CRS, Tribrook Meet With Hospital Staff

By Kristi Jo Knoll

Caudell Rowlett Scott from Houston, Tex., Tribrook Group Inc., of Oak Park, Ill., and the staff and department heads of Holland Hospital have been conferring last week on plans for the hospital Expansion Renovation Program.

The cost of the program is approximately $12.9 million. The program is the result of an October, 1974 master plan for the growth of Holland Hospital. Based on the master plan, the aim of City Council and the Board of Trustees of the hospital is to solve present physical plant inefficiencies, with regard to the current State Public Health Department's annual review.

The problems and needs have been identified based on the present program as well as anticipated programs for Holland Hospital. The two companies and the medical staff and department heads this week have been working together in the development of the construction to find solutions to the needs.

Frank Glass, vice president of CRS, explained the process of gaming and the use of "scatter" boards. The boards are drawings of the floors and departments to be built or renovated and the rooms are drawn to scale. These are placed on the board and rearranged to meet the needs of the staff and department heads.

In this process of gaming and using "scatter" boards, Glass stated the doctors and staff help plan the hospital that is best suited to their needs rather than having a firm draw up plans and say "this is your hospital." He said the functional aspect of the building is the first preference in the planning and the architectural aspect is second.

The rooms and areas of the hospital that are being worked on are surgery, patient beds, intensive care, coronary care, expansion of the emergency department, relocation and expansion of the lab, physical therapy, obstetrics and adding a psychiatric nursing center.

The program will take five years to complete. The first step is the planning which takes about one year. Construction is expected to begin no sooner than April 1977 and completion by 1980.

Early next summer construction is expected to begin on the parking lots and the third floor shell will be finished.

Sunday School Lesson

Sunday, Nov. 9
"Struggling with Pride and Jealousy"
Genesis 37:3-11, 17-24
By C. P. Dame

Many thinkers are concerned about the American family. Problems abound. Family problems have a long history. The absence of love causes many conflicts and troubles. This lesson teaches that one sin leads to another.

I. A family reaps what it sows. The style of living which Jacob's family followed created conflicts, envy and troubles. Joseph is the main character of chapter 37. Jacob had 12 sons. Joseph was the 11th, the son of Rachel, his favorite wife with whom he fell in love at first sight. Rachel was the mother of two, Joseph and Benjamin. Jacob showed his love to Joseph by giving him a coat of many colors. This was unwise of Jacob. He repeated the sin of his parents. Isaac loved Esau, Rebekah favored Jacob. Joseph had the graciousness of his mother and that appealed. He was obedient to his father. He showed it when his father told him to look up his brothers.

Joseph was unwise in telling about his dreams which foretold his future greatness. He was only 17. His brothers forgot their follies, when they were that old. Jacob had given when he saw the misdeeds of his brothers he reported it to his father. Joseph was an honest lad, on the whole, his brothers were a rough lot. The condition of the family fostered ill feeling, envy, conflicts. One father and four mothers and children promoted a life style contrary to God's will.

II. One sin leads to another. One day Jacob sent Joseph to look up his brothers and their flocks. Obediently Joseph went a distance of 50 miles to Shechem and then 15 miles to Dothan, 65 miles in all. As soon as the brothers saw him they planned to kill him. Envy and hate led to the idea of murder. Reuben suggested throwing him in a pit, hoping to rescue him later. After they had done this they sat down to eat and drink. Brothers can be cruel—these were. When some Ishmaelites happened to pass by, Judah suggested selling Joseph to them and they carried him to Egypt where God used him. God used the hate and envy and cruelty, plotting and selling done by sinful men and overruled all, and the same God is still working in this materialistic, grasping, greedy world.

"Not to be outdone by any spy handbook, National Geographic World, the new children's magazine, reveals in the October issue the fundamentals of writing secrets in invisible ink, codes, and ciphers.

"George Washington, who knew a good spy message when he saw one, might also recognize the cryptographer's basic tools the magazine shows how to make: a simple alphabet sliding strip and a message wheel for writing and deciphering secrets.

