Peter Kramer has taken a position as driver of the West Michigan Steam Laundry delivery wagon. M. Buekema, the proprietor, has had cards printed which will be used in cases where calls are made to deliver bundles and no one is at home. At a meeting of the Holland Poultry and Pet Stock association held at Westveld Bros on River street last Monday evening plans were discussed for the annual poultry show. Exhibits will be divided into two classes, thoroughbred and common and the fowls in the common class so called will be offered for sale at auction on the closing day of the show. Indications point to one of the biggest shows in the history of the association. The prizes will be more numerous and more valuable than ever.

Another cause of shifts is three or four candidates whom Yost has not yet tried out. One is DePree, a freshman drop kicker, who was left at home because of a scarcely healed injury. He has the stooping build of Sweeley and a kicking leg as strong. In practice he never punts, but always drop kicks the ball. His drop kicks are as long as the other men's punts, and more accurate. In advancing the ball, when his interference is hurled back against him. DePree hurdles or dives straight over the blocking end. It is Yost's intention to work him into those of the regular squad who sustain the test of the Minnesota game.—Chicago Tribune.

Tuesday afternoon while the special interurban car containing the citizens of Holland who went to Grand Rapids to consult with Congressman Smith and Engineer Adams about Holland Harbor was rounding the corner of Market and Monroe street on the return trip to Holland, a Grand Rapids street railway car crashed into the rear end of it and knocked off the iron rail around the end, stove in the rear door and smashed the window. G. W. Mokma was standing in the rear end when the accident occurred and one of his hands was struck by the door, injuring it slightly. The conductor of the Grand Rapids car was to blame for the accident as he allowed his car to crowd into the other one before it turned the corner.

Formerly this car carried into Grand Rapids large quantities of milk, which now goes to that city on a morning car. The express cars now depart from Holland for Grand Rapids at 10 a. m., 12:30 p. m. and 4 p. m.

Prof. E. Winter expects to establish an evening school for the accommodation of people who are unable to take up studies in the regular Academy course. Arithmetic, readings, simple political economy, book keeping, etc. will be taught, and the very small fee of $5.00 for five months will be charged. Two evenings a week, on Monday and Thursday, will be devoted to these studies. Prof. Winter ought to have a large class, this being a grand opportunity for all who wish to be instructed along these lines—Cedar Grove (Wis.) correspondent to the Sheboygan Herald.

In Allegan last week the color line was drawn by a fastidious gentleman who was about to take a journey from the Allegan jail to Jackson state prison. The Allegan Gazette tells of it as follows: "When the sheriff was arranging the men for the trip Albert Dilley was placed beside Horace Williams (colored). Dilley informed the officers that he had a dislike for niggers and he did not propose to be locked with one. Mr. Bensley reminded the man that the time had come when he would do as others told him, and he was taken away hand in hand with the Negro."

In an interview in the Detroit Journal, Congressman William Alden Smith has the following to say regarding the gubernatorial situation: "You ask of the governorship talk. This does not emanate from me. How could I be a candidate for governor, when two of my friends from western Michigan and one from my own district, Mr. Stearns, and Mr. Diekema, are in the field now? It would be neither agreeable nor fruitful of good results. Mr. Stearns has long been one of my warmest political friends, while Mr. Diekema and myself have been the best of personal and political friends since we were boys."

The initiative was taken at Zeeland by a few enterprising and far-sighted young families in the move to secure the organization of an English-speaking church," says Rev. P. Moerdyke in the Christian Intelligencer. "This is in the very heart of one of the most solidly Dutch sections of the old 'colony' is quite significant, yet to wide-awake people very gratifying. Not a few have for some time feared lest another denomination should seize a golden opportunity to plant its banner there, and leave us to deplore the sight of our own people rallying to it. To the Reformed pioneers belonging the duty, the privilege, and the joy of keeping our field there wholly for their posterity, and this timely step is one in the right direction to hold our own and to include also the American element of some 15 or 20 families."

When Deputy Sheriff Hans Dykhuys was in Kalamazoo the other day, he called at Sheriff Shipman's office and while there looked over a lot of knives which had been found in the possession of a recently arrested crook. He brought some of them back with him thinking that perhaps they constituted part of the plunder stolen from the Zeeland hardware store recently. They were not identified by Mr. Verhage, however, but the sheriff thought they resembled goods stolen from a store in Lake county, the description of which he had received from Sheriff Willis D. Messenger of that county. He wrote the sheriff and Messenger went to Kalamazoo, sure enough to find that the goods were the ones stolen from the northern store. Sheriff Messenger has written Sheriff Dykhuys thanking him for his attention.—G. H. Tribune.

RANGE IMPROVEMENT.

Three Species of Grass For the Re- newal of Wornout Ranges.

Already the ranges in most parts of the plains region of Montana begin to show the evil effects of overstocking. This is particularly true of the main lines of travel pursued by the different bands of sheep and in the vicinity of shipping points and shearing corrals, while in many fenced inclosures and even on the open range the grass is becoming more and more sparse, so that only long rest or replanting can ever make them capable of supporting the herds and flocks which they formerly nourished.

There is a constantly increasing demand for methods of restoring these wornout ranges and making them more productive. The effect of close grazing varies with the species, some grasses being quickly exterminated, others persisting in a scattered or weakened condition, while still others not only persist under these untoward conditions, but actually are caused to stool out and spread by such grazing, and their seeds are scattered in the soil. What are these latter species and how can they be established in localities where they are most needed? There are at least three species that seem to fulfill these conditions in a greater or less degree, and I think most of the stockmen will agree with these conclusions, says J. W. Blankenship of Montana, who names these grasses as the "blue joint," the grama or buffalo grass and the true buffalo or little buffalo grass. Of the grama or buffalo grass he says:

Grama or buffalo grass extends throughout all the interior plains of the United States and into Canada and Mexico, but seems not to be found west of the Rockies or eastward beyond the semiarid plains bordering the prairie belt, extending from Minnesota to Texas. In Montana it is confined strictly to the plains in the eastern part of the state, and its general abundance in the southeast and relative rarity toward the north and west of this region would seem to indicate a southeastern origin and a relatively recent introduction, probably by the agency of the buffalo, as it spreads very slowly and has not yet occupied many lands of the state to which it is perfectly adapted. It seems to be steadily displacing the other grasses on the benches and uplands wherever the ranges are closely grazed and where it has secured an introduction. It spreads in every direction from a central tuft by creeping root stocks, rooting as it goes, and thus forms a deep turf crowned with short, close set leaves, from which the fruiting stems rise, so that close grazing in nowise injures the steady spread of the plant or its healthy growth. Indeed it even appears to stool the more when the leaves and fruiting stems are thus cropped.

This grama grass has long been known for its curing and fattening qualities, and it will support more stock to the acre than any other native species, while it is perfectly hardy in the driest situations and does fairly well in the lower valleys where the soil is not too moist. This and the blue joint aptly supplement each other, the latter doing well only in the moister situations. This buffalo grass is the grass for planting on the exhausted ranges, as there is no other, native or introduced, that can approach it in the all round qualities needed for withstanding close grazing and arid situations and yet afford the best curing and fattening qualities.

Crop Conditions.

According to the monthly report of the department of agriculture, the condition of corn on Sept. 1 was 80.1 as compared with 78.7 on Aug. 1, 1908; 84.3 on Sept. 1, 1902; 51.7 at the corresponding date in 1901 and a ten year average of 79.3.

The average condition at harvest of winter and spring wheat combined was 74.7 against 80 on Sept. 1, 1902; 82.8 at the corresponding date in 1901 and a ten year average of 78.3.

The average condition of the oat crop on Sept. 1 was 75.7 against 79.5 on Aug. 1, 1903; 87.2 on Sept. 1, 1902; 72.1 at the corresponding date in 1901 and a ten year average of 80.6.

The average condition of barley on Sept. 1 was 82.1 against 83.4 on Aug. 1, 1903; 89.7 on Sept. 1, 1902; 83.8 at the corresponding date in 1901 and a ten year average of 82.2.

