$1,000 Consent Judgment Awarded Holland Parent

Grand Haven, Nov. 6 (Special)—A consent judgment of $1,000 was awarded Henry R. Dykstra of Holland as next friend of his son, Jay R., against Herman Meppelink, of Holland, in circuit court this morning. It appeared from testimony offered that the insurance company for the defendant is paying $750 to cover medical and other expenses incurred by Mr. Dykstra in taking care of his child up to the present time.

The suit, originally seeking $10,000 judgment, involved an accident which occurred Feb. 3, 1945, at River Ave. and 16th St., Holland, when the child, seven years old at the time of the accident, was severely injured when struck by a car driven by Meppelink's daughter, Carol.

The child has recovered with the exception of headaches which are not expected to be of a permanent nature.

By Esther Van Wagoner Tufty Washington Correspondent

Washington, Nov. 6.—Back in Washington from a short lecture swing in Pennsylvania and Michigan, it dawns on me a lot of questions were asked about Eisenhower-the-candidate.

Many GOP party men "at the grass roots" seem to resent that anyone, no matter how attractive a vote getter he might become, should nab the plum away from the Taft, Vandenberg, Dewey forces who carried the party through the lean New Deal years. "Besides, who knows if he'll play ball with the organization?"

Some were more specific and wondered if Eisenhower could take by storm the GOP convention in Philadelphia next June. If he does it will not be a Willie repeat. They say "...remember in 1940 the Republicans had gov-

Telephone Veteran Recalls Adventure

Adventure has highlighted Emil F. LeJeune's 30 years of service with the Michigan Bell Telephone company—an anniversary he is observing this month.

Switchboardman and teletype repairman here since 1930, he entered the telephone business in 1917 as an equipment installer for the Western Electric company at Pittsburgh.

He was no sooner settled there than when a fire destroyed the telephone exchange at Phillipsburg, 200 miles away in the Allegheny mountains. Leaving in the middle of the night to answer the emergency call, he returned two weeks later after having restored telephone service to the city of 5,000.

In 1920, LeJeune came to Michigan Bell, known then as the Michigan State Telephone company, as division equipment installer.

Soon after, he was assigned to install additional equipment at Onkema. Absorbed in his work, he was unaware until it was finished, that heavy snow had blocked the roads and railways back to Grand Rapids. Taking a sleigh to Manistee, he stopped at the Chippewa Hotel and for over a week, was like Whittier's famed poem, snowbound.

After six years service in and about Grand Rapids, LeJeune came here at his present position in what was then the company's new central office building.

He has a son, James, who is in his sophomore year at Ferris Institute, and two younger daughters, Marlene and Patricia. LeJeune is a member of the Telephone Pioneers of America, an organization comprised of those with 21 or more years of telephone experience.

Youth Jailed on Entering Charge

Grand Haven, Nov. 6 (Special)—Dale Lewis, 18-year-old boy, 151 West 15th St., Holland, pleaded guilty in Circuit Court Saturday noon to a charge of breaking and entering in the night time. Unable to furnish $2,500 bond, Lewis is being confined in the Ottawa county jail until his case has been investigated and disposition made. Lewis is alleged to have broken into the Margo Apparel Shop, 450 Washington Ave., Holland, Oct. 19.

He told the court that he had broken into five buildings and obtained about $125. He said his reason for stealing money was because he had quit his job and needed money to attend Holland High School. He was released from Starr Commonwealth for Boys, where he was promoted from the eleventh grade, last May.

Council Awards Contract for New Tower Clock

Solons Favor Bid
From City Sign Co.
Calling for $1,360

Holland at long last is going to have a new Tower clock.

Common Council Wednesday night voted, 9 to 3, to award a contract to the City Sign Co. for a new clock in the Tower building to replace the present mechanism. The present clock has been faulty for the last year or two.

The City Sign Co. bid for $1,360 includes provisions for four separate electric movements with porcelain faces and new hands, new metal sills and neon lighting outside.

The bid carries a guarantee for one year and one extra clock movement in case of failure. It is expected that installation will be done soon.

The other bid considered by Council was one submitted by International Business Machines, Inc., which provided for an electrical unit, using part of the present mechanism synchronized with a master clock in police headquarters equipped with an automatic time control which would correct time in case of power failure.

The IBM bid for reconditioning and rebuilding the clock was for $582.50, and was accompanied by a bid by Wallace Vander Kolk for reconditioning the tower for $643.40, calling for creosoted wooden sills covered with copper, repainting the faces, fluorescent lights inside, and other tower improvements.

One other bid from a Cincinnati concern for $1,790 providing for a single motor unit not automatically controlled, was not given special consideration.

The bids were explained by Ald. L. C. Dalman, chairman of the Civic Improvements committee, to which the matter of providing a Tower clock was referred when the issue was first introduced by Ald. Harry Harrington last June 4.

Dalman said he favored the City Sign bid whereas other members of the committee, Aids. Melvin Van Tatenhove and John Bontekoe favored the IBM bid. Ald. Bertal Slagh said he believed the four separate movements would require more servicing than a single electric unit, and said neon tubing is far from inexpensive.

Van Tatenhove's motion to award the bid to the IBM concern lost 7 to 5 whereupon Dalman moved the bid be awarded to the local company.

Before the final vote was taken, Aids. Fred Galien and John Beltem expressed their views on the desirability of steel sash over wood.

Bert Selles of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, who was in the audience, said main consideration should be given to a good clock movement. Stuard Padnos, another JCC member, pointed out that unless steel is properly cared for it will disintegrate faster than creosoted wood.

Casting dissenting votes on the final motion were Aids. Bontekoe, Van Tatenhove and Slagh. The Tower clock has been discussed at almost every meeting of Common Council since it was introduced June 4. Several weeks later, the Junior Chamber of Commerce launched a drive for funds and raised approximately $500 through popular subscription.

Board Authorizes Immediate Start On Construction

Record Enrollment
Causes Over-Crowding
Of Present Facilities

Hope college will embark on a building program calling for immediate construction of two buildings and the erecting of two more at an early date, it was announced today by Dr. Irwin J. Lubbers, college president. Dr. Lubbers revealed that at a recent meeting of the Hope college board of trustees, two resolutions dealing with the building program were approved. "The first authorized four major buildings to be built as soon as possible" and the second "that a women's dormitory and a central heating plant be constructed immediately," he said.

According to Dr. Lubbers it is imperative that the building of the new women's dormitory begin at an early date because of record enrollment. College women now are housed in six separate cottages—Beach and Fairbanks cottages, Columbia, Van Vleck, Voorhees and West halls. West hall is the former East Junior high school, wholly unsuitable as a permanent dormitory, college trustees decided.

It is planned that Voorhees hall will remain a dormitory for women, and upon completion of the present program Van Vleck hall, oldest building on the campus, will be converted into a place to house the rapidly expanding music department. Dr. Lubbers also said that this new addition to the campus will contain dining facilities which will adequately cover all needs of the college that are now being partially met by the Temple building. Hope college holds only a temporary lease on this structure.

According to the college president, the finances for the expansion program will be met with Hope's share in the Reformed Church's United Advance drive. This drive, which calls for a total of two and a half million dollars, two million of which has already been subscribed in cash or pledges, will net the college $330,000. This, together with other funds will pay for initial costs of the program.

