Army's Caravan Visits Ottawa To Collect Scrap

Soldiers Are Part of Task Force That Was In City Last August

Seventy-two soldiers of Camp Waterloo near Jackson were back in Holland on Wednesday to collect scrap metals following their first visit here Aug. 30 when they were part of the task force of 800 soldiers which put on a salute to Holland's agriculture, industry and labor.

The caravan of 20 army trucks rolled into Holland at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday and set up headquarters in Holland armory. Following dinner at the Mary Jane restaurant, many of the soldiers attended a movie through courtesy of Henry Carley.

The trucks left on various routes all over the country Wednesday after the men had breakfast in the local restaurant. There was one local man on each truck to direct the route.

The soldiers expressed their appreciation for the city's efforts to keep the entire group together for sleeping and meals.

According to Lieut. Edward A. Yockel who is in command of the soldiers, the caravan has been collecting scrap in various counties in Michigan for a week and will conclude the tour Nov. 12. He commended the county salvage committee of which John Van Dam is chairman for its fine promotional work.

The caravan came from Allegan where the men were housed in the high school and given meals in a church and restaurant. The trucks will leave at 4 p.m. Wednesday for Grand Rapids and will collect Kent county scrap today.

Most of the men in the caravan have been traveling on one army project or another since May, participating in salute programs, helping quell race riots and other activities.

Mayor Henry Geerlings greeted the soldiers as they arrived and had supper with them. Army officers conferred with salvage leaders in regard to routes and other plans.

M. W. Osborn of the war production board who is traveling with the caravan said that if any places are missed, they should get in touch with salvage leaders and arrangements will be made to make the collection as the drive is open until Nov. 15. The entire program was planned by John McGillis of the war production board, general chairman for salvage in Michigan.

Simon Borr, Ottawa county chairman for the offices of civilian defense, said today that the collection of heavy scrap metals throughout the county Wednesday by 72 soldiers and 20 army trucks was satisfactory. He said no figures were available on the amount collected but indicated that it might be slightly under the county quota of 465 tons.

Anyone having scrap that was not picked up in Wednesday's drive is requested to call County Chairman John Van Dam or any of the chairmen in five sections of the county and arrangements will be made to make the collection. They include Phil Van Hartesveldt, Holland; George Van Koevering, Zeeland; Martin Van Schelven, Grand Haven; Roy Lowing, Hudsonville, and Ed Dinkel, Coopersville.

The Holland scrap has been dumped on a pile in the old tannery lot. Other salvage centers are in Zeeland, Grand Haven, Hudsonville and Coopersville. Van Koevering, Zeeland chairman, estimated the amount collected in his territory at 20 tons.

Sgt. Golds Tells Conditions in Africa

Sgt. John E. Golds

Conditions in North Africa during the invasion by the Allies are described by Sgt. John E. Golds in a letter to his mother, Mrs. A. H. Golds, 55 West 13th St.

Sgt. Golds, who was the first selectee from Holland to enter training, is now in Sicily. He left Holland in November, 1941, and went overseas in the early spring of 1943. He is in the ordnance department, having been transferred from the medical detachment before leaving for overseas.

"Since we are now in Sicily, we can describe North Africa more freely," Sgt. Golds writes. "The towns we had most to do with were Oran, Algeria, and Tunis, Tunisia. The buildings are much different from those we are used to, with stone being the chief building material. The streets are much better than I expected, being largely paved. Some are rough, but then I seem to remember such things in the good old U. S. A.

"Another interesting thing about North Africa are the people. The Arabs, of course, were a most unusual sight to us at first. Never before had we seen the fair young ladies all wrapped up in white from head to foot. Exposing more than one eye is simply unheard of by the higher classes. Once, down at the sea, I saw an Arab woman trying to wash her face and still keep it covered. I couldn't tell whether she succeeded or not.

"The men are a great bunch. In their baggy breeches or old white robes, they parade up and down and look pretty. They are a happy-go-lucky, carefree people, and don't give a darn for anything. The Americano soldiers have a lot of fun with them—dirt and all. Most of the men wear a little red cap or fez showing they are Moslems, or a dark blue fez designating their Jewish nationality.

"The language is what really drives one crazy. The Arabic alphabet is entirely different from ours; they even write from right to left to make it harder. Then there is the French language, but many of those words are close enough to ours so we can understand a little. How the Fernch do rattle it off! Where we say yes or no it takes them at least half an hour to say such a thing. Of course, we stand there pulling our hair until the conversation ends.

"The tramway, or streetcar, system is quite something, especially in Oran. They have queer little cars with crazy trailers along behind. People hang on all over the cars when full inside. The cars make terrific speed too—one can walk nearly as fast. The fares are most reasonable, however, starting at a half franc—one cent. The railroads, too, are remarkable—all whistle and no train, although they seem to carry large loads.

"The money is popularly called wallpaper, because it is so large and there is so much of it. It comes in 5, 10, 20, 50, 100 and 1,000 francs, each getting larger. Coins are in two francs, one and one-half francs; and in ten centimes and five centimes. The latter have holes in the middle and the Tunisian coins have Arabic as well as French writing. A cumbersome system to say the least.

Sgt. Golds also told of the country and the crops grown there, stating, "Northern Africa is divided into four parts, French Morocco, Spanish Morocco, Algeria and Tunisia the last two the ones where we were. The coastal area, from 50 to 100 miles wide, known as the Tell, consists of very fertile plains with valleys running out from the hills. This land is mainly owned by the Europeans and is cultivated scientifically.

