an opportunity to discuss it in any way they wish. All meetings begin at 8:00 p. m.

Oct. 5 — Chester township hall, Marshall School, Polkton, Allendale township hall.

Oct. 9 — Holland township hall, Smallgan's Hall, Forest Grove, Blendon township hall.

Oct. 12 — Olive township hall, Tallmadge township hall, Robinson township hall.

FARMER MAY PICK HIS APPLES IN MONTH OF DECEMBER

The warm weather and recent rains have been rather confusing to Mother Nature and as a result Harold Dickinson, of Fennville, has an apple tree in full bloom this week. His daughter, Margaret also picked a bunch of spring violets last week.

To fatten trout and bass for next year's fishermen, thousands of crayfish of all sizes from the Dwight Lydell hatchery at Comstock park are being planted in the Pere Marquette and Pine rivers and inland lakes in this area. The crayfish were reared under direction of Claude Lydell, hatchery superintendent, in bass rearing ponds at the hatchery. Since the crayfish is a scavenger to a great extent, it did not interfere with the bass. Crayfish will be planted annually in lakes and streams as food for fish, whenever a supply is produced at the hatcheries.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

October 4, 1936.
The Macedonian Call—Acts 16: 6-15; Romans 15:18-21.
Henry Geerlings

We know of no more wonderful vision than the one that appeared to Paul in the night at Troas—the one upon which followed most remarkable consequences. We do not know just how it happened. We would not assume to try to explain its processes for we know that it was a mysterious working of the human and the divine no matter just how it took place. This would be true if it were just what we might call a deeper insight into the great needs of a great territory. Luke may have been the human instrumentality used by a divine Providence to call Paul's attention to an open door before him.

But we need not worry ourselves about the how of a something the greater part of which fades into the realm of mystery, even if we have brought to bear upon the problem all the psychology to a great needy Gentile world and that God has many ways of influencing his servant to act. This vision in the night at Troas was one of them. We lose a great deal of valuable time and precious mental energy when we work ourselves into a feverish state of mind trying to discover the how of some things in the realm of the Spirit. It is better for us to accept some things at face value and proceed upon the issues therefrom.

We are ready to say therefore that it was one of the greatest moments in all history when Paul had his vision and acted favorably on it. A long march westward of a new civilization began when Paul and his company left Troas and went into Macedonia. It seems like the most insignificant event that we could well picture when we think of the circumstances. Here was a little company of traveling missionaries simply going in a new direction. One of them saw something in the night and heard something. They go into a very important city of a great empire, it is true, but what can this have to do with starting a great and unending movement that blesses the world. And let us hasten to add to these circumstances the fact that these traveling missionaries went out on a Sabbath day to the bank of a river where they found a few women. They engaged them in conversation and of course the talk was really about Jesus. A master story teller was doing the talking. We can easily imagine that he at once caught the attention and stirred the interest of women on the river bank. He had something marvelous and stirring to tell them. Jesus is always an interesting theme, and how much more so he must be to those who hear of him for the first time. A great personality talks about a greater personality and at once fire is struck in human souls.

We have a mental picture of Paul as he talks. His face glows. His voice is warm with the affection for his great Master. His eyes speak as eloquently as his lips, and we can believe that he must have impressed those good women that he was an extraordinary man with an extraordinary story. At least one woman of the little group heard him with an open mind and surrendered to the power of his message. She and her household were baptized and then there Christianity got a foothold in Europe. But still this seems very insignificant—one good woman won for a cause—just one woman over against millions of people in a pagan empire.

But we make a serious mistake if we despise small beginnings. A few grains of wheat were all there were in the early days of this country, but now we have so many millions of bushels of wheat here that wheat has become one of our economic problems. The small grows into the great; the few into the many. One good woman in whose heart God dwells is enough for God to start a great movement. Christianity thus got its hold on European soil and thereafter the trend of Christian empire was westward instead of eastward. All Europeans who acknowledge the Christ, and certainly all Americans who call themselves Christians, should hold in sacred and precious memory, Lydia, an ancient dealer in purple.

Paul's missionary labors were more than a matter of geography, even though he did preach the gospel from Jerusalem and Antioch on the east, to Illyricum, on the Adriatic Sea, on the west. Religion with him was a matter of joyful experience, and a series of efforts to give the gospel to those who had never heard of it. He could have spoken of the way the Lord used others, but he was not so well acquainted with them as he was with the fruits of his own labors. He had been careful to mind his own affairs. God had worked mightily by his hand, and it was of his familiarity with what had happened to him and through him that he would speak. All praise for what he had been able to do he gave to God.
