Board Okays Equipment Purchases

Several purchases of equipment for the new high school were approved by the Board of Education Monday night.

On recommendation of the building and grounds committee, the board approved accordion type partitions for seminar rooms from Powell Modernfold of Grand Rapids for $8,208; semi-fixed partitions for library study area, offices of classroom units, visual aids room and teachers workroom from Modern Partitions of Holland for $7,376; shelves, cases and cabinet units from S. and H. Manufacturing Co. of Normal, Ill., for $3,475; locker room partitions for the fieldhouse from Grand Rapids Screen Co. for $2,828 with the addition of the towel room cage; classroom cabinets from Michigan Woodwork and Specialties Co. for $21,440; and movable classroom partitions with mechanical seal for $20,600.

The committee also reported a reduction of $3,833 for electrical work in the shops building, made possible from the original contract with Kirkhoff Electric Co. of $22,195 through minor changes in wiring and lighting fixtures.

Because of a number of complications for the hydraulic lift under the forestage in the new auditorium, the equipment committee and the superintendent were given power to act with the building consultant in making final determination.

In general an increase in the tempo of work on the high school site has been noted in keeping with plans to occupy the new school for the second semester in January.

Also under buildings and grounds was an item for removal of two houses and a garage at 72 and 74 East 15th St. Windemuller and Maatman will remove the houses at a cost of $195 each and Don Brink will pay $57.60 for a garage at 72 West 15th St. Another offer of $600 for one of the houses was withdrawn because permission was not granted by the city to move the house which would have involved removal of several trees. Action on bids had been taken at a previous special meeting. Final action on the bid involving the withdrawal was taken Monday night.

The board also approved a detailed contract with Alvin Bos to provide a complete pre-packaged food program for the new high school. This will involve 14 vending machines in the two academic units providing hot and cold food, milk, hot coffee and hot chocolate, ice cream and candy bars.

A committee investigating lunch programs had recommended a limited pre-packaged food program last December in preference to the traditional cafeteria with expensive kitchen equipment. In seeking bids for the service, the school board emphasized that it wanted the best food possible at the lowest cost to the students and at no profit to the district. Any possible profit should be passed on to the students in the form of reduced food cost, and that quality food and service was to be provided at no cost to the district.

One member commented that under the new program, a student could obtain a good lunch for 30 or 35 cents. It was stated that milk would be available at 4 cents a half-pint, the vending machine making the change. Lunch hours will be 30 minutes.

Gov. Swainson Seeks Support For Program

Michigan's Governor John B. Swainson issued a general appeal for increased public support for programs to aid mentally retarded and mentally ill people in the state, before an audience of 228 Democrats for Ottawa, Allegan, Kent and Muskegon Counties in Phelps Hall at Hope College Wednesday night.

In an emotional plea, Swainson quoted the texts of three letters he said he had received from parents of retarded and mentally ill children, who have been unable to get proper inpatient or outpatient care for their youngsters.

The Governor was sharply critical of what he called the "indifference of the majority party in the State Senate" toward the problem of mental health. "Michigan," he said, "cannot afford the same old excuses from the Legislature in the face of rising needs in mental health, or in education."

The Governor introduced no new programs of his own for meeting the problem, but framed the problems in terms of three general needs.

"First," he said, "urgent attention is needed to improve the levels of patient care in existing institutions. Secondly, comprehensive mental health services must be developed at the community level.

"The third priority is directly related to the need for immediate reduction of lengthy waiting lists. This means a program of construction to provide facilities for housing the mentally ill."

Elaborating on the need, Swainson said, "Michigan's hospitals for the mentally ill were planned and built to care for 14,674 persons; today 17,400 beds are set up — 18 per cent above planned capacity.

"For the mentally retarded, we have 9,336 beds in use in facilities planned for 9,014 — 16 per cent above capacity.

"We know, too, that some 90 wards in our mental institutions go unattended during at least one shift each day, because of lack of personnel."

In his attack on the Republican senators, the Governor cited the action of last year's Legislature in appropriating $2 million less than requested in his budget proposal.

"This cutback was ordered in the face of Michigan's increasing population, a growing number on the waiting list, and increased costs for personnel and facilities. By no stretch of the imagination can we call this 'progress.'"

He cited three of his mental health recommendations which were turned down by the Legislature: construction of a 100-bed children's unit at Northville State Hospital separate from the adult section; a similar children's unit at the Ypsilanti State Hospital and a 220-bed additional custodial building at the Plymouth State Home and Training School.

He concluded his comments asserting that, "There is no cheap or simple solution. It is up to all of us to see that the story of our needs and goals reach every citizen of Michigan. This is the best way to get the action we need and want."