The average condition of rye on Sept. 1 was 84.1 against 87.2 one month previous; 90.2 Sept. 1, 1902; 84.9 at the corresponding date in 1901 and a ten year average of 85.5.

The average condition of potatoes on Sept. 1 was 84.3 against 87.2 one month previous, 89.1 on Sept. 1, 1902, 62.2 at the corresponding date in 1901 and a ten year average of 76.

The average condition of tobacco on Sept. 1 was 83.4 against 82.9 one month previous and 85.1 on July 1, 1903.

Cattle Men Kicking.

The cattle men of the far west are kicking vigorously over Chief Couburn's official order that horned cattle at the world's fair cattle show must be received by a halter. The cattle men say if they can't exhibit range cattle they have nothing to exhibit. They also want premiums for cattle in ear load lots, and this has also been vetoed by the fair management on the ground that it will not be a fat stock show where grades will compete, but a show which will include pure bred stock of every known breed, and that there will be no facilities for such an exhibit as the range cattle men desire. The cattle men of Texas south of the quarantine line are rebellious over their exclusion from the south on account of the danger of splenic fever. The disgruntled cattle men say that if they can get redress no other way they will appeal the case to the president.—Farm and Ranch.

Nature's Restorative
MALTA PURA GIVES MARVELOUS RESULTS IN EVERY CASE, THOUSANDS TESTIMONIALS RECEIVED NOTE WHAT THEY SAY.

It is impossible to publish in the columns of this paper testimonials which will give even the faintest conception of the popular favor which is bestowed on Malta Pura everywhere. Not only do the people who try it speak its praises, but physicians, not a few but in every city welcome it and prescribe it as nature's tonic and a valuable adjunct to the practice of medicine. One lady writes from Los Angeles, California: "I was discouraged. My energy seemed entirely gone. When I awakened in the morning I felt tired, and I had no ambition to work or take any interest in life. My husband heard of Malta Pura, purchased a bottle and this year I am so ambitious I keep everybody on the stir. I certainly feel like a new person."

Another testimonial comes from a young man who had lung trouble in St. Johns, New Brunswick. "Physicians had given me no encouragement except possible relief by change of climate. My brother who was in Boston, heard of Malta Pura and bought a bottle. I felt better almost from the first dose. I have taken fifteen bottles within the past year, but I have gained 30 pounds in weight and am as healthy as a horse. My lungs seem to be all right." Another comes from a working girl in Providence, Rhode Island. "Overwork broke my nervous system and I was a wreck. I gave up and was ready to die. I began taking Malta Pura and today I am well and strong." A physician in Battle Creek says: "I have prescribed Malta Pura in numerous cases of pulmonary trouble, nervous debility, and when a general tonic is required, and the results are extremely satisfactory." We never publish names but keep the original letters on file in our office. We will furnish names of those endorsing Malta Pura to any person writing us. A DAY OF THANKS.

President Roosevelt Names Thursday, Nov. 26, as Thanksgiving Day—Asks That Labors Cease.

Washington, Nov. 2.—The president has issued his annual Thanksgiving proclamation in the following terms: "By the president of the United States of America. A Proclamation: The season is at hand when, according to the custom of the people, it falls upon the president to appoint a day of praise and thanksgiving to God.

"During the last year the Lord has dealt bountifully with us, giving us peace at home and abroad and the chance for our citizens to work for their welfare unhindered by war, famine or plague. It behooves us not only to rejoice greatly because of what has been given us, but to accept it with the solemn sense of responsibility, realizing that under Heaven it rests with us ourselves to show that we are worthy to use aright what has thus been entrusted to our care. In no other place and at no other time has the experiment of government of the people, by the people, for the people, been tried on so vast a scale as here in our own country in the opening years of the twentieth century. Failure would not only be a dreadful thing for us, but a dreadful thing for all mankind, because it would mean loss of hope for all who believe in the power and the righteousness of liberty. Therefore, in thanking God for the mercies extended to us in the past, we beseech Him that He may not withhold them in the future, and that our hearts may be

Blunders In Work on Harbors

When Uncle Sam appropriates money to improve harbors that is one thing. When he arranges for the expenditure of this money on the harbors that is another thing. It seems that in the latter instance the men who attend to the spending of the money do not get for the harbor the worth of the money. It may be negligence, and it may be lack of engineering skill, but in some cases the money might just as well be placed in a meal sack and thrown in the harbor as to be placed in cribs built or piles driven in the harbor.

The work done this summer at the Ludington harbor is a case in point. The improvements (so-called) were made in such a manner as to make the piers much wider at the entrance than at the inside terminus of the channel. As a result the waves produced by westerly and northwesterly winds are so confined that they rush in the harbor with redoubled force. Already this redoubled force has caused thousands of dollars worth of damage. Docks have been undermined and washouts have caused the suspension of the Ludington harbor ferry. The Pere Marquette car ferries are unable to lie at the slip and take on loads when the wind blows a little fresh from the west or the northwest. In short the situation is serious and threatens the winter navigation between Ludington and the other shore.

Holland harbor, too, is getting a little taste of this engineering blunder. On account of a narrowing of the inside of the harbor the waves on some days play the same pranks, undermining the docks and the boat houses, causing washouts and playing havoc with the Macatawa Bay shore line.

The only way that Uncle Sam can square matters is to see that the appropriation next year is large enough to make good the blundering engineering and to carry out the improvements needed.

Make the appropriation large enough to be of some use, instead of scattering small appropriations through a period of twenty years or a century.

Roosevelt Makes the Crooked Straight.

Of the many compliments paid to President Roosevelt in the course of his political career the one paid by a gentleman of this city is far and away the highest. This gentleman in commenting upon the official acts of the president said: "There is one thing about that man Roosevelt that I like and that is that he makes everything straight that is crooked."

And so he does. In a lusty, energetic country like the United States, growing as it does so fast that no man can measure its strides of progress, there creeps into its civil and political life a certain amount of bad.

No matter which party is in power there seems to be in that party a small percentage of men who are not of strong enough moral fibre to withstand the advances of the tempter when the tempter comes in attractive guise and offers inducements for frailty in political or civil honor. This percentage goes wrong with monotonous regularity. It's crookedness taints the national life regardless of political creeds, and it is a piece of rare good fortune when there is a man at the head that makes everything straight that is crooked regardless of politics or friendship.

Roosevelt straightened the kinks out of the post office scandal in a manner that jarred some of the despoilers to the center of their nervous system. Now he is going after the crookedness in the land frauds out west and his energetic efforts to shake it straight have already caused the teeth of some of the grafters to beat a chattering tattoo.

He will undoubtedly persist in this program of making the crooked straight until the end of his political life, and the longer that end is delayed the better it will be for the country.

Gentlemen Under All Circumstances

There is one remarkable thing demonstrated in all these foot ball games and that is that under provocation that would drive the average citizen to blasphemy, the foot ball player preserves the calmest serenity of temper. You scarcely read of a game in which a slugger and a sluggee do not figure. When the teams are closely matched it seems to be part of the ethics of some of the teams to make plans for the disabling of the best players on the opposing sides. Then with malice towards none they calmly proceed to slug. A short arm jolt in the short ribs; a swing on the jaw; or a jab in the solar plexus—all delivered on the sly of course—are the signs of war, and are dealt out freely, feelingly and gracefully.

Reports say that these tactics were brought in requisition in the Michigan-Minnesota game last Saturday. Heston and Maddock looked good to Michigan and looked bad to Minnesota, therefore Minnesota planned to lay them out. Sundry jolts and jabs were hurled at them every scrimmage, and their battered faces testified strongly to the prowess of the Minnesota sluggers.

Ordinarily when a man is sluggeed he will hand one back. If he has not the chance at the time of the slug, he will at the first opportunity presented slug the other fellow until matters are evened up. Not so with the football players. It would not be gentlemanly to slug back in the sense that a blow is returned in a fight. So they just grin and bear it. Neither would it do to carry the grudge until after the game. So they let by gones be by-gones and when the game is ended the sluggee tells the slugger that "he's all right."

