Allegan Girl All Set for Trek To Belgian Congo

Allegan, Nov. 3 (Special)—Twenty-four-year-old Dorothy Baker is en route today with enough baggage for a long trip and a five-year stay. Which is exactly what she is going to do.

Her destination is Watsa in the Belgian Congo where she will become a missionary with the African Inland mission. It's a culmination of five years' planning for the Allegan young woman.

What does a person take when they're going away from home for years to a strange land? Five trunks of clothes, household utensils, books, camera and film, mosquito netting, stationery, canned foods, blankets, a typewriter—well, anything on might need in a place where supplies will be hard to secure.

Miss Baker left her job as a telephone operator Oct. 22 and spent the last week packing and making lists. She left Sunday for New York where she will board a plane Nov. 12. She arrives at Juba, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, in four days and then travels to Aba in the Congo.

A few months' training there will prepare her for taking charge of the native girls' school which is her Watsa assignment. She will also polish up her French which she began here under tutelage.

She's well aware it will be a hardy and primitive life, with safaris into the bush country as diversions from school duties. She will plant a new garden every week, raising most of her own food, and her dinner meat will be mostly buffalo, chicken, and goats. Perhaps a hunter will furnish some lion meat now and then.

She will be able to continue one of her interests, playing the accordion, and she hopes there will be a piano available. She would like to include music in her school's curriculum.

Miss Baker first became interested in African missionary work while attending Prairie Bible Institute at Three Hills, Alberta, Canada. After four years at that undenominational school, she decided her "call" was there where the need was great.

She spent six months with the Grand Rapids Mel Trotter mission and then worked in Tennessee among the colored people. Recently she did her deputation work in the state, making talks at various churches in behalf of Africa.

Her monthly support will come from the Lake Center Bible church of which she is a member, East Algonquin Baptist church at Reading, and two individuals. Donations and her own savings are paying the $1,800 passage and expenses.

"I'm happy to be going," the serious-minded young woman declares. "I'm glad to at last do the thing I want to do." After the five years, she will have a year furlough at home before returning for another five years. She has no doubt she will want to go back.

The daughter of Mrs. Helen Bates, Otsego, she has made her home with an aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Olin in Allegan. She's not imagining that the next few years will be easy ones.

Grand Rapids Youth Bound Over in Break-in

Grand Haven, Nov. 3 (Special)—Melvin Bulk, 20, Grand Rapids, was bound over to Circuit Court upon examination before Justice George Hoffer today on a breaking and entering charge. He furnished $500 bond for his appearance Nov. 12 at 10 a.m.

Bulk, together with Donald Matzen, 21, and James Huffman, 18, both of Grand Rapids, allegedly broke into Ford garage in Coopersville on June 5 and taken a quantity of tires, tubes and other accessories.

Matzen is scheduled to be arraigned in Circuit Court Nov. 21 and Huffman was sentenced to serve 3 to 15 years in Southern Michigan prison last Friday in Kent county for a series of break-ins in that county.

Zeeland Sportsmen Eat Annual Pheasant Dinner

Pheasants, donated by members, were the main dish at the Chick-Owa sportsman club dinner-meeting Wednesday at the Grange hall south of Zeeland. The annual dinner was prepared by wives of club members and the birds were donated.

Charles Schick, speaking after a short business meeting, pointed out that soil conservation, pheasants and deer are directly related. Each depends on the other.

He summarized the present situation and gave an approximate population figure of pheasants and deer.

Movies of deer hunting in Michigan, a popular subject at this time of the year, concluded the program.

At the business meeting, Miner Meindersma and John Molter were elected delegates to the district Michigan United Conservation club meetings for the year. Al Geerlings was named as alternate.

The Chick-Owa club is a member of the MUCC.

The club will purchase identification arm bands for re-sale to members. They will be brown and gold colored.

The club voted in favor of a monthly conservation paper to be published by Ottawa county sportsman's clubs.

Farmers Union Begins Meeting

Wesley McCuen, executive assistant secretary of agriculture, will explain the Brannan farm plan to Farmers Union convention delegates tonight at the Warm Friend Tavern.

McCuen is a last-minute substitute for Knox T. Hutchinson who was to appear on the program Friday night. An agriculture "policy meeting" in Washington cancelled Hutchinson's appearance.

Delegates began registration this morning and opening meetings were held at the Tavern. Five clerks were kept busy all morning and early afternoon signing in the delegates, assigning rooms and handling out programs.

McCuen will appear on tonight's program in place of a panel discussion on civil rights. It is anticipated that the panel talk will be switched to the closing banquet program Friday night.

The public is cordially invited to attend any sessions of the two-day convention.

Gov. G. Mennen Williams is scheduled for a talk at the Friday noon luncheon.

Peace Prevails At Silver Creek; Phantom Taken

Prowler Is Eccentric Young Man With Long Brown Hair and Beard

A bearded young man whose hair straggled down to his shoulders was arrested Saturday afternoon as the Phantom of Silver Creek and peace once more prevailed in the community.