"Agricultural products naturally include much wheat and grapes—the natives, including the children, seem to live on bread and wine. Also grown are barley, oats, corn, potatoes, flax and tobacco, with cattle grazing important in some sectors. Wine and olive oil are among the leading exports of both territories.

"Theatres in Africa are great things. Tickets are sold a day in advance for the main floor. Then, we G. I.'s come and have to pay more for the balcony than the townspeople did for their reserved seats. Of course, all latecomers had that to pay but we never were so lucky as to be in town two days in a row. Most films were American, and it certainly was fun to see the actors and actresses move their lips in English and talk in French.

"Another sight was a baseball game. Eighteen brave men would march out on the field surrounded by a motley throng of French Arabs, privates and other high army dignitaries, and bat and throw a little ball around. First one bunch of Americanoes would yell and then the other. The Arabs would look at each other, scratch their heads, watch some more and try to figure out the reason for all the yelling. I bet a football game would really baffle them.

"Since the weather is mostly sunshine and little rain, irrigation is quite a problem. The Arabs, somehow, have mastered the art of well-digging. They really have wells 75 or more feet deep, about ten feet in diameter and 'paved' all the way down with stone and cement.

"All the people were expert scavengers. An Arab's day was a great success if he could return home at night with a couple G. I. boards off a G. I. box. If he returned with the whole box, he became eligible for the Arab Distinguished Service cross.

"Keeping up to date on the news is practically impossible. Magazines and papers of the last three months are very popular things. Of course, we are usually able to get the Stars and Stripes or the Union Jack, but they are far from such journals as the Holland Evening Sentinel.

"Mail call of course is the great thing. Sometimes, the mail just trickles in; then, it may stop altogether, and suddenly the flood comes and the jeep can hardly hold it all. One letter mailed May 20 reached me July 22, that's the record so far; but as long as we get it, it's okay. The way we move around, it's a wonder it ever catches up to us.

"The ruins of ancient Carthage are near Tunis and all of us went to see the place. A large part of it was excavated by an expedition from the University of Michigan some twenty years ago. They went in for stone buildings in those days, too, with many of the houses having fancy tile floors. Often a little place for the family altar was found.

"There was a large open amphitheatre there among the ruins, the stage and part of the seats still remaining. It is much on the order of the one at Castle park, the way the seats go up the hill and the stage at the bottom.

"A good way to end is with the Arab salute, which is given with the left hand. They salute anybody—even me—and we get a big kick out of it."

They searched until 3 p.m. when the detective had to return to Holland to report for work at 4 p.m. The fact that the dog disappeared in a corn field near a road leads the owner to believe the brown and white English setter was picked up by a car.

Power Break in Holland Is Caused By Short Circuit

West Section Cut Off Two and a Half Hours By Outside Trouble

Power and light service was restored in Holland on Monday after a breakdown in the local power plant that cut off service on two circuits for 1½ hours and on a third circuit for more than 2½ hours.

The trouble was caused by a short circuit in the main leads of the generator, Assistant Supt. Charles Vos explained. The short circuit was so severe, he said, that it melted through a metal duct causing trouble on the exciter end of the generator, resulting in a slight explosion. The generator was immediately shut off and everything possible was done to put the plant in working order. A second generator was started, but it takes some time to get a huge generator in working order.

The stand-by station at Fifth St. was ordered placed in a position to take the load in event further trouble developed.

Power failed at 7:36 a.m. and was resumed for the two circuits at 9:08 a.m. Some outside trouble on the third circuit delayed service there until 10:17 a.m. The third circuit is by far the largest circuit in the city and services the entire western part of the city, Central park, the Graafschap road and other places in that area.

All available linemen and the trouble crew concentrated on the area to locate the trouble. Power was restored without any particular "cause" being located on the circuit, Mr. Vos said.

The breakdown caused considerable inconvenience throughout the city. Production was halted in war plants, housewives in the midst of the weekly family wash were obliged to wait and houses and buildings got cold when electrically controlled thermostats failed.

Telephone calls kept all three lines at the board of public works office continuously in use. War plant officials generally accepted the situation with better grace than some of the housewives.

A special auxiliary plant at Holland hospital provided light, although somewhat unsatisfactory, for the operating room. The x-ray equipment could not be used. Shortly after the main line failed, the elevator was attached to the auxiliary line. There was no "dramatic" situation in the hospital, and the main inconvenience was felt in the laundry which halted operations until the power was resumed at 10:17 a.m.

More inconvenience was noted in the Warm Friend tavern where the elevator halted about three feet from the lobby floor, and the elevator operator crawled out. There were no lights at the desk or in the dark stairways until candles were obtained. Rooms grew cold because the stokers are electrically controlled.

United Press service at The Sentinel was halted for an hour and a half, as was most of the activity in the composing room since the linotype machines are operated by electricity. A special wire brought in copy which had been missed.

Officers in police cars were able to maintain communications over the radio system, but could not call the police station where the equipment is electrically controlled. To remedy the situation, the desk sergeant sent out calls from a squad car parked at the station.

Monday morning is the worst possible time for a breakdown in power, public works officials said. The extra load caused by uncounted washing machine motors caused added complications.