Which all goes to show that these husky young athletes are gentlemen at every stage of the game—if hitting a man when the referee is not looking can be considered gentlemanly. Their tempers are mighty even anyway.

Holland Citizens Do Good Work For Harbor.

Holland citizens this week took concerted action to secure from the government the appropriation that the Holland harbor deserves, and as a result Congressman William Alden Smith will try and prevail upon Congress to have the piers extended far enough into Lake Michigan to insure a good harbor, and Col. M. B. Adams, the government engineer in charge of the Grand Rapids department, will back him in his efforts. If their work is successful Holland will receive a large appropriation and the harbor will be extended into Lake Michigan 400 or 500 feet more.

Mayor DeRoos began the work last week by sending to Senator Burrows and Congressman William Alden Smith an invitation to visit this city for the purpose of inspecting the harbor and seeing the urgent necessity of improving existing conditions. Senator Burrows was getting ready for his trip to Washington and wired that he could not come. Congressman Smith accepted the invitation and named Tuesday as the day of his visit.

Tuesday morning he was met at the depot by a special car and accompanied by a delegation of twenty-two citizens of this city went to the harbor. A careful inspection showed that the harbor is in a very bad condition. Near the life saving station and the light house immense holes have been dug by the washing of the sea through the piers, and rot after rot of rotten timbers are in plain view. In many places between the winged pier and lighthouse the undermining of the seas has washed the stone and brush out of the cribbing and the timbers have been torn away. It is true that extensive repairs have been made, and these repairs particularly the sheet piling are well done. But it did not take long to discover that repairs are not the only thing needed. Furthermore, it did not take long to discover that the repairs will not be of much avail as long as the piers are of the present length. Repairs of course are needed but the vital need is an extension of the piers of 400 or 500 feet. As it is now the repairs sometimes do more harm than good. The sheet piling, for instance, has narrowed the channel and this narrowing causes a congestion of the waves and redoubles their force when they enter the harbor. Again it did not take long to discover that extensive repairs will always be necessary as long as the piers are of their present length, for the shore line has advanced and is advancing in the lake, thus shortening the piers and making the harbor an easy prey to Lake Michigan.

It has been the impression that the large appropriation received a couple of years ago was being extended for pier extension but such is not the case as not one foot has been added to the piers.

When Mr. Smith saw the condition that the harbor was in he realized at once the absolute necessity of having the piers extended and suggested that the delegation of citizens go at once to Grand Rapids and present their claims to Col. Adams, of the United States engineering department. The suggestion was followed and the delegation went to Grand Rapids and met Col. Adams at a dinner given by Congressman Smith at the Lakeside club.

After dinner Congressman Smith called Mayor DeRoos to the chair, and harbor affairs were discussed at length.

Mr. Smith laid before Col. Adams the present condition of the harbor and forcibly presented the claims of Holland for a harbor in keeping with the city. He said that no place on the west shore of Michigan was more deserving of a good harbor and that it was a pleasure for him to try and obtain what Holland deserved at the hands of the national government. "Hollanders," he said, "are never contented until all obstacles that lie between them and the sea are swept away. In the old country they gain ascendancy over the ocean and their sons in this country will not be contented until the harbor obstructions keeping their city from communication with Lake Michigan are removed."

Col. Adams explained that the report of Col. Townsend, who preceded Col. Keller as government engineer, recommended that the piers be extended 800 feet, and that Col. Keller's recommendation favored no extension but a deepening of the harbor by means of the hydraulic dredge instead. "Therefore," said the Colonel, "I think the best thing for me to do is to strike a happy medium between the two recommendations, and my recommendation is for an extension of 400 feet. For I believe an extension is absolutely necessary."

H. N. G. J. Diekema called attention to the development that Holland had made in manufacturing, in shipping, in commercial industries and in population, bringing out the idea that in every instance where Holland depended upon its own citizens it made great progress, but that in the only case where it depended upon Uncle Sam it had not made great progress. He contended that the condition of the harbor was a reflection on Uncle Sam and that no time should be lost in appropriating, not a succession of small sums to be extended in repairs, but a large sum to be used in pier extension.

W. H. Beach presented an array of facts that was very convincing. He detailed the history of the Holland boat line, telling how shipping interests suffered from inadequate harbor facilities. Many and many a time in the fall an obstructed harbor had kept the steamers away and freight had been left to spoil on the Holland and on the Chicago docks. He told how the citizens of Holland, after great trouble and expense, had built the steamer Puritan, only to find that the harbor had become too shoal to accommodate the steamer during the spring and fall months, and how the Holland boat line had to be sold to the Graham & Morton Transportation company, as the latter company could use the Puritan on the St. Joe-Chicago route and could send its lighter draft boats here.

N. J. Whelan told how difficult it was for schooners or steamers to make the Holland harbor in even a moderate west or northwest wind, and how when the waves were a little high the big steamers had to pass by Holland harbor to Grand Haven.

G. Van Schelven related the early history of Holland harbor, telling how in the early days despairing of receiving adequate aid from the government, the citizens of this vicinity banded the townships to raise money and took the preliminary steps in harbor development. "Let Uncle Sam show as determined a spirit as Holland citizens have shown and we will have the kind of a harbor that the city deserves," concluded Mr. Van Schelven.

Remarks were also made by Attorney J. C. Post and by F. A. Miller. Mr. Miller is one of the owners of the gelatine factory on the north side. He came here recently from Chicago and is in a position to know the benefit that a good harbor does a city.

There is no doubt that the conference with Congressman Smith and Col. Adams will do a great deal of good and the people of Holland are expecting increased harbor appropriations.

Those from Holland who went to Grand Rapids were Mayor C. J. DeRoos, P. H. McBride, J. C. Post, G. J. Diekema, John DuMez, P. A. Kleis, I. Marsilje, H. Pelgrim, E. J. Harrington, W. H. Beach, G. Van Schelven, G. W. Mokma, Geo. E. Kollen, F. A. Miller, E. Vander Veen, B. J. Devries, S. Nibbelink, N. J. Whelan, J. G. Van Putten, B. D. Keppel, Charles Floyd, P. A. Mulder.

COME ON NOW.

Come on, meet your daddy!
Come on now and run!
My, if you could see your curls
Lifting in the sun!
My, if you could hear your laugh
Lifting as I do,
You would understand why I
Snuggle down to you!

You would understand why I
Run and grab for you!
You would understand why I
Love you like I do!
You would understand what makes
All the long day glad!
It's a picture, dear, of you,
Arms outstretched to dad!

It's a picture, dear, of you
When the day grows old;
It's your laughing eyes o' blue,
It's the tousled gold
Of your curly, tangled hair,
Lifting on the breeze;
It's the laughing lips o' you;
It's your chubby knee!

It's your chubby outstretched arms!
It's the way you run!
It's your awkward baby legs!
It's the glint of fun
In the eyes that look to mine
When I grab you up!
It's the arms about my neck!
It's a brimming cup!

You would understand it, dear,
Understand it all,
Why I like to see you run,
Love to hear you call—
Dearie, life's a battlefied,
Life is dark and fret-
It's because your baby love
Makes your dad forget!

Linda's Venture

By
HATTIE PRESTON RIDER

(Copyright, 1919, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

MOST assuredly, since you insist on it, I will make the transfer for you, Linda. I have no wish to dictate, now or at any time, but I am certain you will regret the step.

The rose-tinted deepened hotly on the cheeks next him.

"I don't care what you are certain of," flashed the young woman, angrily. "I'm tired of your overbearing ways, Kirke Morris! I'm competent, I think, to manage for myself."

The lawyer's face flushed and then turned dull white.

"Does that mean you wish your entire freedom from my care, Linda?"

She fixed her eyes stubbornly on the papers before her. "Just as you choose to interpret it," she answered, coldly.

He looked at her with a stricken, incredulous gaze.

"You will pardon me if I seem slow to comprehend this," he said, with forced quiet. "Of course, I have no desire to hold you unwillingly to your promise. But some sort of an explanation is no more than my due, I think."

A bright spot was all there remained of the flush on Linda's cheek.