Sheriff Louis Johnson said he took into custody Earl Holley, 21, of route 1, Plainwell, a fleet footed "eccentric" as the architect of hit and run prowler raids that threw terror in the ranks of sleepy Silver Creek for the last three weeks.

"I feel sorry for him," the sheriff said, as he returned Holley to the Allegan county jail. "We let his father cut his hair and shave him before we brought him back. There are two sides to the law and our feeling for this young man is one of pity," Johnson said.

Johnson said he may petition probate court to have psychiatrists examine the young man.

"We knew since Wednesday night when 'Smoke' (a bloodhound owned by Everett Widmeyer of Oshtemo) tracked him to his home that he was the perpetrator of this reign of terror," Johnson said. At the time, the sheriff asked reporters not to disclose the outcome of the trek pending an investigation of circumstances surrounding the activities of Holley.

Johnson called off his 30-man posse after the dog trailed Holley to his home Wednesday night.

The prowler, whose activities threw terror into the community, stole food, lunged at one woman and window peeped for the last three weeks. Fear reached such a proportion that people bolted doors and stayed awake nights with firearms handy.

The terror was intensified when watch dogs refused to bark whenever the prowler struck in one of his raids.

Johnson said the prisoner is a member of a large family and that the parents told him the son stayed in his room during the day and they had assumed he was sleeping nights.

Local Kiwanians Begin Athletic Club for Boys

The Holland Kiwanis is organizing an athletic club for boys between the ages of 13 and 15.

Purpose of the club, to be known as Kiwanis Athletic club for boys, is to foster character, clean living and sportsmanship through supervised athletics.

The youths will gather in Holland Junior high school gym each Thursday from 7 to 9 p.m. for athletic events, under supervision of Kiwanians.

Gabriel Kuite, chairman of the Kiwanis committee on Boy's work, is distributing registration cards through Holland Christian high school, Holland high and Junior high school and St. Francis de Sales schools.

Parents must sign their approval on the cards and participating youths must have a physician's okay.

Athletic events will include basketball, volleyball, indoor baseball, boxing and wrestling at the outset. Other events will be added later.

Club membership is free of charge. However, the boys must furnish their own gym clothes and towels.

Nobody will be refused membership because of race, color or creed. And each member will be given an equal chance to participate in all sports or club activities.

"We believe this is a much-needed organization in Holland," Kuite said. "We ask parents of participants to feel free to attend any of the sessions and appreciate any co-operation they give."

The winter meetings are expected to extend for 26 weeks. Plans are designed to carry the events through the summer with outdoor sports, if there is sufficient interest.

Although a date for the first meeting has not been set, it is planned to run close to Nov. 19, when Kiwanis clubs throughout the world will observe their National Kids' Day. This special day is set aside by Kiwanians each year to call public attention to youth projects.

Kuite, or any other local Kiwanis club member, is available for further information. Registration cards should be filled out and returned to the schools.

"The Kiwanis club is being aided by local school authorities in promoting the project."

The local club has purchased $300 worth of athletic equipment and is waiting return of registration cards before calling the initial meeting.

Harvey Pyle, 19, was killed instantly at 12:30 a.m. Sunday morning when the car in which he was riding missed a curve and rolled over into a field on Lake Shore Dr., one quarter of a mile south of Camp Geneva.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert G. Pyle of route 2, Zeeland.

Robert DePree, 30, of 61 West Cherry St., Zeeland, was driving the 1949 model car south on Lake Shore Dr. Evelyn Bronkema, 16, of 610 Gordon St., was riding in the front seat with DePree, and Marian Tubergan, 19, of route 2, was riding in the back seat with Pyle.

According to Deputy Clayton Forry and Jim Flint, who investigated, the car missed the curve, went across the highway onto the left shoulder and hit on its nose. It rolled over and landed on its top, 204 feet south from the traveled part of the highway. It was facing north.

Pyle was crushed beneath the top. It was believed that DePree and the Bronkema girl crawled out of the overturned car. The Tubergan girl was unconscious when taken from the car. She received internal injuries and a possible skull fracture. Her condition was reported "fair" today by Holland hospital authorities.

Miss Bronkema received back injuries and DePree was treated for shock at the local hospital. Both were released at 4 a.m. Sunday.

Forry blamed excessive speed for the accident and along with Coroner Gilbert Vande Water, will consult Prosecutor Wendell Miles to determine if there will be an inquest.

It was clear, dark and the pavement was dry at the time, Forry said.

The youths had met the girls at a local restaurant at 11:30 p.m. The dead youth worked for his father who owns and operates the Modern Power Equipment Co. on M-21, between Holland and Zeeland.

He was a graduate of Zeeland high school.

Survivors besides his parents are a brother, Donald; three sisters, Nella, a Hope college student, Mrs. Kenneth Winstrom and Mrs. Virgil Janssen, both of Zeeland.

