Presidential Elections in Yester-year

PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES WERE HUNG IN EFFIGY

Even "Teddy" Roosevelt, Vice-Presidential Candidate, Was Maligned When He Made
His Visit Here

We think this campaign of 1936, between Landon and Roosevelt, a bitter one. It is in a measure, in enunciations and denunciations, but remember it's all long distance. Years ago, taking Holland for example, the campaigns were most bitter indeed between the Republicans and Democrats. Three months before the opening of a campaign and three months afterward there was already a diversion of trade between customers in the different stores. The Democrats would patronize where the proprietors had a Democratic leaning and by the same token Republicans would do likewise. After the battle had cooled down, trade would seep back to the normal channels. Foolish, wasn't it?

Today it is difficult to get a crowd out to any Republican or Democratic rally no matter how much advertised. But no wonder, the voter can sit in his easy chair with dressing gown and slippers and listen to the best over the radio that is to be had; in fact, the nation's top-notchers in oratory. Millions can hear almost nightly the presidential candidates themselves or the brilliant luminaries who espouse the causes of the different candidates, Landon, Roosevelt, Lemke, Father Coughlin, Vandenberg, Fitzgerald, Henning and scores of others crowd the air with the essence of the questions of the day—coached in word pictures that makes the ordinary campaign spellbinders' efforts fall short through comparison.

In the olden days campaigns were run differently, taking Holland as an example, and this prevailed largely in all small cities; the political program consisted of speakers, the best the county could produce. The Republicans of Ottawa county generally "trotted out" George Farr, Captain George W. McBride and Atty. Walter L. Lillie, all of Grand Haven; Honorable Gerrit J. Diekema and the Hon. D. B. K. Van Raalte, one-armed veteran, were Holland's speaking aces. A campaign would never be complete unless the veteran "Case" Van Loo of Zeeland waved the "bloody shirt" of the rebellion and called Democrats "Copperheads." There were several less illustrious speakers, to numerous to mention, who visited the rural schools staging night meetings. The Democrats of Ottawa county were not so fortunate in having speaking talent. The most able speaker possibly was the late George P. Hummer of Holland and "Dud" Watson of Grand Haven. The Republicans also had a larger

HOLLAND CITY NEWS PRINTS FULL BALLOT

In this week's issue of the Holland City News on the first page of section three there appears an exact duplicate of the presidential ballot which you are to vote next Tuesday, November 3, when the polls will be open from 7:00 A. M. until 6:00 P. M. in both the city and in the townships. The ballot covers an entire page of this publication and it contains all the parties, nine in number, all the instructions how to vote, in other words, it is a facsimile in every detail of the ballot the inspectors of election will hand out to the voter in every polling place. The only difference is that on the Holland City News ballot the word instruction ballot appears at the top, while the ballot given the voter will contain the word official. Every polling place has these instruction ballots, printed on yellow paper, for the sole purpose of enlightening the people as to just how to vote without making errors. Turn to page one, section three if you wish to receive information on the coming election next week Tuesday.

list to draw from beyond the county. Congressman William Alden Smith always closed the campaign here and, strange to say, in West Olive where he would go in the afternoon prior to the big night meeting at Lyceum Opera House, which goes without saying, was jammed to the rafters.

Those old campaigns were colorful indeed. Holland had its marching clubs with uniforms men in red, white and blue capes made of oilcloth, a suitable cap and in many instances, colorful torches. The marching club as a rule was well drilled. Captain Peter Moose put many a marching club in line. The old Holland Martial Band, organized more than 50 years ago with 64 pieces, of which only a remnant is left today, was first called the Republican Martial Band, and filled an important place in the campaign for president between James G. Blaine and Grover Cleveland. I still see the faces of several members of that band after the election of Mr. Cleveland, for they were so disappointed, scarcely believing that the beats of the drum of the Holland organization didn't drum up enough votes to defeat Grover. While we're in this campaign we might add something else, which is not such a pretty picture. When Cleveland and Hendricks were elected over Blaine and Logan, the Democrats of Holland were wild, especially the younger Democrats. There was a great demonstration. The demonstration in itself was perfectly "O.K." The parade proceeded down the main thoroughfares but some of the young obstreperous Democrats had entered a float at the tail end of the parade, not in the official program. They had taken two large crates as were used in the olden days to ship crockery in. These were hickory

Prevaricators Beware Of Dr. Davidson

HOLLAND PASTOR CAN TELL YOU JUST WHAT SORT OF LIAR YOU ARE

(Grand Haven Tribune)
The Grand Haven Rotarians, after hearing Dr. T. W. Davidson, pastor of Hope Reformed Church of Holland speak to them at their luncheon yesterday on the subject, "Lies and Liars, Good, Bad and Indifferent (Present Company Not Excluded)," left the room with a confused expression on their faces. Many of them who had not thought themselves as liars were a little in doubt and commenced to figure just which class the good doctor had put them in.

Dr. Davidson, in discussing the psychology of lying, said the trouble with treating it from this standpoint was that it was too scientific. He said it was a mistaken idea that you can tell a liar by the expression of his face. Of course, mannerisms such as nervousness, tones of voice and the fact that too many details are remembered, are indications of untruth.

He said that the objections to lying are that society would become intolerant and that it creates suspicions and undermines character.

The speaker gave as motives why anyone should lie the liking to boast or brag and the attempt to escape from some punishment. He gave many classifications and types of liars—the chivalrous liar, the lie of silence when someone kept silent when the truth would clear up an injury to someone's reputation; the optimistic liar who declared something to be true simply because he wants it to be true; the polite liar, the one who makes promises with no idea of carrying his promise out; the

EXPECT TO ARRIVE IN ARABIA THANKSGIVING

Rev. and Mrs. Dirk Dykstra, who have been in Holland and vicinity for a year, have returned to the mission field in Arabia. He writes from New York stating that they sailed from New York Saturday and expect to arrive in Muscat, Arabia by Thanksgiving Day. The card was written on shipboard as they were about to sail from New York harbor.

beneficial liar, where the truth if told might cause undue harm; the profitable liar, the one who lies for pecuniary advantages; the inquisitive liar, the one who tries to find out personal secrets; and the pathological liar who lies because he is unable to distinguish between truth and untruth. The latter, he said, was different from the others only in matter of degree.

The doctor's talk was filled with humor and much enjoyed by his hearers.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICE WHILE DR. NYKERK LAY IN STATE

While the remains of Dr. Nykerk lay in state in a bower of floral tributes in beautiful Hope Memorial Chapel, there was a continuous program of soft pipe organ music, lasting from 10:00 a. m. until 1:45 p. m. The best pipe organists in the city volunteered to play forty-five minutes each during the period in which the body lay in state. Those who volunteered were Prof. Osborne, Hope's Director of Music; Miss Angeline Dornbos; Mr. Olin Van Lare; Miss Mildred Schuppert; Miss June Cook and Mrs. W. Curtis Snow. The offerings were very impressive indeed and added to the solemnity of the occasion.

There was not a moment's intermission during the time set aside to pay last respects to the departed educator and musician. Hundreds passed the bier during the allotted hours.

During the funeral services Professor Osborne played "Largo" by Handel and the offering of the choir was "Souls of the Righteous" by Noble. Mrs. D. B. K. Van Raalte sang "Lead Kindly Light."

Another feature that left a deep impression was the placing of the guards at the head and foot of the casket. These guards were picked from the student body, and they stood motionless and at attention from 10:00 o'clock to 1:45, at intervals. The young men were: Victor Notter, Dick Smith, Lester McBride, Gene Osterhaven, Eklard Buys, Calvin Vander Werf, Willard Veltman, Fred Jappinga, Bob Blanchard, Harold Nienhuis, Peter Vandenberg and John Wyngarden.

SENATOR VANDEN BERG HAS SPECIAL MESSAGE FOR THE LADIES

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg will come to Holland Monday afternoon at two o'clock at the Holland Armory to close the campaign before the presidential election the day following. It was almost impossible to secure Mr. Vandenberg since there was such a tremendous demand on his time, in requests to have him speak at Republican gatherings came from Maine to California and it was physically impossible to have him make a personal appearance in even a few of these places from which requests came.

Senator Vandenberg, however, felt that his constituency was entitled to a little of his time, so he gave to Ottawa County the afternoon of Monday just before the election.

The Senator has a special message to the women of Ottawa County and it goes without saying that all from Holland and vicinity, or from anywhere for that matter, are welcomed at the Holland Armory next week Monday afternoon at two o'clock. Senator Arthur Vandenberg is considered the ace orator of the nation. As a Republican on the floor of the senate his oratory was so outstanding that the members of all parties delighted in hearing him expound the vital questions of the day and gave a great deal of heed to them. That was evident when Mr. Vandenberg's bill of Bank Insurance of Deposits passed the House and Senate through which today all deposits of each individual are insured up to $5,000 in any bank under that plan, and all Ottawa County banks are. This plan has had a tremendous influence towards recovery. Anyway, come to the Armory next Monday at two o'clock and listen to the last Republican message in Holland to be given by Arthur H. Vandenberg.

Wm. C. Vandenberg of Holland, member of the Republican State Central Committee will preside.

SIDELIGHTS IN THE LIFE OF DEAN NYKERK

The Holland City News staff will feel the loss of Dr. Nykerk most keenly. For thirty-five years Mr. Nykerk had charge of the Hope Church Sunday program. The Holland City News printery has printed these weekly bulletins all during this time. With the exception of a few weeks each year the doctor has visited the News office either twice or three times each week. These programs were augmented by other programs for musicals, organ recitals and college exercises. Conservatively estimated, the doctor supervised the printing of not less than 2500 different programs during that time and visited the Holland City News office not less than 6000 times with copy and corrections. Mr. Nykerk was a stickler for form and accuracy, but despite his exactions the whole force loved him and were stunned when they heard of his unexpected death. He had been at the office just a few hours before, sat to chat for a half hour and seemed very cheerful. With his usual "tru-lu-lu," given in a musical voice, he left for the homecoming game at Leif-er-view Park.

Dr. Nykerk was largely responsible for the installation of the wonderful Skinner pipe organ installed in the Hope Memorial Chapel. It was through his efforts that much of the $25,000, the cost of the organ, was secured. The Arndt family of Holland, then the owners of the Holland Rusk Company, donated the "lion share." He also secured the funds to install the echo organ, another unit added later, which makes the capacity of the organ most complete. It is undoubtedly as fine an organ as any in Michigan.

Dr. Nykerk had considerable to do with the securing of Professor W. Curtis Snow, musical director and pipe organist of Hope College. He was advised of the wonderful ability of Mr. Snow through Att. Judson Kolyn and Mr. Nykerk proceeded to Sioux City to investigate and the final outcome was the securing of Mr. Snow, whose recent death was a severe blow to the doctor. It is stated on authority that Mr. Nykerk never got over that shock.

It was rather a coincidence that Rev. G. J. Hekhuis, a retired minister, was a classmate at Hope, as well as a brother-in-law of Mr. Nykerk. This was 52 years ago.

For many years Dr. Nykerk sponsored lecture courses at Hope College. He has secured some of the best talent the country had to offer in the way of lectures, operas, Shakespearean offerings and orchestral programs. The late William Jennings Bryan appeared here under his auspices on two occasions.