"The Father of Our Country also frequently resorted to a baffling series of decimal points and numbers, somewhat like the dot-dash telegraph code, to communicate with his spies behind the Redcoats' lines.

"Even more than ciphers, invisible ink intrigued him. Many of his messages from his spies can still be read—though just barely—at the Library of Congress.

"A code substitutes one word for another. Benedict Arnold's wife helped betray the secrets of West Point, the Americans' fort on the Hudson River, by corresponding with a British agent with letters full of innocent-sounding hatching terms as though the two only were interested in ladies' millinery.

"Strictly speaking, a cipher spells out its message in a jumble of letters or numbers that can only be unscrambled with the help of a key or sometimes a deciphering device or machine.

"Some ciphers may be merely a lot of numbers grouped, perhaps, into three's. In a certain book or document known only to the writer and receiver of the message—the Bible, the Declaration of Independence, or a specific day's daily newspaper—the first number may represent a page, the second a line of type, the third a specific word on the line.

"Deciphering can be brain-busting, but rewarding. So far, however, arduous computations haven't rewarded anyone with Thomas Jefferson Beale's buried treasure. It's nearly three tons of gold, silver and jewels, supposedly an old Spanish treasure brought from California.

"Beale cryptically left word he had buried it in Virginia in 1822, and the whereabouts hides in a page of numbers. In more than 100 years, many claim they have broken the cipher, but no one has yet found the treasure.

Holland Township Starts New Office

Ground was broken Tuesday for a $222,145 modern office building for Holland township along 120th Ave. immediately south of the present township offices.

The one-story building of face brick and anodized aluminum fascia will contain 6,826 square feet of space and house the township departments and a board room with seats for 100 persons.

Township supervisor Jacob Jongekrijg said the building has been under study since 1974 when a building committee was appointed to look into needs for a larger township office. Completion is scheduled for May of 1976.

Lakewood Construction Co. is the general contractor and architects were Vander Meiden, Koteles & Associates, Inc.

Focal point of the building will be the octagonal board room on the southwest corner with a hallway running the full length of the building.

Separate offices will be provided for the water department and the treasurer. The clerk's office, supervisor, building inspector, recreation department and assessor will be in a large office landscaped area.

Parking will be provided for 28 cars.

Financing of the new building is through an improvement fund and federal revenue sharing funds.

Jongekrijg said no plans have been made for the disposition of the existing township offices which served as a school years ago.

Members of the building committee included Gerrit Van Kampen, Leonard Fought, Gordon De Jonge, La Verne Johnson and John Jager.

Questers Hear Talk On Centennial Home

By Mrs. Jesse Vanderburgh

The Christine Van Raalte Chapter of Questers met at the home of Mrs. Harry Wendt, 14503 West James St. for their October meeting on Monday evening.

At the entrance drive a large-sized lighted, smiling pumpkin, amid old lanterns and corn stalks, greeted the 19 members upon arrival.

The business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Harry Friszel, the vice president.

The evening's program was on "Home Pictures" narrated by Lavina Cappon and her sister Christine DeVries and to go with it were beautiful photographs of their home, past and present.

The Cappon home was built in the year 1873, two years after the Holland fire. Isaac Cappon, Lavina and Christine's father, was born in The Netherlands and he came to America as a young lad. He later acquired a tanning business near the present downtown area.

The Centennial home in Holland is one of the few still maintained and inhabited by the original family and is indeed worthy of note and preservation. The downstairs ceilings are 12½ feet high with molded plaster art around the center ceilings above the chandeliers.

The woodwork throughout the house is beautiful in two-toned stylized ash and Circassian walnut woods. The newest post and spindle on the 21-step staircase leading upstairs are hand-carved. All the hardware, keys and hinges are made of decorative brass.

Originally the homesite had wooden sidewalks. The house with its window-arches contained 10 rooms: five bedrooms upstairs and parlor, sitting room, dining room, kitchen and another bedroom down stairs, which is now the carport. On the property there was also a horsebarn, ice house and woodshed which is now the carport.