"The erection of a central heating plant is in the interest of economy," Dr. Lubbers pointed out. "At present there are 22 furnaces heating the college buildings on and off the campus, and this does not include the 40 separate heating installations in the 10 campus barracks," he added.

The other two buildings discussed by the board of trustees were a library and a gymnasium. Although not included in the immediate program, Dr. Lubbers said that the board considered them vital to meet the increased growth of the student body. Upon completion, the college head revealed that plans call for a remodeling of Graves library into a College Union building and that Carnegie gymnasium will be equipped to be used as an auditorium in connection with the dramatics department.

According to Dr. Lubbers, the trustees voted to empower the building and executive committees to approve building sites and general plans for the project.

William Jansen of Chicago, chairman of the building committee said that Ralph R. Calder of Detroit has already been retained as an architect and that the program is underway. Calder, according to Jansen, has had many years of experience in designing dormitories, some of which were built at the University of Michigan, Michigan State college, University of Detroit, Western Michigan college, Michigan College of Mining and Technology, and Hillsdale college.

Last Minute Pass Nets Hope Victory Over Alma Scots

Passing Combination Of Pfingst to Yonker Registers Final Tally

A perfectly executed pass play in the last three seconds of play put the Hope college Dutchmen back into first division in MIAA standings Saturday when Nick Yonker snatched the ball from Jim Pfingst and scored to break a 19-19 deadlock and give the Dutchmen a 25-19 victory over the Scots of Alma. With three minutes remaining in the contest the Hollanders trailed 19-13 and hopes ran high at the Alma stadium that their homecoming was going to be a complete success.

Early in the second period the Scots took the lead when Rex Roseman climaxed a 63-yard drive and scored on a off-tackle play. When the Scots kicked off, a Hope receiver let the ball roll and Alma pounced on the free ball on the 35. A 25-yard pass into the end zone was ruled complete and the ball was put on the 1-yard line, when interference was called. Howell's first conversion was good but he missed his second one, making the score 13-0.

With only minutes remaining in the first half, the Dutchmen began a 68-yard advance for "pay dirt." Throwing a long pass from his own 40-yard line Yonker hit Vern Kraai perfectly and Kraai didn't go down until he reached the 5-yard line. Kraai scored on a end run on the next play but Weller's attempted conversion was blocked.

Near the end of the third quarter the Hollanders tied the score at 13-13 when the Dutch drove to the 307, where Alma held fast and punted to their own 30 where the locals began their sustained march. Yonker carried the pigskin over the goal line from the 2-yard line to make the count 13-12. Weller's conversion was good and the score was knotted at 13-13.

Midway through the fourth period Hope was forced to punt from their own goal line and the Scots began to roll from the Hope 35. A series of line plays was climaxed when Hester smashed through the line for 7 yards to give Alma a 19-13 edge. Howell's kick was wide.

Following the kickoff the locals marched 80 yards in plays of all kinds with major advances made through the aerial route. With three minutes remaining in the game and Hope on the 4-yard line Nick Yonker leaped high in the air ready for a pass but no receiver was open so he lunged through an opening to score the touchdown that knotted the count. Weller missed the timely conversion as the kick soared wide of the uprights.

After the kickoff Alma began trying desperately for a score and risked passing in their own territory until Nick Yonker retreated deep into his own territory and grabbed a long Scot pass and with little more than a minute remaining the locals had another chance.

Barrett passed to Holwerda, which took the pigskin to the 47-yard line. Yonker heaved a long one to Vern Kraai who brought the ball to the 13 yard line. Two ground plays took the ball to the 4 and after each play the Dutch were calling time-out. A penalty for too many time outs took the ball to the 9 where Yonker called a pass play. He took the ball from center and lateraled out to Pfingst who hit Yonker on the four yard line. The smart quarterback evaded four tacklers and crossed the double stripe as the gun sounded giving Hope a 25-19 victory. The attempt for point-after touchdown was tried after the game was over but the kick was not good.

It was finally over with the Dutchmen from Hope staking one of the most spectacular comebacks in many years. To the smart signal-calling of quarterback Nick Yonker, must go much of the credit for the victory.

Red Cross Policy Told by Warner

Policies of the American Red Cross with respect to participation in Community Chest programs were explained here today by the Rev. William C. Warner, chairman of the Ottawa county chapter.

"It is a fundamental and continuing policy of the American Red Cross that all regular fund raising and membership campaigns are to be conducted separate and apart from any other fund raising," he said in quoting the national office.

National officers will not authorize any deviation from the policy, he said he had been informed by the St. Louis office. "This policy is not a casual one but has been arrived at by the experience of many years for the best interest in carrying out the obligations of the American Red Cross to the American people," Warner was told.

The explanation of policy came about when through error the American Red Cross was inadvertently included in the Community Chest drive of an Ottawa county city, Warner reported.

Driving Accidents Land 10 in Holland Hospital

Ten young people were admitted to Holland hospital Friday night as the result of three accidents in and near Holland.

Eight were injured in a head-on crash of two cars at 9:15 p.m. on Pioneer school road in Laketown township about a mile south of Zeeland in Graafschap in which both cars were badly damaged. Four patients remained in Holland hospital today and four were discharged following treatment Friday night.

Cars were driven by Justin Scholten, 20, route 1, and Harvey Oetman, 21, route 6. South Haven state police who investigated said each driver claimed the other had no lights. Officers said testimony from witnesses bore out claims that both cars were traveling without lights.

Both drivers will be charged with reckless driving, state police said today in completing their investigation. Warrants will be filed with Justice Leslie Junkerman in Saugatuck and arraignments will take place soon.

The four victims remaining in the hospital received fractures. Oetman, one of the drivers, received a compound fracture of a leg. Joyce Bouwman, 16, of 1262 South Shore drive, received a fractured right ankle. Doris Schout, 18, of 311 East Main St., Zeeland, received a fractured femur (upper leg), and Austin Walters, 19, route 6, suffered a fractured jaw.

Zeeland, knee laceration. Passengers in Scholten's car were Miss Achterhof, Miss Bouwman and Walters. Riding with Oetman were Van Houw, Miss Schout and Miss Overway.

The cars were taken from the accident scene by two Holland wreckers.

Holland police assisted South Haven state police in the case. The crash occurred as Scholten, driving a '40 model, was traveling West on the rural road, and Oetman, driving a '41 model, was traveling east.

Bill Nies, Jr., 16, route 1, was treated for cuts on the head and hands Friday night when his '30 roadster overturned on Eighth St. between College and Central Aves., after occupants of a car riding ahead of him threw a barrel into the street. Nies swerved to avoid the object and his car overturned damaging the top and front.

Nies was taken to Holland hospital and discharged after treatment. City police listed Warren Exo, 16, as a witness.

Bernard Jansen, 21, of 434 West 20th St., had X-rays of the chest and right foot and was discharged without treatment following an accident at 10:45 p.m. at River Ave. and 16th St. in which his motorcoter was hit by a car driven by Henry R. Van Dyke, 35, of 306 West 16th St. Van Dyke was given a summons for failure to yield the right of way. He told police he stopped for the stop street. Just inside was a piece of broadcloth, plaid sort of. That was from a bargain sale shirt bought during the depression when merchants cut their prices to almost nothing. The shirt cost only 25 cents.