We wish to say further about these lecture courses. Dr. Nykerk always made them pay. That is to say, no one lost any money. If these proved a financial success, he bought pianos for Hope College with the surplus. If the course went "into the red," he personally pocketed the losses and said nothing. He purchased six fine pianos in that way, not taking into consideration other useful things that would benefit the college and the students.

Dr. Nykerk, although a schoolmaster, a teacher of elocution, a conductor of music and voice, a man who was about as academic as it was possible to find in a school, was altogether different out of the school room. He was civic-minded, he invested in our industrial enterprises, paid attention to politics, backed up every movement promoted by civic clubs, and gave his moral and financial support to every uplift movement. He invested his money in Holland projects, and let us say right here that he sunk many a dollar in business enterprise. When asked the question one day, why he invested in all these things, that it was unusual for a school man, he said, "I believe in Holland and someone must invest or we wouldn't have any enterprises and Holland would suffer." The writer knows of at least a dozen commercial and industrial projects he has helped along; some proved successful, while others not so much. We state this simply to show that Dr. Nykerk was a many-sided man, and not only was he a great asset to his college but also to his city.

Dr. Nykerk was unalterably opposed to liquor in any form and often shifted his patronage to avoid places where liquor was sold. He was also opposed to the use of tobacco, however, more so the cigarette. To him the "coffin nail" was an abomination. To see a young man smoke cigarettes, disturbed him greatly.

Dr. Nykerk, many years ago, was given a leave of absence to study at Oxford, England. He loved to converse on his college experience there, for "J. B." liked things English. He thought a great deal of the culture and the people. While in England he was privileged to visit every corner of the British Isles.

Dr. Nykerk also had a personal acquaintance with the great Dr. Kuiper, Premier of The Netherlands, many years ago and was well acquainted with the daughter of this great man. He relates many instances where he was the guest at the family dinner.

Dr. Nykerk was well traveled—besides staying in England for a year from where he made side trips, he also traveled the continent with the late Dr. G. J. Kollen, president of Hope College. The two were close friends, always.

WHY THEY ALL LOVED HIM

Dr. Nykerk was signally honored recently by the Rotary club. "J. B." was a charter member and one day two months ago he laid down his dues but the club would not accept the money. Instead, thru the suggestion of the president, "Vaude" Vandenberg, the members presented him with a life membership much to his surprise. He was visibly affected and thanked the members for so honoring him. Death, however, cut the life membership short.

While in London, at Oxford, Dr. Nykerk received lessons from Dr. R. A. Pope, who married Tennyson's favorite niece. Tennyson was Dr. Nykerk's favorite theme and after his retirement was assigned to a class studying the great poet's contributions to poetry.

Among the most outstanding American orators whom Dr. Nykerk knew personally and engaged for his lecture programs were William Jennings Bryan, Robert La Follette, Sr., Newell Dwight Hillis, Russell H. Cronwell, and Sen. A. H. Beveridge.

Some 20 years ago he secured two celebrated artists from the Chicago Opera Co. The two ladies were beautiful, one a contralto and the other a mezzo-soprano. They landed in Holland on the Chicago train with their accompanist, fashion plate of a man. To their chagrin they found that the trunk had gone on thru. The ladies were distraught for they had to appear on the Carnegie stage within the hour and their supposition had to make their entry in evening gowns. Dr. Nykerk allowed his disappointment and said, "Well ladies, we will have to do the best we can as you are, I am sure the audience will understand." They did and although appearing in their traveling outfits they gave the large audience a most delightful evening and augmented their program considerably. The artists were pleased with the outcome and thought our folks were just about "it." There was a regular reception after the concert.

The doctor "we say" had a temper. When in the "B" class, your editor then sweet sixteen, threw a pinch of red pepper on a long red hot box-stove in the recitation room, the results being sneezes and smarting eyes aplenty. Nykerk picked up a hickory pointer and with absolute aim wielded it perfectly on the offending hand. There was a week of smarting for this smart trick.

One of the greatest artists secured for the lecture course was Madame Muzzio of the Metropolitan Opera Company. She was one of the nation's greatest dramatic sopranos and this was an expensive number, however, Carnegie Hall was packed to greet her. It is stated that the pianist who played the accompaniment in the "Prodigal Son" this week was Muzzio's accompanist at that time.

Dr. Nykerk seldom was absent from morning service in Hope Church. Being conspicuous for his absence last Sunday caused members to wonder what had caused him to stay away. It led to an investigation.

The doctor has taken many a trip with both ladies and men's Glee Clubs. On one occasion during the President Colledge administration, the ladies' club and the president had their pictures "took" on the White House lawn.

We might go on indefinitely in relating these incidents but space forbids. More about Dr. J. B. Nykerk and the incidents of his death are found on page one, section two of this issue.

VOTE ON LOCATION OF TOWNSHIP HALL

Relocation of the Park township hall will be decided at the general election Tuesday.

The polling place would be shifted from Waukazoo to a point across from the new airport where the township now owns property, according to terms of the proposal submitted to the voters.

If you want to avoid the jam on election day, vote early advises City Clerk Oscar Peterson. Polls open from 7:00 a. m. until 6:00 p. m.

MUSKEGON CHRONICLE GIVE PLATFORMS OF TWO HOLLAND MEN

The Muskegon Chronicle in an issue of Thursday gives the platforms of both the Republican and Democratic nominees for the state Senate. Here is what the Chronicle publishes.

STATE SENATOR Edward Browner

Mr. Browner is the Republican candidate for state senator from the Muskegon-Ottawa district. He was born at Grand Rapids and educated in rural and city schools. For the last 30 years he has been a resident of Holland where he now operates a printing business.

Mr. Browner is now serving his second term as state representative and believes his experience in the legislature qualifies him for the state Senate. Mr. Browner is married and the father of one daughter.

For more than 20 years Mr. Browner has been serving the people as a state representative, an official of Holland, as a member of civic organizations and church societies and as secretary and manager of agricultural societies.

One of the principles for which Mr. Browner stands is "the right and duty of labor to organize, solely for the protection of their rights and to co-operate with employers to secure better working conditions, eliminate sweat shops, permit laborers to live in accordance with American standards."

Mr. Browner is an active conservationist and has always supported beneficial conservation legislation. He introduced and secured legislation which outlawed the "special privileges" on shooting preserves and was active in the elimination of deep trap nets for whitefish in the Great Lakes.

He is an ardent supporter for state aid for schools, relief for farmers and adequate old age assistance.

Mr. Brooks, former mayor of Holland, is the Democratic candidate for state senator from the 23rd district. He was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., and received his higher education at University of Chicago. He has been a resident of Ottawa county for the last 20 years. Besides being mayor he has served as a member of various city boards. He has been a candidate for state representative and for congressman from the 5th district. He was chairman of the state welfare commission from 1931 to 1933 and the next two years secretary of the state emergency relief commission.

Consolidation of welfare agencies to avoid duplication is one of the principal aims of Mr. Brooks. "Welfare is my prime interest," Mr. Brooks said, "and I believe necessary legislation should be passed to provide Michigan with the fullest benefits of the New Deal in welfare and WPA programs."

Music Leaves Impress At Nykerk Rites

"NEVER IN DOUBT WHERE DR.
NYKERK STOOD IN LIFE"
—NETTINGA

"The Grand Old Man of Hope College." That is how the late Dr. J. B. Nykerk was characterized by Rev. Paul E. Hinkamp, college pastor, in an address at the funeral services at the Memorial Chapel, Wednesday, October 28, at 2 o'clock.

For the third time within a year, a member or former member of the Hope College faculty was brought to his final resting place from out the halls of this imposing Memorial Chapel—first the late Prof. W. Curtis Snow, then Dr. John M. Vander Meulen, and now Dr. J. B. Nykerk.

The crowded chapel, packed with townspeople evidenced how citizens at large revered the aged professor. Additional evidence was found in the large numbers of floral offerings, among which were those of the Rotary Club, the Michigan Inter-Collegiate Speech League, Pi Kappa Delta, and, as a final remembrance—of his Tennyson class. Roses and lilies in various shades of red, pink, and white literally banked the casket as it stood at the extremity of the middle aisle, directly in front of the platform.

When Prof. Osborne had completed the playing of "Largo," as a prelude, the Rev. Paul E. Hinkamp read 1 Corinthians 1-3, one of Dr. Nykerk's favorite chapters, which he was accustomed to read at least once per year in chapel when he was still living. Rev. Hinkamp also offered prayer, assuring the audience that Dr. Nykerk had had the "best Homcoming of all—a Homcoming with Him."

Dr. B. B. K. Van Raalte, accompanied by Mrs. W. C. Snow, rendered a vocal solo, "Lead Kindly Light," as per Dr. Nykerk's request a short time before his passing.

Dr. Nykerk's life as an educator and citizen was reviewed by Dr. S. C. Nettinga, President of Western Theological Seminary. In the passing of Dr. Nykerk, a long and useful life has closed. Dr. Nykerk's interests were many and varied and continued until the day of his passing on. He lived for Hope, he gave the best of his life to it, he said in part.

Dr. Nettinga stressed the qualities of the deceased as an educator, stating that Dr. Nykerk was the master of his subject, had an intense interest and love for music, oratory, and debate, and held up constantly before his students the highest standards and ideals of life. As a citizen, Dr. Nettinga said the following tribute to his life. "You never were in doubt as to where he stood on the moral issues of life. You may have thought him extreme. You may have disagreed with him, but he never compromised. He was a Christian citizen. I covet for myself such an idealistic, such a consistent view of life that influenced so many. I would like to close my address by quoting a Bible text—'He being dead, yet speaketh.'"

"Souls of the Righteous," one of Dr. Nykerk's favorite hymns, was sung by the College Chapel Choir, Mr. Osborne directing, and Miss Sarah Lacey, accompanying on the organ.

The Rev. Thomas W. Davidson, pastor of Hope Reformed Church, of which Dr. Nykerk was a member, witnessed to Dr. Nykerk's qualities as a church member and as a Christian.

"Churchmanship," Dr. Davidson asserted, "was perhaps the most dear thing to him. He was a Catholic churchman. He thought of the Church of God as being composed of all true believers. He served 38 years as either elder or deacon in Hope Reformed Church. He died in the harness. He served, and supported the Church, and ever sought its increase in Christian power and intelligence. Dr. Nykerk did not have to say, 'I think,' or 'I hope,' or 'I suppose,' but 'I know whom I have believed.' He did not know Christ only as the Savior of the world, but as his own personal Redeemer. God's beauty made him buoyant. God's sympathy made him social, and God's grace made him glad. Peace to his ashes, and peace ever to his memory."

Closing prayer was offered by the Rev. N. Boer, D. D., President of the Board of Trustees of Hope College, followed by the seven-fold "Amen" by the choir.

While the senior guard of honor formed along the walk leading to the hearse, the audience remained standing until the funeral procession including the cross-dressed bier, had left the building. Enroute to the cemetery, the procession stopped momentarily in front of Voorhees Hall, in silent tribute to the late Doctor's long term of residence there.

At the cemetery, Dr. E. D. Dimment quoted a few appropriate verses of Scripture and offered the benediction. Pall-bearers were Supt. E. E. Fell, Prof. Walter Van Saun, Prof. Albert Lampen, Dr. A. Leemhuis, Prof. J. Harvey Kleinhekel, and Prof. Thomas E. Welmers.