A picket fence encircled the property and upon its gradual decay was replaced with a de-cast iron fountain also was in the yard as well as a tennis and croquet court.

Their horses were used for riding and driving and for sleighs in the winter. Wood and coal fires kept the house warm years ago and these have been replaced first by oil and now by gas.

There were five children in the family. Lavina and Christine taught home economics in Holland and at other Michigan schools.

Refreshments were served from a table with an October motif, fall foliage with orange mums partly encircled with three lighted antique glass oil lamps and these were in staggered sizes. The committee included Mrs. Wendt, Mrs. Percy Kinkema and Mrs. Jesse Vanderburgh.

The November meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Jane Lampen in Zeeland.

Mrs. Kenneth Jay Pyle

Beth Ellen Hunderman and Thomas Bolt Volkema were married Saturday afternoon in rites performed by the Rev. Henry Van Wyk in Drenthe Christian Reformed Church. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hunderman, 6594 Adam St., Zeeland, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Shirley Volkema of 805 Pioneer Ave., Holland.

For her wedding, the bride selected a candlelight handknit polyester floor-length gown in princess style, with interwoven design in the front bodice and long sleeves and at the wide hemline. A crochet shell effect marked the wide standup collar and cuffs. A camelot headpiece held her floor-length veil of double illusion. She carried an all-white bouquet of sweetheart roses, stephanotis, feathered carnations and baby's breath.

Miss Michele Yerkey as bridesmaid wore a wine color gown of polyester crepe, featuring back yoke with softly gathered fullness, long full sleeves and small standup collar. She wore a matching headband and carried a colonial bouquet of feathered carnations, strawflowers and baby's breath in shades of wine, pink and white. Identical ensembles were worn by the bridesmaids, Miss Karen Hunderman, Miss Mary Volkema and Mrs. Pam Terpsma.

Mrs. Linda Brouwer was the bride's personal attendant. Attending the groom were Bob Rosendahl as best man; Ryan Hunderman, Tim Volkema and Herman Zinnen as groomsmen, and Steve Hunderman and Rod Hunderman as ushers.

The reception following the ceremony took place at Carousel Mountain Lodge. Mr. and Mrs. Doug Nienhuis assisted as master and mistress of ceremonies; Jane Volkema served at the punch bowl, and Mrs. Carol Overweg, Miss Lisa Peters and Miss Betty Slagh were in charge of the gift room. Miss Pat Slagh attended the guest book and Miss Karen Peters and Gregg Peters were program attendants. Mrs. Maryann Spiemaker was guitarist during the reception.

The newlyweds will be at home at 54 West Ninth St. following a northern honeymoon. The bride is employed as an LPN at Holland Hospital and the groom, a student at Grand Valley State College, is employed in the Holland Hospital clinical laboratory.

On Friday evening, the groom's mother was hostess for a rehearsal dinner at Holiday Inn. Pre-nuptial parties for the bride were given by Mrs. Carol Overweg and Miss Pat Slagh; Mrs. Arlene Timmer and Mrs. Tina Ter Haar; Mrs. Barb Nienhuis, Jane and Mary Volkema; Mrs. Linda Brouwer and Mrs. Pam Terpsma.

Wedding vows were exchanged Saturday afternoon in First United Methodist Church by Miss Sue E. Easterbrook and Kenneth Jay Pyle. Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Howard Easterbrook of 493 Marcia Lane and Mr. and Mrs. Reynold Pyle of 318 Roosevelt, Zeeland.

The rites were read by the Rev. Darwin Salisbury, with music provided by Rick Carlson and Inge Waage.

In the wedding party were Debra Carlson as maid of honor; Yvonne Tjolina and Laurie Grassmid as bridesmaids; Kerri Kimball as flower girl; Craig Miller, who attended the groom as best man; Bob Pyle and Gord Poll as groomsmen, and Larry Pyle and Terry Grassmid as ushers. Linda Monroe was the bride's personal attendant.