Voters Register 3 to 1 Margins On Both Ballots

Bond Issue to Raise Funds to Build Up Plant in Holland

The Board of Education was ready today to go ahead with plans for improving local elementary schools after Holland citizens voted nearly 3 to 1 Tuesday to float a $650,000 bond issue.

A total of 2,982 persons cast ballots Tuesday. Total vote on ballot No. 1, the bonding issue for property owners only, was 1,832 yes, and 724 no. Ballot No. 2, the millage issue for all qualified voters, brought 2,142 yes and 815 no.

It was the fourth time local citizens had gone to the polls in the last 30 months in special school elections. The first three called for five mills for five years to establish a sinking fund. All were defeated, mainly because of the necessary two-thirds majority.

They Got the Vote

Mrs. Lucille Van Dyke's fourth graders at Washington school will receive a treat for getting the highest percentage of parents out to vote in Tuesday's election. The contest, sponsored by the election committee, emphasized "Did your parents vote?" not "How did they vote?" Many parents confessed they would have forgotten to go to the polls but for the prodding of their offspring.

In raising the millage, Last November, Michigan voters repealed the amendment, making it a simple majority.

Vote on ballot No. 1 brought a favorable response of 71.6 per cent and ballot No. 2 brought 72.4 per cent. Total vote on ballot No. 1 was 2,982 and on ballot 2 (property owners) 2,566.

The Board of Education was jubilant over Tuesday's victory. Members joined in a statement to thank the people of Holland for their fine response in recognizing the needs of classrooms for the boys and girls of Holland. The board was deeply appreciative of the work of the Citizens School committee and of the Parent-Teacher groups in the city.

"We are very pleased that the citizens of our community are interested in keeping the standards of our schools at a high level," the board's statement concluded.

Heaviest vote in a special school election was cast March 16, 1948, when 3,164 persons visited the polls. In that election, the vote fell 282 short of the necessary two-thirds majority.

The special election Dec. 2, 1947, attracted a lighter vote of 1,958. In this election it fell only 38 short of the two-thirds majority.

The first election April 22, 1947, attracted 2,374 votes, lacking 389 votes of the necessary majority.

Tuesday's election calls for raising $650,000 by increasing the 15-mill limitation 4.75 mills on the assessed valuation as equalized. It is expected the amount will be raised in eight years.

The bond issue will provide funds for a new 13-room school replacing Lincoln and Froebel schools, and additions at Longfellow and Van Raalte schools providing five classrooms and activity rooms.

Tuesday's vote was heavier than many expected. Calls poured into The Sentinel as the clock neared 9 p.m. and kept up steadily for a couple hours. Most persons were content with the "almost 3 to 1" clause and most calls averaged only a few seconds. Most persons expressed satisfaction.

The vote by wards:

| Ward | Ballot I (Bond) | Ballot II (Millage) |
|------|--------------------|------------------------|
| 1. | Yes No | Yes No |
| 2. | 162 66 | 208 77 |
| 3. | 234 114 | 425 129 |
| 4. | 289 112 | 314 136 |

Kalamazoo Beats Good Dutch Team By Narrow Margin

Dutch Put Up Fight That Stops Speedy Maroon Giant Backs

Holland high school's football team played its best game of the season Friday night at Angell field in Kalamazoo, but two quirks of football gave Kalamazoo Central a 13-6 win over the Dutch.

Those two so-called quirks were a deceptive pass play in the first quarter that sucked in the entire Holland secondary, and a 75-yard run by a fleet little Negro lad named George Dunnigan early in the third quarter.

The victory sends the Maroon Giants into a showdown battle next Friday against Muskegon's Big Reds with seven straight. It gives Holland a four win, three loss mark.

Holland's tackling Friday night was the deadliest it has been all season as the alert team, all the way back to safety man Tom Carey, stopped the vaunted Kazoo attack.

Holland players broke through and spilled the fleet-footed Maroon backs before they could get started or if they did get started, they were mobbed by red and white jerseyed players before they could break away.

Bob Tasma, made his bid for all-state honors in the game Friday night. The burly Holland full-back, and line backer was vicious on both offense and defense. He took a shovel lateral out from Quarterback Ron Bekius in the second quarter and raced 18 yards around left end. He was forced out of bounds at midfield when it looked as though he was away.

Kalamazoo registered on the scoreboard 11 plays after the opening kickoff and it looked as though the Dutch were tabbed for a rout. The touchdown drive started on the Kazoo 43 after Paul Vander Meer had booted out of bounds. Lloyd Johnson, Ralph Herriek and Bill Watson combined their talents to roll up two first downs and put the ball on Holland's 20. Herriek plowed through guard to the Holland 16. On the next play, Johnson ran to his left in a feint that looked as though he was going on a run.

However, he stopped and pin-pointed a pass into the waiting arms of Ed Bob Topp who was behind the Dutch secondary. Topp stepped the remaining yards for the score. Topp booted the ball through the goal posts.