Men's league of Third Reformed church will open the season's activities at a supper Friday night at 6:30, in the church parlors. Glen Stewart, advertising manager of the Kalamazoo Vegetable Parchment company will be the speaker for the evening. His subject will be "The Romance of Pepper." Election of officers will be held. The Rev. William Van Hoff, new pastor of the church, is expected to be present. Special music, consisting of violin solos will be furnished by Dick Keeler. Reservations may be made with Cecil Huntley. The supper will be served by Mrs. Arthur Fommersberg and her division.

When Campaigns Were "Red Hot" In Holland

The above photograph, in the possession of the Holland City News for 65 years, harks back when this community was little more than "Four Corners." The picture you see here visions River avenue looking north, and 8th street, better known as Main at that time, making up the intersection. At the further end of the street was an old wooden bridge crossing Black river which connected up the old Grand Haven road, a highway so impassable that a span of horses were generally necessary if the trip was to be made to Grand Haven that way. The driver never forgot to take along a shovel, so if necessary, he could dig out his rig when going through the deep sand around West Olive. The trip was about seven hours' duration with any luck. Today, over the same highway, US-31, thirty minutes is sufficient to go from Holland's city hall to the Grand Haven court house. Anyway, here we have the intersection of River street and Main street during the campaign between Lincoln and Douglas. The building with the two wooden awnings at the side belonged to H. D. Post, Holland's first postmaster. Here is where he had his Justice office, his Notary work and conducted business generally. Today the site of those wooden structures are occupied by the Model Drug Store. The wooden building at the extreme right-hand corner, with the side stairs to the second floor, belonged to E. Vander Veen, father of John Vander Veen, head of the Holland Furniture Co. Mr. Vander Veen was the first hardware dealer, lock and tin-smith in this city. The building was always used as a hardware store and even the brick building now on the site was occupied by the son, John Vander Veen, who also conducted a hardware store, following in the footsteps of his father. It is only recently that that site was used for something else besides hardware. The Corner Hardware, conducted by Dick Van Tatenhove, was the last store of that type on that corner. It is now a food emporium, conducted by Schulling and Brink. At the left-hand corner of the picture is the home of Mr. Pfanstiel, located on the site of Van Putten's grocery and Banner Bakery on River avenue. To the north, where the buggy stands, is what was known as the City Hotel. Holland's main Inn during Civil War days. This was on the site of the McBride block, which Peck's Drug Store is now located. It was at one time the site of a three story building, called Kenyon's Hall which housed Holland's first opera house on the second floor. It also housed Kenyon's Bank, the first bank to be established in this city. Also Breyman's and Joslen's Jewelry store, the first in the city, Daniel Bertsch conducted a dry goods store and I think the Kanter's Book Store was also in the building. A glance further down River Ave. shows a long building about on the site of the Ford Sales & Service Co. The building is said to be Holland's first brewery conducted by a Mr. Ailing. Next, the tall building with a cupola is the city flour mill conducted by Werkman, Geerlings and Co. The Mr. Geerlings was the father of Mayor Henry Geerlings.

The building protruding behind the mill is the American House, a small hotel that served the wayfarers from the country districts. The shack on the West side of River avenue in the distance is said to be a small stove mill and barrel factory. If you notice closely you can plainly see the dip in North River avenue, the same as it is today. It is also noticeable that the forest is right on the edge of the city and in those days, deer and other game around Holland was plentiful. Undoubtedly the crowd loitering on the veranda of the hotel are busy talking politics, since that was the only method available to broadcast the message in those early days. The large buggy was the vehicle used to take in an occasional hotel guest and traveling salesman to and from the depot. The rig was used between train hours to drive traveling men to and from country stores.

You will notice the wooden walks, the hitching posts and the clay-gravel streets, fine enough in dry weather but "up to the hubs" with mud during spring and fall. You will also notice in the foreground a picket fence and gate. All Holland homes in the earlier days were hedged in with picket fences and gates that locked, and let me say there were many fine and colorful fences in this city fifty years ago. The citizen was largely judged by the condition of his picket fence and the wooden walk in front of it. That gives you in detail the background of a political picture, described in this article.

RELIABLE MEN

In political life, as in private life, the men who handle the affairs of government should be as honest with their government as they are with themselves. Western Michigan has been very fortunate in sending to Congress two men who are recognized at Washington, men of all parties, as able, reliable and congressmen who can not only do something for the country, but for their constituents as well.

Congressman, Carl Mapes of the 1st District, in which Holland is located, has been an outstanding figure at Washington. Democrats as well as Republicans recognize at fact. For more than a score years Mr. Mapes has shown a keen insight in the intricate legislation that comes before the House of Representatives. He is presently taking and conscientious; he is slow to jump at conclusions and he would sooner vote his honest convictions, even though it may appear detrimental at first, than to vote wrong for policies' sake—for this he is universally respected. Loved by members of all parties at Washington, he has gained an influence among his fellows that is far reaching and because of this he can, and is, doing some very effective work, not only for the nation at large, but for Michigan as well. Mr. Mapes, notwithstanding the fact that he is a very busy man, finds time to devote to smaller matters having to do with the individual, whether that be a soldier, a laboring man, a widow or an orphan, or a man of affairs. They all get a hearing at his hands and he bends his efforts on all appeals and requests alike.

Congressman, Clare Hoffman, although diametrically different to Congressman Mapes in make-up, has also been a real asset to Western Michigan. He is serving his first term, but in spite of this fact he has made himself heard at the national capital and his colleagues have sat up and taken notice, for if "Clare" has something to say, he is bound to be heard, even though the unwritten law in Congress seems to be that first-year congressmen "should be seen and not heard."

Although just a beginner, as the national capital would have it, Hoffman immediately sprang into prominence, was placed on important committees where he made his usefulness felt.

It so happened that the two men coming from adjoining districts, both Mr. Mapes and Mr. Hoffman, can be of tremendous help to one another in looking after the wants of their constituency. We have just had concrete evidence of this at the Western Michigan Harbor Association meeting, where both Mr. Hoffman and Mr. Mapes were lauded by harbor men for their accomplishments in behalf of the harbor in their respective districts and beyond. Representatives from Saugatuck told of the benefits that their little harbor had received through the efforts of these two congressmen. A presentable harbor meant a great deal to that little resort town, considering that there were fifty cruisers in the harbor all summer, and this vicinity knows that resort facilities are an asset, not only to Saugatuck but to Holland and Ottawa and Allegan Counties. What holds true of Saugatuck, also holds true of Holland, Grand Haven and South Haven harbors and other lake ports on the East shore. These harbors have maintenance funds that keep them navigable and in repair. This was also brought out at the recent meeting of the Harbor Association.

Then our Congressman has put forth his efforts to secure for Holland a much needed Coast Guard station, replacing one built fifty-three years ago. This need was so imperative that those interested in harbors along the East shore are aiding in the consummation of this project. Mr. Mapes, who was present, and Mr. Hoffman, through a letter, are cooperating in all this. The same effort is being put forth on picket boats for all resort harbors where there is a danger of loss of life and where quick action is necessary.

Now we have another field in which this vicinity is vitally interested, namely, sugar beets. The Lakeshore Sugar Company, during last year's government restrictions, was really in a bad way in getting a large enough allotment of sugar beets. More acreage would give a greater volume to keep the plant going and would give farmers acreage enough to go around. The last few years sugar beet raising with the farmers in Ottawa and Allegan Counties and beyond has been a real boon as a diversified crop. The acreage for Holland's factory was restricted and naturally that curtailed that acreage to the farmers. Telegrams from Holland, Zeeland and Allegan County to Congressmen Mapes and Hoffman and a delegation sent to Washington started teamwork and when Holland's case was properly presented by Mr. Mapes and Mr. Hoffman and the needs were pointed out, those in authority at Washington conceded to the Lakeshore Sugar Company a larger acreage which tremendously benefited both Ottawa and Allegan Counties.

It is evident that through this teamwork by two congressmen in adjoining districts where the problems are very much similar, namely, in agriculture, resort possibilities, harbor necessities, these two men can be of untold value to its constituency and a great deal of help to one another through their joint efforts. The services they have rendered were for timely and imperative needs and not for useless expenditures. What has been received here is well known to everyone and it has "dovetailed" with other causes that has helped to build and enhance Western Michigan's resort, agriculture and industrial districts.

At the general election, Tuesday, relocation of the township hall in the first precinct of Park township will be voted upon in a separate ballot. The polling place would be shifted from Waukazon to a point across the road from the new airport where a township recreation center is planned, according to Township Clerk Albert Kronmeyer. The township owns the structure, he said, but not the property at its present location. It owns the property on which the hall would be transferred, before the move can be made it must be approved by the residents of the township. The recreation center planned in the first precinct is similar to the one now being constructed in Virginia park in the second precinct.

A proposal to change the school district known as Park fractional four, separating the Montello park school into a district by itself, was tabled following a discussion Monday night by members of the township boards of Holland, Park, Fillmore and Laketown townships, all of which are partly included in the district. According to G. J. Nevenzel of Holland, secretary of the school district board involved, the possibility of financial difficulties arising out of such a division was brought out at the meeting, and it was generally felt that no division should be made at this time. George Heneveld, Park township supervisor, presided.

The Van Duzer building, a Grand Haven landmark on Main St., was destroyed by fire Monday. The H. Bigelow family living in the upper apartment were unable to save any of their belongings. Benware and Kohloff, operators of the barber shop below, estimated a loss of about $1,000, partly covered by insurance. Smoke and water damaged restaurants on each side of the building.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Wolters are at home on route 6, following their recent marriage which took place October 15. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. D. Zwier in the presence of 35 guests at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. James Langejan on 16th street. Mrs. Wolters was formerly Miss Gertrude Wolbert.

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY

The party of Lincoln, Garfield, McKinley and other illustrious men presents the above able nominees for your consideration.

The above represent the standard bearers, Governor Alfred Landon, nominee for President on the Republican ticket and Frank Knox, a former Michigan boy who was honored with the nomination for Vice-President of the United States.

The state ticket nominated at the recent primary and at the state convention are also grouped in the above photograph.

Governor Frank Fitzgerald, it will be remembered, survived the landslide of 1932 as Secretary of State and was re-elected by an overwhelming majority in 1934 and was also re-nominated by a tremendous vote at the September 15 primaries. Rather a coincidence to find the name of Howard M. Warner for State Treasurer. Mr. Warner is the son of the late Governor, Fred M. Warner, who not only was a "farmer governor", but a great manufacturer of cheese. His son is in the same business. All those who have secured license plates in the past dealt with Orville Atwood, Secretary of State.

Anyway, the men whose pictures you see here have been more or less in public life and stand high in the communities in which they live. They are able executives and deserve the most earnest consideration at the hands of the voters.

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY

Has every reason to feel proud of the nominees on their ticket and we present them to you for your consideration.

Vote the Party of Lincoln

VOTE REPUBLICAN

In this announcement will be found the Republican nominees on Ottawa County ticket. They need not be introduced to the voters in this vicinity. You know their qualifications; on the whole they are as able, accommodating and painstaking as any collective group in the state of Michigan. It is a very important thing to have experienced officials at the court house. Inexperience in any one of these offices is bound to bring errors, and errors in legal transactions in County affairs are expensive matters to have occur.