The Ambusher never liked it and the shirt perversely continued to wear and wear. It took considerable will power to put it on, bargain or no bargain.

Then there is a red plaidot strip. That came from a pair of percale pajamas, gift of a mother-in-law. Woven through it is a piece of seersucker, Junior Ambusher's first dress up rompers. And so on.

Now the Ambusher knows why women will spend long, weary hours piecing a patchwork quilt. There's many a memory sewed into the blocks.

The chill in these aging bones turned thoughts to Christmas, not so many shopping days away. Mother always exacted a promise from Dad about this time of year that "this year we'll have a smaller tree."

A promise of this sort is lightly given, especially before the Thanksgiving turkey is eaten. But when the Christmas season rolled around, with its rich symbolism and mellow friendliness, Dad couldn't resist and the tree was usually the largest one he could find.

One year we had to cut 18 inches off the top of the tree. It was too beautifully shaped to take it off the bottom, he argued. But the final effect was that the tree had grown, through the ceiling and that we'd have to go upstairs to fasten on the star.

Potent Elevens Invade Holland

Holland's grid teams are again preparing for another week-end of strenuous football with both Hope and Holland High playing at home and the Holland Hurricanes journeying to Grand Rapids. Hope will tangle with Adrian under the lights of Riverview stadium Friday night and on Saturday Holland will play host to the second place Benton Harbor Tigers. Coach Mal Elliott's Hurricanes meet the Grand Rapids All-Stars Sunday.

At present Hope is tied for third place with Alma, and a win by the locals over the Bulldogs would give them at least a tie for the third spot. Alma is expected to have too much to handle in Hillsdale, so the Dutch might take over undisputed third. Hope pulled "one out of the fire" against the Scots last week and Coach Al Vanderbush is hoping for his final season victory, Friday. Adrian will present a much improved ball club this season, and last Saturday trounced a hapless Albion aggregation.

Holland High is still smarting from their 20-0 defeat at the hands of Kalamazoo Central Saturday night. The locals can gain a tie for second spot in the conference by winning their remaining games against Benton Harbor and Grand Haven. Kalamazoo and Benton Harbor are tied for the runnerup spot now with Kalamazoo slated for a final loop game with Muskegon. Benton Harbor holds victories over Grand Haven and Muskegon in conference play this season.

The Hurricanes, rejuvenated by their sparkling play against the Jackson All-Stars Saturday, are hoping for an upset win over the once-beaten Grand Rapids. Four Grand Rapids stars were seriously injured in their 19-18 conquest of Flint Sunday, and the Furniture City lads may be in poor shape for the Hurricane contest. Jackson whipped the All-Stars 13-7 in a loop contest three weeks ago.

Nearly 500 Local Men Attend Calvin Meeting

About 500 local men, traveling in 13 chartered buses, represented Classis Holland at a kickoff meeting for Calvin college and Seminary in the Civic auditorium at Grand Rapids, Monday night. This meeting officially launched the $100,000 nationwide campaign for funds for a Calvin expansion program which begins Monday. The program calls for the construction of four additional buildings for Calvin, which would include a science building, a student center, girls dormitory and an addition to the library.

Officials estimated that some 5,000, including 2,200 workers, representing Michigan, filled the auditorium to hear inspirational addresses by Dr. Leonard Greenway, Bible instructor at Grand Rapids Christian High, and President Henry Schultze of Calvin college. Both speakers emphasized the need for the campaign and urged the support of all workers during the drive Nov. 10-15. Jacob Van't Hof, general chairman of the coast to coast campaign, estimated that between 6,000 and 7,000 workers would take part in the drive.

The 50-piece Holland Christian High school band led the Holland group into the auditorium and later joined the Calvin band for massed numbers. Other numbers featured two Calvin choirs and a mass demonstration by nearly 1,000 College students.

Holland, which had the largest delegation of the seven Michigan classes at the meeting, was represented by 15 local and area churches. Churches included in the local classis in addition to the eight city Christian Reformed churches are: Harderwyk, Noordelee, Stout Olive, Graafschap, East Saugatuck, Niekerk and Pine Creek. Officials said that about 15 to 20 other mass meetings are scheduled throughout the nation before the drive begins next week.

Fat Salvage Drive Proves Successful

In the current world shortage of fats and oils, the American Fat Salvage committee reports on one highly successful aspect of the "Waste Not" campaign. According to the committee's fifth annual report, "American women and the armed services recovered an average of 422,000 pounds of used fats every day for the five-year period, August, 1942, through July, 1947. Through fat salvage, a total of 810,631,613 pounds of fats and oils has been returned to the national economy of the United States. During this period, American homes saved and turned in 625,872,767 pounds of fat, an average of 18.4 pounds for each of 34 million housekeeping families. The armed services recovered 184,758,846 pounds."

The report goes on to show that, as a joint government-industry operation, the fat salvage program's recovery of used fat amounts to nearly 10 per cent of total U.S. production of inedible tallow and grease and has been a major force in teaching conservation of edible fats and oils.

Collections of used fats increased enormously, when, in 1943, the Office of Price Administration authorized meat dealers to pay two red ration points per pound for used fat in addition to the ceiling price of four cents per pound. At this time, meat and edible fats were under strict rationing.

When meats, fats and oils were decontrolled in late October, 1946, prices paid by meat dealers for used kitchen fat went from four cents a pound to 10 to 18 cents per pound. This reflected the intense demand for industrial fats and oils.

In 24 months following the end of the war, civilians turned in more than 247 million pounds of used fats, a monthly rate of nearly 10,300,000 pounds.

MULTIPLYING COURSES

An automobile club representative appeared before a school board in a Michigan city to urge it to add to the high school curriculum a course in automobile driving. He made an eloquent plea, pointing out that the increase in traffic accidents made it urgently necessary to introduce such a course. Other communities were giving courses in driving; he argued that this particular school board was shirking its solemn duty in standing out against it.

There is a disposition on the part of one segment of the public to believe that the schools should be loaded down with every job that any organization or pressure group can think up. The fact is the conveniently forgotten that the schools are there for the primary purpose of helping boys and girls to get an education—such basic knowledge, for instance, as how to spell fairly correctly, how to add two and two, how to read a book with some appreciation, how to learn from history to distinguish between statesman and demagogues, and many other types of information that are basic to effectiveness as an American citizen, to say nothing of effectiveness as a human being.

Many of those basic forms of education have to be slighted by the schools because the curriculums are so loaded up with courses on how to drive an automobile, how to bake a cake, how to pack a suitcase correctly, that there is no time left for basic studies.
Don't blame the teachers; they are the victims of the system, not its cause.

The argument of those who want courses in auto driving taught is that we now live in an industrial age and that the automobile has become a necessity.
Things have changed since the boys and girls drove a mule on the old farm.