The last plant failure occurred on two occasions last July 11. At that time it was on a Sunday and the power failed for 10 minutes near 10 a.m. and about 35 minutes in the late afternoon. This was the first breakdown in the three years of operation in the new power plant. At that time, the trouble was caused by an automatic protective device on a turbine.

Says Legislation Is No Solution to Work Problems

Rotary Speaker Calls For Cool Reasoning by Labor, Management

"Human Relationships in Business" was the subject of the talk delivered to the Holland Rotary club Thursday noon in the Warm Friend tavern by Casper Apeley, president of the Atlas Powder Co. of Waukegan.

Mr. Apeley presented his remarks to the group through the medium of letters written to his father-in-law, which he had brought up to date and which he modified from time to time with side comments.

Labor, as a much discussed question today, must be viewed from the standpoint of human relationships, man to man, according to Mr. Apeley. He held that legislation is not the solution to any of the present day problems confronting management and labor, but that men must learn to reason cooly among themselves in order to obtain constructive solutions.

Following this thought with a discussion of the Golden Rule in business of modern America, Mr. Apeley showed arguments regarding its practibility or lack of it. He used several illustrations from his experience to lend force to his concept of the treatment that should be accorded to labor.

One picture showed clearly that the obligation of an employer does not end with the payment of a wage, but rather begins at this point. He claimed further that distinctions between white collar workers and manual laborers, plus lack of appreciation on the part of the employe, create much of the unrest in the free enterprise system of the United States.

Using statistics as proof, Mr Apeley went on to show that machinery of this age has improved rather than destroyed opportunity for working men and that the larger numbers of machines today aim toward relieving tedium and reducing heavy work rather than producing unemployment. In closing, he emphasized that no problem of mankind is insoluble in the face of the application of patience and Christian precepts.

Vaudie Vandenberg introduced the speaker with a few remarks about his early life and beginnings in business.

Guests of the Rotarians were Asa S. Bacon of Sister Lakes and Jack Marcus of Holland. A round of applause was given Rotarian Harry Kramer because of his recent appointment as local postmaster.

Credit Zietlow With Killing Many Japs

To Sgt. George Zietlow of Holland and his machine gun squad goes credit for killing more Japs, perhaps, than any other unit of the 126th infantry during the New Guinea campaign, it was revealed today as exploits of western Michigan men in the battle front of the southwestern Pacific were reviewed on the third anniversary of their entering the service actively.

Capt. Mitchel Haan, now home on leave in Grand Rapids, said he has seen the jungle littered with Jap bodies in front of Zietlow's gun emplacement. Once a Jap officer discovered Sgt. Zietlow lying in his slit trench, and, with sword drawn, was about to fix the Holland soldier. By a quick movement, Zietlow seized the Jap by the legs, toppling him into the trench and the sergeant then choked him into unconsciousness and ran him through with Japs own sword.

Zietlow's mother, Mrs. Richard Ellison, won distinction recently by devoting her entire income to war bonds. Both she and her husband are employed by Holland Precision Parts.

Sgt. George Zietlow

Sgt. Zietlow joined the national guards more than seven years ago. He was born in Detroit and is a graduate of Holland high school. His wife resides in Muskegon.

The Rev. Thomas Yff of Hudsonville conducted a devotional period at the afternoon meeting, and the Rev. Jacob Kamps of Rehoboth, N.M., spoke on mission work among the Indians in that territory. Gerrit Dykman told of the home mission work being carried on in the Holland classis, and testimony was given by Mrs. Wagner of Harderwyk. Music consisted of two duets by Mrs. H. Palmbos and Mrs. C. Vos.

During the business meeting, the retiring secretary, Mrs. Henry Venhuizen, was presented with a bouquet of flowers in appreciation of her 12 years of service as an officer in the union.

New officers elected include: Mrs. Martin Bolt, first vice-president; Mrs. Ray Nykamp, secretary; and Mrs. Simon De Weerd, treasurer (reelected). Opening with a song service led by the Rev. D. H. Walters, the evening session featured devotions by the Rev. Martin Bolt and music by the Hudsonville male chorus. Speakers of the evening were Miss Tena Huizenga of the African Sudan mission and Dr. George Goris who has been working as camp pastor at Washington, D.C. and the surrounding territory. The Rev. George Gritter closed the meeting with prayer.

War Won't End Soon, Harms Predicts

Sporting a healthy tan on his return home after 20 months of active duty with a navy medical unit, Lieut. H. P. Harms said, "I think the thing is going very well, but there is no reason to believe this war will be over in a few months."

Lieut. Harms gained the impression, he said, that "Some of the people back here are more optimistic than they ought to be." Declining to make any predictions, he said, "the length of the war is anybody's guess, but it won't end soon."

As chief of surgery for his unit, Lieut. Harms worked in a naval field hospital on a southwest Pacific island for 15 months. Much of the time the hospital was short of doctors.

The mosquitoes were the "bane of our existence," he said, but explained that the malaria-carrying mosquito was not found on his island. Temperatures "hovered" around 90, and 100 degrees and the humidity ran around 85, making the climate highly uncomfortable. Rain and continual dampness also characterized the island.

For 10 months, he lived in a tent in the jungle and later the men moved into pre-fabricated Quonset huts of pressed wood. These huts were screened in and were more comfortable as well as an added protection. Men going into the islands for service from now on, will find living conditions much improved.

Casualties arrived by plane from the combat area and the navy medical staff was kept very busy caring for them.

