America Pauses To Pay Tribute On Veterans Day

Community Ambassador Speaks on 'Freedom' At HHS Ceremonies

America paused today to pay tribute to veterans of many wars on the country's first Veterans Day which replaces Armistice Day which has been observed annually for the last 34 years celebrating the close of World War I.

Armistice Day was changed to Veterans Day under a law President Eisenhower signed last June 1. The new name was deemed more fitting for a day of tribute to the 571,598 Americans who died in two world wars and Korea and to the 21 million American veterans.

Air Force Secretary Harold E. Talbot, representing the President, told the large audience that nuclear weapons now can abolish a whole civilization "in a single night." He underscored a plea for world peace with the stark declaration that today's arms "can lay waste an entire continent."

In Holland, the High School auditorium was crowded for the annual observance in which the impressive silent tribute at 11 a.m. was followed by the band playing "Nearer My God To Thee."

K. Don Jacobusse, Hollands Community Ambassador to Spain last summer, chose for his subject, "Freedom." Speaking on current problems in the defense of freedom in the world, he said, "Freedom is a common work, but an uncommon thought. Freedom is an idea that must be preserved and worked for in every day living because of its tremendous value."

Jacobusse cited the courage of John Hancock and the signers of the Declaration of Independence and punctuated his remarks with stirring quotations of the great patriots, Benjamin Franklin, Patrick Henry and their contemporaries.

Mayor Carl Ver Beek presided and the high school band under the direction of Arthur C. Hills played several selections. The a cappella choir under the direction of Wilford Fast sang "America, My Wondrous Land," Perry, and "In Solemn Silence," Ippolito-Ivanoff.

"America the Beautiful" was the finale with band, choir and audience participating.

Further observance of Veterans day will follow tonight with banquets for VFW members and Legionnaires in their respective clubhouses.

In Zeeland, an estimated 150 persons attended a Legion pancake breakfast this morning at the Dugout in City Hall in observance of Veterans Day. Guests were served pancakes, sausages and coffee in unlimited amounts, with all proceeds to be used for charitable purposes. The breakfast was the renewal of a custom discontinued three years ago. Legionnaires cooked and served. Post Commander Donald Boes was chairman.

Diabetes Week Set Nov. 14 to 20

Diabetes week will be observed here Nov. 14 to 20, sponsored locally by the Ottawa County Medical Society. This group is cooperating in a program sponsored nationally by the American Diabetes Association as an educational and case finding campaign.

Diabetes week marks the renewal of a county-wide diabetes detection drive, devoted to finding the estimated million Americans who have diabetes, but do not know they have it, and for that reason are not getting the medical care they need.

Because early diagnosis of diabetes is so important to the well being of the person that has it, facilities are being provided for screening tests to enable anyone to find out whether he shows any signs of the ailment.

Diabetes is a chronic ailment in which the body cannot make full use of some of the food one eats, such as sugar and starches. Instead of being stored or turned into energy, these food elements in the form of sugar, increase in the blood until there is more than it can hold. Then the sugar is passed into the urine. Too much sugar in the blood and urine is the sign of diabetes.

A test for sugar in the urine or excessive sugar in the blood will bring the condition to light and hitherto hidden diabetic can then be placed under medical care which in most instances quickly brings his condition under control to such an extent that he can go on living a normal life.

But those controls cannot be provided until the diabetes is found. For that reason everyone should have himself tested for diabetes. Experience shows that many people have it unrecognized.

Local physicians will carry out tests during Diabetes Week if persons will avail themselves of the opportunity.

Benton Harbor Edges Holland Frosh, 7-6

The Benton Harbor freshmen scored a touchdown and kicked an extra point late in the fourth quarter Monday night to defeat the Holland High ninth graders, 7-6, at Riverview Park. Holland had scored in the third quarter on a quarterback sneak from three yards out after blocking a Tiger punt. The extra point attempt failed.

Evenly fought, both teams threatened in the first half, moving to the opposing 10 yard line. The Benton Harbor touchdown was set up by an end run off a punt formation from midfield to deep in Holland territory. The score was made on a 10 yard reverse around end.

Thieves Steal Auto, Leave Two Other Cars

Two cars stolen in Detroit and Muskegon were found abandoned in Holland this week and thieves helped themselves to one local car in return which was located near South Haven late this morning.

Police said a car taken from Detroit in July was located near Longtellow school earlier this week. The car bore license plates which were stolen from another car.

Early this morning a station wagon, missing from Muskegon, was left near 18th St. and Harrison Ave. Less than a block away a '51 model car belonging to Cal Boeve, 382 West 18th St., was missing this morning.

Shortly after noon today Boeve's car was found, out of gas, near South Haven. Police believe the thieves who left the station wagon, taken earlier in Muskegon, exchanged it for Boeve's car.

Community Chest Drive Is $1,350 Over the Top

The annual meeting of Holland's Community Chest Tuesday afternoon marked the official close of the 1954-55 campaign with a final figure of $39,248.69, almost $1,350 over the assigned quota of $37,900.

Although the total represents the final figure of Chest contributions, the Community Chest will accept additional gifts at any time. A large portion comes from the Single Solicitation Plan, Inc., a local program in which payroll deductions are matched to management to cover such charities as Community Chest, Red Cross and polio in a single drive.

Campaign Chairman Bernard P. Donnelly and his co-chairman, Edwin Raphael, expressed their appreciation to all those who contributed and to all those who gave unselfishly of their time and effort to make this year's campaign a success.

George Heeringa, Robert Wolbrink and Bernard Donnelly were elected directors for three-year terms. A fourth director will be appointed, thereby rounding out a rotating 12-member board. The board was to meet today at 4 p.m. in Peoples State Bank to elect officers.

Holland High Band Receives Plaudits For Friday's Show

Chicago Sports Scribe Praises Half-Time Performance at Game

Holland High School's crack band, under direction of Arthur C. Hills, along with the Benton Harbor High band came in for some pats on the back for their performance between halves of the Holland-Benton Harbor game at Benton Harbor last Friday night.

Sports writer Jim Enright of the Chicago American, who saw part of the game, was quoted in the Benton Harbor News-Palladium as saying: "I thought the half-time band performance at Flitstrup Field Friday night by the Benton Harbor and Holland bands the best football show I've ever seen."

"Very original and doubly outstanding. Both directors deserve a lot of credit for such fine entertainment. It was definitely better than the University of Michigan band's showing today (Saturday) and that one is pretty good in its own league."

Jim, former sports editor for the News-Palladium, arrived in Benton Harbor Thursday evening and included the newspapers on his visiting schedule along with nearby Sodus his former home. He saw the first quarter of the Niles-Dowagiac football game and part of the Holland-Benton Harbor game—all in the same night.

He went to Ann Arbor Saturday morning to cover the Michigan-Illinois game and was back in Chicago at 6:35 p.m. (CST) Saturday. Sunday he flew to Tucson, Ariz., to cover the National Basketball Clinic.

Exchangites Hear Young Delegates

Nine boys who were Holland's delegates to Boys State last summer were speakers at the regular meeting of the Holland Exchange Club Monday.

Bob Saunders, as chairman of the group, introduced the speakers and each boy described briefly phases of work particularly interesting to them. The delegates were Phil Boersma, Gerald Boeve, Ted Du Mez, Paul Scott, Dale Topp, Lynn Kadwell, Paul Northuis, William Bremer and Saunders.

Boys State is a laboratory course in setting up carrying out a system of government. Each boy holds an office.

The week was climaxed with a trip to Lansing where the boys met with men who now hold offices in Michigan similar to those to which they had been elected or appointed at Boys State. The boys also had a well rounded program of sports.

Among topics discussed were a day at Boys State, campers life, government, assemblies and clinics, sports, law classes conventions and trip to the capital.

The boys reported that Holland's group was much larger than most cities. More than 1,000 boys took part in the experiment in government last summer. Boys State is under control and leadership of the American Legion. Holland has sent delegates for more than 15 years.

Mrs. Mastenbrook received two broken ribs and face lacerations and her two-year-old son, Michael, received bruises on the forehead. Ream received abrasions and forehead bruises. Both cars were damaged to the extent of $200.

State police charged Ream with improper overtaking and passing. The three injured persons were taken to Municipal Hospital by ambulance.

Central Avenue Minister Accepts Grand Rapids Call

The Rev. William Haverkamp, who has served as pastor of Central Avenue Christian Reformed Church for five years, announced to his congregation Sunday that he has accepted a call to Eastern Avenue Christian Reformed Church in Grand Rapids. He will preach his farewell sermon here Jan. 2.

During his five years here, Rev. Haverkamp saw the razing of the old frame church and the erection of a fine new $334,000 brick structure. During the five years, the church raised $134,000 for the new building, to be added to a previous $80,000 fund. Church debt currently is about $120,000.

During his stay here, Rev. Haverkamp preached in the old church, then for 15 months in Hope Memorial Chapel where temporary services were held, and finally in the new building which was dedicated last year.

Central Avenue Church has 310 families. Eastern Avenue Church which is located near Calvin College has 225 families. The local church has a flourishing Sunday school, three choirs and a well organized youth program.

Rev. Haverkamp was born in 1908 in Zuidbroek, Netherlands, in the province of Groningen. He attended normal school in Winthoven, Netherlands, and came to this country in 1923, attending Grand Rapids Christian schools, Calvin College and Calvin Seminary. He was ordained to the ministry in 1933 just 10 years after arriving in this country.

