CITY AND VICINITY.

Rev. A. VandenBerg of Overisel has declined the call to the First Reformed church of Gano-Chicago, Ill.

James Westveer, city poor director, and Seth Nibbelink, member of the county committee on poor, took Henry TinHolt to the county home at Eastmanville Monday.

Jacob N. Lievense, who has been book keeper for the H. J. Heinz Co., plant at East Saugatuck, has gone to Fremont to keep books in the H. J. Heinz Co. office there.

The Graham and Morton company has announced that it would continue a daily service from Holland and St. Joseph to Chicago until Nov. 1 and that from that time until navigation closes will make three trips a week.

W. F. Doelker, solicitor for the Holland Gas company, received news from Oscoda, Mich., Tuesday that caused him to say indiscriminately "Have a smoke on me." It was news that a daughter had been born to Mr. and Mrs. Berkel of that place, the latter being Mr. Doelker's sister.

The Ottawa County Relief commission at its meeting held in Grand Haven last week recommended that $400 be appropriated by the board of supervisors for the aid of soldiers during 1904. The annual report showed that for the year ending September 30 $354 was expended in aiding veterans of the civil war, leaving on hand a balance of $556. The officers were re-elected as follows: S. H. Boyce, president, G. VanSchelven secretary.

The mayor and members of the council, the city clerk and marshal very pleasantly surprised City Attorney Walter I. Lillie at his home on Franklin street last night. It was on the occasion of his birthday anniversary and Mr. Lillie was presented with a very beautiful meerschaum pipe. Neither was Mrs. Lillie forgotten and the council made her a present of a handsome cracker jar. The party was treated to a bountiful supper and the remainder of the evening was spent in a general good time. The party broke up late in the evening after extending hearty congratulations to Mr. Lillie.—G. H. Tribune.

Holland has a chance to be connected with Benton Harbor and other southern Michigan cities by an electric line according to the following dispatch from South Bend, Ind.: "The Indiana, Illinois and Iowa railroad company has increased its capital stock from $1,000,000 to $6,000,000 with the intention of extending its line from Benton Harbor to points in southwestern Michigan. It is said to be the intention to continue the road to South Haven, Saugatuck, Holland and other Michigan lake towns, tapping the rich fruit belt of Michigan in competition with the Pere Marquette."

Next Monday Tuesday and Wednesday will take place the reservation of seats for the Hope College lecture course. The students are meeting with success in their sale of course tickets and it is expected that the capacity of Winants Chapel will be taxed when Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis appears for the first number Wednesday evening October 21. The Worcester Daily Telegram has the following about Dr. Hillis: "Dr. Hillis spoke for nearly an hour and a half. He is a gifted orator, a rapid speaker, choosing a most captivating theme for discussing before such an inspiring company. He clothed it with choicest diction, interspersing it here and there with flights of oratory, emphasized by platform gestures which added to his power as a speaker, and illustrations which were fitting, and which still further added to the impression he formed on the audience. The listener had to watch for his every word, as he sped through an address at the rate of 150 words per minute, which would have covered six columns of The Telegram."

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Dekker, Seventeenth street, Tuesday—a daughter.

Miss Minnie VanDyk formerly employed by Miss Bessie Bolhuis of this city will again do dress making at her home 106 East Thirteenth street.

Rev. G. H. Dubbink has recovered sufficiently from his recent illness to be able to occupy his pulpit in the Third Reformed church next Sunday.

Another three story brick building will be erected on Eighth street. E. J. Harrington is planning for the erection of a fine business structure on the south side of Eighth street in the vacant space between the Harrington building and the building now occupied by Peter Zalsman. Mr. Harrington would like to have work begin on the structure this fall.

On the famous Lexington Ky., track, where ten years ago his sire, Geo. St. Clair, won a great race, McKinley won the 211 trot Saturday in straight heats in 2:09 and 2:08 for a $1,500 purse. He was driven by Benyon, and opposed to him were Dr. Strong and Bell Kuser, two of the most formidable horses on the track. Today McKinley races again at Lexington.

Two Holland horses made good at the Allegan fair last week. H. Boone, sr.'s trotter, Lena B., driven by Johnny Boone, won the free for all 2:20 trot, best time 2:34. In the 2:35 class Seth Nibbelink's Doras took first money, George R. owned by Boone, coming in second. Alice Mack owned by William Bracelin of Allegan and driven by A. C. VanRaalte of this city, was also a winner in the 2:23 race.

C. Hoffman, formerly cook at L. Van Drezar's restaurant, will next Tuesday open a bird store on the corner of Sixth and River streets. He will have a full line of birds and pet animals, his stock including canaries, mocking-birds, parrots, white rats and mice, large Belgian hares etc. On the opening day he will give away a German imported canary singer. The conditions governing the giving away of this bird will be made known next Tuesday and all persons interested in birds or pet animals are requested to be present.

Carrie Nation had something to do every minute while she was in Allegan last week and did it in a breezy, free, and easy way as the following from the Allegan News shows: "The lecture at the auditorium Wednesday evening by Carrie Nation was largely attended and not a single one in the audience ever heard an address like it. She gave the liquor traffic fits, said women were not perfect when they wore mops on the back of their dresses and low cut gowns to create vulgar thoughts. After the lecture she made a few informal calls, one at the bowery dance, where she said, 'this is nothing but a huggin' skule' She then visited Sam Blaine, gave the married men fits for being in the place, said 'some were gambling for money, and she knew it, and where are the officers of this town any way.' She then snatched a few cigarettes from the mouths of men and boys, who should be brighter than to smoke them, and retired to her virtuous couch for the night. Carrie is a character, but how much good she accomplished by her act is another story."

Kalamazoo's colery crop this year is estimated at over 7,000,000 bunches, valued at $1,200,000. It is not surprising, therefore, that Kalamazoo people have sufficient "nerve" to vote on the proposition to bond the city for $70,000 for the normal school.—Allegan Press

General manager J. C. Evans of the Anchor line of steamers has been in Grand Haven making an inspection of the wharves. It is believed that his purpose was to find a suitable terminal for a car ferry line for the Pennsylvania railroad system. It is known that the Anchor line and the Pennsylvania system are closely identified and for some time Mr. Evans has been expected in Grand Haven to investigate for the latter.

There was an exceptionally large and interesting gathering of the Congregational Club in Tremont Temple last evening. The speaker of the evening was Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis, of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn and the subject of his address was "The Pulpit of Today." The address was one of the most eloquent, thoughtful and convincing that the club has heard for a long time, and it was received with the most emphatic applause and approval.—The Boston Herald.

The Pere Marquette will be operating into Chicago via the Lake Shore and the Chicago Terminal lines before Thanksgiving day, is the announcement coming indirectly from officials of that system. Chief Engineer Alfred has been inspecting the work done in northern Indiana on the extension of the Pere Marquette's line from New Buffalo to Porter. When his investigations were completed he expressed himself as certain that the Pere Marquette would leave the Michigan Central tracks about November 15.

The number of hunters in northern Michigan this year will probably be considerably smaller than in former years because of the curtailment by the railroads of the special hunter's ticket privilege. Heretofore such tickets have been sold to parties of three or more, but the railroads claim that the rule that the purchasers of such reduced rate tickets must travel together has not been observed. For this reason the new order has gone out that hunters will hereafter be required to either pay full fare to the north woods or get up parties of ten in order to get the benefit of the reduced rate.

The Holland and West Allegan county fair this year, was one of the best, if not the best ever held on those beautiful and commodious grounds. The management spared no pains nor money to secure attractions of a high order for the pleasure of the thousands of attendants, despite the rainy weather, who gathered on the grounds to witness the promised performances, stock, vegetables, races, etc., which were carried out as programmed. The management was also on the alert, about the grounds, seeing to it that departments were correctly conducted, a feature hardly ever before being properly attended to. Much credit is due to all the officers and assistants for their gentlemanly ways in managing this year's big fair.—Hamilton Echo.

A SPINSTER'S TRIALS.

It is nice to belong to a big family on some accounts, but it also has its drawbacks. Ever since I left home, 15 years ago, I have tried to please and satisfy my numerous relatives. I haven't succeeded and now I am going to see if I cannot get a little happiness and comfort in my own way.

'Twas like this: My relatives disapproved of my attempt to earn my own living, and said I would never be able to do it. I did it, however, for there seemed nothing else to do after a certain somebody and I had a falling out and I renounced matrimony.