Venice lace accented the bride's gown of white nylon sheer over taffeta. The gown was styled with modified empire waist, pin tucked bishop sleeves and a high neckline. The lace accented the squared bodice and trimmed the bell skirt with lace edging at the hemline. Matching lace edged the chapel-length mantilla veil. The bride's bouquet included sweetheart roses, baby's breath and stephanotis.

Bridal attendants wore gowns of pink tulle with empire waists and long sleeves. Maroon velvet with flowered edging trimmed the gowns. They wore picture hats and carried sweetheart roses with pompons and baby's breath.

Holiday Inn was the scene of the reception following the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Easterbrook were master and mistress of ceremonies; Judy and Ben Kimball served at the punch bowl, and Linda Monroe was in charge of the guest book. Gifts were arranged by Linda Pyle and Debra Fiekema.

Following a Florida honeymoon, the newlyweds will live in Holland. The bride is employed at High Q Electric and the groom, at Harman International Industries, Inc. A rehearsal dinner was held at First Reformed Church in Zeeland.

Metropolitan Choir Will Present Voice of Freedom

The premiere performance of The Voice of Freedom by the Metropolitan Choir of Praise of Grand Rapids will be presented on Saturday, Nov. 22 at 8 p.m. in the Civic Center.

This patriotic program, the first ever presented by the choir is sponsored by the Holland Bicentennial Commission.

A program of two hours incorporates both favorite selections and new musical features of patriotic theme and words. Special musical instruments will accentuate the climatic highlights of many of the numbers.

The concert is under the direction of Peter J. Vanden Bosch of Holland and a former Grand Rapids resident for 25 years, who organized and directed the Metropolitan Choir of Praise for the past 12 years. In 1950 he became organizer-director of the Kings Choraliers of Grand Rapids.

This is the first time in its 13-year history that the Metropolitan Choir will premiere its opening performance outside of Grand Rapids. The 142 member choir is composed of both male and female personnel from all walks of life. Many are a husband and wife combination.

The familiar strains of the music of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," "This is My Country," "America the Beautiful" will be delightfully brought into retrospect, with the great deal of pageantry used in the production. One of the new inspiring compositions is a new series of songs "What Price Freedom."

The scenes around which the music is based promise to be breathtaking, as a photodrama depicting scenic America will be projected on duo screens and set the background for the beautiful patriotic words of America Our Heritage.

A scene with effective stage settings will portray President Lincoln presenting the Gettysburg Address, at the close of which the 142-voiced choir will sing the Battle Hymn of the Republic. Another dramatic moment will be played during the rendition of the concert as a military honor guard in full dress uniform will present arms as the flag of Iwo Jima takes place in a setting depicting the rocky South Sea Islands.

Another outstanding piece of pageantry aided by unusual stage lighting is the massive reproduction of the Statue of Liberty against a background of a large 50 star American flag setting the stage for the presentation of the choral group of "Give Me Your Tired, Your Poor."

Following additional patriotic choral numbers, the program will conclude with the audience joining the choir in singing "God Bless America."

For this presentation during the Centennial Year the choir will appear in new red, white and blue apparel. Unique and special lighting effects will be used throughout the entire two-hour production.

Following the premiere concert, the choir is scheduled to appear in Washington, D.C., at National Presbyterian Church and at Catholic and Protestant services at the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis. They will also present a concert at the combined conventions of the National Religious Broadcasters Association and the National Association of Evangelicals in Washington, D.C. Another appearance will be made in one of the large churches of Midland Park, N. J.

The veteran organ master, Alvin Ritsema of Grand Rapids, will accompany the choir as he has done for the past nine years. He also served as accompanist for the Kings Choraliers and as organist for several Grand Rapids area churches. He is a Calvin College alumnus.

Tickets are available at Ottawa Savings and Loan, City Treasurer, First National Bank, People's State Bank, Vandenberg Motors Inc., and members of the Holland Exchange Club.

Coach Mary Colenbrander's squad is now 3-1 in the league compared to Northern's 2-2 slate. For the year, the Chix are 8-2.