But the people of the old day did not ask the schools to teach the boys how to hulk corn, a skill that was as much needed then as ability to drive correctly is needed today. The farmer took on the job himself to teach his boys this necessary art. Mother took her daughter in hand when the time arrived for her to learn how to turn out an acceptable cake;
teacher was not pressed into service for the job, she was left to the business of getting basic education into the pupils that would prepare them to be grownup persons mentally and good citizens.

Loading all sorts of jobs on the schools is one of the most vicious developments of modern life.

A Call to Right Living
By Henry Geerlings
Among the earliest Christians the question of temperance was considered very important. Jesus had made it clear that the religion He represented called for a life of discipline and dedication.
The righteousness upon which He insisted was to exceed that of the scribes and Pharisees, who, despite their shortcomings in other respects, were strong believers in abstinence. In spite of the almost universal use of weak wine for drinking purposes in Palestine, the priests were forbidden to drink any of it while they were on duty, and the Nazirites were forbidden to touch it any time.
Jesus emphasized the same point, using drunkenness as the typical sin of the unprepared. Paul also held to the old Jewish viewpoint that the people of God ought to show their religion by their daily living.

The churches are strangely silent on the liquor situation. We can hardly expect any improvement of conditions as these pertain to the traffic until the church gets awake. She is not awake now. There is a lethargy that is appalling. If we may judge from the absence of articles in the denominational papers of the country on the evils of the traffic we are justified in saying that if the church is interested we are not aware of it. What strikes one is the fact that the liquor forces are themselves more concerned than we are; of course not for the same reason. They fear that there will be an uprising in the near future because of the devastating effects of their trade that will blast the traffic out of existence.
They themselves are advertising against their business. But we need not expect distillers and others interested in the nefarious business to utterly destroy the source of their profits.

There is power in personal influence. It would seem that we as Christians cannot be too careful about our attitude toward the use of alcoholic beverages. The sinister influence of our use of them must be apparent. If the youth are not particularly interested in the church, but do have a measure of respect for what the church thinks, see us indulging they will feel justified in doing the same things and without knowing the real stand of the church on the question, they will not exercise those restraints which are the possessions of believers.

The apostle Paul omitted from his menu one of the chief kinds of food, because of the influence his use of it would have on others.
There are those today that feel that the church needs something to give her a passion for truth, a high and holy zeal for godly living. What particularly obnoxious sin is the church crying to smite?

Generalities do some good, but the church has prospered most when she set before her certain evils that had to be destroyed.

We ought to build the principle of right in our own lives. We are free men. Part of that treasure which Christ won for us on the cross is our freedom. We are no longer bound by the law, or enslaved by a detailed ritualism. In a sense nothing or no one can condemn us or make us afraid. But this freedom has its limits. There are some things the Christian cannot do. The life he once led is forever a thing of the past. Self indulgence belongs to the realm he has once for all abandoned.

Our liberty begets license when we use it to do as we please, to gratify our own desires, or to injure our fellowmen. If it be true that the Christian man is the most free lord of all and subject to none, it is also true that the Christian man is the most dutiful servant of all and subject to every one. We should never attempt to exercise all of our liberties, nor are we expected to become puritanical in our habits. If there are some things I can do when I think only of myself, it may be that I ought not to do those things when I take into account my influence on others.

We are bound not so much by external shackles as by inner desires and compulsions. Over acts are merely symptoms of inner conditions. Sin is born in the heart. Out of the heart are the issues of life. Original sin is the inborn depravity of human nature with propensities toward evil.
This inclination lies in the heart of man. Christ always pierced to the seat of man's iniquity. To Him murder was only a symptom; the crime lay in the jealousy and envy of the heart. Lust likewise lurks there. All the fruits of unrighteousness, in fact, are given birth in the soil of human hearts.
We speak not so much of sins, as of sin; not so much of petty acts, but of a depraved condition, which produces corrupt fruit. When sin engages the heart of a man, he is in abject slavery to unholy desires.

In the Good Old Days

Dr. G. J. Kollen tendered his resignation as president of Hope college on Wednesday afternoon, stating that his health demanded a rest, began a story in the April 25 issue of the Ottawa County Times published in 1902 by M. C.
Manning. He said that he had carefully considered the matter and that his health does not permit him to continue the many duties and continual strain required. That the president's announcement was a surprise to the faculty and council need not be stated. Since Dr. Kollen became president in 1893 he had devoted all his time and energy to the building up and improvement of the institution. The council refused to accept his resignation and resolved to grant the president a year's vacation with continuation of his salary and a committee was appointed to make arrangements to carry on his work.
The council prevailed upon the president to withdraw his resignation.

The installation of the Rev. S.
Vander Werf of Gibbville, Wis., church, took place last night.

sermon, the Rev. G. H. Dubbink delivered the charge to the pastor and the Rev. J. Van Houte of and J. H. Karsten and James F.

Zwemer of this city also took part in the exercises. Rev. Vander Werf will preach his inaugu-

Sam Miller recalls the past

Sam Miller Started Out
In Meat Packing Plant

By any measurement, Sam Miller is Holland's best known restaurateur, although he hasn't worked at it for many years. His skill with the skillet is widely acclaimed, especially among Holland's slightly older residents.

Gastegiers like to point out that Sam was born the year America bought Alaska from Russia.

Sam was born on a farm near Petersburg, Ont. on June 7, 1867.
He attended country schools near his home. "I can recall one teacher who was so mean I was afraid to go to school," he said. "I would leave the house with my little tin dinner bucket, but about a half-mile from home over the fence I would go. I played all day in the fields and when I saw the other kids going home in the afternoon I would fall in line too," he chuckled. "This went all well and good until a bewhiskered old gent told my father about my antics—then of course I had a perfect anted-ance after that," said Sam.

After attending the Ontario Business college at Belleville, Sam came to Michigan. He began work in a meat packing plant. "I wouldn't have minded the work so much, but the bones cut my fingers and the salt we were using curing hurt like fury when it got into the cuts," said Sam as he leaned back in his chair and began to recall more of his past.

"After working in a saw mill up north near Baldwin I tied up with the Chicago and Western Michigan railroad for the summer," he said. "I guess the railroad first got into my blood that summer. I'll never forget the time a brakeman and I were filling the engine with water, by bucket, from a river near where we were building a bridge." Sam smiled as he rambled on with his story. "We spilled a lot of the water from the buckets over the end of the car attached to the engine. We were living in this car at the time. The weather had turned cold and the water froze the brakes, so when the engine pulled the car the wheels slid. This made the wheels uneven or flat wheels as they are known. The other brakie and I switched wheels with a flat car sitting on a siding near us and no one knew the difference," said Sam.

Going to Muskegon, Sam worked as brakeman on the Ottawa Beach railroad. "My pay was $10 a week then, big money for a lad of 23," said Sam. "Most people want to know how I lost my arm," he said. "Well, I was working in the freight yards here in Holland switching cars around. We had link and pin couplings on the cars and one of these was out of order.
I ran over to another car and got a new one, but as I was running back I tripped over a pile of fire cinders and fell under the cars rolling by. Of course my first thought was to get out and as I hooked my right arm over the rail the two wheels of one of the freight cars ran over my arm just below the shoulder joint."