In other areas of education, the governor called attention to a shortage of 7,000 classrooms today, and said that in five years approximately 20,000 more classrooms will be needed.

Christian's Board of Trustees Holds Regular Monthly Meet

Holland Christian's board of trustees took action on several matters and heard committee reports on future proposals for study at its regular monthly meeting Tuesday night. John Keuning, president of the board, presided.

The group decided to enclose the West Side and South Side school playgrounds with fencing at a cost of $2,730. The project was awarded to Arthur Streu, local fence contractor. In other action the board continued to elect the services of student aides for elementary teachers at the rate of 80 cents per hour.

Supt. Mark Vander Ark reported on a problem concerning the junior high school band. He said that the transportation from the Maplewood School to the high school periodically was difficult. He said that the administration and Band Director Henry Vander Linde favored the starting of a separate band at this school. He reported that the establishment of such a band would involve the purchase of non-portable equipment for the Maplewood location.

It was decided to approach the band parents organization to aid in the raising of funds for part of the cost. The matter was referred to the finance committee for action.

The superintendent also reported that a committee of the board and the high school faculty is planning a discussion meeting between the board and faculty. Both the board and faculty had earlier been asked to submit questions for discussion. The committee includes Keuning and Garrett Pothoven of the board and Hero Bratt and Arthur Wyma of the faculty.

Vander Ark also reported on the variety of activities which the fact that he was able to make it from Detroit to Holland by car in three hours to "our fine Highway Commissioner" (John C. Mackie).

The South Ottawa Democratic Club sponsored the Governor's appearance here. Club President Charles Murrell presided and introduced guests. Long-time local Democratic leader Ralph Richman introduced Gov. Swainson.

The Rev. John O. Hagans, pastor of First Methodist Church of Holland, gave the invocation.

The board awarded oil heating contracts to the Boeve Oil Co. and the Bussies Oil Co. In other building committee matters, it was decided to install night lights at each of the schools. A proposal to revamp the high school office to provide more work space for high school teachers as well as a conference room was also presented.

It was reported that some changes were made in the chart of accounts to conform to state

Improved JHS Program Is Outlined

A new program for junior high students, once the present high school will be available for seventh, eighth and ninth graders, was outlined by Principal Earl Borlace and Assistant Principal Ted Boeve at a meeting of the Board of Education Monday night.

With a program no longer of necessity geared to high school hours and functions, junior high will be in a position to meet the needs of the students more adequately, and while no sweeping changes will be made in the junior high philosophy the administration plans to use the space in the two buildings to greatest advantage.

The 18-page report listed current curriculums, possible changes, enrollment figures, guidance information, floor plans of the two buildings, and possible physical changes in the buildings.

Contemplated changes list possibilities of new groupings of classes as well as television, team teaching and machine teaching; possible elimination of study halls which might then allow theater seating in the assembly room instead of desks; a new cafeteria and lunch hour program, and a revised physical education program.

The administration would like to see new courses offered on the junior high level such as typing for ninth graders, a speech and dramatics program, home economics for boys, shop for girls, and expanded language and science programs. Also listed are a language laboratory and a remedial reading program with a trained consultant.

Physical changes suggested list renovations in the boys' gym and improvements in the girls' gym, a covered walkway between the two schools with possibly a new entrance in room 103 near the office of the assistant principal. Tentatively listed as room 102. Partitions there would provide counseling facilities.

The report also suggest removal of partitions in some junior high rooms to make larger rooms, and installation of more lockers so that books need not be kept in desks.

Council Refers Gas Station Issue to Planning Group

City Council Wednesday night referred to the Planning Commission the subject of a new Shell service station at the southeast corner of College Ave. and Ninth St. for study on zoning aspects.

The action came after several communications protesting erection of a service station on the site as well as presentation by representatives of Ninth Street Christian Reformed Church, the historic landmark on the southwest corner of Ninth and College. About a dozen persons of the church were present.

The city manager's recommendation to Council was that the application for the building permit be tabled until the Dec. 6 meeting and requesting the planning commission to study the zoning angle and report to Council by that date. A substitute motion by Councilman Henry Steffens referring the matter to the Planning Commission but mentioning no deadline carried.

The city manager's report was accompanied by reports from police and fire chiefs, building inspector and city engineer indicating no objections to a service station on the site, but because of the number of protests the city manager felt further study was indicated.

Protests included a letter from the consistory of Ninth Street Christian Reformed Church, a petition with 47 signatures from the Ladies Aid Society of the church, a petition with 206 signatures from members of the church, and a petition with 21 signatures from property owners in the immediate vicinity requesting Council to deny the application for a permit.