The teams battled back and forth the rest of the first half. Early in the third quarter, Vander Meer punted and the ball was downed on the Kalamazoo 25. On the first play from scrimmage, Dunnigan broke through a hole on the left side of the Dutch line. Two local players brushed him, but he cut away and outraced the entire Dutch secondary to score. Jack Kuipers broke through to block the extra point try.

At the opening of the fourth quarter, a Vander Meer punt was downed by Ivan Immink on the Kalamazoo 25. Three plays later, the Maroons were back on their own 19 and Crouch punted. The ball went high and outside on the Maroon 38.

Holland started pounding the Kazoo line. Tasma, Joe Fendt and Tom Carey were the blasters. Tasma bulled off left tackle from the one-yard line for the score. The center for the extra point was low and Vander Meer picked it up and ran but was downed before he could cross the goal.

Holland dominated play the rest of the game but couldn't get across. The Holland touchdown was the first time the Maroon varsity line has been scored on this season. Two scores earlier this season against Kazoo were with second and third stringers in the lineup. Coach Fred Zuidema used only two subs in Friday's game.

His line was brilliant and proved why the Giants are considered one of the best defensive teams in the state.

A 220-pound tackle by the name of Bill Crouch was the best man on the field for Kalamazoo. He made almost half the tackles.

Besides Tasma, the entire Dutch team was brilliant. That bunch includes Immink, Jay Vander Sluis, Joe Fendt, John Kruid, Roger Hill, Jack Kuipers, Glenn Essenberg, Roy Morris, Don Sprong, Jack Hobeck and Dick Draper.

Happy? You'd be happy too if you returned from a big game hunt with the bag these two hunters got. Larry Kolb (left) strokes the head of a caribou as he chats with his hunting companion, Dr. William Westrate. Their trip to the Canadian Rockies yielded two stone sheep, a grizzly bear, a caribou and a mountain goat. Trophies shown here are earlier quarry of Kolb, who has been hunting big game for 20 years. This was Westrate's third trip. (Sentinel photo)

Big Game Hunt Yields Plenty of New Trophies

There'll be a few more trophies in the summer homes of L. H. (Larry) Kolb and Dr. William Westrate, following their latest big game hunt this fall in the Canadian Rockies 442 miles up the Alaska highway.

And both men are pretty pleased with the results. Kolb, a veteran of 20 years in expeditions of this type, came home with a stone sheep, a grizzly bear and a mountain goat. The doctor, on his third such hunt, bagged a stone sheep, a caribou (a cousin of the reindeer).

The Kolb summer home on Lake Michigan is the setting of choice trophies of 20 years of hunting. Here are heads of moose, sheep, caribou, mountain lion and skins of other wild game. The Westrate home has fewer trophies to display but just give him time.

On their month-long 1949 trip into the wilds, the pair left Holland Sept. 20 on US-2 across the top of the United States and from Great Falls, Mont., they drove on Canadian highways 881 miles to Dawson Creek, British Columbia, the start of the 1,523-mile Alaska highway which leads to Fairbanks, Alaska.

This highway, built by the U.S. Army for delivery of war supplies to Alaska, is one to four lanes wide. Army camps 20 miles apart have been abandoned and now are tourist camps and shops operated by Canadians. Thus, the traveler finds better than fair accommodations when he takes to the big road.

Kolb and Westrate traveled 300 miles to Fort Nelson, then 122 miles to Toad river, and up 20 miles to the Muncho lake area where they settled down to 15 days in the woods. Here they hired a hunting party of two guides and a cook and a pack train of 17 horses.

And it snowed every day. In Kolb's 20 years of hunting, he never hit such consistently messy weather, but a good bag of game erases memories of discomforts. Temperature at all times was around freezing. Most hunting was done just above the timberline. The "line" in the U. S. Rockies is over 9,000 feet. It marks the height where trees will not grow.

While laymen are intrigued by the grizzly bear, the true hunter regards the mountain sheep as a more desirable trophy. And Holland's two big game hunters each bagged one. They weighed more than 300 pounds apiece and make excellent eating. The hide is, of a dark silver fox color.

The grizzly Kolb shot was a very old, very black bear weighing about 800 pounds. The mountain goat he bagged weighed 250 to 300 pounds. The goats always are found in the most inaccessible places, and this victim got caught in a snow slide, going down the mountain out of sight. One of the sheep also disappeared in a similar manner. It took a lot of "doing" to recover them.

The doctor is particularly proud of his pretty caribou. It weighed about 700 pounds. The caribou resembles a reindeer.

Both men had custom built rifles and used .270 caliber bullets.

They also had other guns for small game for a spot of hunting en route. Hunting rules are strictly adhered to since each guide is licensed by the government as a game officer.

Travel to the Great Northwest has plenty of variations. U. S. highways offered the normal speed and the pavement leading to Edmonton Alberta, was pretty good. But from Edmonton to the start of the Alaska highway at Dawson Creek, the going was rough and 30 to 40 miles an hour was top speed. The Alcan highway itself can take 50 to 60 miles in places, according to Kolb.