"In those days the fire box of the locomotive had only a few inches clearance along the ties. I knew it was the end for me if that fire box ever scraped my backbone. Looking up I saw a bar hanging down from one of the box cars. Reaching up I grabbed it with my left arm and hung on until my shouts were heard and the engine stopped." Sam has a picture of an old locomotive which he said, "was the same engine that cost me my arm."

After that Sam learned the trade of telegraph operator, working at Waverly, then known as Resort Junction, and going with work trains into logging camps and gravel pits. While in the logging camp Sam grew a beard.
"Since there wasn't a barber handy and I hadn't learned how to shave with one arm I had no other choice," said Sam.

After working in Grand Rapids for the superintendent of the tracks Sam moved to Ionia, where he was married. He came back to Holland soon after and began a restaurant in Waverly. About five months after Sam had opened up his eatery the building burned to the ground. "It was just as well," said Sam, "because passengers did change in Waverly, but soon after the fire Holland became the change-over spot."

Sam built another eating place beside the depot in Holland where he had a thriving business for 24 years. "Good business, that is until automobiles came along and cut railroad passenger travel, said he.
"Then the railroad and I were both out of business, which was all well and good since the railroad company wanted my lot to build a new depot on anyway," Sam said.

When asked if he could wait on customers Sam waved his arm and said he could keep up with the best of them. "Pie in those days was only a nickel, and we would only cut a pie in four pieces," he said. "My wife was pie baker for me, and son, you never saw a better pie baker in your life."

In 1903 Sam owned the second car in Holland. "Prices for cars in those days ranged from $3,000 to $7,000, and some people yell at the prices now," said he.

For years now Sam has kept a daily diary as a hobby. He at first printed the page and half diary, but the last few years he has typed the entries with his very able left hand.

Not wanting people to say he was un-patriotic during the last war, Sam spent five years as guard at the Gear-Grinding Machine Co. in Detroit. "It wasn't much but I at least felt I had a helping hand in the conflict," Sam said.

Sam has quite a family when they are all assembled at home.
He has four children, two boys and two girls, nine grandchildren, and four great grandchildren.

While showing his scrap books he pointed out a picture of Hope college's president, Irwin J. Lubbers. This picture was taken during World War I and it pictures Dr. Lubbers in boots and goggles of the air corps.

Sam is thinking about writing a book during the many more years he plans to enjoy around Holland.

Practical Means Will Cut Gas Use In Your Flivver

Many Buy Gadgets, But Few Remember Rules To Conserve Fuel

Each year, hundreds of car owners invest thousands of dollars in gadgets guaranteed to save gasoline consumption, but they rarely take time to figure practical ways to stretch extra miles out of a tankful of fuel.

Talking with Holland authorities, it was determined that first comes the condition of the engine. Properly adjusted valves, clean spark plugs, good ignition and timing, clean carburetors and combustion chambers and full compression are literally, worth their weight in gasoline.

Your tires should be kept at the recommended inflation, or slightly more, as running on soft tires causes the car to "pull uphill," putting a drag on the engine which wastes gasoline.

Correctly aligned wheels, and driving on ones own side of the road as much as possible, is also a help, and brakes carefully adjusted so that there is no dragging wheel, will lessen gas consumption.

Authorities also claim that use of the lightest practical motor oil avoids the engine labor of churning heavy oils, not necessary for normal operation. Perhaps the most important, and most frequently violated, is sensible acceleration through the gears, with sparing use of low and second, in order to save often wasted gas.

It is interesting to note that normal mileage in low gear ranges from three and nine miles per gallon; in second gear, it is between four and twelve. So you'd better sneak into high when you're hitting 15 m.p.h. if you want to avoid extra gas station stops.

Also recommended is a steady pace, as each unnecessary stop down or stop wastes the fuel needed to get back to cruising speed. Avoid stopping for lights as often as possible by judging and timing, not slamming down on the accelerator for one last mad dash.

None of these recommendations are particularly spectacular, but they are guaranteed to work. Why not try them, you've nothing to lose.

Kiwanians Elect Next Year's Staff

Tony Last was elected president of the Holland Kiwanis club at the annual election Monday night. He will succeed Si Borr. Daniel Vander Werf was named vice-president, and Jack Plewes was selected as treasurer.

Directors elected for two-year terms were: Kenneth Allen, Andrew Dalman, Glenn Gold and George Steketee.

Frank O. Staiger of Port Huron, secretary-treasurer of the Michigan district of Kiwanis International, paid an official visit at the meeting.

He said that postwar trends in Kiwanis indicated there was a steady membership growth, that the size and importance of projects was increasing, that individual clubs showed greater financial stability and there was increasing emphasis on fellowship.

Membership in the service club is almost double low point figures reached during the war.

He also inducted three new members, William Selles, C. B. Kingman and Victor Van Fleet. In his charge he told they were accepting civic responsibility that would bring them gratifying dividends of enjoyment.

Club guests included Simon Jeemstra of Bluffton, Ind., and Dwight Ferris of Holland.

Forgery Suspect Is Linked With Local Case

Local sheriff's officers today linked a local case, in which a couple ran up considerable bills here, with a case in Howell in which state police arrested a man suspected of forgery.

Officers said the couple, registered as Dr. and Mrs. Russell Horn, stayed at a local cabin from October 12, 1946, to the middle of February, 1947, when they left suddenly after running up accounts totaling $300. The man posed as a dental technician, officers added.

Officers said they traced the couple to a bus station in Grand Rapids and learned the man had taken a taxi for parts unknown. An extensive investigation was carried on but nothing more was learned until this week-end when state police arrested the man in Howell.

Officers said it was not known whether the man, whose correct name is believed to be Jack Arthur Keller, will be prosecuted in Livingston county for forgery or if he will be returned to Ottawa county.

Four Receive Eagle Awards at Court of Honor

Eagle awards were presented to four Boy Scouts at impressive ceremonies in connection with a Central district Court of Honor which attracted more than 100 Scouts and parents to First Methodist church Monday night.

The presentation was unusual in that twins figured in the ceremony.

The new Eagle Scouts are Robert and Roger Smeenge, 16-year-old sons of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Smeenge of 197 West 14th St.; Ronald Kortering, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burt Kortering of 144 East 24th St., and James Sell, Jr., 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Sell, Sr., of 56 West 19th St.

The Rev. M. Eugene Osterhaven of Hope college, formerly an Eagle Scout in Grand Rapids, took charge of the Eagle presentation and called the four Scoutmasters to the platform. He explained the true meaning of the Eagle award and listed the qualifications for obtaining such an honor.

Mrs. Smeenge was first to pin the Eagle badges on her twin sons. Since the twins are identical, program leaders had difficulty in identifying them throughout the evening and finally lapsed into calling them "Twins," an expression used widely by all coming into contact with the brothers.

Mrs. Kortering pinned the Eagle on her son and Mrs. Sell did similar honors when her son's award came up. In turn, each Scout presented his mother with tiny Mother's pins. Mrs. Smeenge receiving two pins.

Prof. Clarence Kleis, chairman of the central district committee, presided and the Rev. J. Kenneth Hoffmaster, pastor of First Methodist church, gave a brief welcome. Camporee awards were made by Miner Meindersma of Zeeland and a Community Chest Oscar was awarded the council by Joe Moran to Earl Vanden Bosch for community service. Scout Executive Don E. Kyger assisted in advancement awards.