Mail, especially air mail, came through regularly, he said, and they were able to get radio programs from Honolulu and San Francisco. No daytime broadcasts were heard and the best reception was by short wave. Radios didn't stand up well there and wore out in a short time. A small portable radio would bring as much as $150, he said, "if it works."

During the time he was away, he saw no one he had known before entering service, Lieut. Harms said. However, en route to his base, he saw Brig. Gen. Lyle Miller, of the United States marine corps who was stationed on another island. The two enjoyed a chat of an hour or more before Lieut. Harms reembarked for further travel. (Brig. Gen. Miller is a son-in-law of C. A. French, Sentinel publisher.)

Natives on the island were Polynesians and very primitive, Lieut. Harms said, but proved very friendly. Among interesting souvenirs he brought back with him, is a head hunter's knife which was given to him by an old chief on the island. Harking back to the days when the native tribes were cannibalistic, the knife is more than 100 years old and is equipped with a hook which was put through the victim's ear to facilitate the carrying of the head.

Lieut. Harms returned to the United States via ship and was on the sea two weeks before reaching a west coast port. Upon the expiration of his 30-day leave, he will report back to San Diego, Calif., for further orders.

WMC Seeking More Workers

The War Manpower commission is seeking workers who will be able to work parttime or full time in essential industries in Holland and vicinity.

The Ottawa county war board is cooperating in allowing the eligible farmer to obtain war work during the farmers' slack period. In assisting the farmers, the war board has arranged for a member of their board to be at the United States employment office in Holland on Tuesday afternoons. This member will pass on the eligibility of such case. If a farmer receives the approval of the war board he is referred to the placement department of the United States employment service who refers the farmer to a job.

The only exception to this procedure is in regard to men with a 2C or 3C classification. Anyone having this classification must make application directly to the war board which meets each Tuesday morning at the AAA headquarters in Grand Haven. The members of the board pass on a case as a whole. If approval to go to work in industry is given by the war board, the 2C or 3C applicant is then sent to the selective service board who may or may not approve of applicant working in industry.

The Allegan county U.S.D.A. war board is operating in the same manner, but the day has not been set when a representative of the board will be in the United States employment service office.

Farmers of Allegan county seeking employment, other than 2C or 3C men, can make application for farm releases in the United States employment service office at any time. Plans have been made for a clearance until a member of the war board can spend a half-day in the Holland office.

With industry needing more men at once, farmers who have completed their work are asked to appear at the Holland office.

Busscher Joins Netherlands RAF

Eager to get into uniform and begin special training in England to fit him as a combat pilot for the Netherlands royal air force in which he enlisted as a volunteer here, Justin Busscher, 25, of route 4, departed on Monday for New York to complete enlistment preliminaries before sailing for the British Isles.

Busscher, who has more than 110 solo hours logged as a civilian flyer, has been active in the local wing of the civil air patrol in which he served as a lieutenant. He was formerly employed at the Chris-Craft plant here.

Busscher, a graduate of Holland high school in the class of 1936, took his civilian flight training in Grand Rapids several years ago and for some time owned a plane in partnership with Gradus Geurink. His CAP work included courses in navigation and meteorology, as well as some military training and discipline, all of which was taken into account by Netherlands army officials when he volunteered for service as a flyer in the Dutch air force which is attached to the British RAF.

Mrs. Busscher, the former Dorothy Fisher of Holland, will remain here. The young flyer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Busscher, of 345 West 17th St.

In England Busscher looks forward to meeting Joseph and Marvin Aardema and James Woldring, Holland men who volunteered for service with the Dutch air force several months ago and took preliminary training at Guelph, Ont., before going overseas. The Netherlands army has now discontinued the base at Guelph and all flyers in the European theater are being trained at RAF bases in England.

Volunteers for the Netherlands air force and other branches of the Dutch army, navy or merchant marine may obtain information about these services at the office of the Netherlands museum, in the city hall here. The should have at least a working knowledge of the Dutch language. Service in the Netherlands forces carries insurance and dependence benefits.

Weakened Dutch Eleven Defeated By Union, 21 to 0

Gains Only One First Down to Fifteen for Foe in G.R. Contest

Riddled by injuries and sickness, Coach Malcolm Mackay's Holland high school football team was defeated by Grand Rapids Union, 21-0, Thursday night under the lights of Houseman's field in Grand Rapids.

The entire backfield for Holland was made up of second stringers as was the biggest share of the line. All in all eight regulars were out of the lineup with injuries or the flu. Hill, Allen, De Waard, Zonnebelt, Kuipers, Benz, Folkert and Hudzik were the boys who were forced out of play, either completly or partly.

Accordingly, the team played almost a 100 per cent defensive game and let the Red Hawks handle the slippery pigskin. All went well in the first quarter as De Waard kept the Union team back in its own territory with some fine punts. But in the second frame the Holland defense could no longer stand the pressure and the Union team cracked across two touchdowns.

The first touchdown came on an intercepted pass with Houser, a tackle, toting the pigskin 65 yards for the score. The second came on straight line plays starting from the Holland 42-yard line. The third touchdown which was made in the third quarter also came on a sustained ground attack starting from the Union 37-yard line. Krause kicked all three extra points.

The Dutchmen were nothing less than a pitiful sight on the field. They managed only one first down the entire game, while Union racked up 15. One Union touchdown was nullified due to a clipping penalty.

