It is certainly one of the best things ever made. For sale at Heber Walsh's drug store Holland. 1 m.

Will Streur, an employe at King's factory, had one of his forefingers cut severely while at work Tuesday morning.

Editor Verweij of the Grondwet addressed a large Republican meeting of Hollanders in Muskegon, Thursday evening.

The long delayed column for the new bank block has arrived and is being placed in position. From now on the work is expected to go on uninterruptedly.

Rev. H. G. Birchby and family arrived Tuesday evening, and until the arrival of their household goods are stopping at the City-Hotel. Rev. B. will assume his pastorate of Hope church next Sunday, and will be installed Wednesday evening.

The Band of Ladies of the M. E. Church will give a social on Wednesday evening, Oct. 19, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. S. Crandall on Seventh street, the proceeds of which will be used to purchase a stove for the lecture room of the church. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Wednesday A. De Kruijff of Zeeland made complaint before Justice Post against Cornelius Boone, also of Zeeland, for assault and battery. The offense was committed on the fair grounds, on the Saturday afternoon previous to fair week. This is the third time within a brief period that the accused has been called to answer such a charge. Besides, in this case his victim was an invalid. The trial has been set for next Wednesday.

Wheat 69 cents.

Meeting of the Republican Club next Wednesday evening.

Rev. J. Keizer of Graafschap has received a call from Muskegon.

The Wolverine Electric Light plant commenced this week with running all night. The increasing use for domestic purposes made it incumbent upon them to do so.

Andrew Aagaart, a teamster at King's factory, fell down stairs, last Monday and sustained some severe bruises about the head and shoulders. Dr. O. E. Yates attended him.

The Common Council has established the usual places in the several wards for registration and election, except that in the Fourth ward the residence of Ald. Habermann has been designated.

Herman Vaupell and Frank Van Ry each borrowed a shot-gun last Tuesday, with the intention of killing all the ducks around Black lake. This was Herman's first attempt at sport, and it may be his last, judging from the looks of the game bag on the return home.

The rush at Harrington's clothing store since he has opened his immense stock of ready made clothing is larger than ever before. In overcoats especially there are some rare bargains. Large inducements are offered to cash buyers of suits. Choice selection of winter gloves and mittens.

Monday morning the eleven years old boy of D. Jonker started on his way to school as usual, but did not return at noon, nor at night. Kind neighbors assisted in the search, but no trace of the child could be had until the following afternoon, when he was found with some relatives at Vriesland, twelve miles from home. The anxiety of the parents was great, and they have scarcely recovered from the effects thereof.

Mr. E. C. Kelly, business manager of St. Joseph Bichloride of Gold Co., was in town this week and made a very liberal offer to treat indigent patients for the W. C. T. U., and it is probable they will interest themselves in this humane and benevolent work. The officers of the St. Joseph Co. are among the leading business and professional men of that city. Nearly a thousand patients have already been treated by the methods employed by this company.

The Banjo Orchestra of this city, which numbers among its members some excellent players on the guitar, banjo, violin and mandolin, visited our neighbors at Zeeland one evening this week, under the guise of a colored medicine troupe. Between their musical selections, which were well received by the crowds in the street, they advertised their renowned remedies for earache, toothache, headache, and any other ache, they imagined a Zeelander was heir to; at the same time distributing with liberal hand small bottles filled with highly colored samples of their never failing curative. They report an intense anxiety among the good people of Zeeland, to avail themselves of this priceless opportunity, and in return promised them another visit at an early date. The demand for their "remedy" must have been so great that it aroused the envy of one of the local dealers, who told the people he kept the same article in stock. Since writing the above however we have learned the other side of this episode, and a correspondent from Zeeland sends us the following: "Five Yokels from Holland, lavishly covered with grease, paint and burnt cork, and one with whiskers like a cat, drove into town Wednesday evening, to give a free street concert and exhibition of what they did not know of banjo playing and advertising patent medicines. Their make-up was so flat, that everybody tumbled to the hoax, and they were unmercifully gayed for their trouble."

Attention is called to the corrected C. & W. M. time table.

A Steketee has taken up the plank side walk in front of his store and will replace it with an asbestine walk. Costing is doing the work. It is said that several others will follow suit.

The premium list and the corner stone festivities unavoidably crowd out much other local matter this week. This will also explain to our correspondents why some of their contributions have been delayed until next issue.

A dog attached to a small express wagon frightened a horse belonging to Dr. Wm. Van den Berg of North Holland, Thursday. The horse ran down Eighth street and had jumped over a few fences before he could be managed. No damages, save a broken cross bar on the road cart, and a damaged harness.

This week three plats have been recorded in the office of the register of deeds: "Waverly," embracing about 20 acres west of the C. & W. M. main track, C. M. Heald proprietor. "Western Addition to Waverly," about 7 acres, adjoining the Waverly plat on the west, F. Bird proprietor. "De Vries Addition to Waverly," about 10 acres, adjoining the Waverly plat on the east, John De Vries proprietor.

Thursday evening as the passenger train from Chicago pulled into this city a passenger named Peter Reed from Chicago, on his way to Allegan, thinking he had reached the station stepped from the still moving train and fell to the ground, with his right hand on the rail, severing it near the wrist. He was taken to the Aniba House, where Dr. O. E. Yates, assisted by Dr. F. J. Schouten, amputated the member. He further complained about a terrible pain in his shoulder, and upon examination it was found that this member was also dislocated. He is 46 years old, and has a wife and three children in Chicago.

DOWN WITH A RUSH.

WHEAT DROPS TWO CENTS UPON THE CHICAGO BOARD.

The Pageant in New York Harbor—Wilson Madman Runs Amuck—Sensational Disclosures in the Maybrick Case—Choctaws Can't Settle Their Election.

Stricken from the Roll.
The Minister of Militia has struck off the roll of militia officers of Canada the name of Lieutenant E. A. Macdonald, of Toronto, who has recently been lecturing in Boston in favor of the annexation of Canada to the United States. Mr. Bowell says he does not wish to interfere with the freedom of speech, but he thinks Macdonald's views incompatible with holding a commission in her Majesty's forces.

TO FREE MRS. MAYBRICK.

A Dying Man Confesses He Committed the Crime She Now Suffers For.

In the next issue of the Review of Reviews Mr. Stead, its editor, will have an article headed, "Ought Mrs. Maybrick Be Tortured to Death?" in which he vigorously and at great length reopens the whole case of the unfortunate American woman who is now undergoing a sentence of life-imprisonment in Woking prison for the alleged poisoning of her husband, who was a well-known Liverpool merchant. In the course of his article Mr. Stead says that both he and Sir Charles Russell, the attorney general, have received from South Africa copies of the deathbed confession of Harry Wilson, who declared that he, with a woman whose name is not given, placed arsenic in the medicine that was administered to Mr. Maybrick during his last illness. Mr. Stead investigated into this matter, and declares that he attaches weight to the confession, "but," he adds, "even if it were valueless, it would be of service in directing attention to the travesty of justice which has exposed Great Britain to serious objections from the United States, and which is not unlikely to become a subject of diplomatic remonstrances." Mr. Stead makes a strong appeal for the release of Mrs. Maybrick before Christmas. "Her condition is such," he says, "that she will speedily die if she is not released."

BIG CROP OF WHEAT.

The Government Report Sends the Market Down—Scramble to Unload.

The Government crop report has surprised the speculators. Another great crop of wheat—520,000,000 bushels, as indicated by the returns to the agricultural bureau at Washington—caused a lively time among the bulls and bears in the wheat pit, says a Chicago dispatch. There was a drop of 1½ cents per bushel in the price of December wheat as soon as trading commenced the other morning, and a further decline of about ¼ cent in the course of the day. The commission houses were kept busy on orders to stop losses on wheat previously bought. Logan & Co. were prominent sellers and Counsellman & Day, Milne, Bodman & Co. and Norton & Worthington were among the heaviest buyers. There was weakness in corn and oats also and a wild scramble among the holders of those articles to get rid of previous purchases. Corn and oats each declined 10¢ per bushel. Even pork shared in the general decline and dropped about 20¢ per barrel. The meaning of the whole thing was that the speculators had made their minds up for another year of great abundance, and, although that means lower prices, it also indicates general prosperity and cheap food for the millions.

OCEAN BELLES PARADE.

Most Elaborate Naval Display Gotham Has Ever Witnessed.

As a popular demonstration the New York naval display Tuesday in honor of Christopher Columbus was unequalled in the history of the United States. War ships, yachts, merchant ships, tugs, excursion steamers, lighters and barges in squadrons, fleets, shoals and masses covered the waters of New York harbor as wild fowl cover the feeding grounds of Currituck sound. More people were afloat on these vessels than were ever seen afloat together by any American eye, while more than two million spectators gathered along the shores of the harbor and river to gaze in wonder or admiration. But as a parade, an orderly procession upon the sea, it was an absolute failure. It was a mob affair, a moving derelict, an animated mass of fiasco.

MORE TROUBLE FEARED.

Another Outbreak Likely to Occur in the Indian Territory.

At Caddo, I. T., it seems that the trouble between the Jones and Jackson factions over the late Choctaw election has not been settled. Nevertheless Jackson has been declared elected by the council and sworn in. Late the other evening near Boggy Depot, a small town fifteen miles north of Caddo, Dave Parkins, a former Deputy Sheriff, shot and killed another Choctaw. Sheriff T. B. Turnbull and Deputy Sheriff Forrester were on the scene of trouble to arrest Parkins. It is feared that the worst has not begun. Trouble is likely to break out at any time and anywhere. The last parties went into Senator Bryant's house intending to kill him, but he was not at home.

FIENDISH DEED OF A MADMAN.

He Kills His Wife and Attempts the Life of His Daughter.

In the town of Tilden, near Chippewa Falls, Wis., Tuesday morning, Daniel O'Brien shot and killed his wife while she was sitting in a chair. He then tried to set fire to the house and cremate the body, but his daughter's arrival prevented this. O'Brien started after her, but she escaped, giving the alarm to the neighbors. O'Brien escaped to the woods, taking with him his gun. He is about 60 years old, and is demented. He was not considered dangerous. Sheriff Stum and a posse are in search.