His first charge was in De Motte, Ind., serving four years. Then he was pastor of Second Church of Roseland in Chicago for 6½ years, following which he served Bethel Church in Paterson, N.J., until December, 1949, when he came to Holland. During his charge in Paterson, he made a trip to the Netherlands to escort a group of Dutch emigrants to Quebec.

In addition to English services morning and evening at Central Avenue Church, Rev. Haverkamp conducted a Dutch service every other week. For several years it has been the only Dutch service in the city. There is only one other Dutch service in Holland classis and that is held in East Saugatuck Church. During the postwar years, the influx of Dutch immigrants in this area has increased attendance. For several years, Rev. Haverkamp has been a contributor to the Dutch weekly, De Wachter.

The Haverkamps have two children, Suzanne, a teacher in Zeeland Christian school, and Billy, who attends Central Christian. Mrs. Haverkamp's mother, Mrs. Susie Larooy, has made her home with the family for several years.

John Adams, Saginaw halfback, and Dave Kuyers, Zeeland fullback, are listed one-two in total rushing in the MIAA. Adams has carried the ball 48 times for 321 yards while Kuyers has picked up 247 yards on 46 tries according to four-game statistics released today by John Stommen, MIAA statistician.

In individual total offense, Adams is second behind Olivet's sophomore quarterback Rolland Wahl. Adding five yards passing to Adams' rushing total, the Hope junior has 326 yards. Wahl has 672 yards, 130 by rushing and 542 by passing. Joe Davis, Adrian quarterback, is third with 253 yards, all by passing. Kuyers is fourth with his rushing yardage.

Del Grissen, Holland freshman, is behind Wahl, league passing leader with 16 completions in 41 attempts for 174 yards. John Holmlund Brooklyn, N. Y., sophomore, has thrown 11 out of 32 passes for 181 yards, to take fourth place.

Hope College is the top offensive team with 318.2 average per game, while Hillsdale leads in defense with 120.5 per game. The Dales Bill Alinder is the top punter, booting 14 for 630 yards, and a 45 yard average. Nate Clark of Hillsdale and Ed Bryant of Olivet each have 24 points for top spot. Ed Spala of Olivet has grabbed 18 pass for 104 yards to lead the department.

A folding bleacher arrangement, with more than 8,000 seats was recently installed in Northside (Elkhart, Ind.) High School. The basic units are 14-row bleachers for first floor seats and 24-row sections for balcony areas, the largest riser ever produced by a folding seat manufacturer. When the installation is completed it will contain nearly six miles of boards.

Work began last week on a new physical education building at Western Michigan College in Kalamazoo. The building will include a gym seating 800 for intramurals, swimming pool with seats for 300, classrooms physical education offices, library, visual education room, locker rooms and shower rooms. Basketball will be played in the present men's gym.

Two MIAA coaches, Morely Fraser of Albion and Frank (Muddy) Waters of Hillsdale discussed the conference standing on substitution at a meeting of the Football Writers Association of America in Jackson Tuesday. MIAA schools have ruled players may return to the game in the last four minutes of every quarter, not just the second and fourth, the rule of the NCAA. Fraser said several of his players don't see much action in close games because of inability to go both ways. It was thought when the unlimited substitution rule was put into effect, that the small schools would benefit because the larger schools wouldn't need as many players for specialization.

Fred Stabley, sports publicity at Michigan State College, maintains the theory didn't work because the big schools need more to begin with to be able to choose those who could play both offense and defense.

SPLINTERS: Duane Gebben, former Holland High griddier, has decided to quit football at Western Michigan College because of another knee injury. Gebben has torn cartilage in both knees during spring and fall drills. . . . George Steketee of Holland reported this week he played on the same basketball team with Ivy Williamson, head football coach at Wisconsin. Both high school coaches and members of an independent team at the same time, Steketee was coaching at St. Clair Stores and Williamson at Roseville. . . . But he was quite unprepared for the top billing he received from the kindergarten at Van Raalte School. Mrs. Howard Doustra, the teacher, was asking the youngsters whom they liked best.

Usually the answer is mommy or daddy, but this time the verdict was, "Jesus and Mr. Oosterbaan."

Bob Horner is puzzled about some new government red tape. He recently acquired a new power boat and because it's two feet longer than what it ought to be, he had to have a lot of papers on file with the customs office in Muskegon. After going through a maze of blanks and turning in a well documented report, he paid his $2 fee to record the bill of sale.

What he can't figure out is a lot of blanks about deceased passengers. If he takes out any passengers, he certainly hopes they'll be alive.

Sentinel Publisher W. A. Butler has been made a full-fledged member of the Husbands Protective Association. For a fee of 25 cents, presumably paid by his good friend, he is a member in good standing of HPA and accordingly entitled to one night out each week, and one kind word from his wife each month.

Furthermore, he has a flock of membership blanks to enroll other husbands at 25 cents a throw.

Laft for the day:
Two revelers entered an elevator. The attendant waited. A moment later a woman got in. The first man politely removed his hat. The other was too far gone to remember etiquette.

The attendant closed the doors. "Floors, please," he said. "Three," said the woman. "Seven," said the first reveler. The first nudged his companion. "Your hat," he ordered. The second nodded. "Oh, yes," he hiccupped. "Six and three-quarters."

On Oct. 25 through the 28th the Annual County Extension Agents Conference was held at Michigan State College in East Lansing. President Hannah of Michigan State College addressed the group and explained the growth of our Agricultural College in the State of Michigan. Inspirational speeches were given and 4-H members will note that our program is growing in foreign countries as well. The exchange of personnel to foreign countries in the 4-H program is a goal for each member. Extension agents from Ottawa County attended this four day session.

Project work: Handicraft, electrical, conservation, beef, dairy, swine, sewing, knitting, Jr. Leadership covers most of the project enrollments in the county. At the present time we have 116 enrolled in handicraft and electrical, 243 enrolled in sewing and knitting, and 335 enrolled in conservation. This makes for an active group in 4-H club work. The program has merit and we are urging all clubs to organize and get started in their winter projects.

Marilyn Kraai, 20, Victim of Savage Attack at Hospital

Student Nurse Was Ravaged, Strangled Early Friday Night

KALAMAZOO (Special) — An 18-year-old inmate with a record of sex deviations has confessed the rape-slaying of pretty Marilyn Kraai, 20, of Holland at Kalamazoo State Hospital Friday night.

Kalamazoo County sheriff's officers and state police, after a night of questioning inmates in the slaying of the student nurse, took Louis Maurice Smith of nearby Parchment, to state police district headquarters at Paw Paw for further questioning Saturday and presumably a lie detector test.

The ravished body of the girl was found Friday night by her fellow workers near the hydrotherapy room located in the hospital's basement. It was the first killing in the 60-year history of the hospital, oldest of Michigan's mental institutions.

According to Kalamazoo Detective Gerrit Gerlofs and Kalamazoo Deputy Charles Conner and State Police Detective Victor Beck, Smith was singled out as a prize suspect Saturday. Gerlofs and Conner took him to Paw Paw for a lie detector test, arriving about 9:30.

Soon after they entered the polygraph room, Smith broke down and admitted the crime. Officers said he "broke down and cried and pleaded for someone to help him combat his uncontrollable urge."

Smith said he lured his 20-year-old victim, Marilyn Kraai, Holland, Mich., into the basement of the Kalamazoo hospital by asking her to get his playing cards from the locked hydrotherapy room.

"The room was locked and she was the only one who had the keys," state police quoted Smith. "I followed her down the stairs and was seized with the urge to attack her sexually."

After ravishing the girl's body in a basement waiting room, Smith said he flushed the keys down a drain and dragged her into the hydrotherapy room.

Smith said he saw Miss Kraai sitting at her desk in a first-floor lobby of Michigan's oldest mental institution while he was walking back to his room after supper. He said she readily consented to help him retrieve his playing cards.

While he was following her in the darkened basement, Smith said, he took off his necktie, stole up behind the nurse and looped the tie around her neck.

State police said Smith apparently raped Miss Kraai in the waiting room after the strangling and again in the hydrotherapy room where he dragged her body.

Smith, who sobbed out his confession after only five minutes of questioning, said he locked the door of the hydrotherapy room behind him when he left and went to bed.

A search was started for Miss Kraai when she failed to keep a dinner date with two companion nurses later in the evening. Faint white scuff marks made by white shoes led alarmed hospital authorities to the hydrotherapy room where the body was found.

Smith, who was committed to the hospital last February on a morals charge involving minors, fell under suspicion when it was learned his necktie was missing. The red tie still wound around Miss Kraai's neck when her body was found bore the initials R.H.M.D.

Officials said the initials stand for "Receiving Hospital, Male Division" and could have been worn by either an inmate or an attendant.

It was the first killing in the hospital's 60-year history.

As Miss Kraai locked the door to the hydrotherapy room, the 5'8" blond youth said he got an uncontrollable urge to grab her and put his tie around her neck and strangled her.

He then dragged her into a waiting room about 30 feet away and assaulted her, he said.

Police said the inmate had a record of sex deviations and once was tried, but found innocent, on window peeping charges. He will be turned over to the Kalamazoo prosecutor for further action.

Miss Kraai first was reported missing by two girl friends after she failed to keep a dinner appointment with them in the hospital's cafeteria.

The girls, Betty Kresna and Delores Lee, said they searched for her several hours before they became alarmed and notified the hospital's safety department.