"It's a woman's immemorial privilege to change her mind—a process, I suppose, hardly to be comprehended by so staid and constant a person as Kirke Morris."

The fine sarcasm seemed lost on her hearer, but the flippancy cut him like a knife.

"In truth, it is all a riddle to me," he said, slowly, after a moment. "I honestly believed that you loved me, Linda."

The red lips curled.

"It is a common delusion of your sex that they are indispensable to the happiness of ours," she answered cuttingly.

"You are skillful with your hard words, all at once," he said, with bitterness. He rose, and took his hat. "I leave you to your freedom, and your reasons."

He paused at the door, and his searching gaze seemed to her age-long. She sat like a statue, and he went out, unsteadily.

Linda's stubbornness disappeared like magic. Her head dropped limply on her arms, and she broke into unrestrained sobbing. If Kirke had only quarreled, and given her a chance to have at him with the truth! For who can hurl jealous accusations at an offender so meekly devoid of the appearance of guilt? A tempest of futile wrath, chagrin, and something very like desolation, shook her soul.

Through a mutual friend, all the business pertaining to her small estate was promptly turned over to her. Hurt and bewildered, she floundered through the interview, and at its close locked the vexatious documents in her bureau drawer. Kirke had completed the sale of the property over which their difference began, and which he had declared it inadvisable to dispose of on account of its steady rise in value. The price, in H. & O. bonds, constituting the bulk of her little fortune, was a part of the package, which grew more hateful to her every time she looked at it. A bitter reminder it was, of the bright days when she first put her business affairs and heart both into his keeping. How proud she had been, when through perseverance and self-denial he arose to the dignity of a gift sign and a growing practice! They were to have been married in November. Here Linda invariably brought a sob up short. Something very foreign to business matters made a mocking blur across the picture. A month went by. She heard that Kirke had left town. There was no one to upbraid her for her fickleness, for she was without relatives, and held her friends proudly aloof. The voice of her heart she would not listen to.

The package of papers still lay untouched, when one day an advertisement in the morning paper claimed her notice. She read and re-read, the idea taking almost visible grip on her:

"Wanted—Party with $5,000 to invest in strictly legitimate business. Security given and 25 per cent. dividends guaranteed. Call on or address J. Cresco, 400 Blank Bldg., Chicago."

Linda devoted several minutes to excited calculation. Her bonds bore only 4 per cent.; they could easily be converted into cash. Under Kirke's management her income, though reliable as the sunrise, had never gone above eight per cent. Here was a chance to more than treble it.

Linda investigated the matter, palpitating with freedom that hurt while it exhilarated. She found J. Cresco all that could be desired, at least in deferential courtesy and bland confidence. She left his office wrapped in dreams of luxury, but extremely misty as to her conceptions of the "business" whose returns were to realize them.

During the following three months she reveled—or tried to—in reflections over her shrewdness. At the end of that time, her promised profits did not appear. She waited two weeks, when a suave letter came, expressing regret at the delay, and promising a payment directly. Six weeks passed, filled with growing forebodings. She had put all her available cash into the scheme, and began now to be decidedly cramped to meet her bills. At exactly the end of the half-year, she wrote a very decided demand for a remittance.

The answer delayed. Then, one morning, Linda took up her paper, to read under staring headlines an account of "Get-rich-quick" institutions raided, and prominent among them the name of her Golden Vision.

There seemed to be no way but to swallow her pride, and face the ignominy of having been victimized. She went to a lawyer, who in turn referred her to a well-known legal firm in the city. In this thinly-veiled superciliousness Linda read her doom; and it is to be hoped a more frightened and desolate soul never set out on that journey.

In the luxurious private offices of Gay, Overman & Co., the second-named gentleman was donning hat and gloves. He turned back at the last minute, addressing the firm's latest acquisition in a junior partner:

"Gay said there'd be a woman in at three, to see something about that Cresco business. She'd invested all she had, I believe. Gay said to tell her she might as well try to pump up the bed of the Pacific, and that we couldn't undertake a suit."

He went out. The matter had half slipped the new partner's mind, when an office boy laid a card on his desk. He had barely glanced at it when the door opened, and his client was admitted. She stood transfixed, as he rose; a hot flush ran up to her forehead, and then she grew pale as a lily.

"Kirke!" she gasped.

"Linda!" he cried, coming quickly forward. "Good Lord, dear! It wasn't you who got caught in that beastly scheme?"

Linda drew back. Her lips quivered, and her lashes drooped heavily. Kirke stopped, but only for an instant. The sight of her misery was sending the old protective tenderness thrilling through him, to the obliteration of his wrongs. He followed persistently, and took possession of her hands.

"You'll have to let me take care of you, now, darling," he declared, with sudden, mischievous triumph. "Every cent of your money is gone!"

Linda tried to pull away, and failed. Back of the crushing shame that her humiliation lay bare before the last eyes she desired should see it, something else was working havoc within her.

"I can starve, then," she retorted angrily. "Let go my hands, Kirke Morris! What would Helen Ritter say?"

He loosed his hold, staring.

"Helen Ritter?" he repeated, in astonishment. "Helen Morris, you mean. She and Cousin Dick were married five months ago. Good Heavens!"—as light burst suddenly upon him—"It can't be you were jealous, dear, because I escorted Helen to a few places? She was my aunt's guest, you know, and Dick was confined to the store."

Kirke's arm was around her, but she slipped out of it and hid her face.

"If I am so poor—" she began, but Kirke gathered her resolutely to him again.

"And since you are," he finished for her, with a happy laugh, "I'm going to make it the business of my life to prove the scriptures true, in that I have the poor always with me."

NEW "KNOCKOUT-DROP" MAN.

Latest Type of the Hold-Up Artist Discovered in Philadelphia—His Mode of Procedure.

A new type of the "knockout-drop" man has appeared in Philadelphia.

He picks out a man in the street who is smoking a cigar, follows him until he reaches a dark part, where he approaches with an apology and a request for a light.

The intended victim proffers his smoking weed, and the other accepts it with his right hand and lights his cigar.

While holding it, he dexterously presses the far end against the needle of a concealed bulb which injects the "knockout drops" into the cigar, and leaves it in a condition to deprive its owner of his senses.

Then, under the pretense of assisting his victim, the "knockout" man deftly goes through the unconscious man's pockets. The impression would be that the victim had been overcome by heat disease or had succumbed to apoplexy.

Nothing would please the patrons of the lecture course better than to hear Mr. Flowers entire repertoire and it is hoped that he will be prevailed-upon to come here next year. J. DEMOCRATS WIN IN GREATER NEW YORK

George B. McClellan Elected Mayor of the City by a Large Plurality.

HERRICK DEFEATS JOHNSON FOR GOVERNOR OF OHIO

Senator Hanna Will Be Re-elected Senator, Having a Majority of 95 on Joint Ballot—Results at the Polls in Other States—President Pleased at Outcome.

New York, Nov. 4.—George B. McClellan (democrat) will be the next mayor of Greater New York, having defeated Mayor Seth Low for reelection by a plurality of 63,617, complete unofficial returns having been received from every election district in the city. By the same returns Comptroller Edward M. Grout and Charles V. Fomes, president of the board of aldermen, running for reelection on the democratic ticket, though elected two years ago as fusionists, defeated their fusion opponents by 66,790 and 64,973 plurality, respectively, Comptroller Grout leading the city ticket.

This sweeping democratic victory was accomplished for the democratic city and borough tickets in four of the five boroughs of the municipality, only Richmond borough (Staten Island), giving Low a plurality and electing fusion through offices.

McClellan's total vote for mayor was 313,008 to 251,289 for Low.

William S. Devery, independent candidate for mayor, polled only 2,935 votes in the entire city, getting 2,671 of these

COL. GEORGE B. MCCLELLAN. (Elected Mayor of Greater New York, to Succeed Seth Low.)

In Manhattan and the Bronx, 226 in Brooklyn, 38 in Queens and none in Richmond.

The state gave a majority of nearly 250,000 in favor of the proposition that the state shall spend $101,000,000 for improving its canals. The plan is to widen and deepen the Erie canal so that it will accommodate barges of 1,000 tons carrying capacity, and to improve the Oswego and Champlain canals.