Editor Seward Shot.

At Stillwater, Minn., Victor C. Seward, the veteran Minnesota Journalist and editor of the Stillwater Messenger, was shot, probably with fatal results, by a young man named George Peters, an ex-reporter with whom he had trouble.

Borden Story Is False.

The Boston Globe says that on investigation it is satisfied that the statement published concerning Miss Lizzie Borden's physical condition is not true, and bases its belief upon the statement of Dr. and Mrs. Bowen.

SLAIN BY THOUSANDS.

Rebels Defeated in Dahomey with Terrible Slaughter.

It is reported that a decisive battle has been fought in Dahomey in which the rebellious natives were defeated and 2,000 of their warriors killed. The loss to the French troops is given as eight killed and thirty-six wounded. It is officially announced that the Dahomeyans left 200 dead, among them twenty amazons, close to the French line. The natives occupied a strong position and a desperate fight followed the attack by the French. A thick brushwood surrounded the Dahomeyans' position and this afforded some protection to the attacking forces. The battle lasted for an hour, at the end of which time the Dahomeyans fled in disorder and were pursued by the French. The natives, however, were thoroughly familiar with the country and found little difficulty in making their escape, but few of them falling captives to their pursuers. During the fight five Europeans and three Senegalese were killed and twenty-three Europeans and thirteen natives wounded. Two hundred repeating rifles were found on the field. This fact will add to the grievance France has against Germany, for the French claim that King Behanzin, besides the 2,000 rifles allowed him by treaty, has an almost equal number of Winchester and other repeating rifles that have been furnished him by German traders. It is known that he has a large supply of ammunition and that it was landed in Dahomey from two German ships. As a result of this last battle Col. Dods will be able to turn the Dahomeyans' position and destroy their lines of defense.

DEPARTMENT ESTIMATES.

None Ready Except Secretary Rusk's. Who Asks for About $3,000,000.

The department estimates of expenditures of the Government for the next fiscal year ending June, 1894, under the law should have been in the hands of the Secretary of the Treasury, who is charged with their transmission to Congress, on the 1st inst., but they have not yet made their appearance. As a matter of fact they do not generally reach the Treasury much before the date of the meeting of Congress. Secretary Rusk, of the Department of Agriculture, has practically completed his estimates. He says they do not vary materially from the appropriations made by Congress for the current year, a total of about $3,000,000. "If Congress should do what ought to be done to advance and encourage the agricultural interests of the country," said Secretary Rusk, "$30,000,000 would be appropriated. But, as it is, all that vast interest, the greatest in the land, has appropriated for it by the government is $3,000,000 a year. Why, a single vessel for the navy costs more than that, and several of them are built every year." As to the operations of the current year, which will include nine months of the last year of the present administration term, Secretary Foster claims that the Treasury will show a balance of $19,000,000 on June 30, 1893.

MRS. HARRISON DYING.

The Lady of the White House Is Succumbing to Consumption.

"Mrs. Harrison has consumption, not cancer," said Dr. Gardner, her attending physician, to a Washington correspondent. "This morning she appears in better spirits, but to my mind there has been no material improvement in her condition for two weeks past. She has her periods of depression, and then there are times when she seems to rally, but these are merely the symptoms of the disease." Dr. Gardner entertains no hope of Mrs. Harrison's recovery, and thinks her death only a question of a short time. Gradually the President is accepting the inevitable, and now seems to realize fully that the hopes he has entertained of Mrs. Harrison's recovery are vain.

FOUND THE NASHUA.

The Missing Steamer Found Floating Bottom Side Up—Fifteen People Lost.

The steam barge Nashua was sighted Friday by a tug eight miles from land off Bayfield, Ont. The wreck was abandoned and was about bottom side up. It is now almost certain that the crew were lost. There were fifteen people in the crew. Men have been ordered to patrol the beach in search of the crew. The tug Howard reports that the boiler and engine were gone and the mast was broken off. A large quantity of wreckage was floating around. Capt. Bogies, of the schooner Ontario, also reports having passed through wreckage about twelve miles southwest of Goderich. It appeared to be part of the upper works of a steam barge. The crew, if still afloat in their yawlbait, may be enabled to reach the shore.

Celestials in College.

Michigan University is the first among American colleges, if not among colleges of the western world, to enroll among its students feminine representatives of the Chinese empire. Two young women have come from the heart of China to pursue their studies at Ann Arbor. They are pioneers in the reform of foot bending, being the first to go without bandages. They will take a medical course, after which they will return to their homes to do mission work.

Preferred Death to the Gallows.

Albert Foster, one of the murderers of ex-Congressman John B. Morgan, who was assassinated on an Illinois Central passenger train while on his way to the Democratic national convention last June, died in jail at Holly Springs, Miss. Foster's physician and relatives assert that he died from slow fever, but it is generally believed that he committed suicide to escape the gallows.

Business in Canada.

Advices to Bradstreet's from Canada say: "In the province of Quebec leading varieties of farm produce are in only moderate demand, but in spite of this mercantile collections are fairly prompt. Toronto advices are that the distribution of staples has improved somewhat, but even there the demand for farm produce is not active, wheat bringing about 65 cents."

Shot by Moonshiners.

In a desperate fight with moonshiners in Lincoln county, Tenn., S. D. Mather, deputy internal revenue collector, was shot and instantly killed. Joe Spurrier, special deputy collector, and C. S. Caswell, general deputy collector, were mortally wounded.

The Steamer Struck Rocks.

The Spanish steamship Vera Cruz is high on a rock at Vera Cruz. It is believed she will be a total loss. A request has been sent to Havana for wrecking appliances. None of the crew have abandoned the ship. It is impossible to save the cargo.

DEAD BANDITS' VALUE.

EXPRESS COMPANIES PAY FOR THE DALTONS' DEATH.

Five Killed in a Collision in Puget Sound—Millions of Bushels of Wheat—Sensation in a Nebraska Town—Elevator Accident.

Disaster on Puget Sound.
The Canadian Navigation Company's steamer Premier was run down and cut nearly in two by the Oregon Improvement Company's big steel roller Willamette in Puget Sound, fifty miles north of Seattle, during a dense fog Saturday afternoon. Four of the Premier's passengers and crew were killed outright, one drowned and seventeen badly wounded. The Premier was impaled across the bows of the collier like a piece of toast across a fork. This kept the boat from sinking. The Willamette steamed ahead, carrying the wrecked steamer with her across the sound to Bush Point, where both were beached in twenty-four feet of water. Sunday two powerful tugs succeeded in pulling the Willamette free from the Premier. The Premier then sank in twenty-four feet of water. It will cost $50,000 to raise her. The steamship Premier was an old and well-known boat of the Canadian Pacific Navigation Company. It was built at San Francisco in 1887, was 1,080 gross and 692 net tonnage, 290 feet long and 42 feet beam and 12 feet 9 inches deep. It was a screw propeller and was driven by a fore and aft compound engine. It had done good service and was a very popular boat.

MONEY FOR DALTONS' SLAYERS.

Six Thousand Dollars Sent the Extremists of the Gang.

San Francisco dispatch: The Southern Pacific Company and Wells, Fargo & Co. have telegraphed $6,000 to their agent in Coffeyville, Kan., to be distributed among the exterminators of the Daltons. This represents the standing reward of $2,000 per head for the Daltons offered by them since the Pixley train robbery. The Southern Pacific managers declare that there are five members of the Dalton family still living. These are George, Charles, and William, who are living with their mother at Kingfisher, O. T., and Cole Dalton, a rancher, and Lytton Dalton, saloon-keeper, both living near Fresno. The latter two have always borne good reputations. The total rewards offered for each of the Daltons killed at Coffeyville amount to $9,000.

AVAILABLE STOCKS OF WHEAT.

In the States and Canada They Amount to 67,999,084 Bushels.

The total available stocks of wheat in the United States and Canada, east of the Rocky mountains, as given by Bradstreet's, were 59,845,134 bushels. The Pacific coast stocks were 8,153,950 bushels. Exports of wheat (and of flour as wheat) from New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Newport News, New Orleans, Galveston, San Francisco, Portland, Ore., Portland, Me., Tacoma, and Seattle, as reported by mail and wire to Bradstreet's, were for the week 4,017,059 bushels.

SUDDEN FLIGHT OF A PROFESSOR.

Creditors and Young Ladies Mourn the Departure of a Nebraska Educator.

Prof. W. P. Rogers, who had charge of the commercial department of the Wesleyan University at Lincoln, Neb., left for Kansas City, saying he was going there to attend a wedding. Saturday a note was received from him saying he had gone to Alaska. Rogers left debts of $1,000 besides being short in his accounts with the university $300. He was also engaged to be married to two of the young lady students under his care.

ACTIVITY IN TRADE.

Business in the South Good, with Advance in Cotton.

R. G. Dun & Co. say in their weekly review of trade:

The first week of October shows more activity, in spite of the near approach of the Presidential election. Business is distinctly better at the South, on account of the improvement in the price of cotton, more active at the West, with improved crop prospects, and only slightly retarded in the East. In general, speculation has disturbed legitimate lines of trade much less during the past quarter than is usual at this season, although the transactions in cotton have been exceedingly heavy.

Disastrous Storm at Cape May.

At Cape May, N. J., there was a heavy electrical and hail storm Saturday night. Trees were uprooted, roofs blown off, the ocean piers badly damaged, and the fishing fleet sustained a loss of several thousand dollars. The Presidential yacht Clover was blown over on the Meadows. It is thought that she will be got off without material damage.

DYNAMITE AT HOMESTEAD.

Non-Union Boarding House Wrecked, but the Occupants Escape.

An attempt was made to blow up a non-union boarding house in Homestead with dynamite. No one was hurt, but the house was badly damaged and the occupants badly frightened. Mrs. Marron keeps the boarding-house. The thirty-five boarders were non-union workers in the Homestead mill. The dining-room was on the first floor and the sleeping-rooms on the second. In the front of the house, used as the dining-room, were large show windows. One of the side windows had been broken for some time and it was through this that the perpetrator of the deed worked. It was 2 o'clock in the morning when the cartridge was thrown through this window into the dining-room. It struck the floor, and a terrific explosion followed. All the windows were broken and a large hole torn in the floor. The beds on the second floor were thrown six feet up in the air and the occupants tumbled to the floor. No one was hurt, but the most intense excitement followed.