Zeeland had quarter leads of 13-4, 25-14 and 42-23.

Co-captain Pam Kraai, who made a nifty move for two points in the contest, suffered a knee injury and according to Colenbrander, will probably be out of action for more than a week.

Kraai, the daughter of hard-hitting softball star Al, didn't seem to mind being on crutches for a week but was upset with the timing.

She said, "Oh! why did it have to happen with Halloween coming up."

The Chix handed Northern its first reserve defeat of the season, 27-22.

National Folk Ballet Adds Spice to Holland

By Constance Allen
Holland's Civic Center resounded Sunday night with the sound of rhythmically pounding feet. The Klompen dancers? No, the National Ballet of Mexico brought another cultural spice to Holland with folk dances and songs from all sections of Mexico.

The audience reaction and participation was greatest to dances and music that are most typical — marimba, maracas and dances such as the ones from the southern area of Chiapas.

The finale catered to that feeling and with a medley of dances from Veracruz brought the audience to their feet. The piece featured a section of heel pounding a cappella.

The efforts of the dancers and musicians combined to make a medium-sized crowd make all the noise of a full house.

Audience reaction was generally cool to the more technical and demanding dances of Indian origins. Where the folk dances performed by the company relied on simple steps and turns, colorful costumes, rhythmic music, "Venado" or

Zeeland Society Tours Historic Marshall Sites

A group of 40 members of the Zeeland Historical Society traveled to Marshall on Saturday, Oct. 25, as guests of the Marshall Historical Society for a special tour of eight historic properties.

Marshall was founded in 1839 when a group of people, mostly from New York state saw that it might become the capital of Michigan. They brought doctors, lawyers, and well-educated families with them, people who appreciated fine homes and well-designed furniture.

When tiny Lansing was chosen as the capital, Marshall slept for many years, which helped to preserve the homes and neighborhoods. Today many of these structures are listed in the National Register of Historic Places and in the Historic American Building Survey.

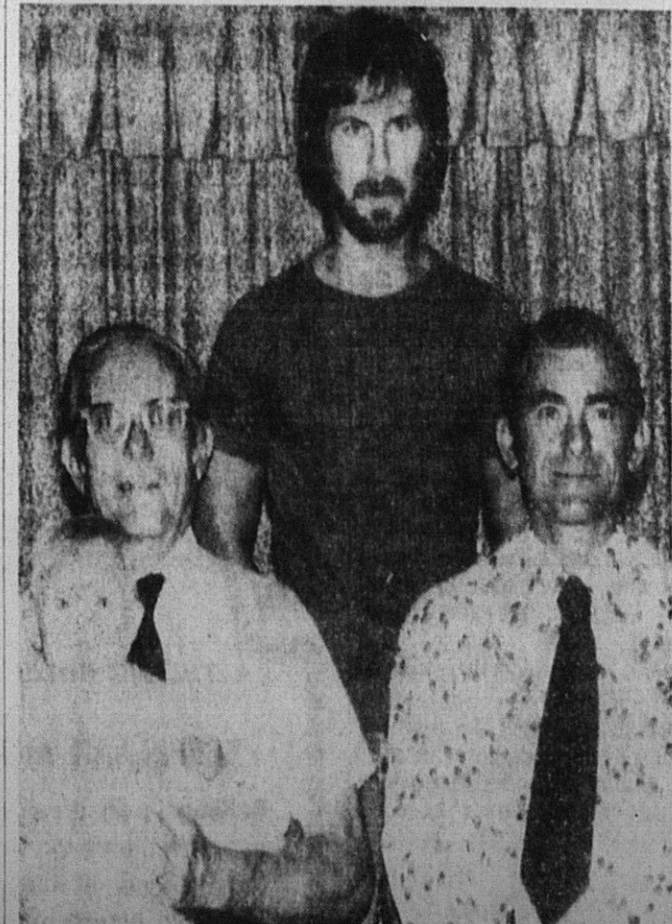

Miss Susan Jones and John

J. Collins were guides for the Zeeland group. Three quasi-public buildings were opened: the Capitol Hill School, 1860, recently restored with annual home tour profits; the 1839 Governor's Mansion, which was to be the governor's home and is now the Marshall DAR headquarters, and the 1860 Honolulu House, the most unique structure in Marshall.