In private business good officials are retained and promoted. In Ottawa County the county officials have worked at very reasonable salaries and during the depression years were cut to the bone because of necessity. The salaries were never fully restored. Despite this fact the Ottawa County officials have given their best as anyone who has had dealings with this staff can attest.

limbs cut in half, then filled with straw in which the crockery was packed. When these crates were empty, they have the appearance of a prison cage with bars all around. Well, six young men, whose names we will not mention at this time, hung the great statesman, James G. Blaine, in effigy from the top of the cage. The Republicans were so incensed that a small riot followed. The horses drawing the cage were hustled out of the parade and the cage and the effigy were burned in a bonfire in the large swamp at the foot of Pine avenue, which since that time has been nearly filled in. The marsh at that time extended right up to 8th street, north.

Other uncalled-for instances in the campaign of yesteryear happened when Theodore Roosevelt was on a campaign tour when he was the running mate of President William McKinley. "Teddy" came to Holland all dressed up in a rough rider's suit, cowboy hat and all the frills that have a Western "smack." He spoke from the platform in Centennial Park and he made a great impression for he was an excellent and a forceful speaker. The crowd was enthusiastic beyond measure. However, there was one discordant note—a few thoughtless young Democrats had devised a scheme to malign this great man who became world renowned as well as the President of the United States after the assassination of William McKinley at the Buffalo Exposition.

The discordant note was a circular gotten out by these men and passed into the crowd. The Democrats attacked "Teddy" on his campaign in Cuba, and through circulars endeavored to create disharmony between the regular soldiers and the rough riders, insinuating that Roosevelt had inferred that a rough rider made a better soldier. They also questioned his farm policy. We are not giving the full import of the circular which appears in the files of the Holland City News of that date. Suffice it to say that it was not nice and very uncalled for while we were entertaining this guest of honor, however, it needs no repetition here. Even Roosevelt, read it, crumbled it up and said, "If I had to answer all scurrilous things said about me in a campaign, I wouldn't have time to make a regular speech." He made some other caustic remarks, "showed his teeth," blinked his eye glasses and the crowd went wild with laughter and enthusiasm. He climaxed this good feeling by saying that he too came from Dutch stock and to clinch the argument he repeated a Dutch ditty which went as follows:

"Tripje, Trapje, Troontje,
De Varkens in de boontjes,
De Koetjes in de Klaver,
De Paardjes in de haver."

The literal translation, although it cannot be given in rhyme is about like this:

"The pigs are in the beans,
The cows are in the clover,
And the horses are in the oats."
But then in Dutch it rhymes and sounds better.

After a great deal of laughter from the audience, "Teddy" launched forth and made a regular speech denouncing the Democratic party and the nominee who had espoused the silver question to 16 to 1 in a former campaign and now had some other remedy for all political ills. Anyway, the Holland City News prints a half column of the Colonel's speech in which he advises that all men with a family should not forget the Republican party which had brought prosperity and progress in the nation since the time that Abraham Lincoln became its leader.

In a previous article we related that William Jennings Bryan had been in Holland on several occasions. The first was when he was named the nominee for president of the Democratic ticket, when he espoused the silver question on the basis of 16 to 1. That is the time when "Coins Financial School" was the best seller.

George P. Hummer, then head of the West Michigan Furniture Co., had taken his large furniture van to the depot, colorfully decorated with flags and bunting, and the young "Orator of the Platte" delivered an oratorical gem that was listened to by at least 4,000 people. He was a young and energetic man from Lincoln, Neb., who had won his nomination at Chicago, also through oratory when he delivered his celebrated speech entitled, "The Cross of Gold and the Crown of Thorns," which the writer was privileged to hear. Mr. Bryan visited Holland several times since, twice on Hope college lecture courses and a few years ago, when as a venerable old man, he spoke at Carnegie hall on evolution. He died two years later.

James G. Blaine, during the campaign of Blaine and Cleveland, also passed through Holland and spoke from the rear platform of his car. The night before he had been at Grand Rapids where he was given a tremendous ovation. There was a gigantic torchlight procession. He spoke from the balcony of the Morton House to the crowd below and later at Hartman's hall, Grand Rapids. It was when he left Grand Rapids for Chicago that the train stopped here and the whole town was out, besides the band and marching clubs. The old cannon from "Public Square" was also pulled to the depot and fired several salutes as the train entered the city.

The most recent presidential candidate to come to Holland was Franklin D. Roosevelt, who spoke at the Knickerbocker Theatre, on the Holland, on the afternoon of October 18, 1920. He was a much younger man then by sixteen years. He was the running mate for Vice-President for the Democratic Presidential nominee, James M. Cox of Ohio. Cox and Roosevelt at that time were badly defeated by Harding and Coolidge. The death of Harding while on his Western trip which extended to Alaska, made Vice-President Coolidge the President of the United States. When wild Franklin D. Roosevelt was in Holland, he also made side trips to Grand Haven and spent twenty minutes in Zeeland, proceeding to Grand Rapids where he spoke in the Coliseum at night. He was thirty-eight years old at the time he came to this city. According to the files of the News young Roosevelt spoke to an audience that filled the theatre, spoke quietly almost devoid of gestures and his campaign discourse was almost without stories which are so often used by campaign speakers to keep an audience in good humor and interest. He spoke largely on the League of Nations and made a forceful address.

We could go on indefinitely relating incidents in previous campaigns, but we wish to say something about the campaign in which this pictured spot found on page one played an important part. This was Holland during the Civil War when the campaign was between Abraham Lincoln and Steven A. Douglas. In those early days Holland was Democratic by a narrow margin. Those were the days when liberty poles were all the rage and on these four corners two liberty poles were erected, high ones with cross trees. There was a dispute as to where the Democratic liberty pole stood. Some say right in the heart of the street intersection to which the Republicans objected strenuously, but the Republicans, too, had to have a liberty pole and they placed theirs directly in front of the hotel.

One of the Vyn brothers had secured the Republican pole from the woods of Port Sheldon and when Senator D. M. Ferry of Grand Haven heard that this pole had been erected, he sent a flag of 25 feet to adorn it. The Republican pole was the first to be erected but the Democrats, not to be outdone, put up a larger and taller pole and even more symmetrical than the Republicans had. Besides the cross trees there was also a golden ball on top, but when the poles were up the Democrats held an appropriate demonstration. There was a great meeting of the Democrats around the pole with the Republican hordes standing aloof a short distance away.

Old Dr. Barnardus Ledebor, Holland's second mayor, presided over the Democrats and others of the committee were Henry D. Post, who later became a Republican; Jan Trimpje, Jan Roost, Manley D. Howard, Jacob Van Putten, Gerrit Van Schelven, who later came to the Republican fold. The meeting was an enthusiastic one but the enthusiasm was short-lived for the Saturday following this demonstration, when Democrats as well as Republicans had gone to roost, a strong Northwest wind pounced down upon this Democratic pole and lay the pride of the Democratic party low. It came down with a crash and in its wake left havoc in and around Bartje Vander Veen's hardware store and ruffled exceedingly the feelings of the astonished Democrats of Holland, who crowded around to behold the wreckage of the wind brought. Some unkind Republicans made the remark, "A total wreck, just like the Democratic party."

On the other hand, Democrats were unkind enough to think the Republicans had done something to bring their pole down, instead of the wind. To add insult to injury, the Republicans drew down their flag, attached a small piece of crepe below it and then hoisted it up at half-staff as an indication of deep mourning. This made the Democrats' boil and towards noon the adherents of both parties gathered, the air was filled with denunciations, a pebble flew hit someone in the eye and a fist battle was on which was quelled by the town marshal who had hastily deputized several men to stop the brawl.

Well, the election finally came, and Stephen A. Douglas was defeated by Abraham Lincoln and here is where the Republicans went into the effigy business. They had rigged up a Douglas effigy and did a lot of hanging that night. According to reports in the files of the Holland City News in which the Republicans took their effigy down from the hangman's noose, carted it away in a wheelbarrow, dumping it right in front of Henry D. Post's store. Mr. Manley D. Howard and Charley Post made a charge on the wheelbarrow and captured the effigy. Arend Vander Veen, the late Dr. Vander Veen of Grand Haven, pulled it into Vander Veen's store and threw it in the cellar so the Republicans couldn't find it, although an attempt was made to recapture it, but young Vander Veen then took it from the cellar, escaped through the back door to a barn on 7th street and pulled the effigy to pieces. It was also stated that the Republicans quickly made another effigy and burned it in the swamp where James G. Blaine was burned years later, but this has been denied, as the files show.

That this story is correct is evident from the communication from Charles F. Post appearing in the Holland City News April 1, 1911, where he tells of his experience in endeavoring to save the Douglas effigy from the hands of the Republicans.

It is understood that the Democrats, whose pole had damaged the store of E. Vander Veen, had taken up a collection and had repaired the damage.

Well, there's the story, the spot is pictured on page 1, and now you can make your own comparisons of whether the radio campaigns of today are more forceful, where you take your politics sitting in a Morris chair, sipping a cup of tea, or "what have you," or standing around a liberty pole, fist fighting and stealing rag dolls from one another. One thing is certain, that many of those who perpetrated these deeds, undoubtedly in the heat of passion, had a different attitude and a more kindly feeling of these men when they became more mature.

2 OTTAWA MEN, CLOSE FRIENDS, DIE SAME DAY

Two Holland residents who had been close companions since before their retirement from farming in Holland township a few years ago, died Wednesday within a few hours of each other.

The two men were Gerrit Groenewoud, Sr., 85, and Ebert Altena, 69. Both had been neighbors near Otter for years.

Mr. Groenewoud, one of the pioneer farmers of Ottawa county, was widely known throughout this region. He served as director of Groenewoud school for more than 24 years, and also was a former township highway commissioner. See an account of the death of Mr. Groenewoud elsewhere in this issue; also the death of Mr. Altena.

VOGELZANG-TULS WEDDINGS

The auditorium of the Woman's Literary club was the scene of a pretty wedding, last Wednesday evening, when Miss Wilma Vogelzang, daughter of Alderman and Mrs. John Vogelzang became the bride of Peter Tuls, son of Mrs. Herman Tuls. They spoke their vows before an altar of palms, ferns and candelabra. The ceremony was the culmination of a romance begun in Holland Christian high school. The Rev. Peter De Jong of Grand Rapids, uncle of the groom, performed the single ring ceremony at 8:30 o'clock in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. Before the ceremony, Clarence Vogelzang, brother of the bride, sang "Thanks Be To God" accompanied by Mrs. William Klingenberg, sister of the groom who played Lohengrin's wedding march as the bridal party proceeded slowly down the aisle. The bride was attired in a white satin gown, fashioned with a train and trimmed with lace and small pearls. She wore long tulle veil and carried a bouquet of white roses, snapdragons and white pom-poms. Her sister, Geraldine Vogelzang, as bridesmaid, wore a gown of tea rose brocade satin and carried a bouquet of pink snapdragons and delphinium. Little Ruth Klingenberg, as flower girl wore a light blue silk dress and Elsa Zwiep, the train bearer, wore aquamarine blue. Both wore hair-ribbons to match. John Tuls attended his brother as best man. Ushers were Marinus Pott, cousin of the bride, and Abraham Vogelzang, brother of the bride. Leonard Vogelzang and Miss Marjorie Van Soest were master and mistress of ceremonies. Miss Henrietta Vogelzang and Bernard Kuiper were in charge of the gift room and Gerrit De Loew was in charge of the cloak room.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Vogelzang wore henna crepe and a corsage of white pom-poms and roses. Mrs. Tuls, mother of the groom was attired in black crepe and lace and also wore a corsage of white pom-poms and roses.