CAN NEVER DANCE AGAIN.

Lotta's Condition Very Serious—Absolute Rest for a Year Necessary.

The condition of Lotta, the actress, has become serious, and her manager has notified the members of her company that they are at liberty to accept other engagements for the present season. All her dates are canceled. The little woman's trouble is traced to a fall she suffered in Jersey City three years ago and the injuries she received in a runaway accident in Boston in November, 1889. The most encouraging news her physician can give is that with careful attention and absolute rest she may, a year hence, be herself again in a social, yet not in a professional way. The doctor thinks that owing to her spinal ailment she will never be able to dance again.

Senator Peffer's Son Killed.

A freight train on the Missouri Pacific Railroad met with a bad accident about sixty miles west of Council Grove, going through a burning bridge. The engineer, T. G. ## Transportation to the Fair.

The question of the price of World's Fair tickets has hardly been touched on yet, or only considered in an informal way, by the trunk line passenger agents, who have recently been considering the subject during sessions in New York. The subject will be taken up by the executive committee of the Trunk Line Association at a special meeting to be called for the purpose as soon as practicable.

Serious Outlook for Homestead Strikers—The Mormons Again Listen to Their Prophet, Joseph Smith—Is This Another Cardiff Giant Fake?

Suicide of a Female Teacher.

Alice Granger, a successful Chatham, Ont., school teacher, has been greatly worried by the bad behavior of pupils. She attempted to beat Harry Bortling with a rattan, but other boys came to his assistance, and they blackened Miss Granger's eyes. She closed the school, went home, and poisoned herself with morphine. In her hand was found this note: "I am tired of trying to teach bad boys."

HOSTILE TO THE STRIKERS.

Chief Justice Paxson's Charge to the Jury in the Homestead Case.

The unusual spectacle of the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the State sitting as a judge in the court of oyer and terminer of a county in the State was witnessed by a large crowd in the Criminal court-room in Pittsburg, when Chief Justice Paxson charged the grand jury as to what constitutes treason. After detailing the causes leading up to the Homestead strike, Justice Paxson said: "The mutual right of the parties to contract in regard to wages, and the character of the employment, whether by the piece or by the day, or whether for ten hours or less, is fixed as is any other right which we enjoy under the constitution and laws of this State. It is a right which belongs to every citizen, whether laborer or capitalist, and it is the plain duty of the State to protect them in the enjoyment of it." The Judge detailed how the authority of the sheriff had been defied, the arrival of the Pinkertons, the riot following, and finally the mobilization of the State troops, adding: "If we were to concede the doctrine that the employe may dictate to his employer the terms of his employment, and upon the refusal of the latter to accede to them to take possession of his property and drive others away who were willing to work, we would have anarchy. No business could be conducted upon such a basis; that doctrine, when once countenanced, would be extended to every industry." The Justice then defined as treason the organization of a large number of men in a common purpose to defy the law, resist its officers, and to deprive any portion of their fellow-citizens of their rights under the constitution and laws. "It is a state of war," said he, "when a business plant has to be surrounded by the army of the State to protect it from unlawful violence at the hands of former employes."

DEMONSTRATION IN NEW YORK.

The Metropolis Gay with Flags and Banners in Honor of Columbus.

New York special: With the bright flash-puff of thick, white smoke and heavy boom of cannon, old Fort Columbus, on Governor's Island, at 6 o'clock in the morning, opened the secular part of the celebration of the 400th anniversary of its namesake's greatest deed in his notable career. The cannon-shot was merely the sunrise-gun, but it was singularly appropriate that it should come on this day, of all others, from the fort named after Christopher Columbus. New York is in gala dress. Its streets, its public buildings, its stores and warehouses, its homes, are gay with flags and bunting. Even the trucks and wagons passing through the streets, the cars that roll up and down its avenues, the trains that puff along the elevated roads, the very horses, are decked with flags in honor of Christopher Columbus. In the synagogues on Saturday, in the churches Sunday, Hebrew and Christian emulated each other in service of prayer and song in commemoration of the landing of Columbus 400 years ago. Monday began the series of imposing pageants with which the city for the coming three days will honor the memory of Columbus.

MORMON CONFERENCE CLOSED.

Joseph Smith Returns After Seven Years' Sojourn Underground.

The sixty-second annual conference of the Mormon Church has closed at Salt Lake. The President failed to come forward with the customary new revelation. The reports of the various churches in Utah, Wyoming, Colorado, Arizona, and New Mexico showed a total membership of over 200,000. Joseph F. Smith, whose recent return from a seven-year sojourn underground marked the origin of national party lines, delivered an address. It was decided to dedicate the new temple on April 4, 1893. This was commenced forty years ago and has cost $2,500,000.

The Laying of a Corner Stone.

Wednesday was a milestone in the pathway of Hope College. It has not been her privilege thus far to witness the laying of many corner stones in her behalf. Hence the festivities on the afternoon of that day were the more thankfully appreciated, when in an atmosphere as congenial as nature and popular sympathy could make it, the corner stone was laid of Graves Library Building and Winants Chapel. A representative audience from at home and abroad had gathered to witness the ceremony, and listen to the exercises, which were held in accordance with the published program, with President Charles Scott in charge:

1. Chorus by Students.
2. Prayer—Rev. J. W. Beardslee, D. D.
3. Music—"Praise ye the Father." Choir led by Prof. J. B. Nykerk, Hope College.
4. Address—Rev. Wm. Moerdyk, President of the Council of Hope College.
5. Historical Statement—Arend Vischer, Esq., Secretary of the Building Committee.
6. Description of Contents of Box.
7. Laying the Corner Stone, by Prof. G. J. Kollen, President of the Building Committee.
8. Hymn.
9. Address—Hon. Edwin F. Uhl, Grand Representative, Mich.
10. Doxology.

The address by Rev. W. Moerdyk was replete with reminiscences of the pioneer period of the Holland Academy, out of which Hope College finally evolved; and his personal recollections of the "athletics" of that period, when the present campus was one dense forest, were vividly portrayed.

The secretary of the committee, Mr. A. Vischer, in his historical statement made proper reference to the successful efforts of Prof. Kollen, the librarian of the college, in behalf of this new edifice, and the appointment of the committee charged with its erection. We quote the following:

"It had first been whispered among the committee members that a building to cost about $10,000 would answer our purpose, but architects, not slow to catch on to our real wants, staggered us with their figures from $30,000 to $50,000.

It was on Sept. 10, 1891 that architect W. K. Johnston presented a plan which in general outline seemed to satisfy every member of the committee, barring of course its expense. This was provisionally adopted with the expressed sentiment of "nothing ventured, nothing gained."

From one to two weeks preceding the Christmas holidays Prof. Kollen asked and obtained leave of absence from his college duties to prosecute his work in the east. How far he was successful in his mission at this time was known only to few; suffice it to say, that he was now re-tracing steps and garnering sheaves of work done, acquaintances formed, and seed sown some fourteen years ago, when he for a limited time was council's financial agent in the east.

During the latter part of March, immediately preceding spring vacation, another leave of absence was granted and Prof. Kollen made sure of the work which hitherto had been conditional, and upon his return informed the council of his grand and complete success, reporting as secured the sum of $25,000 and a reasonable assurance that enough more was in reach to raise this to $30,000; and the crowning glory of it all—the promise of a magnificent and very valuable library of 10,000 volumes.

The action taken by the council at this time will better express its feeling than any words of ours can do:

Resolved, That the council tender their sincere thanks to the committee for the excellent work already done, and especially to Prof. Kollen, the financial agent of the committee, for the successful work done as the instrument of Providence of inclining the hearts of his children to devise liberal things in this behalf.

ment grace of the Holy Spirit with his most comforting influences, to abide with her through her life journey.

Resolved, That in consideration of her liberal gift the chapel building shall be called the "Winants Chapel," and shall have the name placed prominently in the building wall; and that the Sec'y furnish Prof. Kollen a copy of the above to be transmitted to Mrs. Winants.

The committee had invited Mr. Graves to be present and lay the corner stone, but he felt it to be impracticable to do so, and delegated the performance of this pleasant duty to Prof. Kollen, who proclaimed the completion of his task with saying:

"And now I lay the corner stone of Graves Library Building and Winants Chapel in the name of the Father, of the Son and of the Holy Ghost.

And now let the building arise, and may the builders be greatly prospered in all their work.

And, in the Library to be erected, may the old and the young, for many ages, hold sweet and profitable communion with the sages of the past and the present.

And, in the Chapel may the young gather, for many generations, for divine praise and worship; and thereby obtain strength and inspiration for the conflicts of life.

And may the motto of Hope College, SPERA IN DEO, "Hope thou in God," carved in this corner stone, be engraved upon the hearts and minds of all.

The corner stone is of New York marble, 2 ft. by 2 ft. 8 in., and 18 in. high. It is placed north of the main entrance, and has inscribed upon it the motto in the seal of the college, "Spera in Deo." The copper box inside, hermetically sealed, contains the following:

Synodical minutes, a copy of De Hollander, De Grootend, De Hope, De Waechter, HOLLAND CITY NEWS, Anchor, Ottawa County Times, N. Y. Christian Intelligencer and Mission Field, sketch of life of G. C. Winants, a $3 gold piece by Mrs. H. F. Beale, a sermon by Dr. A. C. Van Raalte and a sketch of his life by Rev. H. E. Dosker. Catalogues of Hope for 1863 and 1892, also of N. W. C. Academy and Western Seminary, Rutgers College and Seminary, commencement address by Rev. Dr. Mandeville for the year 1892, Inaugural address of President Phelps, and of Prof. Steffens. First Commencement of Hope College, Memoirs of Rev. C. Van der Meulen, Biograph

Hon. N. F. Graves, of Syracuse, N. Y.

Resolved, That the council express their grateful appreciation of the generosity of the Hon. N. F. Graves, of Syracuse, N. Y., in his gift of $10,000 for the library building, and the promise of his magnificent library to place therein.