The Rev. W. R. Witte, pastor of the church, spoke on behalf of the consistory asking Council to consider the cultural and historical significance of the city's leading landmark.

Mrs. John Bouman, a life-long member of the church, chose to speak as a member of the community. She read a lengthy statement emphasizing cultural environment and reviewed the history of the restraint of trade. She concluded by suggesting the city purchase the site and erect a replica of the Van Raalte home for an art gallery or other civic use.

In other business, Council approved low bid of the Veenah Co. of Veenah, Wis., for 60 heavy manhole rings and covers at a cost of $1,740, by a vote of 8 to 1, with Councilman William De Haan dissenting.

The manhole cover issue had been postponed from last meeting when Council failed to approve the city manager's recommendation for second-low bid.

Two public hearings were held, one on vacating Harrison Ave. between 24th and 25th Sts., and

Saws Way To Freedom In Allegan

21-Year-Old Man Uses
Blankets as Rope
From Second Floor

ALLEGAN — A parolee awaiting arraignment on a nighttime breaking and entering charge saved his way to freedom from the Allegan County jail last week.

Sheriff Walter Runkel said 21-year-old Brian Sharp of Doster, Mich., escaped from the jail sometime after midnight. Sharp's escape was discovered at breakfast at 8 a.m. Friday, Sheriff's officers said.

Officials said Sharp sawed through four bars in his escape from the second floor of the jail. He sawed his way out of his cell and then sawed through bars on a window at the rear of the building. The bars are approximately one inch thick, officers said.

Officers said Sharp slid down two blankets tied together from the second-floor window.

Officials theorized that one of two or three visitors who saw Sharp Thursday afternoon may have slipped a saw blade to Sharp through a large lock.

An officer who checked all of the cells in the jail shortly before midnight Thursday said everything appeared to be alright.

Only one man was on duty at the jail during the time of the escape, acting as radio man and turnkey. The Sheriff's office, where the night man was working, is located at the front of the jail.

The Sheriff's office put out an area broadcast, today immediately after the escape was discovered.

Sharp, who was recently paroled from Southern Michigan Prison at Jackson, was to have been arranged on the nighttime breaking and entering charge Monday in Circuit Court.

He was being held in connection with a break-in at the Triangle grocery in Doster.

Dutch Reserves Finish Unbeaten

GRAND RAPIDS — Holland High's reserve football team crushed the Grand Rapids Central reserves, 41-13 in Houseman Field Friday afternoon for its eighth straight win and second unbeaten season in a row.

The Little Dutch teams, coached by Tom Carey and Carl Selover, have won 20 straight games including nine straight last season and the final three games in 1959.

Holland started fast and on the third play of the game linebacker Paul Wassenaar intercepted a pass on the Central 35-yard line and three plays later halfback Jim De Neff circled the end for 20 yards and the score. Halfback Junior Ruiz ran the extra point.

The Dutch kicked off and Central failed to down the ball and Bill Beebe of Holland recovered on the Central 25. After a series of plays, Ruiz went the final three yards to score. De Neff ran the extra point.

Central scored its first touchdown later in the first quarter on a sustained drive and the period ended, 14-7.

Holland received the kickoff to start the second quarter and after a short series Ruiz cracked over tackle on a trap and raced 43 yards to score. De Neff ran the extra point and Holland led 21-7 at half.

The Dutch received the second half kickoff and scored but the play was called back because of a penalty. Holland started another drive, this one 60 yards, and De Neff scored his second touchdown on a 10-yard end run. Quarterback Barry Prins passed to end Steve Bronson for the extra point and Holland led 28-7 at the third period's close.

Another Holland touchdown was called back in the fourth period on an 80-yard reverse play. But the Dutch retaliated and De Neff threw a 35-yard cross-country pass to Bronson, who ran 45 yards to score. Prins then hit Bronson with the extra point.

Rich Arenas ran 12 yards around end for Holland's final touchdown and he also ran the extra point. Central scored on a pass in the last quarter for its second tally.

Carey and Selover were pleased with the play of the squad Friday and throughout the season. All 40 members played at least three minutes in the finale.

The running of the backs was strong and De Neff's hard running was again singled out. Ruiz, who along with De Neff, scored two touchdowns, did his best running of the season. "Ruiz was especially good on the dive plays," Carey said. "Fullbacks Walt Van Oosterhout and Gary Hopkins also ran hard," Carey added.