Volley From Ambush

HOW'S this for a quarter century of progress?

Twenty-seven years ago, 12 local women organized a "Young Bride's Sewing club." After that they switched to 500, then to bridge, later to gin rummy and now they're playing canasta, the newest of all games.

Now known among themselves as the Modern Grandma's club, they entertain their grandchildren (27 strong at the moment, one for each year) at a special party.

Of the original 12 members, three have moved to Muskegon. They are Mrs. Harold Boven, Mrs. Frank Fazackerly and Mrs. William Bos.

Last Tuesday, the club was entertained by Mrs. A. B. Bosman at Sunshine Grill.

It isn't Halloween yet, and already people are thinking about Tulip Time next year. The Chamber of Commerce has received its first reservation — hotel accommodations for four on the opening day of Tulip Time in 1950. It came from two sisters in Meadville, Va., and Fort Wayne, Ind., who are planning the outing far in advance.

There will be one less black cat in Holland for Halloween pranks this year.

A week or so ago, Jim Crozier, purchasing agent at Spring-Air Co., got into his car to go home for lunch. When he started it he heard a thumping noise under the hood. There he found a black cat. It is believed the cat crawled up from the bottom in some way. The adventure proved fatal for poor kitty.

Some weeks ago The Sentinel carried in its 25-year-old column the news that Lucille Bouman had won a prize in a better babies photo contest in Holland.

And the teachers at Christian high school where Lucille is now employed as office secretary appropriately marked the occasion. They posted the Sentinel clipping on the bulletin board, took up a collection and presented the secretary with a box of candy.

The next day Lucille displayed the prize winning baby photo on the bulletin board.

Chun Young Chang, Korean student at Western Theological seminary, will answer to almost any name. In Korea, the family name is put first, consequently on second mention he would generally be referred to as Mr. Chun. But Americans can hardly be expected to remember that. The genial newcomer is quite philosophical about name abuses.

Do you know how the word Ku Klux Klan originated?

We heard the first two words represent the sound of a Civil war rifle being cocked. First you hear a "ku" then a "lux." There is another theory that it originated from the Greek Kykeos, meaning circle.

It's probably a mite chilly for fishing these days, but here's a little trick Bob Rummels and Ray Vandevusse practiced this summer which may serve you in good stead next summer.

Instead of painstakingly collecting grasshoppers for bait one by one, this pair took a piece of mosquito netting, spread it over the tall grasses, swished it back and forth to make the "hoppers" come up, then rolled up the fabric before the critters could get their legs untangled. Yep, it works!

Hope everybody's taking advantage of the bumper crop of Michigan apples.

Goodness knows, there are enough new apple recipes floating around to satisfy any appetite which doesn't prefer the apple straight.

Just in case you think the idea of freezing pies is a new wrinkle, John Bury of Benton Harbor, member of the state apple commission, puts us straight.

He recalled many an early winter when his grandmother who was of Pennsylvania Dutch descent would work up a batch of apple pies that had all the mouth-watering goodness so typical of good Dutch cookery.

These pies were put into an old trunk which was set out in the yard. Then snow was heaped up all around it. Water was poured on the snow to form ice. When pie was wanted during the winter it was a simple matter to open the lid and lift a frozen apple pie from the frozen food treasury. The pie was baked and eaten while piping hot. Fresh apple pie in January was a real treat.

Bury recalls there was only one flaw in the whole setup. That was the year there was a big thaw in February. To top everything off it rained for several hours. The ice washed off and the pies started thawing.

The family held a serious meeting. There were two alternatives — let them spoil or bake them right away. It would have been a crime to throw them away, so the family rushed them inside, baked all of them and ate almost nothing but apple pie for a week. All the neighbors were treated to pie too.

Bury experiments today with freezing pies, following the family tradition. Even that tragic warm weather incident has failed to cool his enthusiasm for apple pie. "The only thing better than an apple pie," says Bury, "is a Michigan apple pie."

High School Band Thrills Grid Fans

It looked as though Holland high's band was taking its cue from the football team at Angell field in Kalamazoo Friday night.

In one of the best halftime demonstrations of the season, the local horn blowers depicted "winter travel."

The first formation represented a car, complete with wheels going around. The band accompanied the formation by playing "In My Merry Oldsmobile."

After that, the musicians shifted into a formation to represent a large sailboat, with the canvas billowing. The accompanying music was "Sailing, Sailing."

The majorettes formed the tongue of a covered wagon for the third formation. The covered wagon wheels kept rolling while the band played "Wagon Wheels."

Another means of travel, although not quite as speedy as the others, was a high-seated bicycle and the band played "Daisy, Daisy."

The snappy group shifted into a huge block "H" and played the Holland High school fight song before filing off the field.