Resolved, That in consideration of his liberal gift, the library building shall be called the "Graves Library," and shall have the name placed prominently in the building wall, and that the secretary furnish Prof. Kollen a copy of this action of the council, to be transmitted to Mr. Graves.

Resolved, That our cordial thanks be tendered to Mrs. Garrett C. Winants of Bergen Point, N. J., for her generous gift of $10,000 toward the erection of a building in connection with a library building; and pray for her the enrichment of her life journey. Resolved, That in consideration of her liberal gift the chapel building shall be called the "Winants Chapel," and shall have the name placed prominently in the building wall; and that the Sec'y furnish Prof. Kollen a copy of the above to be transmitted to Mrs. Winants.

Congratulatory letters and telegrams were received from the following: Revs. Dr. Phelps, E. C. Crispell, H. N. Cobb, P. Stryker, D. D. Demore, H. Uterwick, J. T. Bergen, H. DeB. Mulford, President Scott of Rutgers college, and President Angel of the Michigan University.

The address of Hon. E. F. Uhl was fine, worthy of the occasion and of the high regard entertained for him in this community. He spoke as one in personal sympathy with the event that brought him here, and said among other things:

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen: A citizen of Michigan, interested in every work tending to the elevation and better education of all her people, I desire to acknowledge my obligations for the opportunity extended to me through Prof. Kollen, to be present and unite my felicitations with yours upon the occasion of the laying of this corner stone to-day. I count it a privilege to be able personally to offer my congratulations to the Faculty and all others in any way connected with this institution of learning upon this auspicious beginning in the erection of what promises to be a beautiful, commodious and permanent home for the library of Hope College—a most valuable and essential addition to the equipment of your prosperous institution.

The occasion is one of great interest, not only to those immediately connected with the College itself, not only to the city within whose municipal bounds the building about to be erected shall stand, an attraction and an ornament for many generations—God grant! but to the people of the entire commonwealth whose brightest jewel in the diadem of her many excellencies is her educational system.

When the small colony of sturdy pioneers who had just crossed the Atlantic in 1846 blazed their way through the trackless forest to the spot where we are now assembled, and determined on the shore of the great lake to build homes for themselves and their posterity, to one acquainted with the history of their fatherland it is not surprising that among the subjects which challenged their early and serious thought was the establishment of a school of learning for the education of the young. They were the sons and daughters of sires who, in the home across the sea, had for generations been recognized as a people of rare intellectual power; they had passed through the fiery furnace of cruel wars in the holy cause of freedom; they ever prized highly both the common and classical school, and made liberal provision for the spread of learning.

Their struggles, long continued for their emancipation from political and ecclesiastical tyranny, resulted in a marked advancement of the human mind. The Dutch Republic was a model imitated by great nations, and a potential force in the march of civilization. When the people came to rear a memorial to commemorate all time the heroism of the burghers during the siege of Leyden they founded the great Leyden University, justly pronounced "as noble a monument as had ever been raised by a free people, jealous of its fame."

The great historian of the United Netherlands, writing of this people in the seventeenth century, said: "Few strides more gigantic have been taken in the march of humanity than those by which a parcel of outlying provinces in the north of Europe exchanged slavery to a foreign despotism and to the holy inquisition for the position of a self-governing commonwealth in the front rank of contemporary powers, and in many respects the foremost of the world."

Here was a republic almost without natural resources which had supplied by human intelligence and thrift what niggard nature had denied. Spain was overflowing with unlimited treasure and had possessed half the world in fee, and Spain was bankrupt, decaying, sinking into universal pauperism. Holland, with freedom of thought, of commerce, of speech, of action, placed itself, by intellectual power alone, in the front rank of civilization. An excellent reason why the people were so well governed, so enterprising and so productive, was the simple fact that they were an educated people. The school was the common property of the people, paid for among municipal expenses. It was to be expected that members of such a race as this, of such ancestry, with such traditions, and such a history, in establishing a home in the New World, should make ample provision for education.

The recital to which I have listened of the early struggles of those connected with this College, their persistence amid disappointments, their steadfastness amid discouragements, and their final triumph over all difficulties is characteristic also of this people. Says Bidpath: "Never in all the world did man have such a battle with nature as in Holland. Year after year, generation after generation, this sturdy and indomitable people fought back the hostile and ever aggressive deep, until at last far off in that bleak northwestern horizon on the figure of man standing complaisant on the long mole of earth which his own industry had raised was seen between the North Sea and the sky. The Dutch Minerva planted a garden where the surly Neptune had lately set his trident. Their thrift was unsurpassed, their accumulations greater than could be found anywhere else from Riga to London."

You are to-day indeed engaged in a noble and philanthropic effort whose reach to remote generations yet to come. The structure itself which shall be built upon this foundation, through the beneficence of the friends of this College, of learning, will long stand as a monument to the taste and the intelligence of its builders. In its beauty of design, in its grace of architecture, in its harmony of proportion, in its adaptability to the uses for which it is reared, it will be a mute but eloquent witness to the wise thought, the elevated sentiment, the ripe culture and the high purpose of those who conceived, designed and built it; and all who shall at any time hereafter feel the beneficent touch of its influence, will thereby be more richly endowed with mental acquisitions.

I thus speak of the influence of the building standing here.

The reverence of a grateful people for him who had led them through a long and weary march, with a pillar of fire by night and a pillar of cloud by day, who had for them separated the waters of the Red Sea that they might pass through dry shod, was represented in the great temple of Solomon. Who has visited the seat of the Acropolis and not been reminded of the learning and the refinement revealed in the artistic beauty of the Parthenon? Who has stood amid the ruins of the Coliseum without recalling the scenes of cruelty which there disgraced the rule of the imperial city? Who has walked through the broad aisles or looked in the fretted vaults of the great cathedrals of Medieval Europe whose majestic domes first greet the morning sun, and whose receding arches have been for hundreds of years resonant with sacred music—without reading "crystallized into stone the deep religious fervor of the Middle Ages?" It is written of Napoleon's memorable expedition into Egypt that when the army arrived in sight of the Pyramids all eyes were turned towards those, the oldest monuments in the world; the spirits of the soldiers were reanimated, and Napoleon himself, as he formed his infantry into five moving squares, galloped along the ranks and, turning towards those everlasting monuments, cried to his men, "Soldiers, remember that from the summits of those Pyramids forty centuries look down upon you and contemplate your deeds this day." History records that though the Mamelukes charged with furious gallantry, they made no impression upon the French who repulsed and vanquished their assailants and won a victory that decided the fate of Egypt.

I have thus far spoken of this building itself. What shall I say of the incalculable benefit from the kings and queens of thought who shall hold court within its walls—the books themselves? Not alone to those who now tread the corridors of your College, but to all who in the oncoming future shall gather to worship at this shrine, or drink at this fountain of the waters of knowledge. All who are here to day will ere long, having finished their course in the school of time, be called to enter the great university of the future; but in the Graves Library, whose corner stone you have just placed in position, countless scholars in the ages which are to follow will find inspiration, profit and delight; will find in the books upon its shelves, companions and friends, solace in grief, quickened pleasure in prosperity. Here they will cultivate and stimulate the love of books, here they will heighten the delights of literature, here they will seek the companionship of the wisest and most gifted of the race and learn of the greatest instructors from every age of the world's history.

"Silent companions of the lonely hours, Friends who can never alter or forsake, Let me return to you, the turmoil ending Which worldly cares have on my spirit brought, And o'er your old familiar pages bending, Refresh my mind with many a tranquil thought."

"A taste for books," says Gibbon, "is the glory of my life. It is a taste which I would not exchange for the wealth of the Indies."

Says Dr. Channing: "In the best books great men talk to us, give us their most precious thoughts, and pour their souls into ours. God be thanked for books! They are the voices of the distant and dead, and make us heirs of the spiritual life of past ages. Books are the true levelers. No matter how poor I am, no matter how the prosperous of my own time will not enter my obscure dwelling, if the sacred writers will enter and take up their abode under my roof; if Milton will cross my threshold to sing to me of Paradise, and Shakespeare to open to me the world of imagination, and Franklin to enrich me with his practical wisdom, I shall not pine for intellectual companionship, and I may become a cultivated man though excluded from what is called 'the best society' in the place where I live."***

The subject of establishing, enlarging and expanding the library, both public and private, has taken firm hold upon the thoughts of the people. Congress has made provision for a magnificent home for our greatest collection of books, capable of housing two million volumes. Many of the states have passed liberal laws to encourage their support. Today there is one library for about each ten thousand of population. France has in her National Library about two million volumes, and the English Museum has about 1,700,000. Many individuals of fortune have contributed largely of their means for their establishment.

The names of Stephen Girard, of John Hopkins, of Peter Cooper, of George Peabody, of Walter Newberry, of Samuel J. Tilden, of John Jacob Astor, of Bnoch Pratt, of Judge Parker, of C. H. Hackley of our own state, will be held in grateful and lasting remembrance after the stones themselves which lay at the foundation of the temples their benefactions have helped to rear, have crumbled to dust.

And so whosoever shall contribute ought to this building which shall rise above this stone, whether it be from the abundance of the opulent, or whether it be the widow's mite, even if it be a cup of cold water to some builder here engaged, shall lay up in the gratitude of its beneficiaries, a treasure which neither moth nor rust shall corrupt, for it shall be enduring.

The "Graves Library building and Winants Chapel" is located on the west side of the college campus, opposite Eleventh street, and may be said to face Centennial Park. It is constructed of Waverly stone and its entire length is 144 feet, width 80 feet. The ground floor contains on the north end the library or stack room, 38 x 36 feet, with a capacity for 40,000 books. This part of the building is absolutely fire-proof, and of steel construction. The librarian's room is 11 x 20 ft., with lavatory attached. The reading room south of the stack room is 30 x 24 ft.; director's room 22 x 36 ft. These rooms are also fire proof and of steel construction.