Wassenaar's finebacking was outstanding. Besides the pass interception, he recovered a fumble. Holland's defensive lineplay was strong and was led by Bronson and Schuurman at the ends with Dan Hill and Tom Shashagay at tackles. Greg Visschers at center and Tom Bast at guard.

Daa Williams was injured on the third play of the game and was taken to a Grand Rapids hospital for observation and treatment of a chest injury.

The reserves will have a team-parents dinner Monday at 6:30 p.m. in the First Methodist Church. Mrs. Bernard Shashagay and Mrs. Verlynn Hopkins are general chairman. The reserve cheerleaders will serve the dinner.

De Neff and Shashagay were elected co-captains for the season by the players. The most valuable player will be named at the banquet and Carey will present letter awards.

Dutch Compile 2-6 Record For Season

GRAND RAPIDS—Absorbing its worst defeat of the season, Holland High's football team was smashed by Grand Rapids Central, 35-0 here Friday night before less than 1,000 fans in Houseman Field.

After a "sloppy" first quarter that saw each team fumble and lose the ball twice, Central took over and scored on the second play of the second period.

This started a touchdown march that numbered five before it was finished and resulted in Holland's worst defeat of the season. The 35-point setback was the worst shutout shellacking since Muskegon Catholic's 42-0 win in 1957.

Holland fumbled on the second play of the game and Central recovered on the Dutch 29. Central got to the nine where the Rams fumbled and Holland took over.

The Dutch fumbled on the next series and Central recovered on the 25. The Rams moved to the 16 where Holland recovered a fumble.

An eight-yard punt late in the first quarter gave Central the ball on the Dutch 19 and four plays later Fred Barr threw a 14-yard pass to end Dale Weekley. Jim Nixon ran the extra point.

With about four minutes left in the half, Jim Nixon smashed off tackle and raced 65 yards to the Holland one where he was tackled from behind by Chuck De Witt. Barr sneaked over on the next play and Jim Otterbridge ran the extra point.

A 30-yard pass play from Barr to Weekley with 1:49 left in the half gave the Hilltoppers their third touchdown and Otterbridge ran the extra point. On the play prior to the touchdown, Barr raced 38 yards to score but the play was called back because of a penalty.

After Nixon returned the kickoff to the Holland 37, Chuck Holt raced eight yards to the Dutch 27 and Otterbridge took off on a reverse the rest of the way for the fourth tally. Nixon ran the extra point with 10:32 left in the third quarter.

Larry Goodson raced 55 yards with 3:06 left in the game for the final score. Tackle Charles Matteson, 6'6" and 226 pounds, ran the extra point.

Holland tried 17 passes in the game and completed two, both in the fourth quarter. The Dutch tried two aerials in the third period, with Vern Plagenhoef doing the pitching, and both were intercepted.

Central, with its long runs, rushed for a total of 305 yards while the Dutch, who were a minus 16 in the fourth period, ended with 78 yards, including 56 yards in the third quarter.

It was a dismal finish for the Dutch who couldn't get any offense going. Holland had one drive after Central's fourth touchdown and moved to the Rams 15 but a penalty put the ball back on the Central 30 and on the next play the Rams intercepted a pass. Holland got to the Central 34 in the first half.

The setback gave Holland a 2-7 season's record. Central ended with a 5-4 mark, including wins in its last three games. The Rams scored 110 points in the last three games.

Holland High Girls Hold Football Game

Girls shirttail football took the spotlight in Riverview Park Friday afternoon as more than 300 fans watched Lound's Louses nip Thompson's Touchdowners, 20-19 in a game sponsored by the Holland High Girls Athletic Association.

The teams were composed of sophomore, junior and senior girls and proceeds from the game totaled $65. Miss Maxine Mac Innis, GAA sponsor reported. Funds will be given to a service project and the girls will vote next week on the funds.

The Touchdowners opened the scoring on the first series of plays with Jan Kalkman running about 30 yards on a reverse. Quarterback Barb Kouw ran the extra point.

A long drive with Nancy Bolhuis scoring gave the Louses their first touchdown but the try for extra point failed. Miss Kalkman scored again on a 40-yard run up the middle for the go-ahead touchdown but Pat Bouwman retaliated with the go ahead touchdown on a short plunge and ran the extra point to tie the score 13-13 at half.

Miss Bouwman scored the winning touchdown on a short plunge with little more than a minute to play in the game. She also ran the extra point.

Sue Thompson, captain of the Touchdowners, turned in some fine broken field running in the final 38 seconds of play as she scampered 70 yards with the third touchdown. Miss Kouw's run for extra point was stopped short and the team captained by Carol Lound won the game, 20-19.