Following the ceremony two songs were sung by the audience. A reception was held in the tea room of the club where a wedding supper was served by friends of the bride including Mrs. Joan Sienk, Misses Nella Jonker, Florence Zoehrf, Harriet Bazuin, Juliette Dyke, Mathilda Plantinga and Alice Jansen. During the serving music was provided by the Violin Trio of Holland consisting of C. Barrie, H. Miller and C. Vander Ven with Clarence Dykema as accompanist. Mr. Vander Ven also sang, "For You Alone," by O'Riel-

ly. Later a program was presented including community singing by the audience, a violin solo, "The Old Refrain," by Kreiser, by Mr. Barrie accompanied by Mr. Dykema; a reading, "Warom Ik Zoo Vroeg Ping Trouwen," by S. Vander Ploeg piano solos, (selected), by John Pott, remarks by the Rev. J. Jonker, vocal solo, "The Holy City," Adams and Wetherly, by Clarence Vogelzang, accompanied by Mrs. Klingenberg.

The bride was born in Holland and is a graduate of Christian high school and Holland Business Institute. She is employed by the Charles Karr company. The groom was born in Grand Rapids and attended Christian high school. He is employed by the Charles R. Sligh company.

The couple left on a wedding trip into Northern Michigan and after their return will make their home on West 11th St.

The following guests were present from Grand Rapids: Willard De Jong, Mrs. P. Ekster, Mrs. Henry Vander Werp, Miss Geraldine Vander Werp, Mr. and Mrs. C. Rickers, Mr. and Mrs. W. Zaagman, Robert Zaagman, Mr. and Mrs. G. Folkeringa, Gordon Vander Honing, Bernard Kuiper, Miss Carrie Boerama, Miss Alyce Hoeksema, Miss Wilma Streekstra and Miss Marjorie Van Soest.

Two Fish on Same Line—That's Something

Arthur P. Smith of Mona Lake, on U.S.-31, had an unusual experience recently when he caught a 40-inch gar pike and an 18-pound sheephead on his line at the same time, after locating his pole three-quarters of a mile from shore. Two more worthless fish could not have been caught, but they provided Smith with a thrill.

Smith was fishing on the dock when he became cold and went to his house. Returning a short time later he found his pole missing, and after a long search in the fog with a motorcycle, Smith and his son, Ralph, located the pole far from shore. Pulling in the line, the fisherman found the 40-inch gar pike with his bill snagged in the line. After the gar pike had been removed he discovered from the tugging that there must be another fish on the hook. It was then that he landed the 18-pound sheephead. Both the gar pike and the sheephead are classed as obnoxious fish, but regardless Smith says that the unusual catch gave him quite a thrill.

Nykerk's Death Is Great Loss For Studentry

College Shocked At Loss; Discovered Sunday in Room

Funeral services were held yesterday for Dr. John B. Nykerk, 75, professor emeritus and recently-retired Dean of Men, who was found dead in his room in Voorhees hall at 12:30 Sunday noon. No classes were called during Wednesday, the date of the last rites.

Dr. Nykerk was seen leaving Hope's Homecoming football game after the Hope touchdown, on Saturday afternoon. Observers said that he looked pale then. It is believed that he died shortly after he returned to his room.

Body Found by Janitor
Dean Elizabeth Lichty noticed a bunch of keys hanging on the outside of Dr. Nykerk's door Saturday evening. Sunday morning Mrs. F. Hertz, dormitory cook, saw that the keys were still there, remembered that she had not seen the doctor come out of his room that morning, and called Reuben Ten Haken, student janitor. Ten Haken entered and found the body, fully dressed, with hat, coat, and gloves lying in the bathroom. In falling he had struck his head it is stated.

Rev. G. J. Hekhuis, his brother-in-law; Dr. Wichers, and Dr. R. H. Nichols were called. Because Dr. Nykerk had bought a ticket to the Alumni—All—College Banquet, Saturday night, and had not attended, it is believed that he had passed away Saturday afternoon. The clothing found on the body were the same worn at the game. Dean Lichty said that his bed had been disarranged.

Tennison Class Halted
No arrangement has been made for the doctor's class in Tennison, Dr. Wichers said Sunday night.

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. G. J. Hekhuis, 41 East Fourteenth St., Holland; and a brother, James Nykerk, of Overisel.

Dr. Nichols had been treating Dr. Nykerk for hardening of the arteries, he said. Death was attributed to heart failure.

By Dr. E. D. Dimment
The death of Prof. John B. Nykerk, Litt. D., due to a heart attack, came as a distinct shock to his hosts of friends at Hope college and in Holland City and vicinity Sunday, October 25, 1936. He was present Thursday evening, October 22, at the alumni dinner of Hope College Teachers in Grand Rapids, and attended the Kalamazoo-Hope Homecoming game Saturday afternoon. His body was found in his room in Voorhees hall Sunday morning.

The names of Hope college and Prof. Nykerk have been associated, almost as one, for more than fifty years. Born at Overisel, Mich., in September, 1861, at the parsonage of his father, Dr. Gerrit J. Nykerk, he entered the Academy of Hope college when he had completed his grade schooling, and graduated in 1880. After teaching for a short period in the township schools he returned to Hope college and graduated with the Class of 1885 as its valedictorian. In September of the same year he was appointed instructor in the Academy (later organized as the College High School). In 1895 he was appointed Professor of English Language and Literature. He became Dean of Men Students in 1918. In April, 1936, he resigned as head of the department of English and Dean, but the Board of Trustees of Hope college at once appointed him Emeritus Professor of English and he was assigned courses in lectures on English Literature in Senior College groups.

This long period of years was interrupted only twice—during 1890-'91—when he was engaged as a teacher of English at the Northwestern Classical Academy, Orange City, Iowa, "loaned" as it were for a few months to this western institution of the Reformed Church in America; and again when he spent a year and a half at Oxford University, England, in graduate study of Early English and Anglo-Saxon.

Dr. Nykerk was a musician of the highest order. As a baritone singer he ranked among the first musicians of Michigan for more than thirty years, doing concert and choral work throughout the State of Michigan and at Chautauque and institute assemblies, east and west. He was director of music at Hope college during this entire period, conducting glee clubs, the Choral Union, and other similar organizations until the recent years. He organized and directed the Hope College Lyceum in the late nineties and continued to bring artists and speakers of fame to Hope college until the outbreak of the World War. Among the most outstanding American orators whom Dr. Nykerk knew personally and engaged for his lecture programs were William Jennings Bryan, Robert La Follette, Sr., Newell Dwight Hillis, Russell H. Conwell and Senator A. H. Beveridge. Through his activities in this direction he procured all the musical instruments of the College School of Music except the present pipe organs and the Meyer grand piano. And in all of his activities in the Lyceum he sought to augment his work as a teacher of music and oratory. He had to his credit a larger number of prize-winning student orators than any other instructor in the Michigan Oratorical League. In recognition of the prominent position to which he had attained in these pursuits, Hope college conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters upon him in 1920.

After his resignation last spring alumni and students of Hope college, east and west, united in the various centers of the Reformed church to honor him and to express their appreciation of his painstaking labors as teacher and dean of men. At the general alumni meeting of the College in June, 1936, the Alumni orator, Dr. Benjamin J. Bush, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian church, Detroit, paid high compliment to Dr. Nykerk's achievements in English and oratory, and the alumni body presented him with a gift of appreciation. At the time of his death he was a charter member of Holland Rotary, of the National Educational Association, the Michigan Educational Association and the Authors' Association of Michigan.

Constitution Likened To Bible by Seminary Divine, Dr. Sam Zwemer

The following, clipped from an Eastern newspaper, was sent to the Holland City News, giving a resume of the discourses at a large D. A. R. gathering in the auditorium at Asbury Park, N. J. It shows that Dr. Samuel Zwemer, formerly of Holland and Egypt, now on the faculty of Princeton seminary, was a headline in the program. The newspaper review follows:

Dr. Samuel M. Zwemer likened the American Constitution to the Bible in a "Constitution day" address last night at Convention Hall and added that "the corrosive effort of Communism to drive a wedge of bitter hatred and distrust between classes will never succeed under the American Constitution."

Dr. Zwemer, a Princeton Theological seminary professor, was the principal speaker at exercises sponsored by the D. A. R., S. A. R., and other patriotic and historical organizations in this section. More than 700 attended.

Dan S. Hollenga, executive secretary of the city board of trade, was the platform chairman. The Rev. Russell F. Purdy, pastor of the First Baptist church, was another speaker.

Dr. Zwemer, declared that the roots of the Constitution go back to the Bible and that both had similar framers and frameworks. To illustrate this he quoted this scripture: "Jehovah is our judge, Jehovah is our law-giver, Jehovah is our king; He will save us," and compared it with the judicial, executive and legislative aspects of the Constitution.

"Eau despihed his birth-right and sold it for a mess of red-pottage," the speaker continued. "We be to us if we sell our national heritage for the red flags of Communism. The salvation of our republic depends upon the people—the strength of mind and clarity of purpose of the average voter. Democracies tend to make moral towards of public men. Unless the people rise to the task and demand high ideals and truly American standards, then there is no hope from state legislatures, from senate congresses or listening and trimming officials."

"The great structure of our federal and state governments was not put up by jerry-builders, who sought office, nor at haphazard. The ship of state had a master builder and God's providence raised up men for the hour and the task; George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Benjamin Franklin, Alexander Hamilton and their colleagues. They have had successors but no equals. . . . Those builders, thank God, were not mere politicians, or demagogues, or dictators, least of all time-serving politicians. They were national leaders and sober statesmen, skilled in the science and the art of true democracy."

Seven Qualities of Leadership
Dr. Zwemer said the framers of the Constitution incarnated seven qualities of leadership—vision, decision, knowledge, passion for justice and truth, self-sacrifice, self-effacement and loneliness of leadership.

Discussing the seven qualities, Dr. Zwemer said in part, "They did not steer by the weather vane, but by the compass. . . . They had power but shunned prominence."

There was no James Farley in those days to issue commemorative stamps. The simplicity of life was their glory in the horse-and-buggy age but they arrived at the test of time as "vindicated the fundamental structure and provisions of our Constitution. The states have not broken the union nor the union absorbed the states. We shall never have a dictatorship nor a totalitarian state."

"The very genius of the American Constitution is the clear-cut division between the legislative, judicial and executive functions of good government. Each is independent of the other and all are mutually united to a common end—liberty and opportunity for all."

Dr. Purdy and other speakers declared that the enemies of the Constitution "would destroy the right to speak against it." He added that every institution of value has been erected on the Constitution which "guarantees progress as well as liberty and security."

"We must progress but it will never be by discarding the Constitution of the United States," he concluded. "We will find this Constitution going hand in hand with us to the promised land of national security."

Hollenga asserted that he felt that "no one believing in the Constitution will allow demagogues to teach how the Constitution should have been written or should be written now. No other nation can boast of a constitution that has never been found wanting yet," he added.

Big Deer From Little Acorns Grow

Acorns are making sleek, fat and healthy deer for the army of red-clad hunters who go north next month. Game workers who have come back from the woods are commenting about the fine looking specimens of the northern white-tail deer they have seen. They believe their plump appearance is largely due to the customary fall diet of acorns, of which there is an abundance in many places.