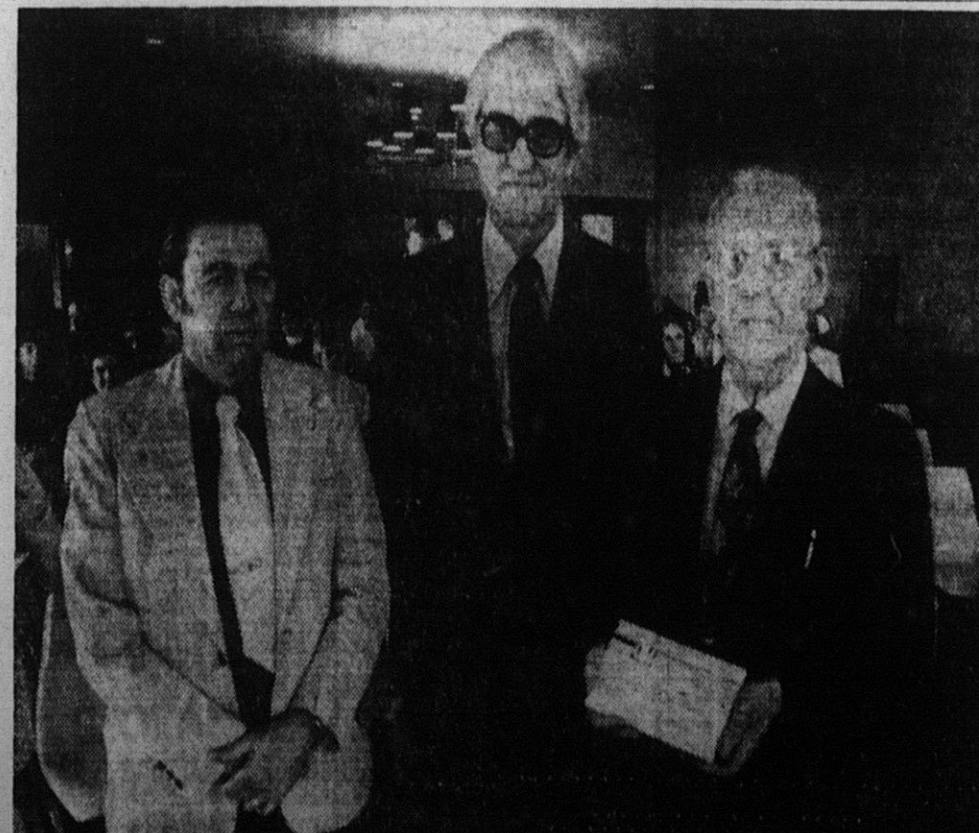

Five private homes were opened for the tour: The 1841 Hasbrouk House modeled after the New York Huguenot stone homes, and occupied by the Max Bushongs; the tiny brick 1838 Greek Revival home of the Charles Brooks; the 1857 Gothic Revival home of the Creighton Shermans, with an exceptional collection of clocks; the charming yellow and white 1887 Queen Anne owned by the Norman Kinneys, and Oakhill, an 18-room Italian villa, built in 1858 on a stunning hilltop site. The present owners are an industrial designer-interior decorator couple who have restored much of the house with many original pieces and period wallpapers.

The private tour allowed the Zeeland group to spend a half hour or more at each site, ask questions, compare pieces of furniture and styles of homes.

Arrangements for the bus tour were made by Mrs. Millie Wiersma, Mrs. Dorothy Voss and Mr. Collins.

Contemporary Art Talk Treat for Century Club

By Barbara Timmer
Monday night, surrounded by the contemporary art in the De Graaf Tadolow Art Gallery, members of the Century Club and their guests were treated to a most informative talk by Daniel De Graaf, director of the gallery.