Members of the safety department searched the entire hospital before Gerrit Van Noordloos found the white shoe marks in the basement corridor.

He traced the marks through three locked doors before he discovered the body in the hydrotherapy room.

Miss Kraai's keys were missing. One patient taken into custody and questioned about his movements later was released when it was discovered that none of his ties were missing and he had no keys in his possession.

Miss Kraai's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Kraai, and friends of the slain girl at the hospital said they knew of no attendant or other male friend with whom she kept regular company.

West Olive school planned a party with games for the smaller children and a hayride for the upper grades. Bad weather made them postpone the hayride until a later date.

Local postmaster said the first letter addressed to Santa Claus, North Pole, was received at the post office this week.

Family, Friends Pay Last Respects To Marilyn Kraai

More than 500 persons jammed Sixth Reformed Church Monday afternoon for final rites for Marilyn Kraai, 20-year-old student nurse who was slain by an inmate at Kalamazoo State Hospital Friday night.

Leading the procession were a group of nuns and more than 125 nurses, all in white uniforms and blue capes, who came in cars and buses from Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo, Muskegon and Bay City to pay final tribute to their friend and co-worker. The nurses also formed an honor guard at Pilgrim Home Cemetery.

Marilyn's blue, red-lined cape and her white peaked cap were on the casket along with a small heart-shaped wreath from her parents during the impressive 40-minute ceremony.

The Rev. Henry A. Mouw, church pastor, prayed for the nurse's slayer, asking for a change in heart and that he may confess his sin to his God. He also prayed that vindictiveness be removed from the minds of all the people, and that the healing balm of Jesus Christ enter every sorrowing heart.

Rev. Mouw based his message on John 13:7, in which Jesus said to Simon Peter, "What I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt know hereafter," or from the Standard Revised version, "What I am doing, you do not know now, but afterward you will understand."

"We cannot answer all the questions that have been asked the last few days, but we can always turn to the word of God in simple trust and faith. It is not for me to accuse or excuse the one who committed the deed or to accuse or excuse the hospital where it occurred. It is for us today to hear what God has to say in His revelation. The presence of God cannot be discounted in this tragedy but I cannot help but feel this will be used by Him in some future way to bring honor unto Himself."

Rev. Mouw told the story of a young man who went to the Arabian mission field years ago after attending college and seminary and died unexpectedly after spending three years in language study.

His untimely death made such an impression on a Princeton theological student, one John Van Ess, that he decided to take up missionary work in Arabia. In time, Rev. Mouw said, Dr. John Van Ess became one of the greatest missionary-diplomats of all time.

"When we remember God, there is all the difference in the world between hope and despair. We hope that out of this cruel experience God will raise up others so that the noble profession of nursing will serve humanity in the counterpart of a Dr. John Van Ess. If this is true, then the scripture will be fulfilled."

ARE ELECTIONS

"EDUCATIONAL"?

"But regardless of which party wins, an American election is a people's education in public issues."

In the inevitable post-election discussions, that standby which has almost become a bromide, was heard on the local scene, as it is doubtless was all over America.
In theory, a thoughtful discussion of the issues involved in a national election raises the political IQ of the American people, and intelligence is always desirable, regardless of which particular party rules the nation.

In theory—but a look back at the election campaign that came to a climax on Nov. 2 will inevitably raise some doubts. Both sides in the contest promised to refrain from mud-slinging. To a reasonably non-partisan voter it looks very much as if both parties violated that promise. And mud-slinging can almost never be described as truly "educational."

If we lived in a perfect world, the candidates and their supporters in a political campaign would approach the voters with a calm and coolly reasoned discussion of the underlying principles that separate the two parties. But there would be almost no headline value in such a campaign. It would be "educational!" but would almost certainly be ignored by the voters because of its lack of drama.

We today are not different from the people of any other period in American history. Right down from the days of Washington there has usually been far more mud in a typical campaign than "education." Such a thing as a reasoned discussion of political issues has been extremely rare in the contests of the past.

There have been two exceptions perhaps. One came when the Constitution of the United States was adopted. In a series of discussions now known as the Federalist Papers the people of this country were given what amounted to a post-graduate course in the public issues of the day. Some 75 years later, in the agitation that ended in the Civil War, there was at least a sectional attempt to educate the people in politics. The famous Lincoln-Douglas debates were truly "educational" for the people of the North, at least, so much so that they helped to unite that section in the project of making the United States safe for democracy.

But normally, human nature being what it is, elections are hardly as "educational" as idealists like to believe.

Band Boosters Name
Two New Officers

Members of the Holland Band and Orchestra Boosters Club held a business meeting Monday evening in the band room of Junior High School. Bill Meengs presided.

In a special election, Wilmer Prince was named new vice-president and Mrs. Adrian Klaasen, membership chairman.

Arthur C. Hills reported on sale of concert series tickets and urged all members to sell tickets. The next concert is scheduled Dec. 16.
It was reported that the Boosters cleared $331.25 when they sponsored the appearance of the Harlem Globetrotters at the Civic Center.

A new project—the sale of Christmas trees—was planned with Jim Crozier as chairman and Fred Kobes, co-chairman. Jan. 21 was set as the date for the annual pancake supper, with Andries Stekette as chairman.

A meeting will not be held in December because of the scheduled concert, which members will urge townspeople to attend.

November 14, 1954
A Study in Values
By Henry Geerlings

Proverbs 11:24-28; 13:7; 15:13-17; 30:11, 12; 22:1-4.

The Book of Proverbs in itself is a study in values. It does not take up subjects and discuss them in lengthy arguments. There are but two sides or two ways. There is the right and the wrong, the good and the bad. Matters are put so tersely and convincingly that there is no appeal. There is no shading of issues of white into gray. A thing is either white or black.

The book of Proverbs always keeps before us the fact that we are free moral agents with the privilege and power of choice. We can go this way or that. We can do or not do; and that every day in many ways we are exercising this power of choice. And the book makes it plain that free moral agents do not always choose or do what is the best for their temporal and eternal wellbeing. And with characteristic candor it divides men into two classes, the wise and the foolish.

The wise are those who use their intelligence and judgement, weigh matters that present themselves and choose for their best interests.
They take all factors into consideration, the present stress and the future good. The foolish, on the other hand, look only to the temporary pleasure or profit as they see it and forget the future and the eternal.

One would naturally think that the vast majority would follow the course of the wise, but it appears that the opposite is true. These facts are of vital importance to us to know and be guided by them.

Great names are not always good names. In our own generation such names as Mussolini, Hitler, Stalin, Roosevelt, Truman have all had some degree of fame attached to them. But no one would dare to say that in every case their names stood for peace or goodness. Alexander was called the Great but his name shall ever be remembered with all that stands for slain armies and war orphans. Herod was known as the Great but his name will be remembered for horrible infanticide.

The name of Stalin spelled death to over three million innocent farmers. Brave heroes of the cross fled through the darkness of night into the yawning maws of the Roman catacombs at the mention of the name of Nero. The pages of human history are stained with infamous names connected to deeds of treachery, crime, persecution, violence or destruction. It would have been better if such people had not been born.

Birth names may have little or no significance. The name a child receives in no way determines his character. It may fix his environment but never his destiny. Some of earth's most godly characters have come from obscure families.
Abram was called out of the evil idolatrous Ur of the Chaldees to be the friend of God. Cain and Abel had the same parents and shared the same home life. One became the first martyr and the other the first murderer.

Jacob and Esau came from the same family yet the faith and reverence of Jacob won the love of Jehovah and the sacrifice of Esau earned for him a futile repentance.
Birth names mean nothing and fortunately they do not determine character. However, as a person travels through life his acts and his character become attached to his name. History will not so much recall where he came from but rather what he was and what he did.

Poverty like riches is a moral test. The limitations imposed are a strong temptation to secure the world's goods by means other than by honest toil. He who under such pressure remains true and steady develops moral character of the highest type. Poverty is not, as the friends of Job maintained, evidence of the disfavor of God, any more than riches are proof of His approval.

Poverty is of two types. First, there is the poverty which men earnestly try to avoid, which comes as a result of sickness or misfortune. The Old Testament regards this as undesirable, but not as blameworthy.

Then there is the other type, accepted deliberately because the lifework chosen is such that riches cannot be amassed. Many ministers of the gospel or missionaries belong to this class. Their income is usually small, their expenses heavy and the demands of the needy made upon them are greater than their limited resources can meet. Such workers, though poor in purse, are rich toward God. Christ and the apostles belong to this class. Being poor they made many rich.

Holland Rotarians See
Shooting Demonstration

Safety with firearms was emphasized at the Rotary Club meeting Thursday noon at the Warm Friend Tavern when Sgt. Lester Coykendall, state policeman from Rockford, was guest speaker.

Sgt. Coykendall gave a shooting demonstration and a lesson on how to handle firearms.

A member of the state police since 1931 and a sergeant since 1950, Sgt. Coykendall's extraordinary ability has put him much in demand for shooting demonstrations. He shoots through a bulls-eye by aiming at a reflection of the mark in a mirror, slices playing cards edgewise, snuffs out candles

Nativity Scene
Fund Over Top

The Nativity Scene fund, sponsored by the Holland Junior Chamber of Commerce, went over the top Tuesday with gifts listed at $1,503.28, just a few dollars over the goal of $1,500.

Secure in the belief that the neago, and the order has arrived in Holland. Jaycees are currently working out plans for setting up the scene in Centennial Park and for a simple presentation program.