Mainly vegetarian in food habits, the deer will feed heavily on acorns when they can get them, as will the elk in the Pigeon river state forest area northeast of Gaylord. This apparently rich food item prepares the animals for the hard-going of the winter months.

Hope Eleven Holds a Record for Ties

Hope College has shared only one football championship since joining the M. I. A. A. in 1927. That was in 1934, when it tied Kalamazoo.

The Dutchmen, however, are believed to hold the record for tie games played during recent years. Since the 19-19 deadlock with Hillsdale in 1931, Hope has participated in eight no-decision contests. In 1932 a 6-6 battle was waged with Albion and a scoreless game with Kalamazoo. The following season the Dutchmen played scoreless ties with Albion and Kalamazoo. In 1934 Hope and Alma staged a 6-6 stalemate, while last season the Holland team played a scoreless tie with Albion and a 7-7 game with Michigan State Normal.

Last week Hope kept its record for deadlocks intact by holding Hillsdale to a scoreless tie. Thus in the last six campaigns Hope hasn't failed to play a no-decision game.

Funeral services were held Wednesday at the Langeland Funeral home in Zeeland for Mrs. John Dunning, 72, of 50 Main street. Mrs. Dunning died Saturday morning at the home of her son, Martin, in Holland, with whom she had spent only a few days, death occurring suddenly. The Rev. C. J. Tarvestad of the Bible Witness hall officiated. Burial was in West Drenthe cemetery. Surviving are three sons, Harry of Vriesland, John of Harvey, Ill., and Martin; one daughter, Miss Jennie Dunning of Tampa, Fla.; three brothers, Peter, John and Dick Ver Hage of Zeeland and five sisters, Miss Mary and Lena Dunning of Zeeland, Mrs. James Dyk of Coopersville, Mrs. John Bakker of Vriesland and Mrs. John Vander Poppen of Zeeland.

There will still be left, under present program, 3 1/2 miles of gravel between Allegan and paved stretch and about 5 miles more outside of Hamilton. Beyond Allegan is paved "black" top for 15 miles and a connected up with concrete miles further south.

The present construction calls a strip of concrete 20 feet wide three miles long. Banks along road will be sodded next spring. Estimated cost of the road $50,000.

Miss Margaret Ackerson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ackerson of Middleville, and Orlo S. Strong of Holland, were married at Godwin Heights Gospel barnacle, last Wednesday evening. Rev. Coets performed the wedding ceremony in a setting of palms and dahlias. The bride wore a wedding gown of white with a long tulle veil and carried bouquet of white roses. She was attended by her sister, Beulah Ackerson, of Middleville, who wore blue tulle and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The bridegroom wore a tuxedo and carried a sword.

At the wedding ceremony a reception was held in the home of the bride's parents in Middleville. Mr. and Mrs. Strong are on a wedding tour to New York state. They will arrive at 248 Lincoln avenue. Mr. Strong is employed by the K. Mosser Leather corporation.

Mrs. Ernest Sulkers entertained Saturday afternoon at her home, 225 Van Raalte avenue, in honor of her daughter, Marilyn, who celebrated her ninth birthday anniversary. Those winning prizes the games played were Jack Brooks, Nona Ver Meulen and Dina Van Tongeren. Other guests were Marilyn Baker, Carolyn Ham and Doeda and Marjolein Blom.

Miss Katherine Toppen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Toppen, became the bride of Andrew K. Strong of Holland, in a wedding ceremony at 4 o'clock, Thursday afternoon, at the home of the bride's parents before altar of palms and ferns. Dr. R. B. Knott, pastor of Fourteenth Christian Reformed church officiated, using the single-ring ceremony. John Oldenburg, of Muskegon, cousin of the bride, sang "I Love You Truly" and "Because" accompanied by Miss Marguerite Stegink of Holland who also played Lot's "Schubert's Serenade." The bride was attired in a gown of mulberry transparent velvet and carried bouquet of roses and swansons. Her sister, Miss Helene Toppen, served as bridesmaid and wore dark green tulle dress. She carried a bouquet of roses and swansons. Charles Kroll, brother of the groom, was best man. A day two-course luncheon was served. Those assisting were Mrs. J. Lemmen, Mrs. D. Grevengoud, Fannie Unema and Misses M. and Marguerite Stegink.

About 25 attended the annual meeting of the Adult Bible class, Bethel Reformed church last Thursday evening in the church parlors. Henry Jurries, retiring president, conducted devotions. Mrs. H. Masselink entertained with solos and Gerrit Rientjes, junior Western Theological Seminary of Canada, the new officer elected, was Peter Boersma, president; Peter Wierda, vice president; Dr. Ed. Lam, secretary; H. J. Havings, treasurer, and K. H. Groot, assistant secretary and treasurer. Retiring officers were Mr. Jurries, president; Peter Boersma, secretary; Albert Mant, treasurer, and Mrs. J. H. Haringma, assistant secretary and treasurer.

There was no James Farley in those days to issue commemorative stamps. The simplicity of life was their glory in the horse-and-buggy age but they arrived at the test of time as "vindicated the fundamental structure and provisions of our Constitution. The states have not broken the union nor the union absorbed the states. We shall never have a dictatorship nor a totalitarian state."

"The very genius of the American Constitution is the clear-cut division between the legislative, judicial and executive functions of good government. Each is independent of the other and all are mutually united to a common end—liberty and opportunity for all."

Dr. Purdy and other speakers declared that the enemies of the Constitution "would destroy the right to speak against it." He added that every institution of value has been erected on the Constitution which "guarantees progress as well as liberty and security."

"We must progress but it will never be by discarding the Constitution of the United States," he concluded. "We will find this Constitution going hand in hand with us to the promised land of national security."

Hollenga asserted that he felt that "no one believing in the Constitution will allow demagogues to teach how the Constitution should have been written or should be written now. No other nation can boast of a constitution that has never been found wanting yet," he added.

Dr. Zwemer said the framers of the Constitution incarnated seven qualities of leadership—vision, decision, knowledge, passion for justice and truth, self-sacrifice, self-effacement and loneliness of leadership.

Discussing the seven qualities, Dr. Zwemer said in part, "They did not steer by the weather vane, but by the compass. . . . They had power but shunned prominence."

The Sunday School Lesson

Romans 13:1-14.

Henry Geerlings

No matter where the religion of Jesus took root, Christians had to consider what their attitude toward the civil authorities should be. Some believed it should be one of opposition, others of indifference, and still others of obedience. Paul took the last named position. Possibly he viewed the matter somewhat differently because he was not only a Christian, but a Roman citizen besides. He by no means approved all the Roman government stood for. There were times when he took a firm stand against Rome. When Rome told him to worship the Emperor, he flatly refused. When Rome commanded him to stop preaching Jesus, he kept on preaching. He took the same position the other apostles had taken before him.

The emperors were often disolute and cruel, but Paul believed the government of Rome had a salutary influence, checking wrong-doing and promoting orderliness and justice. He saw in government the hand of God and looked upon it as expressing the purpose of God, and being the instrument of his will.

There have been times when governments had to be resisted, but that should be done with ballots and not with bludgeons. But ordinarily it can be said that to resist civil authorities is to resist God and his method of administering justice. What would we do in this country without our courts? Whose property would be secure, whose life safe?

Paul took a very different view from that held by the Jews. They resisted Rome, brow-beating officials and dodging the payment of taxes. They thought of the Roman government as iniquitous, while Paul thought of it as a power bestowed of God. The deliberate law breaker is a sinner. If he devises methods to defeat the ends of government he will be punished either by the authorities he defies, or in some other way.

It must be admitted that the morals of some political rulers are not what they should be. But in most instances these officials are conscious of their responsibility to administer the law in such a way as to strike terror into the heart of the offender. Where rulers themselves are careless about law observance and law enforcement, there are others in high places who see to it that the law is upheld. Whatever individuals here and there may do it will be admitted that our government has set its face against lawlessness and stands to defend individuals and groups who seek to do what is right.

But fear of punishment is not the highest motive for obedience. We are to obey because it is right to do so, and because our consciences approve such a course. Instinctively we recognize the value and the necessity of some form of government. We believe in the right of civil authority, and know that any social order without it would soon become chaotic. If the government represented by the civil authority is of God, we cannot play fast and loose with it and maintain a good conscience.

Because of what government is, both as to its origin and purpose, and because of the aim of those in high places, we pay tribute. The administration of government must be adequately supported by those governed. Protection and security cannot be assured us unless we pay the price of these blessings.

By tribute is meant taxes paid by a subject nation. By dues, money paid in general for the support of the civil government. By fear is meant the awe felt to the person executing justice. By honor, is meant respect due to any person in authority.

The apostle does not mean that the incurring of a debt is wrong. If he has this matter in mind at all it is to discourage the delayed payment of debts, and the habit of indebtedness. The thought seems rather to be this—the debt of money we incur will be paid and that ends it. But not so with love. Although we are to owe no man anything, at least not for a long time, there is nevertheless one point on which we are never to think we have paid our full debt, to our neighbor, completely doing our duty, and that is in loving him. Here is one debt that is never discharged. It rather increases as it exercises itself, and finds new opportunities for expression.

If a son loves his parents he will honor and serve them. If a man loves his neighbor he will seek opportunities to do him good. If we love our church we will support and speak well of it. Love alone will prevent lawlessness. Without it there can be no keeping of the law save in a half-hearted and perfunctory manner. Put love in the heart and it will produce lawfulness as naturally as a good tree brings forth good fruit.

Love works no ill to any one. It will endure wrong, but it will commit none. It returns good for evil, and it overcomes evil with good. Love is not merely a negative thing, working no ill to his neighbor, but a positive force, making his neighbor the object of actual blessings. This virtue will counteract the "me first" idea, and give consideration to others.

Paul is careful to ground obedience to every known law in love. We may outwardly obey some of them where the principle of love is absent, but it will not be for long, and it will not remain steadfast.

YOU CAN EAT WITH FALSE TEETH But You Can't See With GLASS EYES

When your eyes become weak through over-strain, and seeing becomes more and more difficult, it's too late to think of what you might have done to prevent this terrible misfortune. Sight is a matter of light,—and the way to save your eyes from the strain that ruins them is to give them plenty of the RIGHT KIND OF LIGHT for the task of seeing. Don't neglect your eyes. Good light—and enough of it—is much cheaper than the price you would otherwise pay for damaged eyes.

GOOD LIGHT IS CHEAP USE IT TO SAVE YOUR EYES!

Plenty of lamps in the home, especially the new scientific I. E. S. BETTER-SIGHT LAMPS, are within the reach of everyone. They cost but little,—and they pay handsome dividends. And when you consider that today's 15c light bulb will give you more light than over $700 worth of candles did in grandfather's time, you can see how cheap it is to enjoy good light,—plentifully. For less than one cent you can burn the average bulb more than TEN HOURS under Holland's cheap electric rates.

Get Every Voter of Your Family to Vote Straight Republican at Next Tuesdays Election

America for Americans in the American Way is Assured By the Election of—

LANDON and KNOX

Governor Landon's common-sense creed, as applied on a national scale, is that the United States should balance its budget; that it should abandon wild extravagance and fanciful theories, and that it should get back to honest, businesslike methods.

Governor Landon possesses the fundamental characteristics demanded of a Republican nominee for president. But more than that, he possesses a record for establishment of economical and efficient government of state affairs in Kansas where he has served with such distinction as governor. While the New Deal administration was engaged in spendthrift programs, Governor Landon restored, through sound laws, Kansas' tottering finances; he put state thrift on a scientific basis, and set up a pay-as-you-go system of government inspired by homely philosophy "You can't spend what you don't have."