The girls had 11 members on each side and the ends and backs have a tail tucked behind them under their belt. The object is for the opposition to pull the tail off the ballcarrier.

The tails are about an inch-and-a-half wide and are two feet, six inches long. A knot is tied in the six-inch portion and the knot is tucked in.

Other rules used by the girls include no rushing of the kicker and no returns on intercepted passes. Three passes were intercepted in the game.

Hamilton Had First Football Team

HAMILTON — Enthusiasm bubbled at every practice session of the Hamilton High football team this season and if spirit can build a winner the Hawkeyes should have a pleasant football history.

It was the first year for football at the new high school which will graduate its first class in 1964 and Principal William Books, who served as head coach, and his assistant coach Ray Koski were pleased with the overall enthusiasm and the "vast improvement" made by the team.

Books, who formerly played football at Holland High and Hope College, had 22 boys on the squad this season and the team was composed of freshmen and sophomores.

The enrollment is about 170 students and is made up of freshmen and sophomores. Hamilton is in Class D in state competition.

Hamilton played two scrimmage games with the Fennville and Martin reserves and one each with the Muskegon Orchard View and West Ottawa reserves and the Sautatuck varsity. The Hawkeyes split even in the games with wins over Fennville, Martin and Orchard View.

Books hasn't decided about having Hamilton play varsity football next season. "Fennville, Hopkins and Gobles have asked to play us on a varsity level," Books said.

"We're not definitely decided about playing a varsity schedule next year," Books said. "We may want to play one more season of reserve football to build up experience, confidence and continue enthusiasm rather than be humiliated by veteran varsity teams," Books said. Hamilton's top graders will be juniors next fall.

Two sophomores received special mention for their play this season. "Jerry Van Den Belt did a fine job for us at quarterback. He called plays well and run nicely and could have played any position," Books said.

"Don Mc Donald was our top defensive player. He was a line-backer and made tackles all over the field," Books said. Van Den Belt is 6'1" and 165 pounds while Mc Donald is 160 and 5'10". "Some of the freshmen will blossom out next season after they get some more experience," Books said.

Koski, a native of Mass, Mich., and a Western Michigan University graduate, was line coach this season. He didn't play football in high school or college but has developed a fine interest in the game, Books said. Because of the pressure of principal duties Books won't be coaching the Hawkeyes next season and will recommend Koski for the post.

Besides the fine enthusiasm on the team, the other students have given good support, Books said. Because of the spirit throughout the school, Books expects "a lot more boys out next year."

"And we didn't have any injuries," Books said. "Nobody missed a game because of an injury and the worst injury was a boy cut himself on a soap dish in the shower room and needed a couple switches," Books said.

With the combined enthusiasm of the team, students and principal Hamilton should have a bright football future.

Hudsonville Wins, 21-14 Over Zeeland in Finale

ZEELAND — Hudsonville's football team stopped Zeeland, 21-14 here Friday night in the season's finale for both teams at the Zeeland Athletic Field.

The victory gave Coach Dave Kemper's team a 5-2-2 mark while Coach Jarold Groets of Zeeland ended with a 5-3 record. The game was a non-league tussle.

Hudsonville scored twice in the first quarter as senior halfback Don Mc Clow tallied both touchdowns. The Eagles scored the first six-point on a 10-yard run by Mc Clow with 5:39. Larry Huyser ran the extra point.

With 48 seconds left in the first period, Mc Clow raced 25 yards around end to score. As he started the run he displayed fine change of pace and faked out several would-be tacklers.

As he approached the goal he picked up three-man interference and was escorted across the goal by the trio. Mc Clow ran the extra point and the Eagles held a 14-0 margin at the quarter.

Zeeland scored with 2:44 left in the second quarter on a 33-yard pass by John Van Kley. Rog Kroodsma kicked the extra point to make score 14-7 at half.

Hudsonville's final touchdown came with 44 seconds left in the third quarter on a six-yard pass play from quarterback Bob Nyenhuis to end Terry Gale. It was the third pass the Eagles threw in the game and caught the Chix off guard. Nyenhuis passed to Mc Clow for the extra point.

On the first play after Zeeland received the kickoff, Van Kley, who played his best game, ripped through the Hudsonville defense for 70 yards. The tally came with 27 seconds left in the third quarter. Kroodsma converted to complete the scoring.

Hudsonville drove to the Zeeland three-yard line with 11 seconds left. The Chix held and tried an unsuccessful long pass on the last play of the game.

Van Kley stood out for Zeeland with his running and was also strong on defense while Kroodsma led the defense with 17 tackles.

Mc Clow was Hudsonville's top runner while Ron Luutema and Jim Waima were tough on defense.