Gifts ranged all the way from two cents to $100, but most of the amount came through individual gifts from people, many of whom contributed through special groups such as Sunday School classes and other organizations. Any excess amounts will be put into a special fund to be used for the project year after year.

ZEELAND (Special) — Zeeland scored 27 points in the second overtime an early Comstock Park lead and defeated the Parksters, 41-13. A small crowd witnessed the final Chix contest.

Behind 13-7 in the second quarter, Art Klamt, junior halfback, broke away three times for runs of 58, 52, and 22 yards. Never completely in the clear, the Chix halfback had to fight off tacklers on every run. The fourth touchdown in the quarter came on a 46 yard pass play from Eugene De Jonge, quarterback, to John Faber, halfback.

Comstock Park scored first. Nyle Spaulding, halfback, punched over from the three yard line following a 70 yard drive. Klamt began his galloping shortly after the kickoff. He scampered 52 yards for a touchdown but a clipping penalty nullified the run and placed the ball on the 20. Faber passed to De Jonge for the score on the next play.

Wally Wier, Comstock Park fullback, took the first scrimmage play following the kickoff and went 66 yards to score. The extra point attempt was good.

Holland Women Attend State Library Meetings

Four Holland women were in Detroit last week to attend the Michigan Library Association Conference program at Hotel Statler Nov. 3 through 6.

Attending were Mrs. Hazel Hayes, city librarian, and library trustees, Mrs. O. S. Cross, chairman of the library board, Mrs. Edward Donovan and Mrs. Henry Steffens. Mrs. Donovan also attended as Holland High School librarian.

The group attended a trustees luncheon Thursday noon, followed by a discussion, Friday afternoon the trustees made a tour of three libraries, East Detroit Public Library, Grosse Pointe Public Library, and Jefferson Branch, Detroit Public Library. All are new buildings, completed within the last couple of years. Tea was served at the Grosse Pointe library.

Mrs. Hayes was a member of a panel on adult education, along with a Detroit discussion group, and also served on the resolutions, membership and state aid committees.

Outstanding program of the affair was Friday evening, when William L. Shirer, author and commentator, spoke on "The World Today." He is author of "Berlin Diary" and has lived most of his adult life in Germany.

He discussed the United States, Germany and Russia in the world situation. He said Americans are quick to become confused and frustrated when things we don't approve occur in world affairs. He said we had cause to be perturbed at the Geneva conference, which was a great success for the Communists but did nothing to help democracies.

Germany, he said, is a virile, intelligent, hardworking nation which is already the strongest power in continental Europe. He said we need not fear that Germany will ever go communistic, but they could possibly join with Russia by way of the German Nationalists. He said Nazism is far from dead, and Adenauer knows it, although he's doing everything possible to keep Nationalism under control. The speaker had tremendous praise for Adenauer. A recent poll taken in Germany shows Germans thought Nazism was a good idea, but poorly carried out, he said.

About Russia, he said, we have not the faintest conception of Russian strength and that by 1956, Russia could start a war, but probably won't. He said the two great powers—Russia and U.S.—are so evenly balanced they don't dare to move. We do have an edge on Russia in two things, he said—bases from which to operate, plus allies on whom we can depend.

He said we are living in one of the greatest ages of history, and as Americans we have to have, first of all, unity; second, clear heads, and third, a stout heart.

WARM FRIEND TAVERN

HOPE BACK STOPPED — Tom Carey, Hope College left halfback, is about to be brought down by an unidentified Albion College tackler. Action took place in the Hope-Albion football game Saturday at Riverview Park. Hope guard, made a futile attempt to stop the onrushing tackler. Two other Britons are coming up fast to assist in the tackle. Action took place in the Hope-Albion football game Saturday at Riverview Park. Hope won the game 25-6.

Dutch Upset Gives Britons First Loss In League Action

Scoring in every quarter, Hope College pulled the biggest upset in the MIAA so far this season Saturday afternoon, knocking off Albion 25-6 at Riverview Park. The Britons went into the game with a six game winning streak, including the last four straight in the MIAA.

Prior to the game Albion was tied with Hillsdale for the MIAA lead. Hillsdale defeated Adrian, 26-31, to take sole leadership. Hope now has a 3-2 record, tied for third with Kalamazoo. The Hornets squeezed by Alma 21-20, Saturday.

Hope's upset plans began taking effect immediately after the starting whistle. Dave Kuysers, Zeeland sophomore fullback, received the handoff on the first scrimmage play and tore off tackle 46 yards to the Briton 19. Hit several times, the husky back stayed on his feet until Lloyd Conklin, Albion halfback, caught Kuysers' jersey and pulled him down. Conklin's hold ripped the jersey and it had to be replaced.

Kuysers' run had started on the Hope 35. Bob Hoeckse, senior end, took the kickoff on the Dutch 30 and returned five yards. Ron Wetherbee, freshman, and the other half of the Zeeland backfield combination, shot off tackle on the next play into the Albion end zone. Only 53 seconds of play had elapsed. Don Van Hoeven kicked the extra point.

Hope scored again with 14 seconds left in the first half. John Holmlund, looking his best this season, hit John Adams on a 28-yard pass play. Adams faked out two Albion defenders on the Briton 12, and pranced for the score. A high pass from center prevented Van Hoeven's extra point attempt.

The touchdown pass was set up by Kuysers' pass interception on Albion 35. Kuysers ran the ball to the 28 and on the first play Hope scored. Earlier in the quarter the Dutch had moved to the Albion five but lost the ball on downs, and shortly after had advanced to the eight, but fumbled and Albion's Jim Bishop recovered on the Briton 11. Hope had received the ball both times on Albion punts.

The passing combination of Holland and Adams struck again with 2:50 of the third quarter gone. Hope with Wetherbee carrying, took an Albion punt from the Hope 24 to the Dutch. Holmlund tried the pass the first play.

This time it covered 64 yards. Adams caught the ball on the Albion 38 yard line and went all the way. Van Hoeven's extra point attempt was no good.

Hope punted to Albion's 33 on the last play of the third quarter. The Britons started at that point and scored their only touchdown. Murray, senior halfback, climaxed the 67 yard drive sweeping left end for six yards. Longest gain in the drive was an 18 yard pass from Dick Derr to Murray. Albion's extra point attempt was wide.

The Dutch struck again after taking the kickoff. Dick De Freese, Kalamazoo sophomore, returned the kick to the Hope 35 from the 25. Holmlund, following a two yard off guard gain by De Freese, passed to Wetherbee. The Zeeland halfback ran 50 yards to the Albion 18 where he was brought down from behind by Murray.

Two plays later Holmlund completed a touchdown pass to Mert Vander Lind, freshman quarterback, but a holding penalty nullified the touchdown and moved the ball back to the Albion 33.

Hope turned a bad break into a good one seconds later. Holmlund's pass was intercepted by Virgil Hall on the Briton 20. He ran out to the Albion 22 where he fumbled and Bill Heydorn, Dutch co-captain, recovered. Adams carried for five to the 15 and then De Freese took over. Hitting the center three times, he crashed over on the third try. Don Vander Toll, Dutch co-captain, missed the extra point attempt. The final touchdown was made with six minutes to go.

The game ended with Albion, playing against Dutch reserves, getting to the Hope 13 yard line. Lineups:

Pamphlets, etc., on United Nations: "Fifty Facts on the United Nations"; Specialized agencies of the U.N., Armistice in Korea; "Helping the People to Help Themselves"; "Use the United Nations in Your Teaching—A Guide for Teachers"; "United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation"; Flags of all nations (in color, with text) "U.N.—What it is, What it Does, How it Works"; "U.N. Record and Prospects."

Those people who had the privilege of hearing Mr. Trygve Lie speak, will want to read his book "In the Cause of Peace," and those who were unable to be present at his lecture, should read it, in order to discover what manner of man this is who filled the important post of secretary-general at the inception of the United Nations.

The history of the United Nations from its birth to the present day, is a vast and important subject, and it was a great undertaking to write it. Mr. Lie has done it, and done it one might say, almost perfectly. It would be easy for such a book to become a chronicle of dry facts and statistics, but the author's own humanity runs through the story like a bright thread. Mr. Lie combines the keen brain of a business man with the statesman's long view of events, and adds to this a high moral purpose and enthusiasm for his subject, and especially when accompanied, as in this case by modesty.

There are 24 chapters in this book, each one a thrilling story in itself. Mr. Lie opens on a simple note. He is having breakfast with his family on Christmas morning, in the Norwegian mountains. They have been for a ski run in the sparkling snow and they see through the window a solitary figure approaching their lodge. It was Knut Aamellom, a farmer who took care of their cabin, and he brought an invitation from the Foreign Ministry to become the first president of the General Assembly of the United Nations. Mr. Lie goes on to recount clearly and briefly the many ups and downs attending the final choice of Mr. Spaak as president, and how he came to accept the post of First Secretary General.

One of the most interesting chapters deals with the selection of the site for the United Nations building, how it was financed, and designed, furnished and decorated, and of the gifts and services of the member nations. It was a wonderful achievement, but Mr. Lie emphasizes that it was only the beginning.

He visited countries all over the world in the course of his duties, and presents a clear and sometimes touching picture of many of the underdeveloped countries, but without any undue sentimentalism. The Korean War, Iranian Entanglements, the Palestine Armistice, the Balkan Dilemma, the issue of Chinese Representation, are some of the matters treated of in the various chapters, and every word is worthy of attention.