Opening and closing exercises were in charge of Scouts of troop 10, of the most church, Duane Barney and Ken Boerema of Spring Lake who attended Philmont Scout camp in New Mexico last summer showed color motion pictures and related their experiences.

The different counties of the district were in charge of various parts of the program. Allegan county members conducted the devotional services Sunday morning which included a talk by Stanley Moffat, social science instructor at Allegan high school.

Miss Mary E. Bullis, home extension agent accompanied the group to camp. Those attending were Dorothy Mingerink, Shelbyville; Ruth Kelsey, Martin; Lois Hoyt, Pearl; Milton Smith, Monticore; Clarence Koopman, Oversee and Charles Stennett of Casco.

Arnold Mulder Writes New Book On Dutch Culture

To Be Released Soon
As First in Series on
'Peoples of America'

The publication on Nov. 12 of "Americans from Holland," by Dr. Arnold Mulder, formerly of Holland but now of Kalamazoo, will mark the beginning of a project that has for its aim nothing less than the reinterpretation of American history.

Dr. Arnold Mulder

As long ago as 1943 the J. B. Lippincott Co., oldest publishing house in America, began plans for a list of books to be called The Peoples of America Series. Dr. Mulder's book will be the first. It is described as an objective history of 300 years of Dutch culture in America.

The idea back of the series as a whole is that the American people do not stem exclusively from British stock, that about half of them are of non-English origin—as are for instance many of the good Americans who live in this country.

The plan is to tell the story of the United States in a new way. The narrative will take for granted that the population of this country has many roots, not a single root as is often assumed. It will emphasize the economic, social, cultural and political ideas and ideals the immigrants from many lands brought with them to these shores, and it will set forth the story of how they developed on this continent; how, beginning as widely differing groups with widely differing ideas, they were all finally fused into what the world recognizes as Americans.

"Whether they landed at Plymouth Rock or Ellis Island," explains a publishers' announcement, "none came empty-handed. They brought skills developed and perfected in the Old World, and the aptitude to develop new ones. They tilled forest, grew food, dug in mines, built bridges, laid out canals, roads and railroads. Some edited papers, wrote poetry, made machines, ran businesses. But mostly they did a lot of the plain, hard, everyday work that has gone into the building of our America of today."

"The story of these varied peoples of America is too vast and complicated to be told in any single volume. But it is a story which needs to be told, for it can contribute greatly to our understanding of contemporary America and to the future development of our nation."

In addition to the Dutch, treated in Dr. Mulder's volume, the series will include books devoted to the English, French, Irish, Germans, Italians, Spaniards, Poles, Hungarians, Scandinavians, Negroes, Russians, Greeks, Mexicans, Czechoslovaks, Indians, Armenians, Chinese, Japanese and possibly some others.

The fact that the publishers selected Dr. Mulder's book to initiate the series is in some degree a tribute on their part to the importance of the Dutch strain in the American population. The publishers and the general editor of the series, Louis Adam, selected Dr. Mulder for the job of telling the story of Dutch culture in America because he has for many years contributed articles on this theme to various magazines and has established himself as an authority in this field.

While the author worked in close conjunction with such sources here in Holland as the Netherlands Information Bureau and the Netherlands Museum for that part of the story that is centered here, many other sources were tapped, his bibliography containing close to 100 items.

Enjoying the peace and quiet on the outskirts of the Holland High school forest on Lakewood boulevard, five miles from Holland, is this quartet of future foresters. Left to right they are: Ronnie Kuylers, Gerald Toohy, David Day and James Philip Toohy, a twin brother of Gerald. Ramping alongside is David's dog "Lassie." This school project, which was begun in 1933, is under the supervision of Lida Rogers, biology teacher. The original forest covering about 40 acres is called the Albert C. Keppel School forest. Another piece of land, almost as large as the first, is also nearly reforested.

School Reforestation Project Still Growing

Reforestation as a practical means of reclaiming Ottawa county's sand blown land is clearly demonstrated by plots operated by Holland High school. The project, now 13 years old, is under direction of Miss Lida Rogers, biology teacher.

In the beginning, the school had 40 acres of land and $100. To these physical assets they added youthful enthusiasm and a lot of effort.

Today, not only the first 40 acres have been planted, but another piece of land, as large, is nearly reforested. Both forests are situated within a quarter of a mile of each other. The first one, known as "The Albert C. Keppel School Forest," is located on a tract of land in Lakewood boulevard, five miles from Holland and one half of a mile from Lake Michigan. The second forest is a quarter mile north of the Keppel forest, on Lakewood boulevard.

In 1933, when the project was finally started, Professor E. V. Jotters, extension forester at the University of Michigan, addressed the Exchange club, speaking about "Community Forests," and the state passed a law for municipalities and boards of education to have land, tax free, for purposes of reforestation.

With these two factors in their behalf, Miss Rogers and the Biology department went to work, and it was then that Mr. Keppel gave the land for reforesting. Seedling trees were procured from the state nursery from various sources, and Professor Jotters returned here twice to assist with the start.

The first year spring program had the following results: the planting of 1,200 white pine seedlings, 3,600 red pine seedlings, 250 white spruce and 100 maple transplants, the pruning of an old orchard, the piling of brush obtained in windrows on the sand hill, the planting of beach grass of some of the smaller blow sand patches, mapping of the forest area, plowing of fire breaks around the forest, and general cleanup work.

The next summer, Mr. Keppel interested members of the Exchange club in building a log cabin at the forest. Three all day club meetings were held on the tract, resulting in completion of the cabin, a replica of the first house built in Holland in 1817.

As work on the forest progressed, it became evident that the old apple orchard and vineyard would never be able to be rejuvenated and as the work of removal would take too much of the student's time, ten PWA workers were hired to do the job.

Meanwhile, boys in the class were planning for the forestation of the tract, and girls were making plans for landscaping the corner around the cabin, and the furnishing of it.

Springtime of 1934 saw the planting of an additional 5,500 seedlings, of the white and red pine variety. Miss Rogers said it was then that the project really began to resemble a forest.

Planting stock used was expanded to include not only the red and white pine seedlings, but Norway spruce, juniper, certain deciduous trees, old fashioned shrubs and wild roses. Jack pine seedlings were successfully used as the final step in checking the continually shifting sands on a big sand blow hill.

Protection from fire is insured by extreme care in clean up, and the piling of a 16 foot fire break around the forty acres. These fire breaks are freshly plowed every year, and proved their value in 1936 when a severe grass fire spread some distance but stopped when it reached the forest fire break.

Money for the project has come from many varied sources throughout the years, namely the Board of Education, and selling of trees suitable for use in homes at Christmas.

In more recent years, a stone fireplace and other improvements have been made on the Keppel forest.

After completing work on the first school forest, the department and Miss Rogers received the 40 acre tract, north of the Keppel forest, and work there was begun in earnest, until, at this time, it is expected that the reforestation of this land will be completed next spring.

The Keppel forest has planted on it, 1,200 trees to the acre, or nearly 50,000 trees, and the second forest will have another 50,000 trees on it when the project there is finally completed, Miss Rogers said.