When Ottawa County Inductees Were Given Gideon Testaments

These inductees, shown in the Grand Haven selective service headquarters, are displaying Gideon Tesaments and Psalms provided through the Holland Gideon camp. To the left are shown Gideons Henry Becksfort, chairman of the Testament committee; Ben L. Van Lente, president of the Holland camp, and Ted Hoeksema, all of Holland.

More than five million copies have been distributed among men and women in the armed services, Mr. Van Lente explained the Bibles are paid for by voluntary contributions and since the Gideons never order Bibles without cash on hand, the amount of contributions received determines the number of Bibles the association places. Besides distributing Testaments at selective service centers, the Gideons also receive requests from chaplains for individual copies. The Great Lakes naval training station has a standing order for 15,000 copies a week.

James Slager is chairman of the Holland Gideon drive. Persons wishing to make a gift may send their contributions to Mr. Slager, 19 East 14th St., or the Gideon treasurer, Herman Bos, 145 West 21st St.

Landwehr Clears Points On Community-War Drive

To clear up some points that may be in the public mind concerning the Community - War chest drive which gets under way Thursday, Edgar P. Landwehr, campaign chairman, has issued a statement for the information of those who will be called upon for donations, as follows:

"The Holland Community chest and the National war fund are two separate organizations, one serving the local front while the other represents the military and United Nations fronts. The two are, however, united in a single drive, so that a person may give once for all 27 of the agencies served by the two organizations. None of these 27 social and relief agencies will individually solicit funds during the year.

"Because the two chests are merged into one campaign, one should regard his contribution in relation to the total of $31,500 which must be raised, and therefore at least double the donation that would ordinarily be made to either one of the organizations.

"Each donation is for a year, and need not be paid in full at this time. The amount pledged can be spread out in payments to suit the convenience of the donor.

"If any one or more of the 27 separate agencies carries a particular appeal to any contributor, he may earmark his donation for those specific agencies, but in doing so he should not overlook the needs of the other agencies, and should include a lump sum for them.

"Now that practically every wage and salary earner comes under the income tax automatically through the 20 per cent withholding tax, the amount of chest contribution becomes an allowable tax deduction, and this should be kept and used to reduce one's income tax. The fact that such donations are legal tax deductions, up to 15 per cent of one's income, indicates that the government encourages the support of the agencies represented by the Community-War chest.

"Each contributor to the chest fund will be given a heart-shaped tag, signifying a Generous Heart. It should be worn throughout the drive as a badge of patriotic devotion to home, country, and the humanities."

WISDOM OF THE SERPENT

The virtual defeat of the school subsidy bill in congress came as the result of shrewdness rather than of merit. A statesman in Washington has to have the wisdom of the serpent that the Bible talks about if he is to circumvent the many schemes that are concocted to bring on the millennium but that are more likely to lead to bankruptcy.

Those who looked upon the appropriation of a mere 300 million dollars a year by the federal government for socalled school aid as another "steal" on a big scale, were wise enough not to fight the bill on its merits. They knew perfectly well that the supporters of the measure were not open to argument. Those statesmen were for the most part from the South, from states that have for more than a generation notoriously neglected their schools. Now they saw a chance to have the states that maintain good school systems help to pay for rehabilitation of the worked out plants. So they whooped it up with all their might, even to the point of shedding hot tears over the poor, underpaid teachers—underpaid by those states themselves.

If the bill had passed, such a state as Michigan would have had to contribute about $16,000,000 to the tax kitty, with the prospect of getting only about $10,000,000 back. At least that is the way Senator Vandenberg had figured it out. We can use that extra $6,000,000 in improving our own schools.

But naturally such a display of fiscal horse sense would have had no chance to reach the supporters of the bill. So the congressmen who were hostile to the measure thought of the neat little trick of forcing the southerners to vote against their own bill. They merely tacked on an amendment making discrimination between the schools of whites and blacks unlawful.

That did the business. The very men who had fought hard for the bill could not vote for it when it meant that as much of the money would have to go for educating Negroes as for whites. They were for putting all the states on a basis of domestic equality so long as it meant lowering the more progressive states to their educational level but when it meant raising the educational pattern of the Negroes to the level of the whites, they could not bear to think of it.

Too bad such a question cannot be decided purely on its merits. But if in the nature of things it can't be done, then it becomes necessary sometimes to arrive at a desirable goal by employing the guile of the serpent.

THE CHURCH INVITES YOU

The helpfulness of attending church service is well stated in the following prayer: Father of all mankind, we pray that to this church all thy children may ever be welcome. Hither may the little ones love to come, and young men and maidens, to be strengthened for the battles of life. Here may the strong renew their strength, and win for their lives a noble consecration; and hither may age turn its footsteps to find the rest of God and light at eventide. Here may the poor and needy find friends. Here may the tempted find succor, the sorrowing find comfort, and the bereaved learn that over their beloved, death has no more dominion. Here may they who fear be encouraged, and they who doubt have their better trusts and hopes confirmed. Here may the careless be awakened to their sense of folly and guilt, and to timely repentance. Here may oppressed and striving souls be assured on the mercy that triumph over sin, and receive help to go on their way rejoicing; through Jesus Christ our Lord." Why not accept the invitation and go to church next Sunday?