Citizen Challenges Charter Group's Decisions on BPW

Adrian Klaasen Points To Efficiency Record Under Present Setup

Adrian Klaasen, speaking as a citizen, challenged the charter revision commission to find any city in the United States that has a better public-owned utility than Holland's present Board of Public Works.

Klaasen, a member of the present BPW, made his remarks at the weekly charter meeting Thursday night.

He further stated he would be willing to defend the present structure of the BPW in a formal discussion or debate.

Klaasen said the present organization has resulted in the "finest utility setup in the country."

"I don't like to see this charter commission monkey around with the BPW," Klaasen said.

He cited the low rates and said his extensive studies show Holland has the lowest utility rates of any 10,000 to 20,000 population city in the state. And he further believes that presently Holland has the lowest rates of any city in the state regardless of size.

Holland is rated among the top 16 public-owned utilities in the nation, Klaasen said.

Commission Chairman Vernon D. Ten Cate, speaking on behalf of other commissioners, said the reason for recent charter commission decisions, is that members feel the relationship between the city and the BPW is divorced and tends to go further apart.

"It is not the intention of the commission to thwart the present BPW," Ten Cate said.

Ten Cate pointed out that the commission feels that the present BPW independence from the city setup is unhealthy.

Klaasen countered by saying that maybe the independence makes the BPW successful. He cited where other cities, that he knows, tried to tie the city and public-owned utility closer together, but it cut down on utility efficiency.

Klaasen attacked the commission decision to have Council appoint members to the BPW. He said a BPW member, appointed by council, might be obligated to vote according to Council dictates.

Klaasen favors the present setup whereby BPW members are elected by the people.

Ten Cate said that's for the people to decide.

"It has been charged that the BPW is doing a poor public relations job," Klaasen said. "Maybe so, but there again, the efficiency record stands."

Ten Cate pointed out that the commission has met with the BPW and the commission committee appointed to make a through study of the BPW, met with assistant BPW superintendent Millard Weststrate.

"We have spent a lot of hours on the BPW question, feeling that it would be one of the weightiest problems in the proposed new charter," Ten Cate said. "The commission is aware of the problems of expansion of your plant and expenses that go with it. We did provide funds for expansion under a reserve fund to be set up by the BPW and council."

Ten Cate pointed out that present reserves under the proposed new charter, would be left under BPW and council control.

"One thing I can say," Ten Cate said, "We intend to give the board more freedom to spend its money under the proposed new charter."

"I'm just disturbed by any change," Klaasen said.

The charter group discussed the present city law regarding taxation and pointed out how many words, phrases and sections are inadequate.

City Treasurer Henry J. Beckfort and Assessor Bill Koop attended the meeting and took part in the taxation discussion.

Mrs. Lucille Donovan and John Donnelly were absent.

Local Football Team Meets Benton Harbor In Conference Game

Coach Bob Stupka is trying to keep his Holland high gridders at the lofty peak they reached last Friday night for this week's conference game.

Holland entertains the Benton Harbor Tigers Friday night at Riverview park in the spotlight event of homecoming festivities for the local high school.

Stupka lauded the performance of his gridders against Kalamazoo Central and said, "You have nothing to be ashamed of even if you were beaten."

The Dutch mentor liked the hard tackling and blocking in that game.

However, it's another week for the hot and cold local football players. So far this season, Holland has won one, lost one, won one, etc. until it has a record of four victories and three setbacks.

Local grid fans, coaches and students feel the Holland team played its best game of the season against the Maroon Giants last Friday night. Holland lost 13-6 but never gave up fighting.

Benton Harbor hasn't won a game this season. The Tigers have tied two. Here are the scores:

Holland high, meanwhile, isn't letting "overconfidence" seep into the practice camp. The Dutch learned what a cocky attitude can do to a grid team earlier this season against Grand Rapids Ottawa Hills. They're working hard and expecting a stiff test.

Holland came out of the Kazoo game without any serious injuries. Ivan Immink was sporting a "shiner" Saturday and Roger Hill had a bumped nose. Both will play Friday.

7-Up Co. to Swap Jugs for Apples

The 7-Up Bottling Co. plant on North River Ave., is straying from its usual business for two days this week and is going to do business by the barter method. They're appealing to apple growers who have a surplus crop to bring in a busel of apples in exchange for 12 extract jugs, of which the 7-Up company has a surplus.

According to plant officials, the jugs, in which they get the 7-Up extract, are clear amber color with jug handles and metal screw tops. The jugs are clean and ready for anything that pours. They hold a gallon of liquid and when new, packed four to a carton, cost 23 cents each. Now, if a farmer wants the jugs, he must swap a bushel of apples.

It doesn't matter what kind of apples they are either, officials add. Just so they're good eating or good cooking. "The law doesn't permit re-filling the jugs so that's why we have them piled up to the ceiling," they say, adding it "looks like we've got enough jugs for 125 bushels of apples."

Apple growers are invited to the bottling plant anytime Thursday or Friday between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. At the same time, they are invited to see 7-Up made and have a treat "on the house."