In New York Cities.

Returns from cities in the state show that republicans elect entire city and county ticket at Buffalo. No election for mayor this year. At Binghamton mayor and entire republican ticket elected; republicans carry Ithaca; democrats carry Auburn, except for a few minor offices; at Utica mayor and whole democratic city ticket elected; Rome elects republican mayor; at Oswego democrats elect mayor and majority of aldermen.

Ohio.

Columbus, O., Nov. 4.—Almost complete returns Wednesday indicate that the plurality of Herrick, republican, over Johnson, democrat, will exceed for governor 125,000, but that the rest of the republican state ticket will not have so large a plurality. As the republicans not only carried the doubtful counties and districts, but also some that were conceded to the democrats, the majority on joint ballot in the legislature for the reelection of Senator Hanna is now placed at 95 out of a total membership in both branches of 143, almost three times as many as two years ago, when the republicans had what was considered an unprecedented majority of 35 on joint ballot for the reelection of Senator Foraker. As Senator Hanna had only one majority on joint ballot six years ago and as he was the issue in this campaign, the result is generally commented on more as a Hanna victory than anything else.

Complete returns from all the precincts in Cuyahoga county, including the city of Cleveland, the home of Tom Johnson, give Herrick, republican, for governor, 45,169; Johnson, 36,649; Herrick's majority, 8,520. The victory of the republicans in the city and county is the most decisive and sweeping recorded in many years, not a single democrat being elected throughout the entire ticket. The republicans elect a solid delegation of four state senators and ten representatives on the legislative ticket, by pluralities ranging from 4,000 to 6,000.

Iowa.

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 4.—From the returns at hand it is shown that Gov. Cummins' plurality will be reduced from 83,000 two years ago, to 59,000. The democrats have made decided gains in the legislative districts, and for the first time in many years the number of democrats will be over 20 and possibly 30. The gain in the legislature made by the democrats is entirely due to local differences. The vote throughout the state was exceedingly light, particularly in the cities.

Maryland.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 4.—Returns from 254 precincts of the 208 in Baltimore city have been counted and these show a majority of 4,842 for Edwin Warfield, democratic candidate for governor. It is quite certain that the returns from the remaining 54 precincts will increase this lead.

President Is Pleased.

Washington, Nov. 4.—President Roosevelt is greatly pleased over the general result of Tuesday's elections. He is, of course, disappointed at the outcome in Greater New York and Maryland, although pleased that in the latter state the results show an improvement over what happened four years ago and in New York over last year. The president has sent telegrams of congratulation to Senator Hanna and other leaders in the campaign and has received congratulatory messages from Chairman Dick, of Ohio; Chairman Penrose, of Pennsylvania; and Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, over the results in those states.

Kentucky.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 4.—Returns received from 83 counties, a number of which are incomplete, give Gov. Beckham a majority of 30,000. These figures, however, do not indicate his real majority for the reason that most of the 36 counties failing to be heard from are not republican. These 36 counties represent probably will reduce this by about 5,000.

Rhode Island.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 4.—Complete returns from the 152 districts of the state received reelect Gov. L. F. C. Garvin by 1,587 plurality, a decrease of 6,151 votes. The total vote: Colt (rep.), 29,304; Garvin (dem.), 30,891; Angilly (soc. lab.), 970; Furlong (soc.), 422; Jencks (pro.), 1,106; total, 62,633. The total vote for governor was larger than last year by 3,901. The senate will stand 23 republicans and 11 democrats and the house 39 republicans and 23 democrats.

Massachusetts.

Boston, Nov. 4.—With the exception of the falling off in the socialist vote, the election in Massachusetts very nearly paralleled that of last year. Gov. John L. Bates was reelected by the republicans by a plurality of 35,849 over Col. William A. Gaston in a total vote only slightly under that of 1902, when Bates won by 37,120 plurality. The senate next year will stand 31 republicans and nine democrats, and the house 155 republicans, 82 democrats and one socialist, with two ties to be decided.

Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia, Nov. 4.—Latest estimates from the country districts indicate that the republican state ticket will have majorities ranging from 225,000 to 230,000. William P. Snyder, for auditor general, has run slightly behind William L. Mathews, for state treasurer, while Morrison and Henderson, who were chosen superior court judges, polled a vote almost equal to that of Mathews.

Nebraska.

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 4.—Judge Barnes (rep.), is elected supreme judge over Judge Sullivan, the present incumbent, by a plurality that may reach 8,000. The rest of the republican state ticket is elected by 10,000, Barnes running considerably behind the other candidates. These figures are conceded by the democrats.

California.

San Francisco, Nov. 4.—With four precincts yet to hear from the vote of this city for mayor is: Schmits (union labor), 25,543; Crocker (rep.), 19,278; Lane (dem.) 12,337. The republicans have elected the auditor, city attorney, tax collector, county clerk and eight supervisors.

Colorado.

Denver, Col., Nov. 4.—Unofficial returns from all the counties in the state indicate that Chief Justice John Campbell (rep.), has been reelected to the supreme court by a plurality approximating 8,000.

To Support Reform Scheme.

Constantinople, Nov. 4.—The British, German, French and Italian ambassadors visited the porte Tuesday and notified the Turkish officials that they were in receipt of instructions from their respective governments to support the Austro-Russian reform scheme. The porte strongly objects to control features of the reforms. Orders have been issued for the disbandment of 96 battalions of reserves.

Tragedy in London.

London, Nov. 4.—An individual said to resemble the murderer of Sagat Sagouni, president of the Armenian revolutionary society, who was assassinated on October 26, shot and mortally wounded two Armenians, close to the headquarters of the Hentchak society, at Peckham Rye, Wednesday, and then shot himself dead. He is supposed to have been connected with the Sagouni murder.

Two Burned to Death.

Montpelier, Ind., Nov. 4.—Grover Goss and Harry Elitzrach, of Marion, were burned to death, Ray Ward, of Greenville, O., was fatally burned, and Milton Crozier was very seriously injured in a fire early Wednesday morning which destroyed the McDonald livery barn here.

WARSHIP SHELLS CITY OF PANAMA

Advices from United States Vice Consul Say Government Opens Fire on the Town.

ELEVEN CHINAMEN REPORTED KILLED BY BOMBARDMENT

American Representative Ordered to Protest Against Action and Gunboat Will Be Seized If It Is Not Stopped—New Government Asks Recognition.

Washington, Nov. 4.—United States Consul Ehrman, at Panama, cables the state department under Wednesday's date that the Colombian government warship Bogota is shelling the city. Eleven Chinamen have been killed.

Mr. Ehrman has been instructed to protest against the bombardment.

May Seize Gunboat.

If the consul's protest is not sufficient the commander of the United States steamship Boston, which is by this time on her way to Panama from San Juan del Sur, 600 miles distant, will promptly seize the Colombian gunboat if necessary to stop the bombardment.

This bombardment is in violation of all the rules of war, beginning as it did without the required notice. Moreover, the United States government takes the ground that it certainly interferes with the freedom of transit across the isthmus which this government is treaty bound to maintain.

Ask Recognition.

The United States government Tuesday received a cablegram from Panama requesting that it recognize the new government. The officials here are as yet in ignorance as to what this new government consists of and have taken no action on the request.

Activity at Washington.

The greatest activity was exhibited in the state and navy departments Wednesday morning and there were frequent consultations between the officials, the naval officers particularly being intent on working out the details of the plan of protection of the isthmian traffic outlined by the state department.

It is quite evident that the navy is making preparations for a larger demonstration in isthmian waters than it has made for many years and the fact is not disguised that all of the information that has come from the secret agents of the government point to the ultimate success of the revolution. But meanwhile extremely delicate questions are to be answered, for the occupation of one end of the Panama railroad by the government force and of the other end by the revolutionists makes the situation extremely complicated. That is one reason the conferences are being held and why it is desirable that the most exact instructions possible under the circumstances shall be sent to our naval commanders and to the consular officers on the isthmus to prevent them from making any false move that would place the United States government in a position of violating treaty stipulations or displaying power in derogation of Colombia's just rights.