Bible Teachings on Abstinence
Leviticus 10:1, 2, 8-11; Proverbs 31: 4; Luke 1: 13-16
By Henry Geerlings

We do not deal with the drunkard as was the case in the days of Moses. But the drunkard may bring the same penalty upon himself. What he does suffer at his own hands! His life is one of bruises and exposure. He would rebel if another should treat him as he treats himself. He is his own worst enemy. Others pity him, but he does not pity himself. He suffers the penalty of his own sin with scarcely a murmur. The sad thing is that others suffer too, and keenly.

The Bible plainly tells us that the use of intoxicants is one of the surest ways of destroying the harmony and happiness of the home. How often this must have been true in Old Testament times. Otherwise the danger would not have appeared in the law. How very modern the Bible statements are for in our day it is also the sad fact that again and again drink has brought shame, disgrace, poverty, and disruption to the home.

It is the teaching of Scripture that there is a definite casual connection between the use of alcoholic beverages and personal or domestic poverty. That this is true is a matter of common observation. Bad habits are a common cause of poverty. Drinking is not the only had habit. Gambling, loafing, bad company, free spending, are all contributing factors. Not all cases of poverty are due to drink. Prolonged sickness, business reverses, must all be regarded as contributory causes in certain cases.

Nevertheless, observation leads to the conclusion that in many cases of poverty the cause has been the drink habit. The plain fact is that most family incomes do not permit of such inroads as drinking makes. What is taken out of the paycheck is literally drained from the milk bottles of little children, and substracted from the diet of growing boys and girls. Many a man has cashed his check, not at the bank, but at the tavern.

The cost of liquor is high. Financially the liquor traffic has been estimated to cost the American people several billions a year. Highway accidents cost millions in property damage as well as many lives annually. Drink is responsible for most of these accidents. A Chicago paper reports that liquor was a factor in at least twenty-five per cent of automobile accidents. Alcoholic beverages caused 9,000 traffic deaths last year. Three hundred thousand accidents could be traced to driving while intoxicated. Statistics like these are not invented by temperance forces, but are gathered by highway patrolmen at the scene of accidents, and summarized by scientific students of sociology, just as the statistics of industrial accidents.

But far beyond the total financial cost, and even the cost in life and limb, is the mental, moral, and spiritual high cost to our nation of the use of alcoholic beverages. A British study reveals that the drink habit induces the drug habit, which in turn destroys the powers of the mind. The disintegration of the individual results, to a point where both his mind and morals are destroyed.

The spiritual cost is clearly stated by the apostle Paul. Those who do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God. What profit though a man enjoy drink if in so doing he loses his very soul? Will he exchange his eternal happiness for the passing pleasures of the convival cup? The warning of the Bible is plain. He may be a confirmed church member and in good standing in a congregation but he cannot drink with impunity.

Drunkenness and kindred sins will cost Christians something if they indulge in sin. The righteous inherit the kingdom of God. The unrighteous do not, but look what they do inherit—all the cost to self, to the family, the community, the nation and the world. In addition they lose the kingdom. This is a strong statement on cost. The price is very great. Is it worth it? One other cost to the indulger is that he loses his ability to stop paying the price even though he may desire to do so. This is a tremendous price to pay.

This subject is a current topic today. Many people are discussing it When the nation is expending so much of its energy and resources in its war effort, the question is being raised, "Is drinking too costly?" Many parents are asking the question concerning their sons and daughters. Some army officials are asking it concerning their troops. Some government officials are asking it concerning the nation itself. What should Christian people say?

Robert Swart Describes Work With Apache Indians

Robert Swart, senior at Western Theological seminary, presented an interesting and instructive talk on his experiences last summer at the Mescalero Apache Indian reservation in New Mexico, Monday night at the meeting of Third church Girl's League for Service.

Mr Swart illustrated his talk with maps of the reservation, snapshots and postcards. He also showed a basket woven by the Indians and bead work which is done on genuine buckskin. In his message Mr. Swart told of the Indians who are now civilized and live in small four room houses built by a sum of money given by the government. He told of their eating habits, their superstitions and their arts, travel and languages.

He mentioned that the Indians still celebrate their annual feast which is a sort of "coming out" party for the girls who dress in beautiful festive dresses for the affair. Mother Reassured That Hope Isn't 'Reform School'

That the Reformed Church in America is not so well known in all parts of the country as it is in western Michigan was brought to light today by a "heard-on-the-street' remark made by one of the cadets stationed with the army specialized training program at Hope college.

The young man had written his mother that he was being transferred to a "Dutch Reformed" school and she, much perturbed, immediately wanted to know what he had done that he should be sent to a "reform school."

Stories of this type are not altogether new, as many Reformed pastors will testify when they venture from this locale.

Goodfellows to Suspend Paper Sale This Year

Wartime Prosperity Is One of Factors; Fewer Applications Received

At their meeting Monday noon in The Warm Friend tavern, Holland Exchangeites voted to discontinue the annual Goodfellows foundation newspaper sale this year. Prof. Paul E. Hinkamp, secretary-treasurer of the foundation, said the decision, by a practically unanimous vote, was taken because:

1. The number of applications received this year for free tonsilectomies is less than a third of that received in any year since the Goodfellows foundation began its work.

2. Therefore, the amount of money on hand, together with that received from the Community chest, will in all probability be sufficient for the work next year.

"Wartime prosperity, with its high wages and practically no unemployment, has enabled Holland residents to pay for their own medical needs. It is commendable that when families here can meet their own expenses they do not apply for charity," Prof. Hinkamp said. "There are many calls these days for contributions to various agencies more or less connected with the war, and taxes are mounting," he said.