Mother and father were both dead, and I had no home except with brothers or sisters where I was not needed, and where I could not feel free and happy. Mother had wanted to leave her small property to me, or at least the income from it, as I, the youngest, was alone in the world, while all the rest were prosperous; but I knew it would make trouble in the family for her to discriminate in that way, so I talked her out of the plan and when she died was left with the income from only a few hundred dollars.

I have enjoyed my independence, barring the interference of my relatives, who, with the best intentions in the world, have insisted on dictating what I should and what I should not do, notwithstanding the fact that I was a woman in years and experience and was earning my own bread and butter.

When I came to Cincinnati in order to have better treatment for my throat than I could get in M., where I had been living, they were shocked. It was terrible for me to leave the safe shelter of that little city, where there was a second cousin handy to direct my ways.

When I persisted in "exposing myself to the dangers of a big city" they insisted that I should board in the suburbs with brother John's son, who had lately married.

I arrived in the summer, when clerical positions were hard to secure—doubtless so for a stranger, and of course I had to take what I could get. My fate happened to be one where I had to work about half the evenings in the month. Under some circumstances I would not have accepted it, but doctors' bills are a heavy tax and I needed the money.

Of course I wanted to please John, so I agreed to go to the country, and, inconvenient as it was, took up my abode in the spandy new home of that young couple. They meant well, but oh, my! All their interest centered in themselves and their house. Every time I moved a chair from the particular spot they had chosen for it, they shuddered and I could feel their anxious eyes following every movement I made in fear that I would injure in some way their polished floors, their shiny woodwork or their wedding collection of bric-a-brac.

To earn my extra money I had to put in a certain number of hours. For that reason I seldom went out to supper. I usually took a nine o'clock train, and the supper provided for me when I reached home (?) was tomato soup, because that could be made quickly. Tomato soup is something I have always abhorred, and though I expressed my sentiments as gently as possible, tomato soup was what I got, and I went to bed in consequence hungry, irritated and discouraged with life generally.

Their bathroom was the pride of their hearts. It was supplied with soft water, pumped into an upper tank by hand from the cistern below. They bathed but once a week, so the refreshment of a daily bath after escaping the dirt and heat of the city, was denied me. No sooner would I set foot upon the tiled floor of that bathroom than there would be a protest from Louise against musing the clean tub and using up the water in the tank.

I used to lie awake nights scheming how I could get away from there to board in the city without hurting my nephew's feelings or offending brother John, but there seemed to be no way so I stayed on and on.

At Christmas time I thought liberty was at hand, for they wanted to go away for a two weeks' visit, but they did not like to leave the house unwarmed, so they asked me to say and look after the furnace. I was a fool to consent, but I had the ever present dread of John's censure.

Imagine me, if you can, returning to that lonely, dark house each night at ten p. m. By the time I had searched it for lurking robbers, raked down and replenished the fire, I had little ambition left for the preparation of my supper, and that meal generally shrank to bread and jelly eaten from the pantry shelf.

I had to get up before daylight to attend to the furnace, get my cup of coffee and take an early train for the city. All this time, mind you, I was paying for my board as much as it would have cost me in the city, paying railroad fare in addition, and getting very little to eat. This to please members of my family who were doing nothing for me and upon whom I was in no way dependent.

I did finally break away, but not without unpleasantness, and to this day Louise and my nephew think me an ungrateful creature.

I do not blame them. It is natural for the young and newly wedded to be absorbed in themselves and oblivious of the needs of the rest of the world, particularly if the world is represented by that inexcusable thing—in their eyes—a spinster.

Brother John has never forgiven me. Of course I would not slip a word to him in complaint of his son or of the discomfort I had suffered in his house, so I suppose to the end of the chapter he will regard me as a stiff-necked old maid who cannot appreciate a good home, and who willfully disregards the advice of the people to whom she should defer and who know what is best for her.—Farmers' Review.

HOW A TRAMP SAWED WOOD.

Sounds of Hard Work Issued from Shed But Sticks Were Left Intact as Before.

Harry Sanderson, manager for Tony Pastor, who lives at Cranford, N. J., not feeling particularly well, took a day off recently and remained at home. From the window of his library, says the New York Herald, he observed a tramp entering his gate and he walked down to the rear door to meet him. It was this old story—a request for a meal. Having a load of unsawed wood in the shed, he told the fellow that if he got to work and performed on the sawbuck for a brief period he would have something prepared for him.

The tramp went to the shed and immediately the sound of vigorous sawing was heard, stick after stick parting under his energetic efforts. Calling the tramp into the kitchen, Sanderson complimented him upon his energy, and the tramp replied with a modest air that whenever he had anything to do he generally paid attention to it. The meal was eaten and the tramp expressed his thanks and departed.

Shortly afterward Sanderson went out to the shed and was surprised to find every stick of wood intact. Upon inquiry in the village he ascertained that he had been entertaining a stranded ventriloquist, who was working his way back to New York from Easton, Pa. The mean chap had simply gone into the shed and given his imitation of sawing wood.

DRINKING AND SMOKING.

Physician Declares They Are Not Companion Vices—Inebriates Find Little Comfort in the Weed.

"The prevalent idea that drinking and smoking are companion vices is altogether wrong," said a physician, who has made a special study of dipsomania, according to the Philadelphia Record. "I find, on the contrary, that the habitual drunkard is not abnormally addicted to the use of tobacco. He may use the weed as a lesser stimulant when not strongly under the influence of alcohol, but when the drink gets firmly entrenched in his system he cares nothing for tobacco, for then it has lost its force and its influence upon his nerves. Of course I mean in extreme cases.

"On the other hand, it is a rather curious fact that in the case of the moderate drinker, who also smokes, the cutting off of his supply of tobacco will increase his appetite for alcoholic beverages, and while at first the liquor will not affect him nearly so much as when he is smoking, in the end it will do him up. Consequently, it is safe to assume that the man who always used liquor and tobacco in moderation will, if he gives up tobacco, take more strongly to liquor. In fact, this is no assumption; it has been demonstrated on numerous occasions."

A FEW CANNIBAL BIRDS.

Some Feathered Creatures That Prey on Their Fellows—Duck Hawks Are Worst Offenders.

The most unpleasant items on the bill of fare of the bird kingdom are birds themselves, writes a naturalist. The most systematic cannibal among birds is the peregrine falcon, or duck hawk, and where birds are abundant this fastidious gourmand merely eats the flesh of the head and neck and eyes of each victim, leaving the remainder of the body untouched. Occasionally, as among other animals, a bird of strictly vegetarian habits will attack another bird, even one of its own kind, and kill and eat it in the most matter of fact way.

Perhaps every order of the higher warm-blooded animals may be included in the list, from the sloth, which mutely resigns itself to the terrible grip of a harpy eagle, to the human child, powerless before the attack of some bird of prey frenzied with hunger. In certain districts eagles and hawks have been shot smelling strongly of skunk, but whether that fearless animal really figured, except accidentally, in their diet, is to be doubted. If any group of mammals is to be entirely excepted it is only that of the whales. The smaller gnawers of wood, the rodents, suffer most heavily, and untold thousands are devoured by hawks and owls, while cranes, shrikes and ducks make way with their share, and even flamingoes will chase and devour a mouse with avidity.

INSECTS ALWAYS IN DANGER.

Hardly a Single Group Which Does Not Suffer from Appetite of Some Species of Bird.

There is hardly a single group of insects which does not suffer from the appetite of one or more species of bird, says Nature. The eggs and larvae are dug and pried out of their burrows in the wood by woodpeckers and creepers; those underground are scratched and clawed up to view by quail, partridges and many sparrows; warblers and vireos scan every leaf and twig; flycatchers, like the cat family of mammals, lie in wait and surprise the insects on the wing, more particularly those flying near the ground, while swifts, swallows and martins glean a harvest from the host of humming-birds. When we think of humming-birds are taking dainty sips of honey from the flowers they are in reality more often snatching minute spiders and flies from the deep cups of the calyxes. When night falls the insects which have chosen that time as the safer to carry on the business of active life are pounced on by crepuscular feathered beings; the cavernous mouths of whip-poor-wills engulf them as they rise from their hiding places and the bristles of night-hawks brush them into no less rapacious maws if perchance they have succeeded in reaching the under air.

A TRUE FINANCIER.

The Man Who Got One Hundred and Forty-Five Dollars for a Ninety-Dollar Male.

The road to financial success, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, is to ask a little more for everything you have to sell than you think it is worth. I remember a few years ago that James Stewart, of Millersburg, came to town with a mule to sell, and tried all day to sell it for $90, without finding anyone.