Loggy Hope Team Rallies to Beat Michigan Normal

Dutch Passing Attack Wilts Tough Hurons During Second Half

Ypsilanti, Oct. 31—After a listless first half Saturday afternoon in which Hope college spotted Michigan Normal six points, the Dutch came back to score two touchdowns and a field goal and defeat the Hurons 16-6.

Michigan Normal was all helped up by the old grads who came back to fill W. O. Briggs field and watch the highlight of homecoming week-end.

The Hurons are always tough before the old grads. Last season the Ypsi team toppled a favored Central Michigan on homecoming day 6-0.

The Dutch were playing sub-par ball during the first half and it took a lot of fight to come back and pull the game out of fire.

And the local team proved that statistics don't win ball games. Hope was outplayed in every department, except passing. The Dutch just couldn't seem to do anything right during the first half.

Nick Yonker called on his ace in the hole—passing—in the second half to overpower the home team. Nick passed for one touchdown and completed 10 out of 14 tosses. Jim Pflingstel, passed to Yonker for the 11th Hope completion.

Hope was behind the 8-ball from the very start. Pflingstel strained a leg muscle in pre-game warm-ups and Coach Vanderbusch had to limit his No. 1 fullback to defensive duties for most of the initial half.

A fumble, one of three during the game by Hope, set up the first Ypsi score. The ball popped out of Eddie Leverette's hands on the Hope 30. The Dutch line shoved Michigan Normal back to the 38-yard line on three plays and on fourth down, a punt went out of bounds on Hope's eight. Yonker, fumbled a handoff to Ron Appeldoorn on the first play and Ypsi recovered on the Hope six. Two plays later, Jim Martin burst through left guard to score from the three and a half yard line. Jerry Raymond's kick was wide.

The first half ticked away without any more scoring. In that first half, Michigan Normal made nine first downs to three for Hope.

Hope started its first touchdown drive after an Ypsi punt was downed on the Dutch 24. Ten plays brought the ball to Michigan Normal's 12. Key play in the series was a 25-yard pass play from Pflingstel, back in punt formation, to Yonker.

With the ball resting on the 12-yard line and fourth down and two and a half to go, Yonker called a lateral pass play to Pflingstel who was out on the flank. Pflingstel grabbed the flip and stepped off the 13 remaining yards all alone. The fired up Ypsi line broke through and blocked Moose Holwerda's kick.

Early in the closing quarter Ypsi steered all the way to Hope's 8-yard line before the local defense hollered "that's all." On fourth down, Raymond tried a field goal but it was wide.

With nine minutes left in the game, the Hope attack was bogged down on the Ypsi three. On fourth down, Holwerda dropped back, and with Fuzz Bauman holding, booted a perfect three-pointer to give Hope a 9-6 lead.

The staunch Dutch defenders rose to the occasion and protected that precious lead as Michigan Normal threw everything in the book at Hope in a vain attempt to score.

On the third to last play of the game, with less than a minute to go, Terrible Tom Van Wingen added insult to injury as he took the ball around his left end and romped 29 yards for a touchdown. This time Roy Zwemer made the kick and the game ended after the kickoff.

One of the thrillers of the game came on the Dutch drive to the Ypsi three before that field goal. Yonker dropped back from Hope's 31 and heaved a pass intended for Clair DeMull on the Ypsi 40. Martin stepped in and knocked the ball up in the air. It came down into DeMull's arms and he raced all the way to the Ypsi 11 before he was hauled down.

Ripper Collins, Bill Bocks, Stan McClure and Gene Campbell were good defenders for Hope.

Raymond, John Mora, and Dominic Mauti were the best for Ypsi.

Church Social Life Impresses Dutch Minister

The Rev. R. H. van Apeldoorn, pastor of Austin Friars, the historic Netherlands Reformed church in London, is particularly impressed with the warm social and cultural side of church life in this country.

On his first visit to America, the Dutch minister is learning a lot about church activity and how the program is arranged so that home and community life can center about the church.

In the Netherlands, the church program is concerned only about the actual spiritual work of the church, the visiting minister said. This includes Sunday worship, the Sunday school and the weekly Bible school or catechism classes. In America, the church serves a considerably broader need in the lives of its members. He was particularly impressed by the church choir here. Dutch churches overseas seldom have choirs.

It was such aspects in church activity that the 34-year-old visitor came particularly to observe. His English-speaking church, the gathering place of Dutch Protestants in London, has launched plans to rebuild the church on the site of the original Austin Friars, a former Catholic order whose building was turned over to the Dutch July 24, 1550, after being abandoned in the Reformation.

The building had been erected in 1253, one of the oldest landmarks in London proper, just behind the Bank of England. It was totally destroyed in a bombing Oct. 16, 1940. Ironically, the "bomb" was an English land mine abandoned by the English in the Battle of Dunkirk. The German plane scored a direct hit with its return compliments. The bomb penetrated the roof and exploded a few feet from the church floor, completely blasting the 700-year-old church walls, at least two feet thick. Two persons seeking shelter in the entry were killed in the blast.