Mr. De Graaf, also director of the Forsythe Gallery in Ann Arbor, divided his discussion into six main topics, beginning with, "Why does art need to be marketed when everyone is selling pictures?" He stated that in an economy of condominiums and mass-type living, art is the means of expressing one's individuality and that good art is a rather scarce commodity.

Secondly, the De Graaf Tadolow Gallery is in Holland because this is a "challenging community" and a good central location for those in the mid-west who are interested in buying good contemporary art.

In discussing "How to behave in a private gallery in one hard lesson," Mr. De Graaf suggested that one enter a gallery with the idea of discovering new things, not necessarily to reaffirm a preconceived idea.

Under the fourth heading, "The evolution of the viewer," Mr. De Graaf said that since art is visual, not verbal, the viewer should look through his or her own eyes to broaden visual sensitivity, analyze the concept of the artist, and above all, be aware of the beauty of the art, relative to a personal sense of aesthetics.

Entitling his fifth point, "An introduction to some people who would prefer not to meet you," Mr. De Graaf figuratively introduced the audience to the artists whose works were on exhibition in the gallery. These artists are already secure in their profession and have no need or desire to defend their art verbally.

Appropriately, the last subject concerned, "Where do we go from here?" Mr. De Graaf is committed to serving living artists who need and are worthy of support, and he has given many young artists their start by exhibiting their work.

The gallery is at present open to collectors on an appointment basis or for a specific exhibit which will be well publicized in advance.

Guests included Bernard Bartelink, noted organist from Haarlem, The Netherlands, Tomas Paichl, Hope College student from Vienna, Austria, Dr. and Mrs. Lamont Dirks and Dr. and Mrs. Clarence De Graaf.

Mr. and Mrs. Randall C. Bosch made the social arrangements, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Butler, Mrs. Kenneth De Pree, Mrs. Gerald Bolhuis, Dr. Paul Fried, Dr. and Mrs. W. Arendshorst, Mr. and Mrs. E. Donivan and Mrs. Stanley Tiesenga.

She estimated three years would be sufficient to teach language. But she was aware that non-English speaking children are not all in the kindergarten and lower grades, and the bilingual program must remain flexible to meet the needs of new arrivals at all levels.

She emphasized that for the Anglos, learning a few Spanish words may well give an appreciation for the difficulty that the Latino child is experiencing in learning English. She said mastery of Spanish for English speakers is not a goal of the program.

Washington, Lincoln and Federal schools have been designated bilingual schools for English and Spanish. An aide will be provided for every 20 children of limited English-speaking ability.

In general, Mrs. Manker said the aim is to teach English all day long, and that the bilingual program in no way is to be regarded as a crutch for the Spanish-speaking children, since it could handicap a child by not expecting the best from him. She said the goal for the bilingual child should be the same as the goal for the monolingual child: prepare him to be the best he can be.

Bilingual Program Set For Schools

A position paper on bilingual education in Holland public schools prepared by Christina Manker, director of bilingual education, was presented to the Holland Board of Education at its regular meeting Monday night.

The basic philosophy of such a program in which the board concurred calls for children of limited English-speaking ability to be taught the concepts of his dominant language while learning English, and then to proceed with his education in the English language as soon as he has mastered the necessary vocabulary to do so.

In other words, said Mrs. Manker who spoke only Spanish until she was eight years old, the best way to teach a foreign language is through the person's own language. But while aiming for a spoken English language in all classes, Mrs. Manker said a Latino child should have the privilege of studying Spanish as an elective course as progression is made.

She estimated three years would be sufficient to teach language. But she was aware that non-English speaking children are not all in the kindergarten and lower grades, and the bilingual program must remain flexible to meet the needs of new arrivals at all levels.

She emphasized that for the Anglos, learning a few Spanish words may well give an appreciation for the difficulty that the Latino child is experiencing in learning English. She said mastery of Spanish for English speakers is not a goal of the program.