He was about ready to go home, when along about sundown a fellow walked up to where it was tied, and looked around it, threw his thumb under its lip and took a peep at its molars, and finally asked him what he would take for it. Thinking he was like the other chances he had encountered during the day, and that there was no hope of a sale, he asked the man $150.

The stranger walked around the mule again and offered $145. But Jim said he was determined to get his price; the other man was stubborn, and said he wanted to go home, and if that wouldn't buy it go he must. Finally Jim concluded that he wanted to go home, too, and with the air of seeming reluctance that was played to perfection, he agreed to let the animal go at $145.

PROTECTING RIVER BANKS.

Railways in Southwestern States Spend Sums on Wattle Mattresses—A Stockman's Wild Ride.

The levees, or embankments, which, under ordinary conditions, confine the Missouri, Arkansas, and other southern rivers of the United States within a definite channel, are strengthened on their river face by means of wattle mattresses, which are covered by layers of stones and earth, says the Sphere. The railway companies have to spend large sums in maintaining their tracks, which run along the river bank, by this method. The papers contained recently an interesting account of the warning of some of the flooded townships and villages in the Missouri valley, by Leslie Matlock—a hardy stockman, of Heppner, Ore., who rode furiously along the river side, like a second Paul Revere, shouting out to the people to get to the hills while the water of the burst river rushed along behind him. The river would pause to fill up hollows, and thus enable the horseman to get in advance of the stream. Finally he reached a telephone office, from which he was able to send warnings rapidly in various directions, thus saving a great many lives.

Mrs. D. VanHouten, of 286 West 12th street says: "I had constant heavy aching pains through the loins, in the muscles of my back and under the shoulderblades. My back tired easily from exertion and if I stooped or lifted anything heavy sharp twinges caught me in the region of my kidneys. I could not rest comfortably in any position and when I first got up mornings I felt as tired and worn out as I was the night previous. I tried a great many remedies, but if any of them benefited me it was very temporary. I was advised to use Doan's Kidney Pills and went to J. O. Doan's drug store and got a box. I did not take them long before I noticed an improvement which steadily continued until I was in good health."

MOB LYNCHES A CHILD MURDERER

Walter Jackson Taken from Jail at Hamilton, Mont., and Is Strung to a Pole.

HE HAD BEEN CONVICTED OF SLAYING A SIX-YEAR-OLD BOY

Crowd of Masked Men Gather at Jail, Overpower Jailer, Secure Their Victim and Quietly Disperse After Dealing Out Their Punishment—Crime an Atrocious One.

Hamilton, Mont., Oct. 14.—Walter Jackson, the convicted murderer of Fannie Buck, a six-year-old boy, was taken from the county jail here late Tuesday night by a mob and lynched.

Shortly before midnight 75 masked men, all armed with rifles or shotguns, forced their way through the rear of the jail and overpowered Jailer Stephens, who was able to offer but slight resistance. Jackson was found cringing in the darkest portion of his cell. He pleaded piteously for mercy, but was rushed into the street, where the mob had already provided themselves with a rope. This was quickly thrown over an electric light pole and the noose placed about Jackson's neck. He was asked if he had anything to say, but only pleaded for mercy. The mob then pulled him into the air, after which they quietly dispersed. Not a shot was fired.

The identity of the mob leaders is unknown. Thirty-five minutes after the lynching, Jackson's body was cut down

IS DECLARED TO BE A CRIME

Faith Cure Receives a Blow in a New York Court.

Decision Says the Law Insists on a Physician's Help in Case of Minors' Illness.

New York, Oct. 14.—Dependence upon faith healing in sickness is declared to be criminal negligence in a decision handed down by the court of appeals Tuesday. The case under consideration was that of J. Luther Pierson, a faith curist of White Plains, N. Y., whose 16-months-old adopted daughter died of bronchial pneumonia without medical attendance. The conviction was secured under the penal code, which holds that "a person who omits without lawful excuse to perform a duty by law imposed upon him, to furnish food, clothing, shelter or medical attendance to a minor is guilty," etc.

Justice Bartlett, in the prevailing opinion in the appellate division, held that the "medical attendance" referred to in the statute does not mean exclusively the attendance of a medical practitioner in the general sense of the term, and the appellate division reversed the conviction. The court of appeals now sustains the first decision, which imposed a fine of $500 or 500 days' imprisonment.

In his opinion, written by Judge Haight, the court of appeals says: "It would seem that the legislative intent is reasonably clear, although possibly more precise language could have been employed. The section of the code under which the indictment was found contemplates that there are persons upon whom the law casts a duty of caring for minors. Sitting as a court of law for the purpose of construing and determining the meaning of statutes, we have nothing to do with variances in

EASTERN FLOODS LEAVE WIDE RUIN

Loss of Property in Paterson and Other New Jersey Towns Is Millions of Dollars.

Thousands of Persons Are Homeless and Fed by Charity—Mills Under Water and Many Bridges Wrecked—The Atlantic Coast Strewed with Wrecks and Lives Are Lost.

Paterson, N. J., Oct. 13.—For 48 hours Paterson was at the mercy of the Passaic river, which caused a damage of $3,000,000 to $6,000,000 in this city. Thousands of persons were made temporarily homeless, most of them being received at the houses of friends in the unflooded districts, while 1,500 were sheltered at the armory, fed and cared for by the organized charity of the city. It will be impossible to closely estimate the loss until the flood subsides, but it will exceed $2,000,000. Only three bridges and a part of a fourth of the seven below the falls remain, and the cost to the county to replace those destroyed will be at least $500,000.

Passaic a Sufferer. Passaic was a greater sufferer from the flood than even Paterson. Twenty mills in Passaic alone were under water and 8,000 workers were out of employment. Ten thousand persons have left their homes. Eight hundred houses were flooded in the eaves, and in all 1,000 acres were covered with water from a depth of a few inches to 20 feet. Several million feet of lumber were carried down to Newark bay. Twenty-three frame houses went floating down the Passaic river, and as far as can be estimated the loss of city property, real estate and buildings, is $2,000,000. Twenty-five bridges were down in Passaic and Sussex counties on the Susquehanna railroad.

Damage Enormous. In and about Trenton the flood damage also was enormous. At least six and possibly all nine of the wagon and foot bridges across the Delaware river between Trenton and Easton, Pa., were carried away. These bridges cost $50,000. All of the Delaware bridges except one are gone between Easton and Port Jervis. About 100 houses in South Trenton were under water.

Ocean City Deserted. Ocean City, Md., Oct. 13.—This city was practically deserted. The greater part of the city was submerged and many of the residents fled. A section of the front of Congress Hall hotel, about 100 feet in extent, was torn away and the entire ocean front of the Windsor hotel collapsed. A large number of cottages also were destroyed.

Loss on the Coast. New York, Oct. 13.—Reports of shipwrecks and immense losses on the Atlantic coast in the hurricane of the last two days were received in New York. The damage will run far into the millions, but no estimate can yet be obtained. One man is known to have perished. This was Rev. E. W. Hawley, of Lake View, N. C., a passenger, who was thrown against the cabin and instantly killed while the Old Dominion liner Jefferson was struggling to free itself from a gigantic wave.

Valley Flooded. New York, Oct. 13.—With a roar that could be heard for miles, a wall of water 15 to 20 feet high rushed down the Ramapo valley last night, sweeping everything in its path for a distance of ten miles. Thousands of dollars' worth of damage was done to homes, live stock and business establishments from Sloatsburg to Pompton.

Floods Receding. New York, Oct. 14.—The floods which have menaced Paterson and Passaic, N. J., for several days are rapidly receding, and there is no apprehension of further damage. The greatest fear now is an epidemic of typhoid and pneumonia. A thousand homeless persons are being cared for by the relief committees at Paterson.

Famous Pitcher Insane. Andover, Mass., Oct. 12.—After felling his nurse with a terrific blow over the head with a stove poker, Edward Doherty, the Pittsburgh National league baseball pitcher, for more than an hour Sunday, armed with the same weapon, held a score of neighbors and several policemen at bay. Finally he was overpowered, and after an examination by two physicians, was adjudged insane and committed to the asylum at Danvers.

Indianapolis Election. Indianapolis, Oct. 14.—At midnight the Journal, the Republican organ, concedes the election of John W. Holtzman, democratic candidate for mayor. The democrats claim he has 1,200 plurality, but the republican committee will not admit defeat. The city is normally republican by from 3,500 to 4,000, but there was bitter opposition to Mayor Bookwalter, who was a candidate for reelection.