"The Goodfellows foundation wishes to thank all who have generously supported its work in the past. Remember that the work is going right on. Give generously to the coming Community chest and National War fund drive, in which the foundation shares along with many other worthy causes. Applications from needy families residing within the city limits will receive the same careful consideration as before."

At the meeting, C. C. Wood spoke briefly of the coming Community chest and War fund drive and urged support of all Exchangeites in carious capacities.

Several new members were introduced, including Arthur E. Ramsland, Raymond Knooihuizen, Lester Essenburgh and Nelson Bosman.

The scheduled speaker surrendered his time and place on the program to Lieut. (s.g.) H. P. Harms, who answered questions in regard to his life as chief of surgery in one of the navy's south Pacific hospitals. The Rev. Marion de Velder was to have spoken on "The Life of George Washington Carver" and will be heard at a later date.

Guests of club included Able Seaman Donald Ihrman, Dr. Henry W. Tempas of Hamilton, N. C. Post of Grand Rapids, William Arendshorst, the Rev. J. W. Van Kersen, Peter Van Domelen, Sr., William De Roo, Vaudie Vanden Berg, John Arendshorst, O. C. Cross and Conrad J. Burgh, all of Holland.

Varied Flowers Sold at Ebelink's

Flowers provide cheer for the sick and bereaved and add joy to many occasions, Henry Ebelink, local florist, states. "Our shop offers flowers by wire, for local customers," he adds, "as our concern is a member of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery association which includes more than 6,000 bonded members and wires flower orders all over the country, besides receiving orders from all parts of the United States."

Mr. Ebelink first started in the business in 1902 at Central park when he joined partnership with Ralston S. Jones. In 1910 they dissolved partnership, Mr. Jones going into the nursery business and Mr. Ebelink continuing in the floral business.

As the city grew in size and people began to love and appreciate flowers more, greenhouse after greenhouse was erected, until today the range consists of 35,000 feet of growing space under glass where flowers, flowering plants and vegetables for Victory gardens are grown. Company D Left Three Years Ago

To Go Down in History As Part of Unit Which Routed Japs on Guinea

It is just three years ago that Holland's Co. D of the national guards, left with other companies of the 126th infantry for "a year of special training" in the nation's preparedness program.

It was on a Friday night, Oct. 25, 1940, that the local men boarded a special train at the Pere Marquette depot for Camp Beauregard, La. Five thousand persons, a conservative estimate, were on hand to see the men off. The local company had mobilized ten days earlier on Oct. 15 and had been stationed in the local armory. Prior to going to the depot, open house for families and friends was held in the armory for a half hour. A more lengthy farewell period was held at the depot since the special train containing troops from other western Michigan centers arrived a half-hour late.

The 126th infantry spent 13 weeks at Camp Beauregard for basic training, then moved to Camp Livingston for tactical training. With the attack on Pearl harbor, the regiment entered into the active program by taking over protection of bridges and oil refineries in the south.

The 126th expected an overseas trip to the European theater but surprise orders in February, 1942, moved the 32nd division to Australia. In the interval the division spent some time at Fort Devens, Mass.

After a period of training in Australia, the division moved up, some by plane and the rest by sea, to Port Moresby, New Guinea, for a battle ground. Both the air and sea were then controlled by Japs and western Michigan troops got their first combat experience as Jap fliers bombed and strafed their bivouac area at Moresby.

In September, 1942, the 126th regiment began the ordeal of crossing the Owen Stanley range. Part of the men followed the narrow and torturous jungle trains and the rest were flown over the mountains. Those on foot received supplies from cargo planes.

Part of the second battalion headed by Lieut. Col. Henry A. Geerds of Holland began the trek and Major Garnet J. Burlingame of Ann Arbor succeeded in command when Lieut. Col. Geerd's health failed.

By the latter part of November, the 126th regiment was over the mountains and pressing the Japs entrenched about Buna. By the middle of December, the second battalion had captured Buna village, but the Buna mission nearby remained in Jap hands. The third battalion knocked out the Japs at Sanananda by the middle of January and about the same time, the first battalion and the Australians with the aid of some tanks, captured Buna mission.

A short time later, Australian troops took nearby Gona village and opened up to land attack Jap bases at Lae and Salamaua. The most dramatic phase of the New Guinea campaign was the rescue of Co. L, known as the "lost" company which became isolated within the Jap lines while attempting to block the Jap retreat along the Sanananda road. The company was surrounded for 21 days although keeping in touch with the main body by telephone and radio. The company succeeded in getting through to the main body by following a telephone line which the Japs had failed to cut.

The 126th infantry was relieved in February and evacuated to Australia where the entire regiment spent two weeks in quarantine. Subsequently they resumed training operations.

The 32nd division was given a special citation by Gen. MacArthur who called its conduct "matchless in bravery and devotion to duty."

They helped stem the Jap onslaught against Australia and saved the day for the United Nations in the Far East.

The Japs are believed to have lost 15,000 dead alone in the defense of Buna and Gona. West Michigan troops at one stage of the campaign helped drive whole companies of Japs into the ocean. Jap bodies littered the shore for miles.

Once comparatively soft, the west Michigan fighters climbed 10,000-foot peaks crossed swamps and learned to survive in a climate where rain seldom ceases, where clothes rot from mildew, where the slightest cut will abcess and where open wounds refuse to heal.