Significant Instructions.

"You will protect American interests at all points and do everything possible to avoid bloodshed," is the substance of the instructions cabled by the new department at the instance of the state department to the naval commanders now at the isthmus or on the way. The last part of the instructions is positively significant, for it forecasts a more active interposition by the United States government in the troubles on the isthmus than has perhaps ever before been displayed.

These orders were the result of conferences that were held Tuesday night at the white house between the president, Secretary Hay, and Assistant Secretary Loomis, Acting Secretary of the Navy Darling and Rear Admiral Taylor, chief of the bureau of navigation. So it is not doubted that under the authority thus conveyed the United States naval commanders will land marines and sailors at the railroad termini; indeed, it is not doubted Commander John Hubbard, of the Nashville, already has placed a marine guard ashore at Colon to protect the railroad property, and the commander of the Boston probably will take the same action when he arrives at Panama.

Six Warrants Issued.

Washington, Nov. 4.—The supreme court of the District of Columbia has issued six "alias" bench warrants for the arrest of George W. Beavers, now in New York, formerly chief of the salary and allowance division of the post office department. The action is based on indictments recently returned against Beavers by the grand jury here in connection with alleged fraudulent contracts for postal supplies.

Ex-Consul Dead.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 4.—Word has been received here of the death of Charles Seymour at Burlington, Vt., at the age of 83 years. Mr. Seymour was for many years United States consul at Canton, China. At one time he was prominent in Wisconsin politics and proprietor and editor of the LaCrosse Republican.

Dowdies Return.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—Dowdies' restoration hosts returned Tuesday to Zion City, weary and hungry, but with faith in the "healer" unshaken. Many admit the futility of the work in New York.

Viceroy Returns.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 4.—A dispatch from Port Arthur announces that Viceroy Alexieff has returned there from Tallenwan, where he went to inspect the Russian fleet.

STUDENTS KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK

Football Special Carrying Team and Friends from Purdue to Indianapolis in Collision.

Sixteen Persons Are Killed and Many
More Injured—Among the Dead
Are Several Members of the University Football Team—Scene Was One of Horror.

Indianapolis, Nov. 2.—Sixteen persons were killed and two score injured, more than half of them seriously, in the wreck of a special train on the Big Four railroad bearing nearly 1,000 passengers, in the vicinity of Riverside Park at 11 o'clock Saturday morning. Ten of the dead were members of the Purdue University football team, which was to have played Indiana University for the state championship here in the afternoon, and nearly all of the people on the train were residents of Lafayette, who had come to see the contest.

The Dead.

A list of the dead is as follows: Joseph Coats, substitute player, Lafayette; G. S. Drollinger, beheaded; Walter Furr, substitute, Corpus Christi, Tex.; W. H. Grube, substitute, Butler, Ind.; Jay Hamilton, substitute player, Huntington, Ind.; W. D. Hamilton, center rush, Lafayette; N. R. Howard, Lafayette; Patrick McClair, Chicago, assistant coach; R. J. Powell, Corpus Christi, Tex.; Bert Price, Spencer, Ind., substitute; E. C. Robertson, assistant coach; Walter R. Rouch, Pittsburg, substitute; G. L. Shaw, Lafayette; Sam Squibb, Lafayette; Samuel Truitt, substitute. William Bailey of New Richmond, Ind., the sixteenth victim of the wreck, died Sunday. Many others are in a serious condition. There are thirty-four in the hospitals here, thirty-three of whom are students.

Orders Misunderstood.

A misunderstanding of orders is said to have caused the wreck. The tracks were not cleared for the special, which crashed into a train of six loaded cars while running at good speed in a deep cut near Eighteenth street and Holton place. The passenger engine and the first three coaches were almost destroyed. The first coach was crushed to splinters, the second telescoped and thrown down an embankment fifteen feet high, while the third was hurled athwart the track. Fifty or more students were under the huge pile of debris. One body was entirely beheaded and others were so mutilated as to be hardly recognizable.

The usual heart rending scenes of a wreck were magnified, as there were so many more mourners than ordinarily. The work of removing the bodies required the combined efforts of the wrecking crew and many of the city firemen and police.

Say They Obeyed Orders.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 4.—Engineer W. H. Schumaker and Conductor F. M. Johnson, of the wrecked Purdue university special on the Big Four railroad, who are held responsible by the company officials for the wreck, were before Coroner Twiss Tuesday afternoon. Each declared that the train was running on a definite train order which they were following implicitly. General Superintendent Van Winkle made a statement before the coroner, holding the train crew responsible.

PATTI'S RETURN.

Famous Diva Greeted by a Large Audience at Carnegie Hall,
New York.

New York, Nov. 4.—After ten years, Mme. Adelina Patti made her reappearance Monday evening in the city, where just 44 years ago she won her first triumphs as a youthful artist, and started upon a career that has scarcely had an equal in musical annals. Carnegie hall was thronged with an audience that hailed the diva with an enthusiastic welcome. Thunders of applause followed Mme. Patti's rendering of La Folia from Linda, which was succeeded by the "Last Rose of Summer" and "Home, Sweet Home," to which, in response to repeated recalls, she gave "The Last Farewell," a song written especially for this tour.

Negroes in Bank President.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 3.—A savings bank for negroes, with a colored woman for its president, began business here Monday. It is under the auspices of the Colored Order of St. Luke, and members of that order from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland and other states were on hand to make deposits. The aggregate of the deposits Monday was about $75,000.

Fatal Freight Wreck.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 4.—Two Louisville & Nashville freight trains met at the end of the bridge over Salt river, near Shepherdsville Tuesday morning. The dead: Louis Brown, head brakeman, William Brown, fireman. Injured: William Farrer, engineer. Exploding gasoline fired and destroyed a number of cars.

Think Crisis Is Past.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 4.—The optimistic feeling on the subject of the Russo-Japanese situation, which has continuously prevailed here, has now become a distinct conviction that the crisis is past and a rupture is now regarded as extremely remote. The negotiations at Tokio are proceeding without a hitch.

Missionary Church Burned.

Peking, Nov. 4.—The native papers report that a mob in the mining district of Chekiang province recently burned a missionary church and killed the native pastor. The priests of the district are demanding the execution of the local magistrate as reparation.

GROW RYE.

An Ohio Man's Plan For Easy and Profitable Farming.

Rye is a crop that can be grown and harvested by live stock with very little if any loss. It is the only small grain crop with which we are familiar that can so successfully be handled in this way, says an Ohio Farmer writer. The crop can be best utilized by the use of sheep and hogs. No man can have a very definite idea of how much there is in the crop till he makes it a study and puts forth a strong effort to sow it everywhere he can on his farm. On our farm of eighty-six acres, with seasonable rains, there will be rye growing in October on forty-five acres, more than one-half of the farm, that will furnish pasture for a great amount of stock and can best be saved by pasturing hogs, breeding ewes and lambs being fatted for market.

For twenty years the land has been kept regularly in rotation, wheat, clover and corn, the hay and corn being fed out on the farm and the manure, with much hauled from town, put on the land. Under this treatment the land has grown gradually better. There is a vast amount of labor connected with this system that we are forced by circumstances beyond our control to abandon as far as possible. Rye crops without harvesting and thrashing will be the principal feature in bringing this about. Farmers often will not grow it as we do and "hog it down" for fear of the voluntary crop spoiling the clover crop following.

As to this, a volunteer crop of rye which we had in clover would have been an advantage had we wanted to make hay of the crop. The rye prevented the clover lodging, as it would surely have done without it. Cut for hay, the rye in it would not have been any detriment, but an advantage if fed out on the farm as it always is here. If stacked in the field there was enough rye in it if the stacks were carefully raked down to shed the rain.

Using rye instead of wheat and not harvesting it brings us up against the fact that we are without bedding for the stock. For a time no doubt this need can be met by purchasing straw, as many farmers within an area of two or three miles sell their straw to men buying it for factory purposes.