Exchanged Places. Washington, Oct. 9.—Capt. George Conners, recently in command of the battleship Illinois, has been selected to succeed Rear Admiral Royal B. Bradford as chief of the bureau of equipment on October 15. Rear Admiral Bradford has resigned his bureau commission and will be assigned to command the Illinois.

Fell Dead. New York, Oct. 14.—Johnson Chase Hull, the oldest letter carrier in New York, and possibly in the country, fell dead while standing beside the coffin containing the body of his brother William at the latter's home in Brooklyn. The doctors say he died from a broken heart.

Nature's Restorative
MALTA PURA GIVES MARVELOUS RESULTS IN EVERY CASE, THOUSANDS OF TESTIMONIALS RECEIVED NOTE WHAT THEY SAY.

It is impossible to publish in the columns of this paper testimonials which will give even the faintest conception of the popular favor which is bestowed on Malta Pura everywhere. Not only do the people who try it speak its praises, but physicians, not a few but in every city welcome it and prescribe it as nature's tonic and a valuable adjunct to the practice of medicine. One lady writes from Los Angeles, California: "I was discouraged. My energy seemed entirely gone. When I awakened in the morning I felt tired, and I had no ambition to work or take any interest in life. My husband heard of Malta Pura, purchased a bottle and this year I am so ambitious I keep everybody on the stir. I certainly feel like a new person."

Another testimonial comes from a young man who had lung trouble in St. Johns, New Brunswick. "Physicians had given me no encouragement except possible relief by change of climate. My brother who was in Boston, heard of Malta Pura and bought a bottle. I felt better almost from the first dose. I have taken fifteen bottles within the past year, but I have gained 30 pounds in weight and am as healthy as a horse. My lungs seem to be all right." Another comes from a working girl in Providence, Rhode Island. "Overwork broke my nervous system and I was a wreck. I gave up and was ready to die. I began taking Malta Pura and today I am well and strong." A physician in Battle Creek says: "I have prescribed Malta Pura in numerous cases of pulmonary trouble, nervous debility, and when a general tonic is required and the results are extremely satisfactory." We never publish names but keep the original letters on file in our office. We will furnish names of these endorsing Malta Pura to any person writing us. Malta Pura is for sale by all leading druggists at a special price of $1.00 per bottle. Manufactured by Battle Creek Health Beverage Co. Lt.—Battle Creek, Mich.

The murder of little Fannie Buck was a peculiarly atrocious crime. When the boy's body was found it was horribly mutilated. Suspicion pointed to Jackson and when he was arrested a lynching was narrowly averted. His trial quickly followed and a verdict was returned within two hours. He was sentenced to be hanged, but his attorneys appealed to the supreme court.

Did Not Draw the Color Line.

Last week a terrific northeast gale swept the Atlantic in the vicinity of the Virginia coast leaving death and devastation in its wake. The beach was strewn with wreckage for miles, and once in a while in this wreckage would be found the lifeless form of some mariner whom the tempest mastered.

Many brave deeds were performed by the life savers who guard life and property on the coast, but none compares with the gallant rescues made by Surman William Capps of the Sea Tack station. The big barge Georgia was wrecked near Sea Track and the captain and one of the negro crew were drowned. Surman Capps rescued the remaining three negroes of the crew after one of the bravest fights with the waves ever recorded.

While two miles from any other human being, and patrolling his stretch between the stations, Capps saw one negro over 100 yards off shore in the roaring surf. Without a moment's consideration of the peril he was facing, he stripped and plunged into the sea that was already a seething mass of wreckage from the barge and after a half hour's battle brought the unconscious man to shore. He had not recovered his breath before he discerned through a rift in the spume a her form. Once more he went in to the surf. This time, by reason of exhaustion, his struggle was a harder one, but he eventually succeeded in saving the negro. Placing both men under the lee of a cliff he started back to the station to give the alarm, when he saw a third negro in the waves and for a third time he plunged in and brought an unconscious man ashore. Capps did not cease his work until all three men had been cared for at the station, and at midnight he resumed his regular trick at patrolling the storm-swept coast.

Capps did not draw the color line when he saw the negroes helpless in the surf. It was his duty, under the articles he signed with Uncle Sam, to save life and he did his duty in the face of great peril. Hats off to Capps.

Willing to Sacrifice Themselves for the Good of the State.

There are several in the field. Some give as their place of abode well known cities in Southern Michigan. Others give as their port of clearance some city in the land of mines, and forests, and state institutions, and politicians—the upper peninsula, in other words. And they are all striving to attain the same goal. They buckle on their armor. They rally forth in indifferent formation. Flanked by newspaper notices at so much per thousand words and biographies at so much per line, and with the banner of publicity well in front, they, with countenance writ all over with virtue, with eyes sparkling with anticipations allow themselves to be pushed(?) toward the common goal. Really it is a sight that will banish nervous prostration. It is a sight that will make man, considered as a non-political unit, turn emerald with envy.

It happens every two years, this march of the faithful after something in particular.

This something in particular is the election to the auditor-generalship of the state of Michigan on the Republican ticket. Why on earth the faithful swarm after this office, making of it something in particular, is a mystery that confounds ordinary reasoning. The salary is not of such munificent proportions that it should come the magnet act on the men who devoutly hope that they may be permitted through the grace of the sovereign people to serve the interests of the most diversified state in the union.

It must be that they covet the honor that lingers 'round the office. And it is an office of honor, come to think about.

So it is "hail, hail," the deserving are all here. It is indeed grand to think that the right kind of men, men like Major Arthur P. Loomis, of Ionia, Dr. James B. Bradley, of Eaton Rapids, Representative A. G. Stone of Lenawee, Land Commissioner Wilder, of Paw Paw and Representative James Munroe of the upper peninsula, are willing to sacrifice themselves on the altar of the auditor-generalship.

The auditor-generalship seems to be more sought after than the governorship.

Graham & Morton Contract for Another Large Steamer.

A Benton Harbor dispatch has the following:

"One of the most important steamboat transactions in recent years has been announced here by the Graham & Morton Transportation company. It is probable that within a very short time, this company will have gained possession of many of the east shore lines. Operating now between Chicago, Benton Harbor, St. Joseph and Holland, the company is reported to have its eyes upon other ports, particularly South Haven and Michigan City.

A contract just closed with the Craig Shipbuilding company provides for a twenty-mile sidewheeler at a cost of about $300,000, capable of carrying 6,000 people. The contract provides that she be launched in 75 days. The new boat will be operated on the Chicago-Benton Harbor route with the Argo and City of Chicago, two other fine steamers.

The big City of Milwaukee will be entirely overhauled during the winter. Her passenger capacity will be increased 500 and her engine and boiler capacity improved. ### Dr. N. M. Steffens Installed.

Dr. N. M. Steffens was installed as professor of Church History in the Western Theological Seminary last Tuesday evening in the presence of a large congregation. The ceremonies were impressive, the addresses delivered by those who took part being particularly good.

Rev. P. Moerdyke was the presiding minister. The services were opened by the reading of the scripture by Rev. A. VandenBerg, after which Dr. A. Oltmans led in prayer, and the Misses Kleyn and the Misses Jean and Isabelle Steffens sang. The sermon was preached by Dr. George S. Bishop, of Orange, N. J., who was appointed for that purpose by the General Synod. Then Rev. Moerdyke read the formula of installation, which was signed by Dr. Steffens; after which a selection was sung by the seminary quartet. Dr. J. W. Beardslee of the seminary offered a prayer and Rev. J. T. Bergen delivered the charge to the professor.

The subject of Dr. Steffens' inaugural address was "Dogmatism in Church History," which he treated in a learned and interesting manner.

Laid Cornerstone of Catholic Church

With ceremonies solemn and impressive and in the presence of nearly 2,000 people, many of whom came from Grand Rapids, Byron Center and other nearby places the corner stone of St. Francis Catholic church was laid Sunday.

The services began with a hymn by St. Mary's choir of Grand Rapids sung with fine effect.

Very Rev. Father Joseph Schrembs, vicar general of the diocese of Grand Rapids, followed with an interesting and eloquent sermon. It was in a large part explanatory of the ceremonies and of some of the customs of the Catholic church. For instance he told that the sprinkling of the building with holy water signified for one thing that the structure was to be freed from all earthly dross and earthly considerations and given over to the service of God. Father Schrembs also brought out the idea that Catholicism meant not antagonism to Christianity, but antagonism to infidelity. He said that as China or some other nation impelled by self-interest would like to see Japan and Russia engage in a warfare of extermination so that profit might accrue to the non-combatant, so the infidels would like to see Catholics and Protestants engage in bitter strife in order that the infidels would profit by the damage done to Christianity should Christians fight.