500 Poultrymen, Guests Hear Talk by Dr. Trout

A turkey banquet attended by 500 poultry industry members concluded the fifth annual Michigan Poultry Days Festival Thursday night at Holland Civic Center.

Guests heard Dr. G. M. Trout of Michigan State University discuss his recent tour to the principal cities of Russia. Later, some 170 pounds of prize-winning poultry products were auctioned off for a total of nearly $300.

Among special guests were Sanford A. Brown, state treasurer, who accepted a turkey presented by the West Michigan Poultry Association to Gov. John B. Sawin, and George S. McIntyre, director of the Michigan Department of Agriculture, who also was presented with a turkey.

Dr. Trout spoke of visiting Russia in an unofficial capacity as a member of an American touring party. He singled out for praise the quality of the theater, ballet, circus, and other forms of entertainment. Against this he contrasted the long lines of Russian housewives who stand patiently in state stores for their turn to buy shoes, clothing, food, and other consumer goods.

Although he managed to give his guides the slip occasionally and get in some private sightseeing, Dr. Trout said the visitor to Russia is virtually a captive of In-tourist, the official tourist agency.

"Actually it's a sort of spy operation. These government guides take this opportunity to examine visitors' personal belongings at their leisure and to their complete satisfaction. They never hurry, and they always find some reason to inconvenience their charges. For this we each paid the Russian government a fee of $30 a day."

In Thursday's egg show, Hamilton Poultry Farm and Hamilton Farm Bureau took open class Grand Champion and Reserve Champion honors, respectively. Grand Champion entry in the Junior Division belonged to Paul Brower. Reserve Champion honors were won by Betty Hovingh. Both live in Holland.

The afternoon business session was highlighted by a discussion of marketing procedures. Linley E. Juers, representative of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, spoke in favor of proposed government marketing orders to regulate the flow of poultry and eggs to retail counters. Opposing him was O.S. Green of Spartanburg, S.C., who argued for independent action and self-regulation by poultrymen.

Green advocated intensive training in business management methods for poultrymen to make them sharper in bookkeeping, accounting, and credit practices. He also suggested stepped-up research programs to develop special poultry products that are easier for the housewife to prepare.

Green criticized the poultry industry for its indifference to current production and marketing problems, and cited the empty seats in the Civic Center as evidence of apathy. Only 200 were present. More than 500 had been expected.

Holiday Decorations, Tea Featured at Garden Club

Christmas came early for members of the Holland Garden Club on Thursday afternoon, as arranger, Mrs. Charles Schweim, shared her wealth of holiday decorating ideas.

Mrs. Schweim of Highland Park gradually filled the stage at the Woman's Literary Club, where the meeting was held, with decorations which ranged from simplicity to sophistication.

The first table arrangement presented was a one-sided arrangement which was built around graduated brown candles and used pink Jackson and Perkins chrysanthemums of the Bird series. Green, yellow, brown and purple flowers were also used to make this attractive arrangement.

Among the ideas which Mrs. Schweim had prepared in advance of the program, was that of decorating a Christmas tree using multicolored fruit on a styrofoam cone. An all white madonna arrangement was also most striking.

One of the sleigh arrangements presented used a light tan wicker sled, Pfitzer juniper, white mums, pink reindeer with aqua harnesses and a red Santa. The unique touch in the second was a "mama" Santa Claus, and the arranger used holly to call attention to her and suggested that small suckers be used around the base so that the children would not overlook this clever addition.

Mrs. Schweim reminded her audience, "Some of the simplest ideas are the most effective," and the gasp which greeted the large pine cones which she used for bookends, proved her point. The clever basket, with a few attractive bronze and green ribbons, which she used for displaying Christmas cards was also effective.

Among the swag and wreath group displayed was a wreath which the decorator made of various kinds of evergreen with a cluster of wicker bells, using gold sprayed cones for clappers. Some of the door and wall pieces glittered with tinsel and lights and others, such as the half bird cage of brown wicker, filled with colored balls and pine had a lighter touch.

Various ideas given by Mrs. Schweim for mobiles included a ball of fruit made of pink and green candy and a red "kissing ball," complete with mistletoe.

Several arrangements using live flowers concluded the program.

Mrs. Robert De Nooyer, president of the club, presided at the business meeting. She welcomed Douglas Garden Club members and other guests. Mrs. Donald J. Jencks, chairman of the Ways and Means committee, reported on the tulip bulb sale. She also extended an invitation to everyone to attend the Christmas Workshop which will be held in the Woman's Literary Club on Dec. 7 starting at 10 a.m.