There is no small grain crop grown that is better to start clover in than rye, and this advantage is much enhanced when the crop is not cut, but allowed to fall on the land and be gathered by the stock on the farm. For late fall, winter and spring pasturing sheep will be found the most desirable animals to use, as they will not injure the land by tramping when wet as other animals will. Carrying the plan through the year, the only element barring success is lack of moisture.

This plan will prove practicable and profitable on thousands of farms where wheat has been grown for years past and is still being grown, never paying expenses, the land constantly growing poorer, while the use of rye will continually add to the fertility of the soil and pay a profit as it goes along. It will not come in a lump as when a grain crop is sold, but it will be coming in all the time.

Not Well Advertised.

One reason why the agricultural colleges are not filled with students of both sexes is because the advantages of these institutions are not made known. Our agricultural colleges, at least in the middle and western states, do little if any advertising either in the newspapers or in other ways. It is an open secret that the vast attendance which most of the great universities have is due to the earnestness which those institutions are constantly working for students. In some cases they employ one or more representatives to constantly visit the high schools and preparatory institutions to tell the students about the university and to get them interested in its work. Any agricultural college that will "get a move on itself" along these lines can easily secure more students than it can accommodate, and we believe that every one of these institutions should be open to both sexes. The girls have as many rights as the boys to a practical education.—American Agriculturist.

Trotting the Horse Downhill.

There are lots of fools who drive horses, but one of the biggest is the one who trots his horses downhill.

It jars the shoulders and may bring on paralysis of the nerves and muscles. It weakens the tendons and springs the knees.

Let a horse have his own way and you will notice that he will slacken his pace and go carefully downhill.

Only those go downhill pellmell that are first made to do it under the voice or whip.—Tim in Farm Journal.

Snails Destroying Corn.

Many moisture loving animals, like snails and thousand legged worms, have been unusually numerous and destructive this summer. It seems quite reasonable to think that the excessive moisture of last year enabled them to breed in unusual numbers. We are now getting reports of snails injuring corn, and similar damage was reported last year, says Professor Slingerland in Rural New Yorker. As the snails feed openly upon the surface of the plants and eat much like a biting insect, it is reasonable to suppose that they would succumb to a dose of poison, but some report little success from the application of paris green. I still have faith that they can be effectively poisoned. I should think they could be hand picked with profit in a bed of seedlings. They work at night, and with a lantern one could soon go over a bed and pick them. In a corn or other larger field I should resort to a dose of poison. A narrow strip of salt seems to keep outsiders from getting into a bed of seedlings.

The Late Corn.

My opinion is that it would pay many farmers to build a cheap stave silo and convert a portion of their late corn into silage this year, especially if they have young stock on their farms or can procure young stock at reasonable prices to feed this winter. I am not yet ready to say that it is the best for older cattle—i. e., feeding cattle—nor have I any thoughts of saying that it is not good feed for them. I have not yet proved that to my own satisfaction. Through the college of agriculture we have been conducting experiments along that line on our farm, and we expect to have some very interesting and valuable figures which will come out in bulletin form when the experiment is fully completed. I would not advise going to too much expense in putting up a permanent silo right at the start, for the reason that what will suit one farmer will not always be applicable to his neighbor, and therefore we must choose for ourselves. My experience has been so far that I am satisfied that the silo will be a part of the feeding apparatus for the ordinary farmer in the future. I think there is no better way of curing late corn in a wholesale way for economical feeding than the old fashioned way of cutting and shocking, and I would consider it the next or second method for curing late corn. Following this comes the shredder, but this year there has been such an abundance of roughness cut in the way of clover and grass that there will be no lack of roughness, and practically all the barns are full of that kind of feed. Of course shredded fodder should go into the barn to be at its best.—E. D. Funk, Illinois, in Orange Judd Farmer.

Crop Rotation.

Throughout the region north of the cotton belt there is a three crop rotation which may be regarded as a system with innumerable variations. These crops are corn, small grain—wheat, oats, barley, rye—and grass or legumes, and the period covered by the rotation in some of its variations is commonly four or five years and not infrequently extends to eight or ten or more years, the length of the period depending mostly upon the ability of the grass or legumes to remain productive. Sooner or later most of the tillable land that is not bottom land or is not devoted to one crop, fruit or vegetables, passes through this rotation, but often with interruptions of the admixture of other crops in the effort to adapt the products to markets, prices, soil, weather and the special or general objects of farming. In some regions which produce considerable tobacco, potatoes or beans a portion of the land that would otherwise be given to corn may be given to one of these crops in this general rotation.—G. K. Holmes.

The Details of Success.

The endless details which go to make success in operating a successful dairy farm, market garden, fruit or poultry farm often seem like needless bother to the hit or miss farmer. Said one of these to a successful dairyman, "You are like a slave to wait on a barnful of cows." So he was, but method, enthusiasm and success made the drudgery a pleasure. All success requires some details which in themselves are unpleasant, but zeal and hard work make them anything but slavery.—American Cultivator.

Hale at the Head.

As the new president of the American Pomological society J. H. Hale seems likely to prove the right man in the right place, says American Cultivator. He has put new life into the several prominent Connecticut societies with which he has been connected. His organizing and executive powers unite with his contagious enthusiasm in making him the right kind of a leader to increase the power and usefulness of this important society.

Cleaning Dairy Tinware.

A good method to be followed in cleaning the dairy tinware would be as follows: Wash first with water at about 90 to 100 degrees with a stiff brush (never use a cloth for washing tinware of this sort). The brush will get into all corners, and when there are any dried particles of milk sticking to the sides it will scratch them loose. One precaution always to be observed is never to pour hot water into a can till it has been washed with warm water, as the hot water cooks the milk to the side of the vessel and makes the washing more difficult. After washing thoroughly with warm water rinse thoroughly with warm or hot water in which washing powder has been dissolved at the rate of one pound to fifteen gallons of water. After the vessels have been treated in this way they should be rinsed out with a little cold water to free them of the washing powder solution. This treatment is much easier than it reads. In fact, it requires but very little more work than when the steam jet is used and is nearly as efficient.—Charles P. Doane.

How Fast a Horse Can Go.

The many people who are interested to know just how fast a horse can go will be pleased to learn that recently at Readville, Mass., Lou Dillon broke the world's record by going a mile in exactly two minutes. The last quarter was gone in 0.28. The previous record was 2.02 1/4, made by Crescens last season at Columbus, O. It is now claimed that Lou Dillon will be able to lower the record to 1.59.—Kansas Farmer.

Celery Blanching and Late Keeping.

Where celery is intended for winter use blanching may take place after the crop has been removed from the field and placed in storage. In fact, it is best to blanch as little as possible before storing when the product is to be kept late, as the keeping qualities are better while it is unblanched.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Gave Me New Life.

"This is to certify that I have used Dr. Miles' Remedies quite extensively, especially the Restorative Nervine, which has done wonders for me. Six years ago I had nervous prostration and again three years ago, at which time I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. I kept taking it for six months and have taken an occasional dose during the last two years. I am practically a new man and feel that I have been given a new lease of life. I used to have very bad attacks of stomach trouble but since using the Nervine I can eat most anything I want with impunity. I was examined in Omaha by a noted German doctor three years ago. He told me I was liable to a paralytic stroke any moment; that my whole left side was badly affected. That was just before I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. My work for two years and a half has been very trying on my nerves. I am a presiding elder, traveling my districts at the rate of ten thousand miles a year, preaching on an average of five times a week, besides many business meetings, and the multitudinous cares of my work in general. Thanks to Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine I have been gaining in flesh despite this hard work until now I weigh a hundred and ninety-six pounds, nearly twenty pounds more than in all my life. I preach Nervine wherever I go to those afflicted with nerve, heart or stomach trouble."—Rev. M. D. Myers, Presiding Elder, Free Methodist Church, Correctionville, Ia.

NEW SILO NOTIONS.

The Concrete Silo Thoroughly Practical—A Wire Fencing Frame.