The main hall is 28 ft. long and 13 ft. wide, with stairs finished in oak, 5 ft. wide, timbered ceiling. The front vestibule is 8 x 13 ft., the floor laid with tiles. Next comes the Y. M. C. A. room, an annex to the chapel, 22 ft. wide and 56 ft. long, with circular bay 9 x 13 ft., and rear porch 8 x 8 ft. This room can be thrown into the chapel by means of sliding doors. The chapel proper is 37 ft. 9 in. by 56 ft. 4 in., with sloping floor and circular seats, platform on the south, and open timbered roof, finished in pine. The two rooms when thrown together will give an audience room of 60 x 60 ft., with a seating capacity of 740.

The stack room, librarian's, lecture and reading rooms, the hall and the stairs are all finished in oak; the Y. M. C. A. room and chapel in Norway pine.

The second floor contains four spacious lecture rooms. The museum is to be placed over the stack room.

In the basement will be the furnace rooms and lavatory, with floors laid in concrete and cement. The heating apparatus will consist of two No. 7 Spence hot water boilers, and radiators all through the building.

Height of ceiling in basement is 9 ft.; first floor 12 ft.; second floor 12 ft. 6 in. The roof is covered with slate and the trimmings are of copper with copper gutters and down pipes.

The architect is W. K. Johnson of Chicago. His representative on the grounds, superintending the construction, is Mr. Jas. Price. The contractor for the entire building, except the heating apparatus, is James Huntley, of this city. J. Van Landegend has the contract for the heating. The building is to be completed June 1, 1893, and will cost $35,000. By the time it is completed and ready for occupancy this sum will undoubtedly reach $40,000.

The building committee are: G. J. Kollen, J. W. Beardslee, A. Vischer, I. Cappon, C. Scott, H. D. Post, J. F. Zwemer.

FLATTERY.

Oh, you pretty robin, keeping watch beside a lowly dwelling,
Where the happy sunshine rushes o'er the
gorse bloom bright and gay:
Where the blackbirds and the thrushes are their loud love stories telling—
Do you, my fancy, robin, you as sweetly
sing as they?

Do you see that verdant meadow where the
buttercups are growing,
Where the golden-hearted daisies twinkle 'mid
the tender grass?
Do you mark the lights and shadows that the
fleecy clouds are throwing,
As across the sky of azure they fantastically
pass?

Just above it there's a cottage, sheltered by
the budding beeches,
Where the cherry bloom is scattered on the
serried crocus lines
By the playful south wind's antics, where the glistering ivy reaches
To the red-tiled roof and chimneys where the green wisteria twines.

Pretty robin, there's a maiden tall, and fair,
and rather stately,
With a voice as soft as yours is, dwelling in
that very cot,
And her tresses catch the sunbeams, though
she speaks and moves sedately,
And her eyes are just the color of a blue forget-me-not.

Whisper, robin—can you tell me is she wandering by the river,
Where the catkins on the willows and the water-cresses grow?
Tell me, robin, pretty robin, and I'll be your
debtor ever,
For her father does not love me, and so, mind
you, whisper low.

MRS. GORDON'S AMAH.

A STORY OF THE CHINESE RIOTS.

The great bell of the Honam temple was tolling the hour for service. This bell, twice the size of a man, of ponderous tone and exasperating harshness, was being most energetically pounded by a shaven and cowled priest; yet a woman standing under its shadow seemed, in spite of its deafening roar, to be unconscious of this metallic thunder, so absorbed was she in thought. She was a slender woman, her deep coloring showing her to be of the Sampaui class, but the fineness of her count, the white sheerness of her long, flowing undersleeve, the beauty of the chasing on a gold ring she wore, and the ring of a gold watch peeping out from her breast-pocket proved her either the wife of a foreigner, or a favored servant in a European family.

She was leaning eagerly forward, watching the carved door from which the procession of priests was to enter, and pressing in her small, olive-nailed fingers two "chopped" silver dollars, greatly to the interest of the bell-ringer. The temple was crowded, for it was a fete-day, and the woman and the bell-ringer were thrown nearer and nearer together, when at last, at a given signal, the priest's door was opened, the rank and file of yellow-gowned acolytes entered, and the bell ceased its clamor with a hoarse and resonant groan. The young woman pressed yet more eagerly forward toward the altar.

Last in the row of acolytes came a youth whose shaven head, and long yellow robe, proclaimed him a Buddhist neophyte. After saluting ten times, with forehead to the floor, before the great idol of Buddha, he withdrew with his companions to the side of the altar, and then gazed with apparent carelessness over the audience. His challenging gaze met that of the young woman, who at once began a slow and toilsome pilgrimage through the crowd toward him. He, in turn, as the service progressed, dropped away from his companions a little, and at last the two met at the base of a huge pillar, which partially concealed them from the mass of the people.

"See, Ah Ye," she said, "I have brought you the silver. Is there news of the fanqui uprising? Tell me!"

The young neophyte cast his eyes heavenward, and placing the palm of one hand over the back of the other, stretched them in front of him with a gesture peculiarly Chinese, but made no answer.

"If you can tell me nothing, I will keep my silver," said the woman, as she drew a small purse from her breast and dropped therein her two dollars. The neophyte watched their disappearance and shrugged his shoulders, Chinese fashion.

"They would kill me if they knew," he said, glancing toward the priests, "but look there!" He thrust his sister forward, so that she through the temple's portico saw the sky gleaming with a lurid, red light. "That is the fire on Shamen," he said grimly. "They begin with the French Concession."

"And the English Concession—and Keescheong hong—must that go, too?"

"All—all! Even the servants of the fanqui [foreign devils] who remain with their masters will perish. There is only one English gunboat of the fool-foreigner in port, and the Viceroy, noble son of heaven, has placed obstructions in the stream, so that is only a little one. They will crush the foreign devil so!" he stepped on a beetle which had run out from the stones. His sister looked on, unmoved.

"Go home, Emui, go back to Canton," he added, as the girl placed her dollars in his palm and was hastening away. "It is a bad night for amahs on Shamen."

Emui made no answer. She looked at him an instant, then caught his hand under the folds of his long robe, and pressed it. After all, he was her brother.

He drew his shoulders forward, and again made the characteristic gesture with the lowered palms. "It is all one to me," he said, "fanqui or no fanqui. I am a priest of Buddha."

But the girl had fled.

Emui tore down the long stone-paved walk, which runs from the temple portico to the river's edge. There was no one in sight but an empty sampau was anchored to the stones. Whose, she knew not. But she did not pause. She glanced around a second to see if a possible owner was in sight, to dispute her action, then kicked off her shoes, stepped lightly in, deftly untied the sampau, and lifted the huge yellow, or sampau oar. Luckily she had grown up in one of these boats, and propelling a sampau was second nature to her. Without a backward glance, she steered the stolen craft straight for the crimson-lighted bend of the Shamen.

Mrs. Gordon was dressing for a dinner to be given that evening at the English Consulate. That is, she was attempting to dress, in a kind of helplessness that life in the Orient develops, greatly annoyed at the absence of her amah and ringing from time to time for the szetsai (boy) to learn if the maid had not come in, and at last giving orders to send a coolie for her. The long windows of the dressing room were only slightly veiled in lace and thin silks, in order that any wavering breeze which might chance to enter should meet no impediments, but the punkah, pulled by a coolie outside the door, created an artificial breeze in the room, causing the delicate trifles on her dressing-case to flutter, and even raising slightly the petals of the roses whose long stems were drying on a silver tray; roses to be worn at her breast, at the brilliant dinner of the English Consul that night. The room was a softened blaze of many candles, and the delicate fineness of Mrs. Gordon's arms and neck was reflected in many mirrors. But a deep frown was on her brow, as drawing off the pale pink stockings she had worn with her tea gown, Mrs. Gordon proceeded to turn wrong side out, and pull laboriously on the creamy silk netting that would cling so exasperatingly in spite of frequent dabs of violet powder. The night was warm, Mrs. Gordon was getting heated, a thing she greatly disliked before dinner, and her amah was unconsciously late. She glanced again at the tiny French clock, and then, her feet being shod, she stood irresolutely before a dainty mass of silk and lace on the bed, and asked herself if she should attempt to put it on alone. It was too provoking! If Jack were only here! But her husband had gone to Hong Kong; she was at her amah's mercy.

However, it was obviously impossible to lace oneself into a dinner-gown that fastened down the back. Mrs. Gordon sank despondently on an India mat, and fanned herself wearily. Then she drenched arms and neck in cool violet-water, still pondering. Never before had her amah annoyed her so. Then she rang again impatiently. In her own agitation she failed to notice the startled whiteness of her own szetsai's face, as she ordered him to send still another coolie for the recreant maid, and that almost simultaneously with his respectful departure the breeze from her punkah died suddenly down. At last she noticed the warm stillness that followed the punkah's cessation, and she called in great surprise to the punkah-coolie, "Tim Kai ni, Kun-cim, Fauti! Cho fang sheen."

No answer coming, she rang again for the szetsai. Was the world coming to an end? The punkah-coolie stopping without orders on such a hot night—and her amah playing truant when she knew her mistress to be dining out! What could it mean? As she waited for the szetsai's response to her ringing, a light step sounded and her amah entered, not quietly and gently, with her usual Oriental deliberateness, but with a hasty step and excited air that added to Mrs. Gordon's astonishment. The amah rushed to where her mistress was standing before the dressing-case, and dropped on her knees before her.

"Oh, Mississee," she said, embracing her mistress's feet, "China man very angry. Burn all Shamen to-night. Burn Mississee's hong, Keescheong hong to-night—perhaps this hour. Mississee must go—run—fly English gunboat. See! Mississee wear amah clothes. Oh, Mississee, dear Mississee, go quick. This house all gunpowder behind. Chinaman light very quick, Mississee die—burn. Mississee must go."

The amah was already attempting to place her own sandals over the cream silk stockings that Mrs. Gordon had donned with such trouble.

"What do you mean, amah?" asked her mistress, all impatience gone, and an absolute calmness growing within her, in the face of a real danger. "Do you fancy the Chinese will burn Shamen? Nonsense. They dare not."

"Mississee," said the amah, wringing her hands, "look there."

She pulled Mrs. Gordon to the great balcony, through whose arches, hung with baskets of tropical flowers, and lighted with dense globular lamps, shone the same crimson gleam of light.