New members were presented with corsages and honored with a tea which followed the program. The new members who were honored were Mrs. Arthur J. Alder, Mrs. R. A. Boersma, Mrs. Richard Bouws, Mrs. Judson Bradford, Mrs. Huger Burnham, Mrs. Herbert E. Cook, Mrs. Henry Godshalk, Mrs. James Jellison, Mrs. John Kittredge, Mrs. Leroy Rediger, Mrs. Harold Thornhill, Mrs. Stephen Sanger and Mrs. David White.

Tea arrangements were made by Mrs. Ward R. Hansen. Pouring at the attractive tea table were Mrs. H. P. Harms, Mrs. R. A. Boersma, Mrs. Leonard Zick and Mrs. Kenneth Pearce.

Mrs. James Lugers was chairman for the program. Assisting also were Mrs. Frank Fleischer and Mrs. Robert Snyder.

The drama revolves around the plot of Medea to avenge the betrayal by her husband by destroying him. She chooses to do this not by death, but by taking from him everything he loves, leaving him "helpless, friendless, mateless, childless, avoided by gods and men, unclean with awful excess of grief."

David P. Karsten, speech and drama instructor, will direct the play, assisted by Mary Jane Veurink, a Grant, Mich., senior as assistant director. James De Young, of the Hope speech faculty, is technical director for the production.

Trinity Church Scene of Rites

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Hershel Zoerhor

A gown of silk organza and chantilly lace was worn by Miss Beverly Jean Fairbanks on Oct. 20 when she became the bride of Wayne Hershel Zoerhor.

The wedding took place at 7:30 p.m. in Trinity Reformed Church with the Rev. Harland Steele officiating at the double ring ceremony. A backdrop of huckleberry greens with seven branch candelabra and kissing candles formed the setting for the marriage of the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fairbanks of 171 East 38th St. and the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Zoerhor of route 3, Holland.

The town of the bride, who was given in marriage by her father, featured a lace bodice with soft rounded neckline, bracelet-length sleeves and accented with seed pearls and iridescents. The organza skirt was accented with a dipped waistline, flat pleats at the hipline and a cascade of the lace down the front of the skirt. The back was enhanced with a redingote of the organza and a wide panel of the lace beneath, which fell into a chapel length train. To complement the gown the bride chose a finger-tip veil of imported illusion topped with a Victorian caplet of the lace and accented with iridescents and seed pearls. Her bouquet was a cascade arrangement of feathered carnations, white roses and two large hybrid orchids which she also wore as her going away corsage.

Mrs. Donald Kane as matron of honor was attired in a ballerina length dress of taffeta in fall blue. Style features were the overskirt of silk organza topped by a jacket. Her matching headpiece released a veil and she carried a basket with pink Garnet roses, white pompons and lace net and pink streamers.

Appropriate wedding music was played by Jay Allen Lohman who also accompanied Marvin Pidding when he sang "O Perfect Love" and "Wedding Prayer."

The bride changed to a beige two-piece dress with brown accessories for the honeymoon to the southern states. She is employed by Holland Furnace Co. and the groom works for Koning Tool and Die Co.

UTILITIES AND TAXES

A short time ago the investor-owned electric companies of this country announced a 10-year program of expansion. They will spend tens of billions to meet our anticipated power needs.

This caused the Poughkeepsie, N.Y., Journal to say, "Private industry does have the potential and has equipped itself and is daily equipping itself further with the tools of power production and transmission to ensure a full meeting of the demands for electric service."

"The importance of this possibly could be lost to the public, if the underlying difference between private and public power were left unreported. The difference is, of course, that private utilities pay huge amounts in local, state and federal taxes. Public power, contrary-wise, imposes a tax burden generally to ensure cheaper power to a chosen few."

The Journal then cited the example of the utility serving its own area. Last year it paid $6,258,902 in taxes, of which $2,350,600 went to local government, to help finance the schools, the fire districts, the sewer and water systems, and all the other municipal services. And what is true there is true everywhere in the country where private enterprise provides our electricity.

The Journal also adds, "There is no such thing as government producing electricity at less cost than private industry; the contrary is usually found to be the case." "Cheap" public power is a phony, attributable to tax subsidies and/or tax evasion.

Growth Through Self-Discipline
II Peter 1:2-11
By C. P. Dame

One of the best known characters of the New Testament is Simon Peter. He had his weak points just like we all have. We are apt to put Paul far above us in spirituality but it is not hard to place Peter in our class. He needed self-discipline as much as we do.