The new church will be of gothic architecture, and Rev. van Apeldoorn is anxious that it be equipped to provide the social aspects he hopes to encourage in his Dutch congregation. Construction is scheduled for 1950 during the celebration of the 400th anniversary of the existence of the Dutch community in London.

Plans call for using whatever parts of the rubble which can be reclaimed. For instance, an old altarstone which was in the church for hundreds of years will be put into the base of the new communion table. Old tombstones and markers (several bishops and persons of renown were buried in crypts in the old church) will line one wall.

Fortunately, all archives were saved. These had been stored underground and some had been taken to the country. They include some writings of Erasmus, who often visited the Augustinian friars centuries ago. Valuable antiques such as clocks, furniture and paintings were destroyed in the bombing.

For a time, the congregation met in the vaults of the Netherlands bank in London nearby and then moved to St. Mary's church, an Anglican church no longer in use at the west end of London.

Rev. van Apeldoorn was born in Grootgast and studied theology at the University of Leiden. In 1941 he became curate at Mak-kum, Friesland, and was ordained in 1942 in the Nederlandse Hervormde Kerk. He became minister in Witmarsum church in Friesland and served until June, 1945, when he accepted an invitation to become chaplain in the Netherlands Army, stationed in London. A year later he was appointed successor to the late Rev. J. van Dorp in the historic London church.

Rev. van Apeldoorn arrived in America three weeks ago and came to Holland last Friday. Appearances were scheduled in Maplewood Reformed church, Sixteenth Street Christian Reformed church, Christian high school, Calvin and Hope colleges, and Western Theological seminary. He will leave Holland Friday for New York and will sail Nov. 11 for England. He is accompanied by his wife. Their three children remained in London.

Hurricanes Stop Twin City Colts For Second Win

Colt Back Runs 103 Yards for Touchdown After Grabbing Pass

The Holland Hurricanes, sparked by Jason DeVries and his power runs, shoved the Twin City Colts up and down Riverview park Saturday night to win 13-7. There were 670 paid admissions at the game.

However, that lone Colt touchdown took some of the glitter out of the Cane headlines. John McPike provided the crowd pleaser as he grabbed a Don Leeuw pass three yards behind the goal and raced 103 yards for a touchdown. The flashy Negro back had to sidestep two Hurricanes at mid-field but outraced the rest of the players.

The Hurricanes outdistanced the visitors in every department. Holland made 14 first downs to four for the Colts. The locals had a lopsided advantage in yards rushing 197-71.

Holland tallied in the middle of the initial period. A Colt punt was downed on the Cane 48. Don Leeuw fadel and shot a pass to Ed Boeve who snared the ball, manipulated behind the Twin City second and ran all the way to the Colt none McPike caught up with Boeve and hauled him down.

DeVries, on two plunges, put the ball on the one. However, a 15-yard penalty moved the ball back to the 16. Holland tried three passes and could gain just four yards.

The Colts took over on their own 12. On the first play from scrimmage, Len Capozio fumbled and Ed Boeve recovered at the line of scrimmage. Leeuw slid to the five and DeVries bulled to the one. On the next play, DeVries went over for the score.

Mort Wright's boot for point was no good.

With seconds remaining in the first quarter, Ted Bos intercepted a Colt aerial on the Cane 48 and returned it to the Colt 40. Leeuw, Don Moeller and Don Ohts moved the ball to the Colt 20 where the quarter ended.

The locals took up the drive from the 20 in the second period and advanced to the eight. At this point Leeuw's pass was intercepted by McPike and he was off on his spectacular jaunt.

Hartman booted the point to give Twin City a 7-6 lead.

Late in the second quarter, the Cane drove deep into Colt territory but an intercepted pass halted the threat and the time ran out for the half.

Holland kicked off in the third period and the ball was returned to the Colt 34. Three plays netted nothing against the rugged Cane forward wall.

On fourth down, a Colt punt boomeranged and it was Holland's ball on the Colt 34. Leeuw, and DeVries moved the ball to the Colt 10. A pass from Hulst to DeVries plunked the ball on the Colt two. Don Ohts ran around end for the score. Wright passed to Boeve for the conversion.

McPike, Hartman and Capozio advanced the ball all the way down to the Cane five-yard line before the end of the third period but an incomplete pass on fourth down gave the ball to the home team.

In the fourth quarter, the Colts drove to the Cane 18 but a 15-yard penalty set them back. They lost the ball on downs and the Cane again took over and marched all the way to the Colt five where two incomplete passes and the Colt defense prevented a score.

De Vries in the backfield and Ed Boeve on the line, were the best Cane players. McPike and Capozio in the backfield and Bud Means on the line, were outstanding for the Colts.

The offensive play of scabback Don Morse pleased the Cane coaches.