All through the book Mr. Lie makes the point that the U.N. is more than just a vast police force, pledged to give financial and military aid to small countries. He emphasizes that in the U.N. every nation has equal rights, and suggests that backward countries can be helped by simple agricultural tools and instruction in how to use them, rather than by large schemes of mechanized farming. He makes the point too, that it is better for the expert to remain on his own ground and instruct nationals from other countries. To sum up, the whole tone of the book indicates that Mr. Lie believes the usefulness of the U.N. lies rather in making known the living conditions of one country to another, and helping each country to help another, than in large schemes of military and financial aid.

While in the mood for large affairs, it would be interesting to read Judge William O. Douglas' "An Almanac of Liberty." Starting with the Declaration of Independence Mr. Douglas has made an almanac of important events in the history of the United States. In clear, non-technical language he gives pictures of such events as Lincoln's stand on slavery, the Supreme Court decision on segregation in the public schools, etc., and underlines the significance of these events and the manner in which they can guide our national conduct today.

For the interest which Mr. Lie's visit will have sparked in the U.N. there is a wealth of information in the shape of booklets, pamphlets, skits etc., to be obtained at the library, a number of which are listed at the head of this column. Nor are the young people forgotten. They are important, for the fate of the United Nations lies largely in their hands. "Partners—The United Nations and Youth" by Eleanor Roosevelt and Helen Ferris, is a fine book. Well illustrated, and with the flags of the United Nations in color in the frontispiece, this is a very personal book, telling stories about real people, and showing how the U.N. helps refugees, displaced persons, and orphans all over the world. "United Nations, N.Y." by Dorothy Sterling tells the story of the United Nations Building. For the younger child, "How the United Nations Works" by Tom Galt, illustrated most amusingly by Norman Tate tells the story of the U.N. in simple language.

LONG-TIME CITY MANAGER—Phillip H. Beauvais (shown looking at map of Allegan) will be honored as one of the pioneer city managers at the international meeting of city managers in St. Petersburg, Fla., Dec. 8. Beauvais has been city manager of Allegan for the last seven years and has had a big hand in its municipal growth.

Allegan City Manager Will Receive Unique Honors at Florida Confab

ALLEGAN (Special) — Phillip H. Beauvais, Allegan's first and only city manager, the fellow who "wouldn't last two months" will receive international honors in St. Petersburg, Fla., on Dec. 8 as the only active city manager with 25 years service.

And seven of those years were spent in Allegan on the heels of a long, bitter battle to adopt a council-manager charter.

A week after his arrival here, those "in the know" agreed that Beauvais wouldn't last one year out. He was "too brusque didn't know the first thing about getting along with people."

But with seven years in Allegan under his belt—no longer than he has served in any other city—the skeptics have long since turned to admirers. "He may be a rugged individualist," they say, "but he gets things done."

Seven years is a long tenure for city managers. Nationally, their average stay is about three years. The closest Beauvais himself ever reached that mark was the six years and three months he spent at Manistique, in the Upper Peninsula.

Born in Muskegon, Beauvais' father was a colorful French-Canadian who came to Michigan in 1870, worked first as a timber cruiser and land-looker. Later he supervised timber booms a job that led him to undertake construction of Muskegon's first piers.

This job led to underwater diving, and Phillip Beauvais was born into the largest family of divers on the Great Lakes. One of his earliest recollections is that of sitting on a raft in Muskegon harbor, watching for the air bubbles from the diving suits of his father and two brothers. By the time he was 15 he was a diver tender. At 18 he became a regular diver to whom two five-hour dives a day was not unusual.

He graduated from Muskegon high school in 1904 and worked with his family until, in 1907 he joined the Army Corps of Engineers. Beginning as a diver on harbor projects at Michigan City, St. Joseph and South Haven, he worked himself up to assistant engineer. Working on the Ludington breakwater, he was promoted to engineer in time to construct the first sections of the breakwater at Manistique.

In 1916 he left the Corps of Engineers to enter into a partnership construction firm which built the final sections of the Mainstreet breakwater. When this job was done in 1918 he agreed to stay on to become Manistique's first city manager. Only six years before, in Sumpter, S.C. the nation's first council-manager charter had gone into effect. Two years later, following a disastrous flood, Dayton, Ohio, had become the first large city to employ a manager and Col. H. M. Waite, of the Army Engineers, had been given the job. It was Waite who had recommended that Beauvais take the Manistique job.

At the time, there were only 27 city managers in the United States and Canada, none of whom are living today. After 33 years at Manistique, Beauvais accepted the managership at Royal Oak, a village which had just become a city with a population of 3,200 in 1921. Four years later and five months later, when he left, Royal Oak had 32,000 people.

From 1931 to 1936 he was in private practice as an engineer. Among his projects of that period were the design and construction of the road through the dunes, the parking oval and beach at Saugatuck, and waterworks at Northport and Bear Lake.

In February, 1936, he went to Manistique as manager and city engineer and stayed for six years and three months. This was followed by nearly four years at Alma, until September 1947, when he received the bid to come to Allegan.

Looking back on his career as a pioneer city manager, Beauvais feels it was a "toss-up between Allegan and Royal Oak" in which town offered the greatest challenge. "At Royal Oak we started from scratch, everything needed," he said.

At Allegan, Beauvais found an older city with utilities and public works that had "just grew, like Topsy." Most municipal facilities were inadequate. The past seven years saw him at work on rebuilding the waterworks, adding to electric power facilities and modernizing all city departments. Last year the city council published a report on the accomplishments of the first six years under a city manager and it took a 12-page tabloid size newspaper to list them all.

And now, in early December, Mr. and Mrs. Beauvais will be combining business with one of their infrequent vacations when they travel to St. Petersburg for the annual conference of the International City Managers' Association. At the Dec. 8 banquet Beauvais will receive a unique award as the association's only surviving city manager whose appointment dates back to those pioneering days of 1918.

Author Describes Rugged Life on Isolated Island

A wonderfully entertaining account of rugged life on an isolated island in northern Ontario plus an explanation of "what makes a writer a writer" was presented for Woman's Literary Club members Tuesday afternoon by Richard Morenus of Fennville, author of "Crazy White Man" and "Northland Adventure."

The former radio script writer who sold his first story for $5 at the age of 12 and "had to write" from that time on got "fed up" with the demanding life of a radio script writer in New York City and decided to leave civilization for the wilds of Canada, where he remained for several years.

Morenus said that the debut of radio in 1926 was the "answer to a frustrated writer's dream" and he, along with others, took to writing the daytime serials. For some time Morenus charted the fate of such famous characters as Orphan Annie, Young Widder Brown, Helen Trent, residents of Hilltop House and others. And although he'll "never know why," women continued to listen to them day after day.

He described the serials from a writer's viewpoint as "dialogue by misdirection" in which conversational replaces plot. It's actually tricky writing, he said, because the story can never end, or the show is over. Two given reasons for the popularity of such shows are "vicarious adventure" and "escape from humdrum life."

The author's experiences on his island were far from those he expected to endure. The man who admittedly "dislikes work of any kind" worked from sunup to sundown just to keep alive and was on the island for two years before he produced even a literary word.

He amused his audience with one anecdote after another describing his problems and hardships in the 67-degree-below-zero temperatures and blizzards. His biggest problems that first winter were keeping his cabin stoves burning and procuring water. "It was a monotonous succession of wood and water for seven months," he said.

The strange quirks of the Ojibwa Indians, their strange philosophy which prevents them from doing evil unto others because then someone would do the same to them and their sense of humor which was enhanced by the author's mistakes and gave him his "Crazy White Man" name were woven into the author's amusing stories.

After that first winter, they helped him in many ways to learn the tricks of existence. They figured if a man "lived" through the first winter by himself, he was "worth saving," Morenus said.

The author's three Alaskan huskies were topic of more interesting stories, besides being a "problem" to their owner.

His six years of pioneer living at a close, Morenus now spends his time writing and lecturing, besides teaching extension writing courses for the University of Michigan. He was introduced to the club by Mrs. Bruce van Leuwen, president.

Miss Carol Kuiper of Hope College presented information on the Hope College Concert Series which begins Saturday and Mrs. van Leuwen announced the next meeting of the Public Affairs committee will be held next Tuesday. John Donnelly of Holland Hospital board will discuss "What the New Hospital Will Do for You."

Ottawa Farm News

Richard Machiele, Ottawa County Agricultural Agent, Because of the good response we have had from our Christmas tree producers our bills of sale we had on hand did not last very long. We have ordered a new supply and they will be sent out to those who requested them as soon as we receive them. I might emphasize that anyone transporting six or more Christmas trees must have a bill of sale in triplicate signed by the producer.

The Agricultural Committee of the Board of Supervisors is meeting with Dr. Wise this week to discuss the Bang's retesting program in Ottawa County. More funds are available and another retest is possible in the near future. Dr. Wise reports that cooperation by farmers in Ottawa County was excellent. He found no cases at all where the farmer objected to a Bang's test on his herd. I think we should help and encourage this program as much as we possibly can and become an accredited county as soon as possible. A program of testing, selling reactors, vaccinating calves between the ages of four to eight months by a licensed veterinarian will help drive this disease out of the county.

With winter and cold weather on the way chances are that you may have more mastitis occurring in your herds. One of the main causes of mastitis is the injury to cow udders plus a chilling due to lying on cold, damp bedding. In my mind mastitis is one of the greatest problems the dairy farmer has today.