After Father Schrembs' sermon the cornerstone was laid according to the Roman ritual. The Litany of the Saints was chanted by the priests, the responses being sung by the choir, and the benediction was pronounced.

At the close of the beautiful ceremonies Rev. Father Eickelmann of Byron Center, who as visiting pastor the last few months has shown a lively interest in the affairs of the small Catholic congregation in this city, and who has done so much for the establishment of the new church, made a short address in which he thanked the citizens of Holland and vicinity, Catholics as well as non-Catholics, for the generous aid extended the struggling congregation.

A few remarks were made in the Holland language by Peter Pipe, a well known citizen, of Grand Rapids. The collection taken up amounted to $108.

Besides those mentioned the following priests from out of the city were present: Rev. Father R. Brown, of St. James church, Grand Rapids; Rev. Father J. Schmitt, of St. An-draws Cathedral, Grand Rapids; Rev. Father Henry P. Maus, of Grand Haven, and Rev. Father R. Kuehn, of New Salem.

Card playing doesn't seem to be on the decline to any great extent in this country. The playing card factory at Kalamazoo is being enlarged and sixty more employees will be added to the present force to make it possible to keep up with orders.

Steps will be taken this winter by the fruitgrowers around Fennville to broaden the work of the shippers' association. There has been much complaint this year of the poor service given by the Pere Marquette railway. Efforts will be made to have the trains run on time, and the commission men will be protected against dishonest commission houses.—Allegan Gazette.

John Redfield showed his nerve when Carrie Nation knocked a cigar out of his mouth in the depot at Centerville by seizing her wrist and kissing her. Carrie called him a wicked man, but said she forgave him and gave him a souvenir hatchet. She spoke to several hundred people from the depot platform while waiting for the train.

The story is going the rounds that a Michigan editor, recognizing the place which curiosity occupies in human nature, hit upon a great scheme to enlarge his subscription list. He announced that he had been kissed by the prettiest woman in the town and that he would print her name soon. In two weeks his circulation was nearly doubled. Then he printed the name of his wife.—Ex.

The Jesus Road

At the fifth annual session of the Woman's Missionary society of the classes of Grand River, Holland and Michigan held in Muskegon last week, "The Jesus Road" a poem written especially for the occasion in honor of Grace Sunday was recited by Miss Nina VanZanten. It is as follows:

A welcome, friends, I bring to all of you—

Muskegon's welcome—earnest, heart-felt, true;

But most of all, dear little sister Grace,

With arms of welcome you I would embrace.

For we are sisters, though you dwell afar.

Of one great Father both the children are.

The path of righteousness wherever trod

Is but one path when it leads up to God.

We both are traveling the "Jesus road,"

Both have the Saviour's help to bear our load.

Safe in the arms of Jesus let us stay

And never from His gentle teaching stray.

Though far apart we dwell, and farthier roam.

We travel toward the same beloved home.

But there is more, dear little sister Grace,

Than on the road of life to hold our place.

As swiftly days of childhood hurry by

Let us be ever ready, you and I,

To other children God's dear word to bear,

That they may know the gentle Saviour's care.

When you to your far home shall soon return.

On your own altar let the light still burn.

To tell the story ever ready be.

That these dear friends have taught to you and me.

And let us try the message sweet to send

To other lands to every little friend.

For all our brothers, sisters, let us pray—

That they may learn to walk the "Jesus way."

There is no land where little children dwell

God does not move and hear and see as well;

There are no children in the East or West,

He does not long to gather to his breast.

Let us rejoice we know the Saviour's care.

Let us rejoice—and let us lift a prayer

That children all, whatever their abode,

May learn to walk with us the "Jesus road."

Board of Supervisors.

The fall session of the board of supervisors for Ottawa county opened at two o'clock Monday afternoon and all members were present except Johannes Dykema of Holland, who was unable to attend on account of the injuries received in an accident last week. Wednesday the members of the board at the invitation of P. H. McBride, prosecuting attorney, Attorney Geo. E. Kollen and other local attorneys visited Holland. They were entertained at dinner at Hotel Holland and then visited several of the business places and manufacturing plants for the purpose of obtaining information to aid them in making the equalization. Besides the supervisors, those in the party were Edward P. Kirby, judge of probate, Fremont Brown, county clerk, J. H. Luther, county treasurer and John J. Rutgers, register of deeds.

THE HEART OF A MAID.

I'm glad! I'm glad! Jest as doggone glad,
As glad as a man kin be.
An' the times of old that I one time had An' the world's all right as the world kin be!
An' she suits me mighty fine!
Fer I love the world an' the world loves me,
An' the heart of a maid is mine!
An' that's why I'm glad! th' bird that swings
On th' coffeeberry bush
Don't know what happiness means but sings
When he might as well go hush!
For my heart's a-singin' a glad refrain
That beats his singin' cold!
It's a maid! jest a maid that my heart
has ta'en,
An' the tresses o' her are gold!
An' the maiden's eyes are just as blue
As th' archin' rainwashed sky!
And the heart of the maid—ah, her heart is true—
And the promise that lights her eye
Is a promise fair that she'll joy to keep
Through all the years may bring!
Oh, the birds may hush and may go to sleep,
But my heart's too full of sing!
An' that's why I'm glad, so doggone glad!
For I've come into my own!
An' the dreams of the days 'at I one time had,
And the longin' I knew are flown!
Oh, the heart of a maid is a wonderful gift!
An' to think that it's all, all mine!
And the look that is mine when her shy
eyes lift
God bless her! is all divine!

The Major's Vision

By DINWIDDIE JONES

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

THE conference was over and the major had demonstrated his power as he never had before. It was the culmination of his long years of patient planning and execution. Never before had he permitted any visible manifestation of his influence; always had he worked quietly, unobtrusively, without ostentation, but always effectively. This time, however, he had not hesitated to show the iron hand beneath the velvet glove. This time he had surprised friend and foe by making an open and spectacular demonstration of his dominance, and apparently without reason, except for the keen enjoyment of the situation.

It came as a shock to the assembled politicians, but they accepted his mastery without a murmur.

"He had it coming, if he wanted it," was the gist of the comment.

But followed immediately in every one of the trained minds the thought: "There's the Achilles heel in his armor—there's his weak spot," and the thought was duly pigeon-holed for future use.

"Horace Campbell shall not be the nominee for congress," he had announced with determination. "He has fought me for five years with every weapon his ingenuity could suggest. Now I propose to turn him down in the ambition of his life."

The great majority of those present were for Campbell for one reason or another—principally because he was popular with the people and stood high in every way, and would make a popular candidate, and one easy to win with; a candidate who would reflect credit on the "organization," and the "organization" was sadly in need of credit and approval with the people.

But the major was firm, and it was decided finally to throw the nomination to Rufus Bascom. That settled it, as the 12 men present controlled a great majority of the delegates. The word went out that Bascom was the man, and the major's room in the hotel was besieged by friends of Campbell, who coaxed, cajoled, plead and threatened. The major met all their arguments and pleading with the placid immovability for which he was noted.

It had been determined by a conference of the leaders, he replied, that Mr. Bascom was the most available candidate. Of course, the convention would decide to-morrow, and the delegates would register the will of the people. But the party leaders would advise the nomination of Bascom. Of course, the Campbell men understood that the conference settled it, and that the "bosses" controlled enough delegates who would do their bidding regardless of their own inclinations, to nominate Bascom.

Forsooth, the major was exceedingly well satisfied with himself that evening as he sat in his apartment at the hotel and reflected upon the events of the day. His time had come. He felt the solid rock beneath his feet, the reins of power tight in his grasp. Now he would show his traducers that they had barked up the wrong tree. He had been patient, and had eliminated every atom of personality from his work and his campaigns, keeping only in sight the star of success. And now he had won.

Now let the men whose abuse he had taken so silently, beware. Not a sentence of their condemnation but was burned into his memory, not a blow they had given ever forgotten.

And, first of all, this Campbell would feel the strength of his retaliation. For years he had writhed inwardly, under the caustic eloquence of this young lawyer, who, deemed himself better than the "machine," and who had attempted to block every step in the building of the splendid organization which now controlled the party, and of which he was the head and master. He knew well Campbell's overpowering ambition. He knew it was the dream of the lawyer's life to sit in the halls of congress. By a combination of circumstances all things had conspired this year to make his nomination possible. It was due the county, and he was the most conspicuous figure.