Among those killed from Holland's company were James H. Sullivan, Paul Henagin, John H. Van Til, Jess Nicol, Henry Wehrmeyer, Richard Overkamp, George Bruursma and Steve Fuller.

Noted Violinist Comes To Holland Next Week

Hugo Kolberg, noted violinist and concert master of the New York Metropolitan Opera orchestra, will appear with the Holland high school orchestra and a cappella choir in a gala musical concert the evening of Nov. 2 at the high school auditorium. It will be the first concert of the year for both the orchestra and the choir, under the direction of Eugene F. Heeter and Miss Trixie Moore, respectively.

Obtaining a violinist of Mr. Kolberg's outstanding reputation would ordinarily be a prohibitive undertaking, but fortunate circumstances make it possible for him to be in Holland without the need for charging the top admission prices accorded him in the large cities. His presence with the orchestra will in a large measure be a tribute to the high recognition this group enjoys for its musicianship.

In preparation for this event, both the orchestra and the choir have been training for several weeks on the new offerings which they will present. In addition to his numerous solo selections, Mr. Kolberg will also play the first movement of the Mendelssohn Violin concerto, supported by the orchestra.

Tickets will be available the first of the week through the schools, under the direction of Richard Martin of the Junior high faculty. The auditorium will accomodate 750 people comfortably, and tickets beyond that number will not be sold, insuring everyone a good seat for the full enjoyment of the program.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Kapenga, route 3, have received official notification that their son, Staff Sgt. Jarvis Kapenga, has been awarded a silver star for gallantry in action Dec. 2, 1942, in the vicinity of Tebourba, Tunisia.

The citation, signed by Major W. L. Schmidt of the adjutant general's department, continues: "While attacking the enemy positions, his tank received direct hits from enemy anti-tank guns and was set afire. Realizing that the fire could not be extinguished, he ordered the crew to evacuate.

"Upon checking the members of the crew, he discovered that the gunner was in the burning tank, which was still being subjected to artillery fire. He unhesitatingly worked his way back through heavy enemy artillery fire to the burning vehicle. He climbed in the tank and removed the wounded gunner who was unconscious, and carried him back to safety.

"The outstanding courage, perseverance and complete disregard for his own welfare displayed by Staff Sgt. Kapenga reflect great credit upon himself and his organization and the defending of the home front."

Kapenga, 25, volunteered for the army and was inducted March 25, 1941, receiving his training at Fort Custer and at Fort Knox, Ky. He has been overseas more than 18 years. When he wrote his last letter, he was in Africa, attached to Co. E of the 13th armored regiment.

The bride, who approached the altar on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage, was lovely in a gown of chalk-white faille taffeta fashioned with shirred bodice, sweetheart neckline and bracelet length sleeves. The full skirt, which was tiered in back, ended in a slight train. Her finger-tip veil, which was edged with Chantilly lace, was caught in a tiara of seed pearls. She carried a white Bible topped with an orchid.

Another sister, Miss Leona Westerhof, as junior bridesmaid, wore peach taffeta fashioned with torso length bodice and full skirt, and a matching veil. "YOU'VE DONE YOUR BIT NOW DO YOUR BEST!"

DURING the first year of our toughest war, we—

Trained millions of fighting men—made millions of dollars worth of fighting tools—built millions of tons of shipping to carry these men and tools to the fighting fronts.

And to help pay for it all, we bought War Bonds. Altogether, 50 millions of us bought War Bonds. And nearly 30 millions of us started putting, on the average, 10 percent of our pay into War Bonds every payday through the Payroll Savings Plan.

That was a good start—a whale of a good start. But every American knows that it was only a start. Nobody would contend for a single instant that what we did in '42 is enough for '43!

Did we make 48,000 planes last year? Believe it or not—we did. But we've got to make 100,000 this year! Sure! We broke every record in the world last year, building 8 million tons of shipping. But everybody knows that the 18 million tons we're building this year isn't enough!

We've got to do more fighting this year. We've got to do more building, more training, more shipping—and more saving.

We've got to buy more War Bonds.

Is that too much to ask? Many of us are making more money than we have made for years. The things we'd like to buy with that money have either disappeared or are as "scarce as hen's teeth." So, why not put that money into War Bonds at good interest—$4 for every $3 when the Bonds mature? Money to help pay for the war—keep prices down—provide peacetime jobs and peacetime goods and a generally decent world for all of us when the war is won.

Chances are, you're already in the Payroll Savings Plan—buying War Bonds—doing your bit. But don't stop there. See if you can't boost your ante! Do your best!

How millions of Americans have done their bit—and how they can do better:

Of the 34 million Americans on plant payrolls, nearly 30 millions of them have joined the Payroll Savings Plan. (If you aren't in yet—sign up tomorrow!)

Those Americans who have joined the Plan are investing, on the average, 10 percent of their earnings in War Bonds. (If you haven't reached 10 percent yet—keep trying!)

BUT...

America's income this year will be the highest in history: about 125 BILLION dollars! In spite of all taxes and price rises, the average worker will have more money than last year—more than ever before!

That is why Uncle Sam has a right to ask us, individually, to invest more money in War Bonds, through the Payroll Savings Plan. He asks us to invest not 10 percent or 15 percent or 20 percent, but all we can!

YOU'VE DONE YOUR BIT ---NOW DO YOUR BEST!