We know a good many 4-H members have their beef calves and have started the feeding program. In order to do a good job with these calves it is necessary to keep them on good dry feed from now on until milking time. By all means calves that are fed for show should not be put to pasture, if you wish to make the best possible finish on your calf at sale time next year. It will take about two weeks to get him on full feed. Start out by placing two pounds of coarsely ground oats and corn in his feed box the first day. Every two or three days this may be increased another half pound until the calf is on full feed. The question is often asked, "What is full feed?" The rule of the thumb on full feed is considered two pounds of feed per 100 pounds body weight per day. Water is your cheapest feed and a supply of clean, fresh water is absolutely necessary. Soybean meal, linseed meal and cottonseed oil meal are the three standard protein supplements to balance the ration. A rule of the thumb for feeding protein is 2 lbs. per steer per day.

Housewives having trouble growing house plants may find this is due to using water from their water softener. The trouble is an oversupply of sodium. House plants will not tolerate as much sodium as is found in the softeners. Your best bet is to use rain water or distilled water.

We have mentioned a number of times the excessive runoff due to our heavy rains this past fall. We have some figures from the college farm near Augusta which says nearly 40 percent of a 3-inch rainfall during Oct. 1 to 4 ran off unprotected sloping land on which corn was grown but less than 10 percent got away from Alfalfa-brome or wheat-red clover plots. Data also shows seeding wheat and legumes drilled across the slope retained more water than the fields seeded up and down the slope. If you have no farm plan I think you owe it to yourself and to the folks that will follow you to have one made as soon as possible. J. Bill Miller, Soil Conservation service technician for the West Ottawa Soil Conservation service, Post Office, Grand Haven, will be more than happy to come out and help you with your plans. Just drop him a note.

HOPE BACK STOPPED—Tom Carey, Hope College left halfback, is about to be brought down by an unidentified Albion College tackle. Don Vander Toll, (61), Hope guard, made a futile attempt to stop the rushing tackler. Two other Britons are coming up fast to assist in the tackle. Action took place in the Hope-Albion football game Saturday at Riverview Park. Hope won the game 25-6. (Sentinel photo)

Dutch Upset Gives Britons First Loss In League Action

Scoring in every quarter, Hope College pulled the biggest upset in the MIAA so far this season Saturday afternoon, knocking off Albion 25-6 at Riverview Park. The Britons went into the game with a six game winning streak, including the last four straight in the MIAA.

Prior to the game Albion was tied with Hillsdale for the MIAA lead. Hillsdale defeated Adrian, 26-31, to take sole leadership. Hope now has a 3-2 record, tied for third with Kalamazoo. The Hornets squeezed by Alma 21-20, Saturday.

Hope's upset plans began taking effect immediately after the starting whistle. Dave Kuyers, Zeeland sophomore fullback, received the handoff on the first scrimmage play and tore off tackle 46 yards to the Briton 19. Hit several times, the husky back stayed on his feet until Lloyd Konklin, Albion halfback, caught Kuyers' jersey and pulled him down. Konklin's hold ripped the jersey and it had to be replaced.

Kuyers' run had started on the Hope 35. Bob Hoeksema, senior end, took the kickoff on the Dutch 30 and returned five yards. Ron Wetherbee, freshman, and the other half of the Zeeland backfield combination, shot off tackle on the next play and into the Albion end zone. Only 53 seconds of play had elapsed. Don Van Hooven kicked the extra point.

Hope scored again with 14 seconds left in the first half. John Holmlund, looking his best this season, hit John Adams on a 28-yard pass play. Adams faked out two Albion defenders on the Briton 12, and pranced for the score. A high pass from center prevented Van Hooven's extra point attempt.

The touchdown pass was set up by Kuyers' pass interception on Albion 35. Kuyers ran the ball to the 28 and on the first play Hope scored. Earlier in the quarter the Dutch had moved to the Albion five but lost the ball on downs, and shortly after had advanced to the eight, but fumbled and Albion's Jim Bishop recovered on the Briton 11. Hope had received the ball both times on Albion punts.

The passing combination of Holland and Adams struck again with 2:50 of the third quarter gone. Hope with Wetherbee carrying, took an Albion punt from the Hope 24 to the Dutch. Holmlund tried the pass the first play.

This time it covered 64 yards. Adams caught the ball on the Albion 38 yard line and went all the way. Van Hooven's extra point attempt was no good.

Hope punted to Albion's 33 on the last play of the third quarter. The Britons' started at that point and scored their only touchdown. Murray, senior halfback, climaxed the 67 yard drive sweeping left end for six yards. Longest gain in the drive was an 18 yard pass from Dick Derringer to Murray. Albion's extra point attempt was wide.

The Dutch struck again after taking the kickoff. Dick De Freese, Kalamazoo sophomore, returned the kick to the Hope 35 from the 25. Holmlund, following a two yard off guard gain by De Freese, passed to Wetherbee. The Zeeland halfback ran 50 yards to the Albion 18 where he was brought down from behind by Murray.

Two plays later Holmlund completed a touchdown pass to Mert Vander Lind, freshman quarterback, but a holding penalty nullified the touchdown and moved the ball back to the Albion 33.

Hope turned a bad break into a good one seconds later. Holmlund's pass was intercepted by Virgil Hall on the Briton two. He ran out to the Albion 22 where he fumbled and Bill Heydorn, Dutch co-captain, recovered. Adams carried for five to the 15 and then De Freese took over. Hitting the center three times, he crashed over on the third try. Don Vander Toll, Dutch co-captain, missed the extra point attempt. The final touchdown was made with six minutes to go.

The game ended with Albion, playing against Dutch reserves, getting to the Hope 13 yard line. Lineups:

Fiction: (Adult) "A Time to Love and a Time to Die" by Erich Remarque, "Away All Boats" by K. Dodson (real stirring adventure), "Black Power" by R. Wright.

Pamphlets, etc., on United Nations: "Fifty Facts about the United Nations"; Specialized agencies of the U.N., Armistice in Korea; "Helping the People to Help Themselves"; "Use the United Nations in Your Teaching—A Guide for Teachers"; "United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation"; Flags of all nations (in color, with text) "UN—What it is, What it Does, How it Works"; "UN. Record and Prospects."

Those people who had the privilege of hearing Mr. Trygve Lie speak, will want to read his book "In the Cause of Peace," and those who were unable to be present at his lecture, should read it, in order to discover what manner of man this is who filled the important post of secretary-general at the inception of the United Nations.

The history of the United Nations from its birth to the present day, is a vast and important subject, and it was a great undertaking to write it. Mr. Lie has done it, and done it one might say, almost perfectly. It would be easy for such a book to become a chronicle of dry facts and statistics, but the author's own humanity runs through the story like a bright thread. Mr. Lie combines the keen brain of a business man with the statesman's long view of events, and adds to this a high moral purpose and enthusiasm for his subject and clear honesty—a rare combination, especially when accompanied, as in this case by modesty.

There are 24 chapters in this book, each one a thrilling story in itself. Mr. Lie opens on a simple note. He is having breakfast with his family on Christmas morning, in the Norwegian mountains. They have been for a ski run in the sparkling snow and they see through the window a solitary figure approaching their lodge. It was Knut Aasmellom, a farmer who took care of their cabin, and he brought an invitation from the Foreign Ministry to become the first president of the General Assembly of the United Nations. Mr. Lie goes on to recount clearly and briefly the many ups and downs attending the final choice of Mr. Spaak as president, and how he came to accept the post of first Secretary General.

One of the most interesting chapters deals with the selection of the site for the United Nations building, how it was financed, and designed, furnished and decorated, and of the gifts and services of the member nations. It was a wonderful achievement, but Mr. Lie emphasizes that it was only the beginning.

He visited countries all over the world in the course of his duties, and presents a clear and sometimes touching picture of many of the underdeveloped countries, but without any undue sentimentalism. The Korean War, Iranian Entanglements, the Palestine Armistice, the Balkan Dilemma, the issue of Chinese representation, are some of the matters treated of in the various chapters, and every word is worthy of attention.

All through the book Mr. Lie makes the point that the U.N. is more than just a Vast police force, pledged to give financial and military aid to small countries. He emphasizes that in the U.N. every nation has equal rights, and suggests that backward countries can be helped by simple agricultural tools and instruction in how to use them, rather than by large schemes of mechanized farming. He makes the point too, that it is better for the expert to remain on his own ground and instruct nationals from other countries. To sum up, the whole tone of the book indicates that Mr. Lie believes the usefulness of the U.N. lies rather in making known the living conditions of one country to another, and helping each country to help another, than in large schemes of military and financial aid.

While in the mood for large affairs, it would be interesting to read Judge William O. Douglas' "An Almanac of Liberty." Starting with the Declaration of Independence, Mr. Douglas has made an almanac of important events in the history of the United States. In clear non-technical language he gives pictures of such events as Lincoln's stand on slavery, the Supreme Court decision on segregation in the public schools, etc., and underlines the significance of these events and the manner in which they can guide our national conduct today.