Yes, indeed, this was the major's opportunity for revenge, and he sat grim and complacent, when a card was handed him which forced an expression of surprise to his usually immovable face. It read:

"Mrs. Horace Campbell."

There was no trace of the perplexity he felt as the lady was shown in. As she entered, however, he started, despite his self-control, from an entirely different cause. There was something in the soft blue eyes and the low, broad forehead that carried him back 30 years—something that conjured visions of a rippling river in the soft moonlight—something that made him feel the embrace of white arms about his neck and the pressure of red lips against his.

His brow contracted again in this new perplexity, and an onlooker would have marveled at the similarity of expression in the contraction of the lady's brow.

In the meantime the formalities had been exchanged, and the visitor was seated across the table from the major.

"You, doubtless, are surprised to see me," she began. "I have come to ask you, sir, to withdraw your opposition to my husband's nomination."

The unflinching gaze from her wide-open eyes was remarkably similar to his as he returned it. He knew in an instant that he had a trying interview before him, and attempted to rally that splendid self-possession which always served him so well. But for the first time in his political career it failed him, partially. He could not get the swish of the water out of his ears, and the woman before him seemed enveloped in moonlight, and she seemed to be rocking in a boat upon the river. He was possessed of a nameless fear.

"Of course, my husband does not know I am here," she went on, presently. "He would rather cut off his right arm than to send you any emissary—and particularly me. But I know the situation. I know everything is ripe for his nomination, excepting your aid, that your lone influence will defeat him. It is the cherished ambition of his life to go to congress, and this is his opportunity. If it eludes him it may never return. I do not know the reason for your opposition, but I want you to state it, and see if the matter cannot be arranged. I ask you in the name of a woman for whom her husband has done everything, and who seeks to aid him in his hour of need."

The tension on the major's nerves grew as the woman talked.

"In Heaven's name, who are you?" he cried, when she paused.

"I am a woman without a father and without a name until my husband gave me his," she replied, two bright spots appearing in her cheeks. "I was brought up in a foundling's home, but learned, eventually, who my mother was. She killed herself soon after my birth. My father left her to bear the burden alone. Knowing all this, Horace Campbell married me, and gave me the name my father's cowardice and selfishness deprived me of. Do you wonder that I want to help him, at any cost?"

HIS BROW CONTRACTED AGAIN.

The major sat rigid, holding on to the arms of his chair with a grip like a vice. "And your mother lived—where, may I ask?" he demanded, hoarsely.

She named the town and state. He gave a quick gasp, rose suddenly and walked to the window, which he threw wide open. He stood with his back toward his visitor, his face working convulsively. By the utmost exertion he recovered a part of his self-possession and returned to the table.

"Madam," he said, in a voice which trembled despite his utmost exertion, "your husband will be the nominee of the convention to-morrow, if any influence of mine can accomplish it."

"But I do not understand—" she began, the wrinkles of perplexity reappearing in her brow.

"You do not need to," he interrupted. "I beg of you to accept the assurances—and go—please go, madam," he ended, brokenly.

As she left the room he said: "I do this wholly for you, madam, if that knowledge is any comfort to you. No influence of his could have moved me."

All night long the major sat at the table, his head buried in his arms. In the morning there was a hastily summoned conference, at which the decision of the previous day was reversed, and that afternoon Horace Campbell was nominated for congress.

The Good Highlanders.

During the Crimean war a Scotch officer was appointed to command a regiment recruited in Glasgow, Scotland, and, being a Highlander, took a vote of the regiment to determine whether the men favored the adoption of the Highland costume.

In due time the regimental orderly appeared before the colonel, with the result of the vote.

"Well, orderly," said he, "how many of the men favored the adoption of the Highland plaid?"

"Only two, sir."

"Only two! Well, I am glad I have at least two good Highlanders in my regiment. Who are they?"

"Corporal Flaherty and Private Mulligan, sir."—Philadelphia Ledger.

A TRIPLE TRAGEDY.

Indian in Northern Wisconsin Finds Interlocked Deer Horns—Three Bucks Fought to a Finish.

An Indian from the Flambeau reservation in northern Wisconsin recently came into the fishing resort of Squaw Lake with a curiosity in the way of deer horns he wished to sell. Failing to make a sale, he took the horns back to the reservation. The Montreal Witness describes his treasure as three sets of antlers inextricably interlocked. Two sets of antlers so locked are rare, but not unknown. It is believed that the Flambeau Chippeway has the only set of three-locked antlers in the world.

The accident could have happened only in one way. Two bucks of equal strength were fighting in the forest and became locked. Then, while they were still struggling, a third buck appeared and charged them both, probably repeatedly, until its own horns became fastened.

The Indian says he found the horns north of Flambeau Lake, about a mile from the water. They were lying on the side of a hill, and there were no bones near them. The condition of the horns proved that the fight occurred not more than two years ago. The antlers were all of full-grown bucks, showing eight and ten points each.

The third pair had been driven into the others just above where they were joined, and the branches of them were about equally locked with the branches of the others.

They were not broken or chipped in any way, which seems to indicate that when the third buck had made his last charge he was fastened so firmly that there was no room for any one of his points to play in the forks of the others. Indeed, all the horns were so stoutly joined that they could not be moved at all. They are as rigid as if molded in that fashion from steel.

INTERESTING LOT OF MEN.

Personnel of a Railroad Wrecking Crew—Usually Includes Some Left-Handed Men—Sailors Handy.

They are an interesting lot of men—the wreckers—as described by Mr. Day Allen Willey in his article on Minute Men of the Rail, in Pearson's. Selected from the veterans in the car shops, they are "all-round" mechanics; but brains as well as fingers are needed, and a man has to be quick-witted to get into this gang. In the fifteen or twenty which make up the average crew, you can generally find two or three who are little men, for there are tight places in a wreck where little men can do considerable work in propping up or loosening a part, crawling into holes which no one else could reach. The boss wrecker tries to get two or three "left-handers" also, as their services are valuable in hammering away in corners where a right-handed man would be useless. Some of the best wrecking crews in the country include a number of sailors. The half-bitches and other knots that only the seamen can make are of great service in securely fastening lines to portions of the wreck and to the locomotive used in pulling it away. The "old salts" are familiar with the assistance that a combination of pulleys will give, for they have been taught it on shipboard, while usually they are very strong and wiry. Consequently a man of this kind who is "out of a job" can frequently go with the wrecking crew.

A UTILITARIAN KITE.

Uses of the Cody Aeroplane as Described by Its Inventor—Withstands Strong Breeze.

"My invention," Mr. S. F. Cody writes, in his article in the Pearson's, explaining his recent invention, "I have called the 'Cody Aeroplane.' One of the main objects aimed at in the construction of the aeroplane is utility for reconnoitering purposes—during any weather, day or night—in time of war, both on land and at sea.

"In its present stage it has been proved quite practical as a carrier and support for wireless telegraph apparatus, for taking photographs at any given altitude, man-lifting and signaling.

"During my recent experiments at sea it has been conclusively proved that my aeroplane will fly successfully with a vessel that is going full steam ahead with a beam gale; the same success in flying has been achieved on land, with no more than a seven or eight-mile breeze.

"Then, again, I have experienced a wind of 58 miles an hour, and perhaps the strength of such a force will be better understood and realized when I say that it is almost strong enough to uproot trees and carry away solidly-built frame houses."

It Is a Mistaken Idea

To give too much time to the selection of a Piano; this time could better be spent in selecting a dealer. It should not be hard to size him up by the very appearance of things; for instance, if he be disposed to depreciate his competitor, its pretty strong evidence he hasn't much to offer for himself. One may well have reason to be suspicious of a dealer who promises very much more than is promised by other dealers in a like business. Select the dealer right and the good piano follows. Suffered Terribly—Doctors Failed.
Dr. Miles' Nervine Cured Him.

Weak, nervous, fretful, puffy children require a treatment such as only Dr. Miles' Nervine affords. When neglected these symptoms lead to epileptic fits or spasms. Every mother should strengthen her own and her baby's nerves with Dr. Miles' Nervine, a true specific in all nervous disorders. Read the following:

"When my little boy was 18 months old he had cramps in his feet and hands. They would be drawn out of shape for two or three days. At first I thought it was a cold, but the doctor gave him. We called another doctor but his medicine did no good so we changed to another who called it spinal disease. By this time the child's body was drawn out of shape; his backbone was curved to one side and his hands and feet out of shape. His sufferings were terrible, and he was having from two to six fits a day. I was taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine for nervous trouble and saw it was recommended for fits, so I thought I would see if it would help him. All three doctors had given him up. One-half bottle stopped the fits and his limbs straightened, and another bottle cured him. He is now a strong, healthy boy going to school. I have waited to see if the old trouble returned, but when writing you, but it never has. I cannot praise Dr. Miles' Nervine enough, as I know it saved my boy's life."—MRS. ## THOUSANDS MADE VOTERS BY FRAUD

Startling Evasion of Naturalization Law Discovered by Secret Agents of Government.