Alf Landon is worthy of his party's faith. He is worthy of the American people's trust in the highest office which they can bestow. And here in Michigan he is worthy of the support of every Republican as well as all others who cherish a safe and sane and sound government in conformity with the principles as originally intended when our forefathers gave us liberty and life under our Constitution.

In the selection of its vice-presidential nominee the Republican party chose in Col. Frank Knox a fighting candidate who has earned for himself national renown as a newspaper editor and publisher, as a businessman and as a veteran of two wars.

Knox has not seen fit to sit back and allow this campaign to go on without him. He remains in the very forefront of the Republican drive to restore to America her lost sanity in government administration.

Knox became famous for his courage and ability in his campaign against New Dealism and he was the logical choice for the office of vice-president. Since his selection for that office he has been tireless in his efforts to awaken all of America to the dangers of a continued abuse of powers by New Dealers.

Michigan is closely allied with Knox. He attended college at Alma, Mich., and started his newspaper career as a cub reporter with Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, once publisher of the Grand Rapids newspaper on which both began in journalism. He has appeared twice in Michigan on his campaign tours.

Frank D. Fitzgerald
for Governor of Michigan

He is a "budget balancing" governor. For the first time in the history of this state, our state finances are in the "black" because he insisted upon "pay-as-you-go." He did this without adding any "new taxes," and took the real estate tax off the books.

He created no new debts. He promised and performed every promise. He now promises a continuation of that record—his record shows he will keep it.

CLARE E. HOFFMAN
For Congress
4th Congressional District

Clare E. Hoffman, Republican candidate for Congress from the Fourth Congressional District, deserves re-election because he fought valiantly against senseless, useless, wasteful expenditure of tax money and against the placing of unlimited arbitrary power in the hands of the president or men designated by him.

Hoffman was an industrious, sincere, conscientious Congressman and his courage and frankness, when it was said to be politically unwise, have earned him the respect of his Congressional colleagues and the gratitude of his constituents.

The Fourth District knows where Clare Hoffman stands. They know that what he promises he does, no matter what the cost to him politically and they will re-elect him in gratitude, and keep for their representative one of the outstanding members of Congress.

Wilber M. Brucker
for
United States Senator

Of Wilber M. Brucker's Republicanism, of his loyalty to this state, of his sincerity, and of his patriotism there can be no doubt. He served this state well as its governor and attorney general. His record shows that he will serve this state as United States senator to the best of his ability and as the people have a right to expect.

ARTHUR U. ODELL
For State Representative
A life-long farmer from Trowbridge township—graduate of Allegan high school and Hope college—school teacher and supervisor for many years—with this education and experience he should be re-elected to continue his fine service to our county.

Citizens of Michigan.....Beware! KEEP TAMMANY OUT

MICHIGAN HAS ALWAYS BEEN SELF-GOVERNING . . WE DON'T NEED OUTSIDE POLITICAL "BOSSSES" TO RULE US . . A REPUBLICAN VOTE IS A VOTE FOR HOME RULE IN MICHIGAN.

TAMMANY HAS COME TO MICHIGAN . . The raking claw of the Tiger is reaching across our boundary . . No outsiders can dictate how our citizens shall vote . . Our homes and our institutions are faced with this menace . . An unholy attempt is being made to rob us of our sovereign right to choose our own state officers . . We are beneath the descending heel of the New Deal . . Our fathers fought and died for personal liberty . . ARE YOU WILLING TO VOTE FOR IT? HOME RULE IS THE GOLDEN RULE!

EARL L. BURHANS
For State Senator

As state representative from Van Buren county and as assistant attorney general of this state, Mr. Burhans has shown himself highly qualified to be our state senator. He will help Governor Fitzgerald continue his fine record.

Fred W. MILLER
for Sheriff

Allegan County Republicans present these candidates for your consideration and continued support. They are all first class citizens of our county. Their records in and out of office are without criticism. They are thoroughly qualified by education and experience and will continue their fine record of service and economy.

Paying its county officials less than any county of equal size in the state, Allegan county has had no hint of graft, incompetency or inattention and every Republican county official has rendered faithful, courteous and efficient service to all. As first-termers, they merit the customary re-election.

Vote a National, State and County Republican ticket, thus bringing back into your hands your government, where the welfare and all other activities can again be conducted on a business basis, without capitalizing human suffering.

BOY SCOUT SAVES HIS FATHER'S LIFE

Billy Lowry, 10, saved the life of his father, William Lowry, by timely advice Thursday when the latter was caught in quicksand near Pine Creek bay near Holland.

Mr. Lowry walked into the quicksand while hunting. His struggles only served to increase the suction of the sand until he was imprisoned almost to his armpits. Billy, a Boy Scout, after a futile attempt to help his father by pulling on his gun remembered scout instructions and advised his parent to roll out of the quicksand. The method was successful.

HOLLAND NOSES OUT ST. AUGUSTINE, 7 to 6

Holland high school defeated St. Augustine at Kalamazoo in a night football game, 7 to 6, scoring in the second quarter to win. Capt. Houtman place-kicked the extra point to win the game, after a pass from Matchinsky to Grissen was good for 55 yards and a touchdown.

St. Augustine came back to march 75 yards to a touchdown, scoring on the first play of the fourth period. Jim McGuire went over from the five-yard line. Bob Muth missed the try for point.

Mapes' Future

(Grand Rapids Press)

The veteran Michigan legislator, Carl Mapes, again faces the electorate in his twelfth bid for a seat in congress. Throughout his twenty-two years of service, a longer-than-average term for a congressman, he has served his district above his party.

As a Republican he has favored many Democratic measures touching on social conditions of workers. So repeatedly consistent has been his record regarding labor that organized workers have rated him as voting twenty-two out of twenty-six times in their favor on major measures affecting their welfare. In many such instances he left the majority of his party to cast his vote with the opposition.

But Carl Mapes is no New Dealer. His record in the Roosevelt administration might be said to have followed this course: Whenever measures soundly affecting social welfare were presented, Mr. Mapes was usually found supporting such measures; but whenever the New Deal had a grandiose, costly and dubious reform in prospect, he usually voted against it.

Not closing his eyes to the imperfections and inequalities that come of an industrial age, he still has not ignored the past. Mr. Mapes will not succumb to the importunities of pressure groups and special pleaders. He does not believe that his duties in Washington are to serve his district against the better interests of the nation. Carl Mapes is cold to such pleas.

If it should come to be the practice of the congress (or is it now the practice?) for each member merely to achieve a big deal of pork for his own district or state, Carl Mapes won't belong there. He does not believe he has been chosen for such narrow aims. But if the better practice is maintained—a reign of good judgment—he deserves to be returned.

DEFINING FALL

Autumn sunshine! Did you ever notice the difference between it and that of spring? That difference is not small. The autumn kind is softer, more gracious. In the spring there is an intensity and brilliance that spurts to activity, response to the urge of new growth throughout nature, but in the autumn there is a sense of repose, of yielding to the passing of the season. And the shadows are not the same. They are mild, softer, more alluring. There is sense of growth in the spring sunshine, of ripeness and conclusion in the fall. The spring is a time of virility, autumn for quiet reflection; and in each is beauty appealing to all thoughtful people. Each season has its charms but autumn seems more appealing to the soul.

SUNDAY SCHOOL MEETING IN ALLEGAN COUNTY

Most of the afternoon program will be devoted to the theme, "Seeking World Friendship for Children." Miss Ione Catton, state children's specialist of Lansing, will be discussion leader, with Mrs. H. SUNDAY WAS 64TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY OF DANGREMONDS

The residents of this village paid homage to Mr. and Mrs. John K. Dangremond, pioneer residents, who Sunday celebrated their sixty-fourth wedding anniversary. The celebration took place in the same house in which Mr. Dangremond has lived since he was 2.

Coming to Overisel from Albany, N. Y., he began life in virgin timberland and saw the development of the north part of Allegan county. He witnessed the disappearance of the Indians from Allegan and Ottawa counties, saw the trails that led to Allegan, Zeeland and Holland become roads and even high speed thoroughfares for commerce.

Mr. Dangremond tells of the many times Indians would leave a quarter of a deer on the family table when the Dangremonds were away. The family in return would give the Indians johnnycake and coffee.

Dangremond first took up blacksmithing but an injury forced him to give it up at the age of 25. He then established himself in a hardware and farm implement business, which developed into one of the outstanding stores in the village.

He has voted for every president since Lincoln and only once has he voted for a Democrat. In his active life he has found time to devote to the Overisel Reformed church as librarian of the church school. He did this 15 years. He was an auctioneer more than 30 years and has operated his own business nearly 60 years.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Dangremond attend church regularly and both are in good health. Mrs. Dangremond, was born in Overisel and is 84. They are the parents of eight children, four living: Edward of Hamilton, Henry of Seattle, Wash.; Mrs. E. C. Cotts of Holland and Mrs. Henry Hoffman of Jamesburgh, N. J.

THE TIMID DEER IS VERY NEAR

A large buck deer was seen about three miles east of Holland Saturday by Martin De Jonge and Martin Stroken. The deer was near the Stroken farm home. It is believed the deer may be one that has roamed the Allegan grub section for the past year and was frightened out by the army maneuvers or by the recent hunting army looking for pheasants.

Favorite Fall Desserts

LET'S SERVE HEARTY dishes this fall. There's something about these crisp days that calls for autumn pies, steaming puddings, and all such substantial fare. A dinner, to be satisfactory, needs a finishing flourish with some body to it. Good apples are abundant in the markets now, so let's plan to serve frequent apple dishes—savory pies, apple puddings and apples baked with a surprise touch of Currant Jelly. Then there are all sorts of delightful possibilities in Mince Meat. It can be used to great advantage in cakes, puddings and cookies. Another fall favorite of unexcelled possibilities is Apple Butter. It lends spicy flavor and rich color to many a pudding and cup cake recipe. Do try these special recipes for hearty desserts some time soon:

Apple Pie—Pare 5 to 6 tart apples, core and cut into slices—about sixteen. To the apples in a bowl add ¼ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon or nutmeg, and 1 teaspoon lemon juice. Roll pie dough out to ¼ inch in thickness, and a little larger than the pie pan. Fold the sheet of pastry in half and place in a 9-inch pie plate—then unfold pastry. Press lightly to fit plate and trim edges. Place apples in the pie shell and dot over with 1 teaspoon butter. Roll upper crust to ¼ inch in thickness and 1 inch larger than plate. Fold in half and make 3 slits, ½ inch in length, in center edge of folded side. Moisten edge of lower crust with a little water and place upper crust in position, and trim, leaving 1 inch on all sides. Carefully fold and press down upper crust under lower crust all around the edge. Finish by making a crinkled edge with the finger tips or by marking with the tines of a fork. Bake in a hot oven (450° F.) for 15 minutes, then reduce heat to 400° F. and bake until apples are tender—about 45 minutes in all.