For the interest which Mr. Lie's visit will have sparked in the U.N. there is a wealth of information in the shape of booklets, pamphlets, skits etc., to be obtained at the library, a number of which are listed at the head of this column. Nor are the young people forgotten. They are important, for the fate of the United Nations lies largely in their hands. "Partners—The United Nations and Youth" by Eleanor Roosevelt and Helen Ferris, is a fine book. Well illustrated, and with the flags of the United Nations in color in the frontispiece, this is a very personal book, telling stories about real people, and showing how the U.N. helps refugees, displaced persons, and orphans all over the world. "United Nations, N.Y." by Dorothy Sterling tells in photographs and text the story of the United Nations Building. For the younger child, "How the United Nations Works" by Tom Galt, illustrated most amusingly by Norman Tate tells the story of the U.N. in simple language.

Allegan City Manager Will Receive Unique Honors at Florida Confab

ALLEGAN (Special) — Phillip H. Beauvais, Allegan's first and only city manager, the fellow who "wouldn't last two months" will receive international honors in St. Petersburg, Fla., on Dec. 8 as the only active city manager with 25 years service.

And seven of those years were spent in Allegan on the heels of a long, bitter battle to adopt a council-manager charter.

A week after his arrival here, those "in the know" agreed that Beauvais wouldn't last one year out. He was "too brusk didn't know the first thing about getting along with people."

But with seven years in Allegan under his belt—no longer than he has served in any other city—the skeptics have long since turned to admirers. "He may be a rugged individualist," they say, "but he gets things done."

Seven years is a long tenure for city managers. Nationally, their average stay is about three years. The closest Beauvais himself ever reached that mark was the six years and three months he spent at Manistique, in the Upper Peninsula.

Born in Muskegon, Beauvais' father was a colorful French-Canadian who came to Michigan in 1870, worked first as a timber cruiser and land-looker. Later he supervised timber booms a job that led him to undertake construction of Muskegon's first piers.

This job led to underwater diving, and Phillip Beauvais was born into the largest family of divers on the Great Lakes. One of his earliest recollections is that of sitting on a raft in Muskegon harbor, watching for the air bubbles from the diving suits of his father and two brothers. By the time he was 15 he was a diver tender. At 18 he became a regular diver to whom two five-hour dives a day was not unusual.

He graduated from Muskegon high school in 1904 and worked with his family until, in 1907 he joined the Army Corps of Engineers. Beginning as a diver on harbor projects at Michigan City, St. Joseph and South Haven, he worked himself up to assistant engineer. Working on the Ludington breakwater, he was promoted to engineer in time to construct the first sections of the breakwater at Manistique.

In 1916 he left the Corps of Engineers to enter into a partnership construction firm which built the final sections of the Mainstreet breakwater. When this job was done in 1918 he agreed to stay on to become Manistee's first city manager. Only six years before, in Sumpter, S.C. the nation's first council-manager charter had gone into effect. Two years later, following a disastrous flood, Dayton, Ohio, had become the first large city to employ a manager and Col. H. M. Waite, of the Army Engineers, had been given the job. It was Waite who had recommended that Beauvais take the Manistee job.

At the time, there were only 27 city managers in the United States and Canada, none of whom are living today. After 31 years at Manistee, Beauvais accepted the managership at Royal Oak, a village which had just become a city with a population of 3,200 in 1921. Four years later, when he left, Royal Oak had 32,000 people.

From 1931 to 1936 he was in private practice as an engineer. Among his projects of that period were the design and construction of the road through the dunes, the parking oval and beach at Saugatuck, and waterworks at Northport and Bear Lake.

In February, 1936, he went to Manistique as manager and city engineer and stayed for six years and three months. This was followed by nearly four years at Alma, until September 1947, when he received the bid to come to Allegan.

Looking back on his career as a pioneer city manager, Beauvais feels it was a "toss-up between Allegan and Royal Oak" in which town offered the greatest challenge. "At Royal Oak we started from scratch, everything needed," he said.

At Allegan, Beauvais found an older city with utilities and public works that had "just grew, like Topsy." Most municipal facilities were inadequate. The past seven years saw him at work on rebuilding the waterworks, adding to electric power facilities and modernizing all city departments. Last year the city council published a report on the accomplishments of the first six years under a city manager and it took a 12-page tabloid size newspaper to list them all.

And now, in early December, Mr. and Mrs. Beauvais will be combining business with one of their infrequent vacations when they travel to St. Petersburg for the annual conference of the International City Managers' Association. At the Dec. 8 banquet Beauvais will receive a unique award as the association's only surviving city manager whose appointment dates back to those pioneering days of 1918.

Author Describes Rugged Life on Isolated Island

A wonderfully entertaining account of rugged life on an isolated island in northern Ontario plus an explanation of "what makes a writer a writer" was presented for Women's Literary Club members Tuesday afternoon by Richard Morenus of Fennville, author of "Crazy White Man" and "Northland Adventure."

The former radio script writer who sold his first story for $5 at the age of 12 and "had to write" from that time on got "fed up" with the demanding life of a radio script writer in New York City and decided to leave civilization for the wilds of Canada, where he remained for several years.

Morenus said that the debut of radio in 1926 was the "answer to a frustrated writer's dream" and he, along with others, took to writing the daytime serials. For some time Morenus charted the fate of such famous characters as Orphan Annie, Young Widder Brown, Helen Trent, residents of Hilltop House and others. And although he'll "never know why," women continued to listen to them day after day.

He described the serials from a writer's viewpoint as "dialogue by misdirection" in which conversational replaces plot. It's actually tricky writing, he said, because the story can never end, or the show is over. Two given reasons for the popularity of such shows are "vicarious adventure" and "escape from humdrum life."

The author's experiences on his island were far from those he expected to endure. The man who admittedly "dislikes work of any kind" worked from sunup to sundown just to keep alive and was on the island for two years before he produced even a literary word.

He amused his audience with one anecdote after another describing his problems and hardships in the 67-degree-below, zero temperatures and blizzards. His biggest problems that first winter were keeping his cabin stoves burning and procuring water. "It was a monotonous succession of wood and water for seven months," he said.

The strange quirks of the Ojibwa Indians, their strange philosophy which prevents them from doing evil unto others because then someone would do the same to them and their sense of humor which was enhanced by the author's mistakes and gave him his "Crazy White Man" name were woven into the author's amusing stories.

After that first winter, they helped him in many ways to learn the tricks of existence. They figured if a man "lived through the first winter by himself, he was 'worth saving.'" Morenus said.

The author's three Alaskan huskies were topic of more interesting stories, besides being a "problem" to their owner.

His six years of pioneer living at a close, Morenus now spends his time writing and lecturing, besides teaching extension writing courses for the University of Michigan. He was introduced to the club by Mrs. Bruce van Leuven, president.

Miss Carol Kuiper of Hope College presented information on the Hope College Concert Series which begins Saturday and Mrs. van Leuven announced the next meeting of the Public Affairs committee will be held next Tuesday. John Donnelly of Holland Hospital board will discuss "What the New Hospital Will Do for You."

Ottawa Farm News

Richard Machiele
Ottawa County Agricultural Agent
Because of the good response we have had from our Christmas tree producers our bills of sale we had on hand did not last very long. We have ordered a new supply and they will be sent out to those who requested them as soon as we receive them. I might emphasize that anyone transporting six or more Christmas trees must have a bill of sale in triplicate signed by the producer.

The Agricultural Committee of the Board of Supervisors is meeting with Dr. Wise this week to discuss the Bang's retesting program in Ottawa County. More funds are available and another retest is possible in the near future. Dr. Wise reports that cooperation by farmers in Ottawa County was excellent. He found no cases at all where the farmer objected to a Bang's test on his herd. I think we should help and encourage this program as much as we possibly can and become an accredited county as soon as possible. A program of testing, selling reactors, vaccinating calves between the ages of four to eight months by a licensed veterinarian will help drive this disease out of the county.

With winter and cold weather on the way chances are that you may have more mastitis occurring in your herds. One of the main causes of mastitis is the injury to cow udders plus a chilling due to lying on cold, damp bedding. In my mind mastitis is one of the greatest problems the dairy farmer has today.

We know a good many 4-H members have their beef calves and have started the feeding program. In order to do a good job with these calves it is necessary to keep them on good dry feed from now on until milking time. By all means calves that are fed for show should not be put to pasture, if you wish to make the best possible finish on your calf at sale time next year. It will take about two weeks to get him on full feed. Start out by placing two pounds of coarsely ground oats and corn in his feed box the first day. Every two or three days this may be increased another half pound until the calf is on full feed. The question is often asked, "What is full feed?" The rule of the thumb on full feed is considered two pounds of feed per 100 pounds body weight per day. Water is your cheapest feed and a supply of clean, fresh water is absolutely necessary. Soybean meal, linseed meal and cottonseed oil meal are the three standard protein supplements to balance the ration. A rule of the thumb for feeding protein is 2 lbs. per steer per day.

Housewives having trouble growing house plants may find this is due to using water from their water softener. The trouble is an oversupply of sodium. House plants will not tolerate as much sodium as is found in the softeners. Your best bet is to use rain water or distilled water.

We have mentioned a number of times the excessive runoff due to our heavy rains this past fall. We have some figures from the college farm near Augusta which says nearly 40 percent of a 3-inch rainfall during Oct. 1 to 4 ran off unprotected sloping land on which corn was grown but less than 8 percent got away from Alfabrome or wheat-red clover plots. Data also shows seedling wheat and legumes drilled across the slope retained more water than the fields seeded up and down the slope. If you have no farm plan I think you owe it to yourself and to the folks that will follow you to have one made as soon as possible. J. Bill Miller, Soil Conservation service technician for the West Ottawa Soil Conservation service, Post Office, Grand Haven, will be more than happy to come out and help you with your plans. Just drop him a note.