Many Courts Have Not Enforced the New Measure—Chicago Judge Fails to Require Oath Against Anarchy—President May Ask Congress to Limit Power to Federal Courts.

Tacoma, Wash., Oct. 13.—Startling irregularities in the enforcement of the naturalization law effective June 3 have been found in many states throughout the country by C. B. C. Van Deusen, special agent of the department of justice, who is now returning from Tacoma to Washington.

Van Deusen is a resident of Brooklyn, and was sent out to ascertain how the new law is being enforced by the state and federal courts. After traveling through the central and western states he now returns to Washington to examine reports resulting from the sending of blanks to 9,000 courts with instructions that they be filled out and returned with information concerning all naturalizations since June 3.

Often Overlooked.
The new law is different from the old in containing an ironclad oath which prevents anyone with anarchistic belief or tendencies from becoming a citizen, and is an outgrowth of President McKinley's assassination. Information concerning this phase of the law was conveyed through the press and official notification, but Van Deusen finds that it and other provisions of the law are being overlooked by dozens of courts. In Tacoma the oath relative to anarchy has been uniformly required, only four Japanese having been illegally admitted to citizenship.

Errors Found.
In some states the irregularities have been on a wholesale scale. One Chicago judge was found to have admitted 1,800 foreigners to citizenship in one evening, an act physically impossible unless the oath was administered to applicants in platoons, while the law presumes an individual administration.

A much greater mistake has been made in Ohio, where over 250,000 men have been admitted to citizenship by probate judges, who have no right to administer the oath. From a legal standpoint these men still are foreigners.

It is understood that the many errors have prompted President Roosevelt to suggest that a bill be presented to the next congress limiting the right of naturalization to the federal courts.

COMMERCIAL TREATY.

Agreement Made Between United States and China Has Been Ratified—Principal Features.

Washington, Oct. 9.—The state department was informed that the American-Chinese commercial treaty had been signed at Shanghai. An imperial decree by the Chinese government has made the treaty effective so far as that government is concerned, but it must be ratified by the United States senate before ratifications can be exchanged and the treaty put in operation. The principal points of the treaty are briefly as follows:

First, settlement of the long-voiced question of internal taxation in China. Second, recognition of Americans' right of residence throughout the empire for missionary work.

Third, protection of patents, trademarks and copyrights.

Fourth, mining rights.

Fifth, opening of new localities to international trade in the part of the empire in which the United States has vast commercial interests.

Sixth, right to carry on trade, industries and manufactures in all ports of China.

Have Remarkable Escape.
New York, Oct. 13.—Forty men and women passengers in a trolley car have had a remarkable escape from death near Williamsbridge. All were badly shaken up and cut by glass, but none was seriously injured. A stone derailed the car when moving at high speed. It ran 150 feet over the roadway and then toppled into a ditch. Nearly all the women fainted and were removed through the broken windows.

More Bodies Found.
Hanna, Wyo., Oct. 13.—Entry No. 22 in the coal mine has just been opened and 24 badly decomposed bodies of victims of the disaster of June 30 found. The remains will be brought to the surface for identification and burial as fast as possible. Of the 169 men who were killed, there are 20 bodies in the mine.

Found Not Guilty.
Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 9.—Private John Dowd, the United States sentry who shot and killed William Crowley, near the United States arsenal here, a few weeks ago, was released from confinement Thursday, the verdict of the court-martial being not guilty. The finding of the court was fully upheld by Maj. Gen. Adna R. Chaffee.

Commits Suicide.
Columbus, O., Oct. 13.—Hugo Schultz, manager of the Terry Engraving company, committed suicide by hanging himself in the engraving plant Sunday night, being found early Monday. Worry over financial matters was the probable cause. He was 32 years old and unmarried.

Big Price for Fox Terrier.
London, Oct. 12.—The champion fox terrier, "Baby Coastguard," bred by the duchess of Newcastle, was sold on Saturday to a San Francisco breeder for nearly $2,500.

TRIPLE TRAGEDY.

Man Kills His Wife, Wounds a Boy—Stander and Then Commits Suicide in Menasha, Wis.

Menasha, Wis., Oct. 14.—Frederick Crawford, of Oshkosh, shot and killed his wife in this city, wounded a man named L. J. Jourdain, and then blew out his own brains. Crawford and his wife had been separated for some time. A meeting had been planned between the two for Tuesday night. As Mrs. Crawford was passing the public library Crawford drew a pistol and shot her dead. Mr. Jourdain, who is engaged in the insurance business, stepped up and asked Crawford what the trouble was. Crawford, without making any reply, fired on Jourdain, severely wounding him, but there are hopes of his recovery. Crawford then sent a bullet through his brain, dying instantly. Crawford was a plumber by trade, and was well known in Oshkosh, where he had made his home for years. He was 50 years old and his wife 30 years. They had three children, which were taken by the wife when they separated.

SWEEPING INJUNCTION.

Under It Labor Organizations Are Prohibited from Boycotting a Newspaper in Ohio.

Hamilton, O., Oct. 14.—Judge Belden has granted one of the most sweeping injunctions ever issued by an Ohio court. It was directed against the Hamilton Typographical union, the Hamilton Cooperative Trades and Labor council, and the Nonpareil Printing company, publishers of the county trade organ. The defendants are enjoined from continuing a boycott on the Republican News or firms which advertise in it, and told that interference of every sort with the company's business must stop. The court said the constitution gave any company the right to employ whomsoever they saw fit. The boycott was to force the plaintiff to unionize and abandon its "open shop" policy.

AIRSHIP A FAILURE.

Prof. Langley's Machine Sails Only One Hundred Yards Before It Plunges Into Potomac.

Widewater, Va., Oct. 9.—The 60-foot steel-billed flying machine, the climax of years of exhaustive study in the efforts of Prof. Samuel P. Langley, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, to solve the problem of mechanical flight in midair, was launched yesterday afternoon, and the experiment, carefully planned and delayed for months, proved a complete failure. The immense airship sped rapidly along its 70-foot track, was carried by its own momentum for 100 yards, and then fell gradually into the Potomac river, whence it emerged a total wreck.

Newspaper Plant Wrecked.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 14.—A special to the Dispatch from Jamestown, N. D., says: At an early hour Sunday morning a mob entered the office of the Journal at Kensal and spilled several cases of type in the street. The interior of the office was wrecked. The work was done so quickly that Editor C. L. Allen did not discover the havoc caused in his office until some time after it had occurred. He had been fighting a lawless element in his paper, and it is believed the members of that gang committed the outrage.

Goed to Prison for Life.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—Earl Ellsworth was sentenced to life imprisonment in the state penitentiary Tuesday by Judge Donnelly of Woodstock. The self-confessed murderer heard the court's decree with the same stolidity which has characterized his demeanor ever since the day, 18 months ago, he shot to death his father, Benjamin Ellsworth, and the aged friend of the family, Amos W. Anderson. In pronouncing sentence Judge Donnelly, who had known the prisoner from childhood, was visibly shaken.

Acted in Self-Defense.

Cairo, Ill., Oct. 14.—Den Pitts, who lives at Anna, Ill., went home drunk Monday night and attacked his wife with a knife, cutting her throat and inflicting fatal injuries. Pitts was then attacked by his stepson, Claude Wright, who cut Pitts' throat from ear to ear, severing the jugular vein. Pitts died Tuesday. At a preliminary trial young Wright was acquitted, as it was claimed he acted in self-defense.

Given Fifty Years for Murder.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 14.—A special to the Dispatch from Helena, Mont., says: Judge Land, at Glendive, has sentenced John Kenahan, convicted of murder in the second degree, to 50 years in prison. John Wilson, who was arrested with Kenahan on the charge of having murdered Thomas McGowan and another on top of a box car, has also been found guilty of murder in the second degree.

No Fear of War.

Yokohama, Oct. 14.—All reports emanating from Shanghai of the opening of hostilities between Japan and Russia, etc., may be dismissed as absurd. Both Japan and Russia appear willing to arrange a modus vivendi concerning Korea, which country, and not Manchuria, is the extreme point of difference.