"Mississee, look! Already Chinamen burn French Consulate. Very soon Keescheong hong burn all same. Mississee must go. Master gone Hong Kong. All coolie, all szetsai—very contemptuously—run away. Only amah here just now. Dear Mississee, go!" The amah was kneeling and wringing her little olive-hued hands.

Mrs. Gordon looked at her Chinese maid. She was entirely self-controlled now. The Oriental calm, not to say phlegmatic, in ordinary times, was intensely excited. Mrs. Gordon, the American, vivacious and excitable usually, was quiet almost to impassiveness. Therein is one of the character-differences between the sophisticated Occidental, and the artless child of the Orient.

"Amah," said Mrs. Gordon, as she submitted to the change of apparel, "what will you do when I am gone—gone, and in your clothing? Will they not hurt you?"

"I am a Chinawoman," said the amah simply, relieved at her mistress's submission. "Chinaman no hurt Chinawoman."

No tremor betrayed her loyalty. Well Emui knew the fate of a Chinese traitress—who had dared betray her country.

"Emui," said the mistress as the maid buttoned her own coat under the fair, white chin, "how can they burn Keescheong hong?" [The Chinese name for the Gordon residence from time immemorial.]

"Keescheong for so many years—one hundred years—been good to Chinaman."

The amah shrugged her shoulders. "Some Chinaman very bad," she said simply. She was now hastily, but deftly arranging her mistress's hair, tea-pot-fashion, in the Chinese coiffure. What- ever else might be lacking, a failure to wear her hair according to the Chinese mode would invite instant detection. Hence it would have been impossible for Mrs. Gordon to make her escape without a Chinese woman's aid. The peculiar and undeviating arrangement of their women's hair is the most inexorable of Chinese sumptuary laws. Fortunately Mrs. Gordon was a brunette. With each hair smoothly drawn back, and laid in place, and the whole mass securely coiled and interloped about Emui's cherished jade hair-guard (it had been the amah's great-grandmother's). Mrs. Gordon's coiffure defied criticism. When her rapid toilette was made, even to the great swinging filagree and jade earrings without which no respectable Chinese woman is seen, the mistress bent and kissed her Chinese servant on the cheek.

"Dear Emui!" she said, "when all this trouble is over, and I get safely to Hong Kong (if I ever do)," she added mentally, "you must come, and be my amah again. Good-bye, Amah, good-bye."

"Yes, Mississee, thank you," said the amah sadly and then, as she heard the sound of feet—a sound for which she had been listening with dread keenness during all the hurried dressing—"My hear Chinaman inside court. Dear Mississee must go—go quick!"

Mrs. Gordon was deathly pale, but at that minute she was conscious of no fear. She knew what horrible fate would be hers if she fell into the power of that Chinese mob, the house deserted even by her own servants, her husband absent, no friend near. But she was brave, and taking the little rice bowl and chop sticks which it had been agreed she was to carry down and out to the amah's quarters, according to the amah's usual custom, began with enforced and exasperating deliberateness her begonia. The amah's quarters consisted merely of a small house within call of her mistress's bedroom, and apart from the quarters of the other servants. Fortunately Emui had been in the habit of using a side veranda door, and not of crossing the courtyard, as the other servants did. From the amah's house Mrs. Gordon was to leave by a door at the back, choosing a propitious moment, and make her way to the English Consulate, and thence to the English gunboat.

She went, with determined leisureliness, down the broad staircase of her home, still brilliantly lighted (she wished it had been less so), and out at the small side-door, meeting no one, but shuddering at the constantly increasing tumult of strange voices in the court. She crossed the lawn, gained the amah's door, and unlocked it (never had her fingers seemed so inept), and closed it behind her, just before the great courtyard doors swung open, and a strange mob came howling out on the carefully-cropped lawn.

Meanwhile Emui, with the recklessness of desperation, yet with a kind of dog-like heroism in her weird, Eastern eyes, had donned her mistress's flowing, white peignoir, let down her masses of black hair, and flinging aside the curtains so that the brilliant lights of the dressing-room streamed out into the night, began to pace up and down in full view of the lawn, trusting in this way to postpone the detection of Mrs. Gordon's escape, and gain time for her mistress.

So she walked back and forth in the beautiful scented room, awaiting her certain fate.

The English gunboat "Oriole" was filled with a company not usually found on board a man of war—ladies in evening toilette, or still more confessed undress, children more or less en pajamas, foreign governesses and nurses in wild agitation, and boat-loads of men in dress suits and boutonnieres, but generally hatless, who knew the resistance of so small a force to be useless, and whose only duty seemed to be that of escorting and protecting the ladies and children to H. M. S. "Oriole." One of the last boat-loads brought an American lady in Chinese native dress, under the escort of the English consul, who had been the last man to leave the burning island of the Shamen.

Behind them gleamed the fitful glare of the fire of their homes, and even the trees, where here and there a massive branch of the camphor or banyan fell to the ground, showed the savage fury of the Chinese mob. Mrs. Gordon shuddered as she glanced fearfully back, and clung closer to her escort.

Just after Mrs. Gordon had gained the shelter of the "Oriole," a light racing paper shell, sculled by an oarsman in the unusual boating costume of full evening dress, even to the chrysanthemum on his lapel, drew swiftly alongside the gunboat. The oarsman, on gaining the deck, threw the dainty shell adrift, with a half sigh. "Pity to let her go, isn't it?" said the young man, turning lightly to the gunboat captain. "Little beauty of a shell. Just got her out from home. One more loss to-night to the credit of the beastly Chinese. Shall you fire on them, Captain?"

"Oh, we'll give them a shot or two as soon as we are sure there are none of our people left on Shamen, but we don't want to bring the Chinese gunboats down on us yet. My business is to get these ladies and children to Hong Kong."

After a few minutes talk with the captain, the young man gained the upper deck, where Mrs. Gordon was standing with some other ladies, leaning over the rail and mournfully watching the destruction of her home, which was partly visible from that side of the gunboat.

"D'ye do, Mrs. Gordon!" said the young man, as serenely as though they had met at a ball. "Just saw you coming on board with Challenger Alabaster. I came in a racing-shell, myself. Beautiful boating togs I'm in. Mrs. Gordon, I've been plunging all over Shamen for you to-night. Got a telegram from your husband asking me to take you in charge. Alabaster telegraphed to Hong Kong as soon as we knew of this business. Jack's telegram to me was the last before these blooming pagans cut the lines."

"I should have looked you up in any case," added Lenox, cutting short Mrs. Gordon's murmured thanks, "but every one thought you were at the Consulate. You were there to tennis and at tea, you know."

"Yes," returned the lady, "I only went home to dress. The Alabasters sent young Jewett—consular clerk, you know—and a chair for me. He got into the mob some way and was killed (think how terrible, Mr. Lenox), and the chair coolies ran away. Had it not been for my good amah I should never have escaped. I shall send for her when we get to Hong Kong. I fancy we shall start before long."

Lenox shivered a bit, and leaned over the rail beside Mrs. Gordon. The mention of Emui recalled his last horrible hour at Shamen. Down below he had given the captain a fuller description of his search than he cared to unfold before its object.

"You see, Captain," Lenox had said, "when I got near the Keescheong hong, I saw I was too late. A deadly fear smote me. I had determined to save Mrs. Gordon at all hazards, of course, and was doing my hardest and most rapid thinking as to the wisest course to pursue when luckily I happened to overhear some words in Chinese that told me the fanqui lady had escaped. Of course they knew Emui had helped her. Not only because their well planned surprise on the wealthy Keescheong hong had been so sudden and complete, but because she must have escaped in disguise or been captured. The way between the Consulate and Keescheong was thick with these devils. That plucky little amah not only aided in her mistress's escape, but what do you think? She put on some of her mistress's togs, and paraded up and down in full view of the mob, with open windows, lights, and all that, you know, so as to make them secure of their prey and, by delaying the game, to cover Mrs. Gordon's escape. There are not many Europeans who would do better than that. Women? No, nor men either. You can imagine the fury of those devils when they learned the truth. Poor Emui! I hope to heaven that it wasn't death by a hundred strokes—they are quite capable of it—but I saw a hand, one of the poor creature's little brown paws, I'm afraid it was, on the grass, with a lot else that was ghastly, when I crawled away. The wing of Mrs. Lenox's rooms was totally destroyed."

"Not a word of this to Mrs. Gordon," the Captain had returned, laying his hand on Lenox's arm. "She thought the world of that amah."

"Do you take me for a blooming idiot, Dwyght?" said Lenox, as he withdrew his arm impatiently and sprang up the gangway.

"It is getting very chilly," said Lenox at last, and turning to his companion, "Mrs. Gordon, you have had an awfully exciting day and you must be greatly fatigued. What can I do for your comfort? May I not get you another wrap?"

"Mr. Lenox," asked Mrs. Gordon, whose eyes had been continually riveted on her burning home, and on whose ears Lenox's question fell unheeded, "I am so worried about my amah. Of course you did not see her?" questioning with her eyes, to which he gave an answering look in the negative.

"D'ye suppose—are you quite, quite sure she is safe from harm?"

"I am quite—absolutely sure she is safe from harm," Lenox answered slowly, looking his companion in the eye, unflinchingly (Lenox felt he could lie scientifically, if lie he must), and then, as the lady glanced across at the Shamen again with a sigh and a shudder—"really, my dear Mrs. Gordon," he added, "I must insist upon your going below and getting some tea. You are shivering, and this view is too depressing for you. Let me take you down."

And Mrs. Gordon, in her Chinese garments, with the little jade ornaments still thrust through her hair, went below—and drank tea.—[Romance.]

The Origin of "Dixie."

When slavery existed in New York, one Dixy owned a large number of slaves. The increase of the slaves and increase of the abolition sentiment caused an emigration of the slaves to more thorough and secure slave sections; and the negroes who were thus sent off (many being born there) naturally looked back to their old homes, where they had lived in clover, with feelings of regret, and they could not imagine any place like Dixy's, says a correspondent of the New Orleans Delta. Hence it became synonymous with an ideal locality, combined ease, comfort and material happiness of every description. In those days negro singing and minstrelsy were in their infancy, and any subject that could be wrought into a ballad was eagerly picked up.