Ottawa Sheriff Program Best, Early Birds Told

"Productive Law Enforcement" was the subject of Ottawa Sheriff Bernard Grysen at the monthly Chamber Breakfast in the Warm Friend Motor Inn Tuesday, and from his report it was evident that Ottawa county stands tall in any comparative situation one could choose.

With justifiable pride, Sheriff Grysen called his department the best sheriff's department anywhere, but he shared this "honor" with other law enforcement agencies in the county and a "truly fine" court system with judges who are not afraid to mete out jail sentences. Above all, it is the support of the people of the county that makes the whole system work well, the sheriff said.

He likened productive law enforcement to military strategy, stating both have the same goal, an obligation to protect the freedom of the people in the community. And he was insistent that, like the military, law enforcement must be aggressive — that victories are won on the battlefield, not at the conference or negotiating table.

He cited the rise of Hitler's Third Reich as the greatest military force in history, one greatly altered by Hitler's order to stop at the battle of Dunkirk when the destruction of England lay at his doorstep. As soon as Hitler let up on the offensive, the first break for the allies was at hand, the sheriff said.

He pointed to the strategies of Moshe Dayan of Israel who turned to the Scriptures for aid — again demonstrating victory and complete annihilation. Then there was Alexander the Great, an aggressive military strategist who created a new "gutter Greek" language for commanding an army of many tongues.

As for the United States answering the call in World War II, it produced the greatest war machine in history backed by support (patriotism) and yet stopped short of complete victory, resulting among other things in a divided Germany.

Yet within 30 years and all the lessons learned in history, the United States fought two wars, Korea and Vietnam, without a real offensive but willing to send thousands of American youths to their death plus $150 billion in wars the country was not allowed to win, Grysen said.

Yet while the sheriff is always happy to come home after enforcement meetings elsewhere, Grysen said Ottawa county is not without enemies and the departments cannot afford to sit back and let such forces take over. He criticized the popular philosophy that the world owes certain people something because they were underprivileged or "dropped on their head or something."

He praised Ottawa county judges for the courage to send a drug peddler to prison for 10 to 20 years, and the philosophy that sentences, indeed, are a deterrent. He commended new policies of judges in reviewing sentences at the half-way mark, ending a year's sentence at six months if the prisoner has been cooperative, resulting in the best program, the cleanest jail and the most contented prisoners anywhere.

Grysen said 1974 statistics show that Ottawa county with 36 men have made more criminal arrests than any other sheriff's department in the state, a record not possible without the support of the people. He praised local officers with the intestinal fortitude to do something about welfare abuse, and decried general rehabilitation programs involving huge sums of money with no real results. He said unionism is one of the greatest dangers to good law enforcement today, a cancer within the society leading to organized crime and such cases as the disappearance of Jimmy Hoffa.

Holland Ups Mark to 6-2

ST. JOSEPH — Holland's reserve football team upped its season record to 6-2 here Thursday by trimming St. Joseph, 26-14.

Coach Mike Bos' Dutch tallied on the first play from scrimmage on a 57-yard sprint by Rich Schutt. Don Mishoe's block enabled Schutt to score.

St. Joseph came right back on its first opening play by completing a 67-yard bomb for six points. The Bears grabbed a 8-6 lead by adding the PAT. With only 1:08 played in the game, the two teams managed 14 points.

Gray Gogolin's 15-yard TD pass to Kevin Beerthuis later in the period gave Holland the lead. Kurt Overway added the conversion.

In the second quarter, Gogolin passed 48 yards to Dana Cyrus for six points. The Bears tallied on a 39-yard pass, as the half ended with the Dutch out front, 19-14.

Gogolin's 31-yard screen pass to Kirk Emerson completed Holland's scoring in the third stanza. Tom Prins kicked the extra point.

"Gary Visscher, Bill Atman, Mike Kehrwecker and Joe Stille played fine games besides those already mentioned," said Bos.

The Dutch close their season next Friday by meeting Mona Shores at Riverview Park at 4 p.m.