The work has drawn forth community interest and has become a distinct contribution to the scenic beauty of this resort area.

Kalamazoo Whips Holland Eleven In Saturday Tilt

Holland High's grid team dropped out of a tie with Benton Harbor for second place in the Southwest conference, fight Saturday night at Angell field in Kalamazoo when they bowed to the Kalamazoo Maroons 20-0. Before the Kazoo fray the locals held a 1-1 record in conference standings to match Benton Harbor's 2-2 record. In addition, it was the local's fourth loss in seven starts this season.

Although the Hollanders tallied more first downs than the Celery City aggregation, they could not cope with the passing and running of Halfback Terry Nulf, who accounted for all of the Maroon's touchdowns. He ran the ball over twice and in the third quarter passed Dick Moser for the final marker. Holland managed nine first downs to three for the winning Kazooks. Kalamazoo failed to make a first down in the first half.

The sensational kicking by Dick Moser of the Maroons kept the Hollanders with their backs to the wall for most of the first half. Moser kicked four times after his squad's offense had stalled and booted the ball out of bounds on the Holland 18, 11, six and three yard lines on successive occasions. In addition some untimely penalties called against the Dutchmen forced them to retreat just when it seemed as if the local offense was beginning to roll.

Kalamazoo's opening score came in the initial period when young Nulf took a Holland punt on his own 20 and raced 80 yards through the entire Holland eleven for the score. A kick from movement was good and the Kalamazoo squad led 7-0. This ended the first period scoring with the Hollanders unable to penetrate far into Kalamazoo territory.

Then again in the second period after Kalamazoo had penetrated to the Holland end zone for the second Maroon touchdown. Again the conversion was successful and the Hollanders found themselves on the short end of a 14-0 count as the first half ended.

Coach Bob Stupka's men made their furthest advance of the game in the third quarter when the Holland backfield moved the ball to the Kalamazoo 2-yard line before being forced to yield. The Kazoo lads came right back however and marched the entire length of the field for their final score. A series of running plays moved the ball to the Holland 12-yard stripe from where Nulf pitched a touchdown pass to Moser for the score. The conversion attempt was missed and the contest ended 20-0.

Holland's offense left much to be desired throughout the entire game. Although they showed flashes of early season play, particularly Bob Malchow, who broke loose for sizeable gains, the Dutchmen were not the same ball club which whipped Muskegon and St. Joseph.

A real battle for second place in the Southwest conference should develop here Saturday night when runnerup Benton Harbor invades the local field. A Holland win would move them a notch ahead of the twice-beaten Tigers.

Holland Cagers Report for First Drills This Week

Local Squads Hit Hard By Stars' Graduation; Play Openers in Month

Coaches Milton (Bud) Hinga, Malcolm Mackay and Arthur Tuls laid plans for the 1947-48 basketball season Monday as all local quintets began their pre-season workouts. Large turnouts were welcomed at all practices.

In the Hope initial workout Monday, Hinga met 20 cage prospects, including six letterwinners. Among the veterans are Chuck Ploegsma, Herk and Harv Buter, Phil Meengs and Fred Brieve. Four letterwinners are expected to turn out for initial practices Monday at the close of the football season. Cagers still practicing football are Don Mulder, Nick Yonker, Bill Holwerda and Dick Higgs.

The locals will open their season on Dec. 4 against the Grand Rapids Junior college five on the Armory floor. Although Hinga lost only four men from last year's squad, he nevertheless lost four of the top caliber cagers. Gaby Van Dis, Russ De Vette, Don Scholten and George Dalman all will be missing from the Dutch roster this season. Van Dis, De Vette and Dalman were last through graduation while Scholten transferred to the University of Michigan in September.

But out to fill the gap left by the four stars are several new prospects. Bud Vande Wege, All-Southwestern conference forward from Holland High has reported for practice and should bolster the Dutch offensive attack. Fred Kalsbeek, who hails from Muskegon and played on Coach Harry Potter's championship Big Reds last year will also be a candidate. Others are Bob Beckfort, George Slikkers, Bill Hinga and Harold Van Wieren, Don Boeskoel and Bob Wagner.

Hinga has spent most of the time with fundamentals, including passing, dribbling, cutting and running around the outdoor track as a conditioner.

In the Holland High camp, 26 men reported for initial practice sessions, Monday with only two veterans among them. Ronnie Bos and Gene Beukema are the only two letterwinners who have made an appearance so far. More are expected after football season ends.

New varsity material include Vander Kuy, Kruthof, Bush, Wiersma and Brunsele. More than 30 more cage candidates are expected to report Monday, Nov. 17, or soon thereafter. The basketball players who are presently playing football will have only 10 days to get in shape for the season opener on Dec. 5.

Mackay has announced that he will cut his squad down to 15 boys either today or tomorrow and will concentrate on them as the team to play a good share of the opening encounter.

Fundamentals have been claiming most of the time in prep practices too as Mackay runs his charges through passing, dribbling and shooting drills each day.

Some 17 hopefuls answered Coach Art Tuls' call Monday for first team drills. Tuls has the task of replacing three stars who went lost through graduation. Gene Schrottenboer, Kearney Zoerhof and Jim Lampen will be the missing starters this season. Only returning regulars this year are lanky Duane Rosendahl and Junior Bremer, Bremer will be lost at the change of the semesters.

In addition to three first team reserves reporting for practice are: eight second team members who played for Coach Els Kleinjans in 1946. They are: Herb Otten, Preston (Butts) Kool, Paul Boven, Harold Vander Ploeg, Harold Volkema, Bill Mulder, Earl Marlink, and Glen Petroelje. Also several transfers have reported for opening drills.

So far Tuls has spent little time with the basketball, but has been concerned mainly with conditioning the boys. He said he planned to cut the squad within a week. He hinted that by Dec. 5 when the opening game rolled around, he would have his squad trimmed to 10 or 12 men.

Halloween Party Attracts Throng To Riverview

Younger Set Guests Of Junior Chamber Following Parade

Holland's younger set, running the scale from an angel with shining wings to an engaging Satan, age about five, took over Riverview park Friday evening for the 10th annual Halloween party as guests of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Pete Welling was general chairman.

Entrants in the costume contest paraded by schools up Eighth St. where they exhibited their creations before parents and townspeople. The parade was led by the American Legion band and shepherded by motorcycle police. Hope college band brought up the rear. The crowd at the park was estimated at 4,000.

At Riverview park they drank cider donated by the Holland police department and ate doughnuts offered by the Dutch Boy Baking company. Candy bars and all-day suckers also were distributed. Prize winners claimed their awards and everybody more or less settled down to see a tumbling act and a bouncing table act. Who the athletes were is a trifle obscure, but the kids didn't notice. They laughed and cheered.

Attracting particular attention in the costume parade were a big squirrel (first prize incidentally), a huge football flanked by two uniformed players, an accurate reproduction of Holland's Tower clock replete with bats hanging out of the faces, a big pumpkin face, a Centennial birthday cake, a gallow, ostrich, apple tree, rocket, jack-in-the-box, a huge autumn leaf, Co-Peep, a table, and of course, clowns, ghosts, witches and other weird get-ups.