This was the case with "Dixie." It originated in New York and assumed the proportions of a song there. In its travels it has been enlarged. A "chorus" has been added to it, and from an indistinct "chant" of two or three notes it has become an elaborate melody. But the fact that it is not a Southern song "cannot be rubbed out."

A writer in the Charleston Courier, under date of June 11, 1861, says "Dixie" is an old Northern negro air, and the words referred to one Dix or Dixy, who had an estate on Manhattan Island, now New York city. General Longstreet gives this version of the origin of the song:

"Writing from memory, one cannot claim to stand closely by the records, hence I can only give recollections of the matter. It originated with the Southern boys at the Military Academy at West Point, and sprung from their admiration of a Northern man named Dixie, who took a noble stand upon the question of 'Southern rights.' He had moved South and lived among us many years. The song came afterward."

General Longstreet became a graduate of West Point in the year 1843. He is pre-eminently a man of reminiscences and, as every one knows, is especially regarded as authority upon all matters pertaining to the Civil War or in any way associated with it. The information he has contributed in this instance will, therefore, be recognized as in the highest degree valuable.

By General Longstreet's account, the man Dixy is certainly placed in a very much more enviable light than he is by the correspondent of the New Orleans Delta, who leads us to believe that, upon the increase of abolition sentiment, the shrewd Dixy disposed of his slaves to unsuspecting Southerners, thus fortifying himself against the possible loss of property which might accrue from the agitation regarding slavery then prevailing at the North.

The origin of the song "Dixie," as indicated by General Longstreet, makes it appear peculiarly fitting that this song should go forth at the national air of the Confederacy.—[St. Louis Republic.]

WEATHER FORECASTS.

WHAT PROPHET FOSTER HAS TO SAY.

Warm Weather to Extend Far into November—Real Winter Will Begin About the Middle of December—Severe Weather in January and February.

Our Weather Letter.

My last bulletin gave forecasts of the storm waves that cross the continent from the 12th to the 16th and 17th to 23d, and the next will reach the Pacific coast about the 23d, cross the Western mountains by the close of the 24th, the great central valleys from the 25th to 27th, and the Eastern States about the 29th.

This disturbance will inaugurate a warm period, that will extend far into November, and the weather will average much warmer than usual.

The cool wave will cross the Western mountains about the 26th, the great Central Valleys about the 28th and the Eastern States about the 30th. We will not have much wintry weather in the Northern States before the middle of November, and no real winter until after the middle of December. The winter will be very severe in January and February.

Local Forecasts.

Weather changes move from west to east across the continent, and each local forecast is made for within 250 miles east and west of the magnetic meridian mentioned, and for all the country between 25 and 50 degrees of north latitude. These local weather changes will occur within twenty-four hours before or after sunset of the dates given:

SANTA FE, DENVER AND BLACK HILLS MERIDIAN.

BULLETIN FOR LAST WEEK.

General Excess of Precipitation Throughout the Mississippi Valley.

The weather crop bulletin for last week says: The crop season of 1892, from March 1 to Oct. 3, closes with a general excess of precipitation throughout the Mississippi valley and generally all over northern districts eastward of the Mississippi valley. In Central and Eastern Texas, Eastern Maine, and in the States bordering on the Atlantic and Maryland southward, the seasonal rainfall has been below the average, the deficiency in Florida and along the Texas coast ranging at some stations from 10 to 15 inches.

New England—An excellent season for all crops except potato; harvesting done; high winds damaged fruit trees in North on Oct. 1; cranberries ready, an average crop; apples average in North, below in South.

New York—Conditions favorable for securing late crops; corn and buckwheat mostly safe; potatoes rotting very badly; killing frosts Oct. 1; damage not yet ascertained.

Pennsylvania—Light frosts general on Oct. 2, killing in some places; early sown wheat looks very fine.

Maryland and Delaware—Light frosts; but no injury reported; wheat seeding mostly finished; tobacco nearly housed.

Arkansas—Cotton improved, opening rapidly and picking general; crop from two to three weeks late; an early frost would greatly reduce the prospective yield.

Missouri—Plowing and seeding nearing completion; corn generally safe from frost and promises fair crop; pastures poor.

Illinois—All corn practically safe; wheat seeding nearly completed except in southern counties, where work was retarded by continued drought; rain badly needed; much corn cut.

Indiana—Wheat is up and looking well, but some damage is being done by flies; late corn is about all ripe and all crops are free from danger.

Ohio—Corn matured, being rapidly cut and mostly in shock; wheat seeding nearly completed, coming up looking well; potatoes yielding poorly; buckwheat and grapes yielding well; frost Sept. 27; no damage.

Michigan—All crops about harvested; some late corn and potatoes still out and a little fall sowing yet to be done.

Wisconsin—Winter wheat and rye doing well, but rain is now needed; crops all yield below average, except tobacco, which is excellent; fall pasturing good.

Minnesota—Corn safe; thrashing three-quarters done in north, and progressing slowly south; rain badly needed for plowing.

Iowa—Corn all safe; rain needed for fall grain, pastures and plowing; water for stock becoming scarce.

North Dakota—Fall plowing general, but ground becoming too hard; corn safe from frost; thrashing progressing finely.

South Dakota—Corn nearly matured; thrashing over one-third completed; all grains average fairly; rain needed badly for plowing.

Nebraska—Late corn has ripened rapidly; ground too dry for plowing; fall-sown grain and pastures are suffering from drought.

Kansas—Warm, cloudless and rainless week, rapidly drying up pastures, fodder, stock, water, delaying fall plowing and seeding, and injurious to growing wheat, but beneficial to corn.

Oregon—Harvest over; crops waiting shipment and generally better than anticipated; grass growing; stock in condition for winter; plowing and seeding progressing.

Kentucky—Rain badly needed for pastures, fall plowing and seeding; corn safe.

The total loss is $2,000; partially insured.

ANDREW FOSTER, a well-known business man of Port Huron, dropped dead while returning from dinner. He had been in perfect health, and the cause evidently was heart failure. SECRETARY BAKER, of the Michigan Board of Health, said that in view of the conflict of authority between the State and local boards of health over quarantine regulations the State Board would, at its next meeting, take steps to determine the authority of the board under the existing statute. If the law was not broad enough to enable the board to protect the State against the presence of infected immigrants, the members want the next Legislature to change the law before the consequences become more serious.

DALTON BANDITS DIE.

WIPED OUT WHILE ROBBING
BANKS IN KANSAS.

They Ride Into Coffeyville, Attack the Banks, and Are Attacked—Four of Them
Killed, and They Also Kill Five Citizens.

Fight to the Death.
The Dalton gang has been exterminated, wiped off the face of the earth.
Caught like rats in a trap, they were shot down, but not until four citizens of Coffeyville, Kan., yielded up their lives
in the work of extermination.

Six of the gang rode into the town
Wednesday morning and robbed the two banks. Their raid had become known to the officers of the law, and when the bandits attempted to escape they were attacked by the Marshal's posse. In the battle which ensued four of the desperadoes were killed outright, and

THE DALTON BROTHERS.

one was so badly wounded that he has since died. The other escaped, but he is being hotly pursued.

Of the attacking party four were killed,
one was fatally and two seriously wounded. The dead are:

BOB DALTON, desperado, shot through the
head.
GRANT DALTON, desperado, shot through the
head.
EMMET DALTON, desperado, shot through the
head.

JOHN MOORE, alias "Texas Jack," desperado,
shot through the head.
T. C. CONNELLY, City Marshal, shot through the body.

L. M. BALDWIN, bank clerk, shot through the
head.
G. W. CUBINE, merchant, shot through the
head.
C. J. BROWN, shoemaker, shot through the body.

Thomas G. Ayers, cashier of the First National Bank, was shot through the groin and cannot live.

T. A. Rennolds of the attacking party has a wound in the right breast, but it is not considered necessarily dangerous.
Luis Deiz, another of the attacking party, was shot in the right side. His wound is a serious one, but is not fatal.

It was 9 o'clock when the gang rode into town, in two squads of three each,
passing through unfrequented streets
and deserted alleys to the alley in the rear of the First National Bank. They quickly tied their horses, and without losing a moment's time proceeded to the attack upon the bank.

Robert Dalton, the notorious leader
of the gang, and Emmet, his brother went to the First National bank, the other four under the leadership of "Texas Jack," or John Moore, going to the private bank of O. M. Congdon & Co.

In the meantime the alarm had already been given. The Dalton boys were born and bred in the vicinity, and were well known to nearly every man, woman and child. Almost before the bandits had entered the bank Marshal Connelly was collecting a posse. He ran first to the livery stable of Jim Spears, a dead
shot with a Winchester and a valuable man in any fight. Then he summoned
George Cubine, a merchant; Charles Brown, a shoemaker; John Cox, express agent, and other citizens who could be conveniently reached, stationing them
about the square, which both of the banks faced.

Robbers Go Through the Banks.
While the marshal was collecting his forces the bandits, all ignorant of the trap that was being laid for them, were proceeding deliberately with their work
of robbing the banks. "Texas Jack's"
band had entered Congdon's bank, and with their Winchesters leveled at Cashier Ball and Teller Carpenter had ordered them to throw up their hands.

Then "Texas Jack" searched them for weapons while the other three desperadoes kept them covered with their rifles. Finding them to be unarmed Cashier Ball was ordered to open the safe. The cashier explained that the safe's door was controlled by a time
lock and that it could not be by any means short of dynamite be opened before its time was up, which would be 10 o'clock,
or in about twenty minutes. "We'll
wait," said the leader, and he sat down
at the cashier's desk.

Bob and Emmet Dalton in the meanwhile were having better luck at the First National bank. When they entered the bank they found within Cashier Ayers, his son, Albert Ayers, and Teller W. H. Shepherd. None of them were armed, and with
leveled revolvers the brother bandits easily intimidated them. Albert Ayers and Teller Shepherd were kept under the muzzles of Emmet Dalton's revolvers while Bob Dalton forced Cashier Ayers to strip the safe vault and cash drawers of all the money contained in them and place it in a sack which had been brought along for that purpose.

Bob Dalton Dies in His Beds.