Wire fencing has often been used to bind a stave silo, and now its use as the skeleton of a concrete silo is under consideration. An American Cultivator writer says:

"The success of a round water tank of concrete molded on a framework of wire fencing led to the idea that such a structure built longer and a little larger would make a good and cheap silo. The plan was submitted to the Wisconsin experiment station, where the investigation of silo problems has been so extensive as to make it authority in this line. Reply was received as follows:

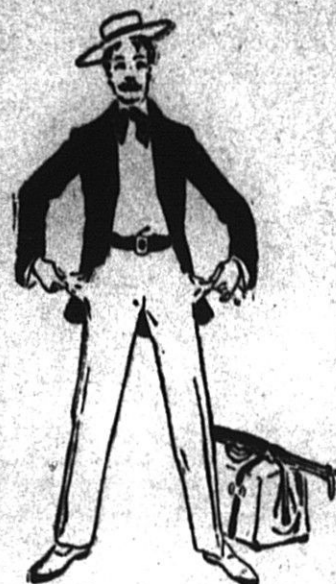

"It seems to me it would be perfectly feasible to construct a cylindrical silo of concrete with stout wire fencing imbedded as you suggest. I inspected two silos a few days since built on the Morgan farm at Beloit, Wis., of concrete with a cement plaster lining, but having three-eighths inch rods laid in sections around the silo at distances varying from two feet apart near the bottom to five feet apart near the top. These silos have both been filled and emptied so that there can be no question regarding their strength. One was twenty-four feet in diameter and the other thirty feet.

The concrete silo is a thoroughly practical and permanent structure and meets with only one objection so far as I can see—namely, that it is a better conductor of heat than wood and therefore does not protect from freezing so well as does a wooden silo. There is also a tendency to collect some moisture in the walls on warm days in the spring, but this is not an inconvenience and in the two cases mentioned did not injure the silage in the least.

The action of the acid of the silage on the cement I believe to have been overestimated. I have seen cement lined silos which have been filled eight years, and the amount of loosening was altogether immaterial, a thin cement wash every three years being sufficient to keep it in good repair.

Trees on the Plains.

There is a wonderfully rapid growth of trees in the plains country this summer, says the Kansas City Journal. It is related by men from western Kansas and Oklahoma that the trees there have done well for two or three years, and this year they have made a growth that is not surpassed in any section of the country. "The cultivation of trees in the short grass country is one of the most difficult things that the people there have to figure on," said William Bradley of Beaver county, Okla. "It is the ambition of every settler in the section of country where trees are averse to growing to have a grove of some sort about the house. Disappointments have been for the most part the result of their efforts, but recently the trees have taken a surprising grip upon life. I think it is due to the unusual rainfall we have had the past few years. The result of it is that there are groves of elms, oaks and poplars in the short grass country."

New Books for City Library.

Contract to furnish them is awarded to local bookseller.

At its session Wednesday evening the library board awarded the contract for about four hundred new volumes to be added to the city library within a few weeks. The lowest and most complete bid was found to be that of Henry Vander Ploeg, bookdealer in this city, and the contract was accordingly awarded to him.

Besides the latest volumes of fiction, some of them still in press, the list of books to be added includes the following, which will furnish a wealth of information and pleasure to the hundreds of patrons of the city library.

Stafford & Bros. of Chicago, one of the largest manufacturers of school desks and supplies in the country have made a proposition to move their plant to Grand Haven. At a mass meeting Wednesday night it was decided to do everything possible to secure the enterprise. The board of trade has secured an option on 40 acres within the city limits which will be platted into lots and the proceeds of their sale apply on the bonus required by the firm. The price of the lots is $200 each.

The dramatic and musical entertainment given at the Odd Fellows hall last Tuesday night under the direction of George Forrester, the instructor in elocution, for the benefit of Grace Episcopal church, was one of the best ever given in this city. After the opening number by Breyman's orchestra, which furnished excellent music, "Little Joey" sang "The Holy City" remarkably well, and Miss Jean Steffens sang "The Stumble Boat" in a manner that called forth the hearty applause of the audience. Others who contributed vocal numbers in a pleasing manner were Prof. J. B. Nykerk, Mrs. Geo. W. Pardee, T. W. Oakley and little Miss Ivanal Whelpley. Two of Mr. Forrester's pupils, Mrs. Ida Whelpley and Miss Florence Alway, appeared in the balcony scene of "Romeo and Juliet. They were exceptionally good, bringing to this exacting scene intensity of feeling and elocutionary ability sufficient to create a most favorable impression, and to gain from the audience the highest of praise. Miss Alway as Juliet, although but 14 years of age, portrayed that character in a way that would arouse envy in many an older elocutionist and Mrs. Whelpley as Romeo was all that the dashing romantic role demanded. Mrs. Whelpley, Miss Alway and Miss Dehn also appeared to good advantage in the cottage scene from "The Lady of Lyons."

Slug on the Sly and Win.

Holland High school and South Haven High school played a fast and interesting game on the Holland grounds Saturday afternoon, and though South Haven won by a score of 11 to 0, Holland covered itself with large and luminous sections of glory. The glory was gained through the stubborn fight, made under adverse conditions. One of the adverse conditions was the man the South Haven boys brought along to referee. He was one of those fellows, who, under a cloak of declarations of an intention to be and to do right, perpetrate every imaginable sort of foul ball piracy. One of his star performances was done in the latter part of the first half when a South Havenite punted the ball between the goal posts and Mr. good-and-fair fellow called it a drop-kick-goal.

The Holland boys were very good in offence and every time they had possession of the ball it meant steady gains. Fumbling at critical moments is the only thing that prevented them from crossing South Haven's goal line. Their defense was not as good as that of the visitors, mainly because their interference was of the tired variety and needed a tonic. The South Haven interference was classic, and to it was due the winning of the game.

Holland kicked off first and held the local option champions for down. Then followed some brilliant work on the part of Heath, Bosman, Damson and Hadden, who, aided by the magnificent team work of their mates, ploughed steadily through South Haven and approached within five yards of the coveted goal. Then South Haven braced and Holland lost the ball.

South Haven, though Ederly, Vandenberg, Haddon, Bosman and Heath, performed prodigies of valor to check the march, moved steadily down and aided by a long end run made a touchdown, and afterwards kicked goal.

Soon after came the referee's brilliant play. A South Haven lad punted the ball between the posts.

"Did you drop-kick that ball," queried the obliging referee.

A look of astonishment shone in the South Havenite's peachbloom face. He groped for words to express his opinion of a referee that got information of the game from the player. Then an inspiration came to him and the look of astonishment faded as if it were rubbed off with a moprag. "Why of course I made a drop kick," he said in tones of injured innocence.

Add the referee decided that South Haven was entitled to 5 more points. Neither side scored in the second half. Following was the lineup:

Holland	South Haven
Damsonl. e.Parch
Vandenbergl. t.Marshall
Karduxl. g.Dougherty
Mulderc.McGuire
Atwoodr. g.Templeton
Heath (Capt.)r. t.Lambson
Ederlyr. e.Baty
VanAnrooyq. b.Leslie
Haddenl. b.Hurlbut
Scottr. b.Bennett
Bosmanf. b.Clement

The South Haven boys were a fine appearing lot. They were athletic fellows trained to the hour for the brush.

Their tempers were simply angelic. Their faces bore the impress of the chastened, beautiful, guileless thoughts that surged through their beings in innocent cadence. They were good fellows—according to their own protestations. According to the people who witnessed the game they were the most unscrupulous bunch of foot ball fiends that ever happened. And all because under this cloak of innocence, guilelessness and fairness, they took advantage of every opportunity for unsportsmanlike actions. Too timid to strike in the open, they, every time that stealth gave them the opportunity, slugged the Holland boys. They are of the stripe that play well in the dark.

It Is a Mistaken Idea

To give too much time to the selection of a Piano; this time could better be spent in selecting a dealer. It should not be hard to size him up by the very appearance of things; for instance, if he be disposed to depreciate his competitor, its pretty strong evidence he hasn't much to offer for himself. One may well have reason to be suspicious of a dealer who promises very much more than is promised by other dealers in a like business. Select the dealer right and the good piano follows.