Knapp Case Appealed.

Hamilton, O., Oct. 13.—The case of Alfred Knapp, sentenced to be electrocuted December 12 for the murder of his wife, Hannah Goddard Knapp, was Monday afternoon appealed to the circuit court on error. The transcript was filed three hours before the expiration of the 40 days allowed by law for filing a petition in error.

A FIVE-DOLLAR SMOKE.

Kind That Is Shown to Customers Who Want the Most Expensive in the Store.

Five dollars for a cigar! And if you bought a hundred of them you would have to pay $500, with no discount off for cash, says the Chicago Inter-Ocean. "No, we don't sell many of them," said a clerk to a curious customer. "Sometimes a sporty-looking individual, evidently from out of town, comes in here and wants 'the best cigar in the shop.' He means the most expensive, of course, and the $5 cigar is shown to him. This is the way we get rid of most of them. Of course, they are worth $5, if you don't care for expenses. They are all Havana, including the wrapper. This is what makes them cost so much. The cigars are five times as large as the ordinary one, and it is extremely difficult to get a leaf of Havana large enough for a wrapper. In 1,000 'hands' of tobacco we won't find one leaf of the requisite size and quality.

"The last one we sold was two weeks ago. A boy of the messenger type came in here and sidled up to the counter.

"'Gimme a f' dollar cigar,' he demanded.

"'Run along,' I said. "By way of answer he threw a $5 bill on the counter and repeated his request. I gave the cigar to him and he went out. I suppose some one must have sent him for it, possibly a cigar manufacturer, who wanted to keep his identity hidden."

A TURKISH GENTLEMAN.

Accomplished European Has Become Universal Pattern of Oriental—His Social Equipment.

Among the Turkish men, as every one knows, the transformation of the exclusive Oriental into the accomplished European is already become the universal pattern of a Turkish gentleman, says Anna Bowman Dodd in the Century. Whatever his party, whether he belong to the old or young Turkey party, the Turk of any pretension to style or to social state clothes himself in certain of the European modes of thought, as he does, sartorially, in European dress.

Whatever the laws governing the standard of manners in Turkish life may be their results prove them to be beyond criticism. The Turk has not only perfect manners, but he also has this peculiarity among other eastern nations; however lowly his birth, once he has "arrived," he is transformed into an aristocrat of deeply inrooted conservative tendencies, who yet presents, outwardly, a most engaging, sympathetic plasticity. Those whose lineage has ancestral distinction reveal a most engaging social equipment. "Whenever I want to talk to a man who understands everything, I turn to B—Bey," said a beautiful woman to me recently in Rome. "He is as clever as a Frenchman, as versatile as our American men, and he has the sympathetic quality of a woman."

MOTORING WOMEN ARE PLAIN.

Fad of the Present Has a Tendency to Destroy One's Beauty—Makes the Features Coarse.

For some time past it has been noticed that the motoring women are all plain in appearance, and those who were once classed among the beauties, or were at least attractive, have become coarse of feature and many of them positively homely. Motoring in itself, however, is not a beauty destroyer; it is the excess of the pastime that is pernicious. Moderate motoring, by improving health and the capacity for sleep, enhances a woman's charm, but the hardened tourist type of 150 miles a day tans and coarsens her skin, and gets crow's feet around her eyes; her face loses its soft womanly contour and gains hardness and determination. Of course the same is true of many outdoor sports indulged in to excess, but no other sport possesses such talismans against beauty loss as lie in mask and goggles. Some devoted motorists fly in the face of Providence by refusing to wear even a veil, and their punishment in loss of loveliness is out of all proportion to their sins and negligence of automobile appliances for preserving beauty.

Dangers of Mountain-Climbing.

Three tourists in Switzerland, two of them women, were compelled a few weeks ago to spend a night standing in the snow near the summit of the precipitous and dangerous Piz Aela. All this time the rain came down in torrents, snow and rock avalanches fell round about, and one of the women was injured by a stone falling on her head. On Monte Rosa, in the same week, an Englishman slipped and fell over a precipice. He had two guides, one of whom, with a herculean effort, held the rope by which the tourist was suspended more than six hours, while the other went for assistance.

A pig with seven feet is the prodigy C. C. Nelson, a farmer living east of there, raised and sold to a traveling agent this week to exhibit at fairs. The pig is one of the queerest freaks ever raised in this vicinity. At the knee joint of one front leg two well-formed legs branch out and three at the knee joint of the other leg, making five front feet. All of the feet touch the ground when the pig walks, the hind feet are natural as in other pigs.

Novel Tag-of-War.

After quarrelling over the respective strength of a horse and a mule two farmers at Segovia, Spain, decided to settle the matter by a tug-of-war. The animals were harnessed one at each end of a cart. After a desperate struggle the mule triumphed, pulling the horse off its legs and galloping away with it.

The Holland Stamping works which was moved here recently from Grand Rapids and installed in the building formerly used by A. VanPutten as a stove mill, has proved a profit making concern, thanks largely to the local men in charge. On account of the large increase in business and the rapidly growing demand for the products manufactured, which are principally stove boards and steel ceiling, it has been found expedient to enlarge the plant, and the company has been reorganized and has had its capitalization increased to $35,000. About $14,000 worth of stock will be placed on the market and in view of the success attained so far and the bright prospects for additional success, this stock will undoubtedly be disposed of very readily. ## Foot Ball Saturday Afternoon.

Tomorrow at 2:30 the Holland High school eleven will play the Grand Haven High school eleven in this city. The game promises to be a fast one as both teams have been for some time training faithfully for the contest. Of course it will be exciting as there never has been a contest of any kind between Holland and Grand Haven that has not been exciting. Coach Demming is rounding his willing squad into shape in surprising style and as he has had some assistance from some of the men who belonged to the invincible independent team of a couple of years ago some speed will doubtlessly be in evidence tomorrow.

The following from the G. H. Tribune shows what the Grand Havenites are doing:

"Dan F. Pagelson has taken charge of the high school foot ball team and is whipping them into shape rapidly. The team contains some good sized material and should make a good showing before the season closes.

The team is rapidly rounding into shape for the game at Holland next Saturday. It is the heaviest that has ever gone out of the Grand Haven High school and as they are fast for a comparatively green team, it is expected that they will make a good showing against Holland. The team will have heavy backs and fast ends. The team's defence is at present very much better than the offence but the Coach is building interference that will be a winner."

Hamilton, 6; Holland Juniors, 1. An Eleven Inning Game.

There was a great game of base ball played in Hamilton the first of the week between the Holland Juniors and the Hamilton Giants. It took eleven innings to decide the controversy and during all the time the boys had the wind in their favor, the weather in their favor, in fact everything was in their favor except the score and the umpire, the score being 6 to 5 in favor of Hamilton.

"Swede" Vos, the young man from Holland who went to Shelby this summer and won undying fame by pitching a game for Shelby against Luther of Hart, was in the box for the Juniors and did effective work from the first whirl of the bat.

Nether club scored in the first two innings. In the third Holland made one and Hamilton made one, Bos absent-mindedly allowing a man to slip home. Hamilton gave Holland the stage fright in the sixth by making two more. But Holland returned the compliment by making one in the seventh. Holland stock took a downward plunge in the eighth when Hamilton made two. Interest was intense in the ninth inning. The Holland boys knew they had to put some vim in circulation if they wished to save their scalps, and none of them knew it better than Manager "Legs." He threw the strength of Sandow into his mighty wagon tongue and crashed it against the horsehide for a two-bagger. His feat encouraged the two next men up and they binged singles to the music of "Home Sweet Home" and then were put out. With two gone the sky took on a leaden hue, but Engleright, the man from the wilds of Muskegon, dispelled the gloom by knocking the ball into the adjoining section for a home run, tying the score. Blanks were drawn by both contending hosts in the tenth and the agony was ended in the eleventh when a Hamiltonite tore across the plate with the winning score.

The Hamilton fans say it was the most interesting game played on the Hamilton diamond this season.

Jack DeFeyer was captain of the Holland Club.

Umpire, Jesse Kiefer. Time of game 1:50.

Following was the Holland lineup: Slim Vos, pitcher; Bud Betts, s. s.; Bill Kuite, 1 b.; Harry Bush, 2 b.; P. Heneries, 3 b.; John Betts, r. f.; Harry Engleright, c. f.; Humphy Bakeman, 1 f.; Art Vanden Berg, c.