114 Traffic Cases Handled Through Juvenile Court

GRAND HAVEN (Special) — A total of 114 cases were processed by the traffic division of Ottawa County Juvenile court for the three months ending Sept. 30, Traffic Referee Avery D. Baker announced today.

Baker, who is county agent for Juvenile court in Ottawa County, was appointed to the traffic post by Probate Judge Frederick T. Miles, and the program was instituted last June. The program is in keeping with new state laws passed by the legislature in October, 1953. The law also provides for periodic visits by a representative of the Secretary of State's department to examine traffic violators and who revokes and suspends licenses and in other ways disposes of repeat offenders.

Reasons for referral follow: speeding, 28; no operator's license, 27; improper turn or pass, 11; disobeyed stop sign, 10; reckless driving, 8; failure to have car under control, 7; failure to yield right of way, 6; violation of restricted license, 3; miscellaneous (defective muffler, expired license, straight pipe, allowing unlicensed person to drive, unnecessary noise, etc.) 10.

The cases were disposed of as follows: probation, 71; warned and dismissed, 23; license suspended, 10; miscellaneous (referral to county of residence, cited to Secretary of State, restricted use of vehicle, etc.) 10.

Cases were referred to Baker from the following: Holland police, 32; sheriff's department, 25; Grand Haven police, 23; state police, 18; Zeeland police, 9; Spring Lake township, 5; conservation department, 2.

Commenting on the report, considerable number of youngsters Baker noted that there was a cited for having no operator's license, second highest on the report. He emphasized that parent are cautioned to check with their local police and sheriff's department concerning when youngsters may legally drive a car and be properly licensed.

Most juveniles represented in the report are first violators so far as official records are concerned. Therefore, suspensions were not so high as might be expected, but were sufficiently high to alert youngsters driving cars that they would be dealt with accordingly.

Rep. Ford Hits Bad Comic Books

GRAND HAVEN (Special) — U.S. Rep. Gerald Ford, Jr., told 150 law enforcement officials and guests here Thursday night that many comic books on sale on newsstands are absolutely abominable and something must be done to prevent the distribution of this kind of trash.

"Congress can and probably will tighten the use of mails for interstate transportation of this kind of material," he added. "I expect something drastic will come from Congress in this regard."

Ford's comments on comic books were part of a talk on juvenile delinquency given at the annual meeting of the Western Michigan Law Enforcement Association in American Legion clubhouse. There are 13 counties in the association.

Ford said juvenile delinquents have not received the attention the broad problem deserves and predicted that the federal government must step in certain areas, and give more attention to preventing crime than in spending money caring for the confinement of those convicted.

Chief Lawrence De Witt, president of the association, introduced the toastmaster, City Manager R.V. Terrill. Prosecutor James Bussard introduced Ford. Mayor Claude Ver Duin also spoke briefly.

Musical numbers were under the direction of Harold Rau, new director of Grand Haven school orchestra, and Al Burgess of the high school music department. Women were presented with gardenia corsages.

Chief Robert Reed of Alma was elected third vice president, and Robert Dugan, deputy sheriff of White Cloud, was named secretary-treasurer, succeeding Corp. BOB WHITE

Bob-White Quail Is Good Neighbor

Here is a bird beloved by sportsmen, bird watchers, farmers, artists and musicians and probably disliked by no one. It has been codded, persecuted, neglected, studied, protected by law and by popular opinion, fed, starved, helped and hindered.

It has vanished from much of its original range, increased in numbers in some areas, established itself and been introduced in others.

It stays by its home territory the year round and survives fire, heat, storm, flood, snow and ice. It needs to be better understood and the National Wildlife Federation in part through this sort of article hopes to help toward that end.

The bob-white quail is about 11 inches long with a wing-spread of about the same amount. It may weigh up to nine ounces but commonly has about a six ounce weight. It has a short tail, a generally mottled brown appearance with light underparts and rather conspicuously contrasting light and dark areas on the head and throat. Where the male is black on the head the hen is brown.

The range of four subspecies covers most of the United States, these subspecies including the Florida, the Key West, the Texas and Eastern. Its enemies are man, foxes, birds of prey and disease but its greatest numbers may be reached in areas where its enemies are abundant if ample cover is available for the needed protection.

Under intelligent management and strict following of known rules providing survival, it may maintain itself with suitable harvestable surpluses. Its value as a destroyer of insects and weed seed, as an inspiring songster and as a friendly neighbor must not be overlooked in any evaluation of its qualities.

A pair of bob-white may remain as mates for over a year even though the cock may find it necessary to win his bride each year. The cock bird builds the nest on the ground though several birds may use a common nest. The hen lays from 7 to 28 eggs just over an inch long and these are incubated by both birds for 23 to 24 days. The average hatch is about 86 percent of the eggs laid.

Library Adventures

By Arnold Mulder

The award of the Nobel Prize to Ernest Hemingway has a special significance for Michigan. As a youth Hemingway spent much time in this state, and his sister lives in Petoskey. He used a Michigan background for his first published book, "Torrents of Spring."

But of far greater interest even to Michigan readers of the Nobel Prize winner is the fact that the award once more emphasizes how great a revolution has taken place in the attitude of the American readers, including those living in Michigan, toward the novel.

Ernest Hemingway was born in 1898. Only three years before his birth, British Thomas Hardy's novel, "Jude the Obscure," created a sensation all over America. As compared with most of Hemingway's novels, it is almost like a Sunday school story. But before it could be published in America it had to be so greatly emasculated that Hardy hardly recognized his own brain-child.

A well known contemporary critic, Jeannette Gilder, was not far from faithfully expressing the mass opinion of her country after reading this novel. She testified as follows: "I opened the windows and let in the fresh air, and I turned to my bookshelves and said: Thank God for Kipling and Stevenson, Barrie and Mrs. Humphrey Ward. Here are four great writers who have never trailed their talents in the dirt."

But when Hardy died in 1928, the same year in which Ernest Hemingway won national attention with his "Farewell to Arms," his novels, including "Jude the Obscure," were to be found in the most respectable libraries all over America, and the readers of this country joined with their English cousins in doing honor to him as the Grand Old Man of English literature.

By that time the revolution was complete. Young Ernest Hemingway had played only a small part in the winning of the battle. Such writers as Theodore Dreiser and Sinclair Lewis and John Dos Passos and others had borne much more of the brunt of the conflict. The one thing that was not in doubt was that the literary atmosphere of this country had undergone a complete change.

The Dreisers and their kind were perhaps even less important in bringing on the change than many influences that had nothing to do with literature. The social mores of America went through a revolution that swept away the vestiges of Victorianism which had persisted in this country a decade or two after they had faded out in England.

Whether that revolution was good or bad is a question that will continue to be debated for a long time. That debate does not affect the fact that the revolution has actually taken place. When Ernest Hemingway was born near the turn of the century even the mildest of his novels could not have been published in this country. Today he is awarded the Nobel Prize and his books are in good standing in the most respectable circles.

The almost complete turnover is a revolution in reading, not in writing. There have been changes in technique also, but they are of minor importance. The revolution in substance, in what the readers will accept and pay for, is sensational. And it was the readers, not the writers, who caused that revolution. We readers have made Ernest Hemingway and his kind possible.

Dog Notes

By Peter Boggs Forgiveness

This story today not only is well worth telling, but it shows one of the finest if most pathetic traits of a dog. The trait is forgiveness.

The average dog will forgive his loved master for any ill treatment and will not cease to be a loyal friend. Thus, we humans must be all the more careful not to forgive us. We should treat them at least as well as they treat us. That is only fair, isn't it? We should not be cruel, just because we know we shall be forgiven.

John Carr, of Philadelphia, was accused of beating his little white poodle unmercifully and without cause. The case came before Judge Jacob Dongue, in the besides his master and humbly little dog jumped up on the chair besides his master and dumbly licked Carr's hand. Said Magistrate Dongue to the prisoner:

"It looks as if the dog forgives you. But I don't. Thirty days for you in the workhouse."

To me that seems like an ideally good bit of justice, meted out by a wise magistrate. Just because a dog is sublime enough to forgive inhuman cruelty, there is no reason why we fellow-humans should forgive it or fail to punish it.

Many thousands of men are racking their brains for an excuse to drop work or go shooting. For the hunting season is here. And the hunting dog—from rabbit hound to highbred pointer or setter—is coming into his brief season of glory. Will you sportsmen listen to a few sane "commandments" as to your dogs, from a man who has hunted everything from squirrel to deer? Here goes:

1st: Don't "take out" on your dog your crankiness for your own bad shooting.

2nd: Remember your dog's feet are not shod with iron and that he is not wearing a suit of armor. If a few fast hours over stiff stubble and through murderous briars put him temporarily out of business, don't force him to go on. Call it a day and quit.

3rd: The dog, which perhaps has had no regular exercises for nearly a year, wears down in course of time if you keep him too steadily in the field. Take pity on his tired muscles.

4th: Fast going for hours, coupled with the excitement of the chase, makes him crave water to drink. See that he gets it.

5th: Look to his pads and to his possible scratches at the end of the day.

Winter Quarters

Now is the time to check your pet's winter sleeping quarters. Dogs can stand almost any amount of cold weather providing they are dry and free of any drafts. Then regardless of how cold it becomes, your dog will not suffer from the chilly winter weather.