Mince Meat Fudge Squares—Cream ½ cup butter, add 1 cup sugar gradually and cream together thoroughly. Add 2 eggs, one at a time, beating until fluffy after addition of each. Add ½ cup Mince Meat, ½ cup nut meats, 1 teaspoon vanilla and 1½ ozs. bitter chocolate (melted over hot water). Sift ½ cup pastry flour (sifted once before measuring) with ½ teaspoon salt and fold into Mince Meat mixture. Pour into a shallow greased pan (8x12") the bottom of which is lined with waxed paper, and bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) for 30 to 35 minutes. Turn out on waxed paper. Cut while hot into small squares like fudge and sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Baked Apples With Currant Jelly—Wash and core 6 apples. Cut skin around center with a knife to prevent apples bursting while cooking. Mix together 1 cup sugar and 1 cup water, and bake apples every five minutes with syrup. Bake at 375° F. for half hour. Just before removing from oven, sprinkle with granulated sugar and return to oven until sugar melts. This gives a glazed appearance. Before serving place a small spoonful of Currant Jelly in center of each apple.

Autumn Cup Cakes—Cream ½ cup butter, add 1 cup sugar gradually, and cream together thoroughly. Add 1 egg and beat until fluffy. Add ½ cup Pure Apple Butter into which ½ teaspoon soda has been stirred, then ½ cup chopped pecans and ½ cup seedless raisins. Mix well. Sift together 2 cups pastry flour (sifted once before measuring), 1 teaspoon baking powder and ½ teaspoon salt and add to butter mixture alternately with ¼ cup milk. Bake in greased cup cake pans in a hot oven (400° F.) for 20 to 25 minutes. Frost.

Baked Mince Meat Fruit Pudding—Ingredients: 3 cups soft bread crumbs, 2 large apples or peaches, peeled and thinly sliced (canned sliced peaches may be used), ½ cup Mince Meat, 1 cup fruit juice (orange juice with pulp may be used), ½ cup light brown sugar and 3 tablespoons butter, melted.

Place ½ of the bread crumbs in buttered casserole. Arrange a layer of the fruit over crumbs, then spread with ½ of the Mince Meat. Blend fruit juice with sugar and butter, and pour ½ of the mixture over all. Repeat each layer. Top with bread crumbs and pour remaining liquid over them. Bake in moderate oven (375° F.) 40 minutes. Serve hot. Hard sauce or cream may be served over pudding.

OTTAWA COUNTY NEWS

Culling time offers two ways to make the poultry flock more profitable, according to a suggestion from Michigan State College departments. Primarily culling offers an opportunity to make egg production more economical. As pullets and hens go into the laying houses for the winter, however, prices for culled chickens are not especially high. So farm families with winter menus in mind can add to the food supply by canning the culled hens as well as calves and surplus fruits and vegetables.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Langeland of Zeeland, who attended the Funeral Directors convention in Louisville, Ky., Wednesday and Thursday, have returned home after a delightful as well as instructive trip.

The Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co.'s Coopersville store has been undergoing some changes lately. A new produce rack has been installed, as well as a new bread rack. New counters have been added, and other changes made, which adds much to the neat appearance of the store.

The West Drenthe school children exhibited at the recent Smith-Hughes fair, held at Zeeland high school, and received the following ribbons: Irving Brummel, second prize, wheat; Glenn Doezman, second prize, citrus; and third prize, on crab apples. Stanley Louwma, second prize, corn; Howard Molewyl, first prize, pie pumpkin; and two second prizes on crab apples. Marion Brummel, first prize, canned cucumbers and oats; Gertrude Doezman, first prize on summer squash and Hubbard squash; Jarvis, first prize, citron; Irwin Roelofs, two first prizes on squash and one second prize on Hubbard squash and first prize on cucumbers.

ZEELAND HAS 400 AT REPUBLICAN MEETING

The Republican rally held at the Zeeland city hall Monday night proved to be a rousing success, when approximately 400 gathered at the city hall auditorium to hear the several speakers. Secretary of State Orville E. Atwood had been advertised as a speaker but could not be there, and this disappointment was overcome in time by handbills announcing the appointment of Prosecuting Attorney B. Jonkman of Grand Rapids, a former Zeeland boy, who acceptably filled the place.

There was much enthusiasm shown after Mr. A. Van Koeveer had called the meeting to order and introduced the several Republican candidates, beginning with the pictures of Gov. Alf. M. Landon and Hon. Frank Knox that were on display, including Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald, Hon. Wilbur M. Brucker, candidate for United States Senator, Hon. Orville E. Atwood, Secretary of State, and Hon. John O'Hara, auditor general. The candidates who responded in person were Hon. Edward Brouwer, candidate for state senator, Nelson Miles, candidate for State Representative. Hon. Cora Vande Water, judge of probate, Hon. John R. Dethmers, prosecuting attorney, Mr. Frank Van Etta, candidate for sheriff, John H. Den Herder, county treasurer, Frank Bottje, register of deeds, and Thos. Mahan, candidate for circuit court commissioner, Attorney Jarrett N. Clark, candidate for circuit court commissioner came in just after the introductions were completed. Ed Brouwer and Nelson Miles very ably discussed the several amendments, which imports are so very great that it is hardly expected that all will be posted well enough to vote with the necessary intelligence.

Mr. Dethmers spoke on the phase of the campaign pertaining to the Constitution of the United States, very ably explaining its origin and its purpose. He did not only point out the living force of the constitution, but that it was so sacred that we should guard it with all our might at the expense of all we possess just as our forefathers had sacrificed all to establish it. Then he pointed out the attacks that had been made upon it by the Democratic administration and the danger of its nullification should that party be returned to power at the election on November 3.

Travelogue on Interesting European Trip

By Mrs. Mae Van Drezor Bush

August 11, Moscow.

Dear Ones: We were supposed to visit a Stakhanovite Rest Home this afternoon but rested ourselves instead. You remember that Stakhanov started the movement in Russia of speeding up industry, only they call it Russianizing industry. Stakhanov is a great hero and they are celebrating the first anniversary of the movement very soon.

Today we received two letters, one from mother and Maude; the other from Enid. They made me a little homesick. We also received letters a few days ago from Jay and Bob. It was fine hearing from you. The letters came through in 16 days.

Our days are so crowded there is little time to write. We will have much to tell you when we get home. For instance, the Russian Arctic non-stop fliers are being welcomed in Moscow today. They will be honored in the Red Square. They are staying at our hotel so we may see them. This is a very interesting hotel, it is almost de luxe, but the lobby is filled with plain people. The workers come here, sent by their unions or factories as a special privilege.

Yesterday we saw the Crown Jewels. They are carefully kept in a bank in great steel cases. We were taken into a room and the cases opened one by one and the jewels displayed. I cannot describe them—I shall have to tell you about them. After we had looked at each case, we were asked to stand back a short distance. Then all the cases were opened and the whole side of the room was aglitter—over $92,000,000 worth of jewels, dazzlingly arrayed on those shelves. We visited a gallery of Modern Art the other day. It is considered the finest collection in the world. Old Russia liked this modern school, so they bought lavishly. I know very little about this school but with our group is a Miss Hendrie from Denver who is a connoisseur of modern art. I am told she has a fine collection and is buying this summer. It was very interesting hearing her interpret these pictures.

Had an interesting morning at the movies. Fred Eastman of Chicago, who led in the fight for better movies in America, is with us studying movies, plays, etc., abroad this summer. He met Mr. Hans Moen, an American, who is a leader in the production of Soviet movies. Mr. Moen talked to us and then took us to see their first all-color talkie picture. It was a well-produced picture—no propaganda—no love nor sex.

We have visited the Park of Rest and Culture twice. It is a large park along the Moscow River devoted to the pleasure and development of the people. In some ways it is like Coney Island and in others quite different. There are eight of these parks in Moscow and there were about 600,000 people there for the Revolution. About 200,000 a day visit Gorki Park. You pay 40 kopeks entrance fee (about five cents). Much is free although some features are expensive. Near the entrance is a tall tower-like building for parachute jumping. People climb to the top and then jump with parachutes. It is done to make the people air minded. There are all sorts of diversions—games and sports. Free instruction is given in dancing, trapeze work, etc.

I was especially interested in the educational side of this park. There is a large library and reading room and about 600 books a day are loaned for use in the park. All over, one sees a teacher lecturing on some pertinent question of the day. Large maps are used as they speak. The popular subject at present is the revolution in Spain. Another hall had an exhibition of Soviet art from Ukraine. Some of it is very fine. There are lecture rooms and classrooms where one may study languages. English being the most popular. Groups form around a teacher and musicians, and the leader teaches people to sing. At night the park is very lovely—the lighting effects are most attractive.

Did I tell you we had a service in one of the hotel apartments on Sunday morning? We met at 8 o'clock. Dr. Lawrence led in reading the prayers and Scripture—he is an Episcopalian, you know—and Dr. Booth preached a sermon. Outside the Russians were building a great modern structure regardless of Sunday. As Dr. Lawrence reminded us, it was much like the service of the early Christians, as we sang and repeated together the 121st Psalm.

Later Ben and I again attended the Russian Cathedral. The church was again crowded and the music more beautiful than ever. We stood—you know people always stand in the Russian church—throughout the long service, over two hours. The service was about two-thirds music and the loveliest music I have ever heard. We stood near the choir where we could watch carefully. After the service was finished we thanked the director and a few of the members. All we could say was "America, spazeba" (thank you), but they smiled their appreciation and responded in Russian. When we reached the street the tenor and baritone soloists were apparently waiting, so we stepped up to them and again said "spazeba, spazeba." They grasped my hand and kissed it. They seemed hungry for appreciation.

We were leaving in a few minutes for Leningrad, taking a sleeper. I shall have to tell you about Moscow when we return. We loved your letters. Thank you so much for writing so faithfully.

Frogs

Frogs were as scarce this year as grouse are in the Upper Peninsula. At least this is vouched for by those who went frogging. They lay it to the drought. "You can't expect frogs to prosper when damp pastures and wayside ditches are dried up and as to the big bullfrogs that formerly were abundant around marshy inland lakes and creeks, they have been over-hunted and only a few remain"; say the frog hunters. It is quite true that the past three years have been poor breeding seasons for these amphibians. Too much dry land and not enough moisture greeted the tadpole graduates and this is no combination to encourage frogs to prosper. After Oct. 11 frogs become protected until the following June but even this protection has done little to increase the tribe over the past three years.

90 Eggs To Pay Pullet's Board

Poultry men at Michigan State College point out the value of fall culling when pullets are placed in a laying house for winter by the fact that for average prices for 90 eggs and feed it takes a total of 90 eggs to pay for the bird's feed for the year.

Two jobs are necessary for successful winter egg production. In addition to the culling, the house must be clean and birds should be free from lice, mites and disease. Farmers with two poultry houses can clean one for pullets after the older hens are housed, says J. M. Moore, secretary of the Michigan Poultry Improvement Association and poultryman at Michigan State College. The proper preparation of a house is simple but should be used after a good cleaning. Then disinfected. When the laying houses are dried out, the equipment can be replaced, clean litter placed on the floor and in the nests and the pullets can be admitted.

Size of the flock has little to do with profits, unless the flock is made up of good individuals, Moore warns. "Remember," he says, "that every pullet put in the laying house must lay 90 eggs during the coming year to pay her board bill before labor returns and profits are available for the flock operator. Be sure the pullets are free from lice and mites. Cull the birds carefully and keep only those that are heavy and well developed. They should show plenty of yellow color in beak and shank. Beware of pale feathers as these may be signs of worms. In case of doubt, open up a bird showing symptoms and if conditions are not easily diagnosed, call in expert assistance.