Bob Gordon served as master of ceremonies and did a creditable job of herding his small charges into a semblance of order. Most of the expense of the party was contributed by townspeople through the Chain-o-Dimes.

Following are contest winners: Jack O' Lantern—David James Bonnette, Mark Mulder, Carl Seif, Roger Garvelink, Keith Van Hoff, Alfred Van Ins, Marilyn Lam and Phyllis Welch. Four winners were from Washington school.

Costumes—Arlene Van Harn, Sherry Van Den Bosch, Janet Larson, Jan Roberts, Fred Vande Vusse, David McMillin, Karyn Kraai, Mary Lou Van Iwaarden, Junior K. Dalman, Terry Alverson, Margie Zickler, and Cynthia Schaap. Van Raalte and Longfellow schools had three winners each.

Posters—Carrow Kleinheksel, Romy Kramer and Henry Meurer. Schools were not given. All names above are spelled as recorded by judges.

Public address systems were donated by Bosman Radio Service and Ralph Browner.

A fireworks display topped off the evening's entertainment, timed to conclude at 8:30 so the small fry could meet their deadlines with the Sandman.

All agreed it was a satisfactory evening.

BIRTH & DEATH RATES FOR OTTAWA COUNTY 1924-1946

Ottawa county's birth rate is shown as the top unbroken line. Deaths are shown as the broken line. Figures at the left show the number of births and deaths per 1,000 population. The scale across the bottom corresponds to the years. The death rate since 1924 has remained fairly constant at near 10 deaths per 1,000 population. The birth curve reflects economic pressures, reaching its low mark during depression years.

County Births Double Deaths During 1946

(This is another in a series of articles on Ottawa county health department's statistics based on its annual report.)

Twice as many people are born in Ottawa county as die every year, a comparison of the two rates prepared by the Health department show.

In 1946, when Ottawa's birth rate reached the highest peak in 23 years, there were 1,602 births and 600 deaths.

While the death rate has maintained an almost steady line over the last two decades, varying little from a rate of 10 per 1,000 population, the birth rate varies sharply from year to year. It reached its lowest point during the depression years of the early thirties and advanced sharply upward during and following the war.

Of the 1,602 births for 1946, 1,452 mothers were delivered in hospitals and 150 had home deliveries. This is a five per cent increase in hospital deliveries over 1945 when 86 per cent of our babies were born in hospitals. Essentially all of the births were attended by physicians for the past three years, there being only one lone exception to this in 1946. Midwives have not been active in this county for many years.

There were 28 more boys than girls born last year, the increase in population being 815 boys and 787 girls. The figures for births in the last four years are:

YEAR	TOTAL	MALE	FEMALE
1945	1,313	661	652
1944	1,389	721	668
1943	1,420	744	676
1942	1,521	772	749

The rate per thousand was 22.2 in 1945, 23.5 in 1944, 24.1 in 1943, and 23.4 in 1942.

Sports Briefs

The Fraternal society's donkey wasn't the only one who suffered from unseasonable, but well-come weather at the Hope-Kalamazoo game Saturday. The writers in the press box all reported good sunburns. Although they sit in an advantageous spot for seeing the game, they are also apt targets for the sun's rays. Making it doubly hard is a "standing room" crowd only occupying the press box.

With the football season in its final stages, the spotlight turns to basketball. Next week, all three local schools are scheduled to get their teeth drilled under way in full swing, although both Holland High and Christian have had a few of the hopefuls working out this last week. At this point of the season, all the local coaches say, "I don't know." Whether he is a pessimist or an optimist, the answer is always the same, "We'll be out there trying, regardless."

Of course both Hope and Holland High will not be able to get full scale drills started as yet, because many of the cage prospects are still busy on the gridiron. Hope will be out to defend its 1947 MIAA title this year, while Holland High will attempt to gain another Southwest conference pennant. Christian, not a member of any league, must derive its satisfaction from upsetting some of the state "powerhouses."

Owner Fred Bocks of the Holland Hurricanes said today that he expected to have four officials, instead of the customary three, work the Hurricane-Jackson contest. They are Russ Waters, John Gafner, Bill Schram and Ed Scheerhorn.

Of course, in football as in everything else, there is always a humorous side to the serious side. Here are a few of the classics told by and of some of the better known coaches in the country.

Harry Stuhldreier tells Wisconsin alumni about the longest run of his career—to catch a train, that is. He hopped the last car, sat down, and was astounded to find the man next to him, speak bitterly of the Corsican weather. Across the aisle another man was analyzing a flank attack which had routed the Gauls only the day before yesterday. Harry realized he was riding with mental patients en route to the state hospital. He was getting up when a guard came down the aisle, counting: "... Napoleon ... seventeen ... Caesar ... eighteen ... hey, who are you?"

"I'm Harry Stuhldreier, the Wisconsin football coach."

"... nineteen ... twenty ..."

Spartan football players wonder if the "long count" ever will end. In two games this year, with separate groups of officials working, State's opponents have been granted five downs in a single series.

The appearance Nov. 29 of Michigan State's football team against the University of Hawaii in Honolulu is providing plans for a great celebration on the Islands.

Gov. Stainback has declared the date as Michigan Day on the Islands. One complete portion of the Spartan has been set aside for a Spartan cheering section composed of all persons from Michigan planning to attend the game.

Frank Leahy of Notre Dame likes to recall the time Frank Szymanski, an ex-Irish center appeared in a South Bend courtroom as a witness in a civil suit. The judge asked:

"Are you playing on the Notre Dame team this year?"

"Yes your honor."

"What position?"

"Center, your honor."

"How good a center are you?"

Szymanski hesitated and then said, "I'm the best center Notre Dame ever had, your honor."

When court recessed, Leahy asked Szymanski, usually a modest chap, why he answered in superlatives.

Szymanski blushed. "I hated to do it, coach, but I couldn't help myself. I was under oath."

Of considerable national interest is the case of Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler against Leslie O'Connor, but still more local interest may be lodged in the high school player who is involved.

According to a Chicago report, the prep star involved is 17-year-old George Zoeterman, a student at Chicago Christian High. Chandler suspended O'Connor of the Sox because he signed the youngster as a batting practice pitcher at the end of last season, which he claims is an infraction of the rules. The unusual nature of George's contract is that it provides that he need not pitch on Sunday's because such activity would be contrary to his religious beliefs. George is a member of the Christian Reformed church in the Chicago area.

In an interview, he said, "If I were playing for the Sox and they were battling for the pennant, I wouldn't play on Sunday. I hope the contract difficulty is cleared up, because I am a Sox fan and I want to pitch in Chicago."

The Sox were impressed by George's fast ball, which provided four no-hit games in the Chicago Private School league in the last two years.

Some years ago when Minnesota was pulverizing the Big Nine opposition with their powerful eleven, a story was floating around telling how Coach Bernie Bierman selected his football players.

As the story goes, Bierman would go into the Minnesota farmlands, and when he would see some husky farm lad he would stop and ask directions. If the farm lad picked up his plow and pointed, the tale says Bierman would try to induce him to play football at Minnesota. However, if the lad merely pointed with his finger, the Minnesota mentor wasn't interested.