Fearing to leave them behind, lest they should give the alarm before the bandits should be able to mount their horses and escape, the desperadoes marched the officers of the bank out of the door with the intention of keeping them under guard while they made their escape. The party made its appearance at the door of the bank just as Liveryman Spears and his companions of the Marshal's posse took their positions in the square. When the Dalton brothers saw the armed men in the square they appreciated their peril on the instant, and leaving the bank officers on the steps of the bank building, ran for their horses. As soon as they reached the sidewalk
Spears' rifle quickly came to position.
An instant later it spoke and Bob Dalton, the notorious leader of the notorious gang, fell in his tracks, dead. There was not a quiver of a muscle after he fell. The bullet had struck him in the right temple and ploughed through his brain and passed out just above the left eye. Emmet Dalton had the start of his brother, and before Spears could draw a bead on him he had dodged behind the corner of the bank and was making time in the direction of the alley where the bandits had tied their horses.

The shot which dropped Bob Dalton
among "Texas Jack" and his men in Congdon's bank, where they were patiently waiting for the timelock of the safe to be sprung within the hour of 10.
Running to the windows of the bank
they saw their leader prostrate on the ground. Raising their rifles to their shoulders they fired one volley out of the windows. Cashier Ayers fell on the steps of his bank, shot through the groin. Shoemaker Brown of the attacking party in the square was shot through the body. He was quickly removed to his shop, but died just as he was carried within.

Spears' Rifle Again Speaks.

The firing attracted the attention of Marshal Connelly, who, collecting more men for his posse and with the few that he had already gathered, ran
hurriedly to the scene of the conflict.

After firing their volley from the windows of the bank the bandits, appreciating that their only safety lay in flight, attempted to escape. They ran from the door of the bank, firing as they fled. The Marshal's posse in the square, without organization of any kind, fired at the fleeing bandits, each man for himself. Spears' trusty Winchester spoke twice
more in quick succession before the others of the posse could take aim, and Joseph Evans and "Texas Jack" fell dead, both shot through the head, making three dead bandits to his credit. In the general fusillade Grant E. Dalton, one of the two surviving members of
"Texas Jack's" squad, Marshal Connelly, D. M. Baldwin, and George Cubine were mortally wounded and died on the field. Allie Ogee, the only survivor of the band, succeeded in escaping to the alley, where the horses were tied, and mounting the swiftest horse of the lot fled south in the direction of Indian Territory.

Emmet Dalton, who had escaped
from the First National Bank, had already reached the alley in safety, but he had some trouble in getting mounted, and Allie Ogee had already made his escape before Emmet got fairly started. Several of the posse, anticipating that horses would be required, were already mounted, and quickly pursued the escaping bandit.
Emmet Dalton's horse was no match
for the fresher animals of his pursuers.

As the pursuers closed on him, he turned suddenly in his saddle, and fired
upon his would-be captors.

The latter answered with a volley and Emmet toppled from his horse and hit him. He was brought back to town, and died later. He made an ante-mortem statement, confessing to the various crimes committed by the gang of which he was a member. Allie Ogee had about ten minutes' start of his pursuers, and was mounted on a swift horse.

After the battle was over search was made for the money which the bandits
had secured from the two banks. It was found in the sacks where it had been placed by the robbers. One sack was found under the body of Bob Dalton, who had fallen dead upon it while he was escaping from the First National Bank. The other was found tightly climbed in "Texas Jack's" hand. The money was restored to its rightful owners.

THE LAY OF THE LAND.

LORD TENNYSON IS DEAD.

An Attack of Influenza Complicated
with Gout Results Fatally.

Lord Alfred Tennyson, poet-laureate
of Great Britain, died at his residence,
Aldworth, Surrey, at an early hour
Thursday morning. A slight cold taken a week before developed into influenza,
which caused death.

Alfred Tennyson was born at Somers-
by, Lincolnshire, England, in 1809. His father, the Rev. George Clayton Tenny-son, was the rector of Somersby and vicar of Bennington and Grimsby, while his mother was the daughter of the Rev.
Stephen Fytche, vicar of Louth. He was the third of a family of twelve children. The talent which gained for him
the title of Poet Laureate of England
began to develop itself in his early youth, for when 18 years old he, with his brother Charles, who afterward became vicar of Grimsby and assumed the name of Turner, published a small volume entitled "Poems by Two Brothers."
The poems attracted some attention,
those signed "A. T." receiving the highest praise, Coleridge declaring that they alone of the selections in the volume gave hopeful promise of a coming poet.

In 1850 there appeared anonymously
what was probably the purest and truest poem of that period, Tennyson's "In Memoriam," a series of 129 brief poems
all wrought together in grand pathetic
tribute to the memory of the poet's college friend and companion, Arthur Hallam, who died in Vienna in 1833.
For seventeen years Tennyson had borne the sacred grief of his friend's death, during which time he composed the elegies contained in the volume "In Memoriam." November 21, 1850, Tennyson was appointed to the honorary place of Poet Laureate of England, succeeding Wordsworth. Of the poems written in that capacity there have been few that have been considered by critics as works which are to take rank
with others of his poems, notably the
"Ode on the Death of the Duke of Wellington," and the "Charge of the Light Brigade at Balaclava." Both of these were included in his volume entitled
"Maud and Other Poems," published in 1855.

The residence of Lord Tennyson has been on the Isle of Wight for several years, near Freshwater Gate. He owned there a commodious stone house, with a pleasant library, where he spent the most of his hours of literary work, surrounded by his books.

The twenty-fourth anniversary
of the establishment of Dr. A. O. U. W.
was celebrated at the residence of Dr.
A. O. U. W., Kan.

COL. JAMES E. RICE, ex-Auditor of Indiana, died in Indianapolis.

HALF-FARE TO SEE WESTERN LANDS.

Last Chance This Year.

The third and last Harvest Excursion
will be run to special territory—Oklahoma
and Indian Reservations and Texas.
The Great Rock Island Route runs into
and through these reservations, and is the only road that touches these lands, lately
put on the market.

See hand-bills giving particulars, and remember the date is Oct. 23, for Chicago
and points to and including Mississippi River, and one day later for Missouri River

Physical Culture and Long Life.

According to a leading medical journal
of 5,000 soldiers who were examined recently by a surgeon nearly 80 per cent. were found to be suffering from heart trouble as the result of forced exertion. This leads that journal to the conclusion that athletic sports are not conducive to longevity, and it points as a proof to France, where there is no
craze for muscular development, and where one finds more people over the age of 60 than in England, with its rage
for physical culture. It would seem,
however, that the distinguished editor
of the journal in question confounded
the rage for "display" athletics with
that for general physical development.
It has been long noted in the gymnasiums that those who train the most persistently give out the quickest. The cause of it is that they develop the muscles at the expense of the nervous strength. But there is a moderation in both which means better health and longer life, and to the majority of those who enter gymnasium work that is what is sought rather than "record-breaking"
capabilities.—Boston Journal.

Recommendations of Servants.

What sort of references shall mistresses give servants? writes Christine Terhune Herriek, in a pertinent article upon this important subject in the Ladies' Home Journal.

First, let them be true. Women, otherwise honorable, have, concerning
this matter, a perverted sense of right and wrong, a perversion that is, I dare say, in seven cases out of ten, begotten of moral cowardice. The whilom mistress feels the recoil natural to a refined woman from the torrent of abuse that would, in all likelihood, be her portion were she to write a reference stating as clearly the defects as
the virtues of the departing abject.

In the other three cases of the ten,
a morbid and entirely ill-directed consideration for the servant inspires the woman, who will say only good of a fauldy domestic, lest the latter lose the chance of a good situation. She fails to carry the result of her misplaced
charity to its legitimate conclusion,
and to put herself in the place of the

Keep Off the Enemy.

A foe who lurks in ambush is a more dangerous antagonist than one who attacks us in the open field, and for whose assaults we are, in a measure, prepared. That dangerous enemy to health, malaria, must be encountered fully armed. Its thrusts are sudden, unexpected and deadly, and can only be guarded against with certainty by fortifying the system by a course of defensive medication. The surest defense against chills and fever, bilious remittent, dumb ague, and ague cake is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which is also an er-
ector of the most obstinate forms of malaria
which resist the action of ordinary specifics,
and the virus of which remains in the system
even when the more violent symptoms are subdued. Constipation, liver complaint, dyspepsia, and kidney troubles are always relieved by this genial remedy.

The Eight-Hour Law in Scotland.

The Scotch Trades Union Congress,
in session at Glasgow, has decided
against the compulsory eight-hour day
for all trades indiscriminately. Upon the resolution in favor of this law, but allowing such trades as object to it to be exempt from its operations, the vote of the delegates showed for the law a majority of 50 to a total of 400. This vote
probably indicates that the Scotch workingmen are almost evenly divided for
and against such a law, with the reserved right conceded to every trade to decide for itself whether or no to adopt it.

Needs assistance it may be best to render it promptly, but one should re-

Illiteracy in Great Britain.

A Parliament return of the illiterate
vote of Great Britain and Ireland, showing the number of persons who voted as
"illiterates" at elections from April 9, 1891, to June 30, 1892, has just been published. It shows that in English county elections there were 1,561 illiterates out of 98,599 votes polled; in English boroughs, 435 out of 42,139; in Scottish county elections, 11 out of 2,342; in Scottish burghs, 53 out of 11,132; and in Irish elections, 2,133 out of 22,942. The proportions in contested Irish seats were 829 illiterates out of a poll of 5,391 in County Carlow, 778 out of 7,107 in Cork City, 371 out of 3,033 in Waterford City, and only 154 out of 7,411 in East Belfast.

THE use of Ely's Cream Balm, a sure cure
for Catarrh and Cold in head, is attended
with no pain, inconvenience or dread,
which can be said of no other remedy.

I FEEL it my duty to say a few words
in regard to Ely's Cream Balm, and I do so entirely without solicitation. I have used it half a year, and have found it to be most admirable. I have suffered from catarrh of the worst kind ever since I was a little boy and I never hoped for cure, but Cream Balm seems to do even that. Many of my acquaintances have used it with excellent results.—Oscar Ostrum, 45 Warren Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Quickly Absorbed. GIVES RELIEF AT ONCE.

I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other harmful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