I. It is important to remember God's promises. The word "grace" is a typical biblical word which is the undeserved favor of God to sinners who do not merit it. We read the word "peace" every day in our newspapers. Peter refers to peace of heart and mind. It was his desire that the believers to whom he wrote might enjoy a larger measure of grace and peace through the knowledge of God and of Jesus.

The more knowledge of God we gain the more grace and peace will become meaningful to us. And that will lead to a finer Christian life. We all ought to want to know God better and become more conscious of the truth that He is the fount of the Christian life and sustains it.

Peter writes about "exceeding great and precious promises." "The value of a promise depends upon the person who makes it. A holy God cannot violate His promises. He keeps His promises. God has a plan for His people. Through His promises we may become 'partakers of the divine nature.'"

"The Lord purposes to restore the marred divine image in us. The more Christlike believers become, the more they will reveal that they have escaped the corruption that is in the world. It takes self-discipline to avoid the corrupting influence of the world."

II. The Christian life calls for diligence. Christians should do their very best with what they have where they are. Peter uses the little word "add." Every Christian has a measure of faith. He is called upon to add to his faith.

First Peter mentions "virtue" that is moral excellence, "knowledge" follows which is a practical understanding of what God's will is for daily life; "self-control" or temperance is enjoined which means the ability to master one's passions and appetites. Self-control should be followed by steadfastness which is needed to resist temptations.

Godliness implies the possession of a reverence for God which expresses itself in godly living. Brotherly affection is also commended. Christians are members of one family, the household of faith, and they should show all of these graces need much cultivation.

III. The possession of these graces leads to fruitful Christian living. The person who does not reveal these graces has forgotten that he was cleansed from these sins which corrupt life. Peter says that people who do not have these Christian graces are blind, shortsighted and forgetful. The exercise of these Christian graces leads to further enlightenment while their neglect causes blindness to divine truth and a blotting out of the memory of spiritual experiences.

In view of this danger Peter summons all Christians to make their calling and election sure. God has called Christians and now they are summoned to give proof of what God has done. It stands to reason that the more Christians practice the Christian graces the more free they will become of faults and failings which mar the lives of believers. A glorious entrance into God's kingdom awaits all believers.

Veterans Day Talk Centers On Peace

"War as it is waged today has little of the glamor of yesteryear, and rather than review the heroics of war, let us concentrate on peace and what we can do to maintain it," George Lumsden of Holland told students of Holland High School at the annual Veterans Day assembly Friday.

"What is so glamorous about war which brings more privations on civilians than on armies?"

"What is so glamorous about an atomic or hydrogen bomb, or biological warfare?"

"What is glamorous about a bomb shelter or a fallout shelter?" To maintain peace, Lumsden recommended a study of history with a view to the problems that cause wars, a study of the economic system and an appreciation of freedom and free enterprise, and a study of fundamental Christian beliefs.

He likened American democracy to the building of a house. The foundations, framework and roof progress rapidly but the interior finishing, painting and the other things that make a house a home take much longer. He said American democracy is built on the strong foundation of freedom, and the people are responsible for the finishing touches that maintain freedom.

He pointed to the need of changes in a changing world but emphasized the fundamental tenets of freedom in maintaining peace with honor and justice.

Mayor Barbara Kow introduced the speaker and Clerk Jeanne Frissel read the list of names of war dead. Music was provided by the Holland High School Band and the A Capella Choir. Several patriotic organizations were represented at the assembly.

Couple Placed On Probation For Breakins

GRAND HAVEN — Arlene S. Brower, 28, and Dana W. Kline, 28, both of route 1, West Olive, who pleaded guilty Oct. 19 to nighttime breaking and entering in connection with obtaining furnishings for their home after their marriage, were both put on probation by Circuit Judge Raymond L. Smith today.

Kline was put on probation for two years, the first 30 days of which are to be spent in the county jail. He also must pay $100 costs and make restitution when damage to cottages entered is determined, probably a couple of months hence.

"Because of the way you handled the support order in your divorce case and because of the extensiveness of your activities, you ought to have some jail time to think it over," Judge Smith said.

Mrs. Brower, mother of seven children, was placed on probation for 18 months. Because there was no one else to take care of her children, she was given no jail sentence although Judge Smith felt she should spend some time in jail. Costs also were waived because of family obligations.

Although they admitted to sheriff's officers entering about a dozen summer homes in the Port Sheldon area, the couple was charged specifically with entering the Edward Hondelink cottage in Port Sheldon Township and taking a tv set.

Bernard Evink, 43, of 43 East 27th St., Holland, was given a year's probation on each of two counts of issuing a check without sufficient funds and for unlawfully driving away a motor vehicle. He also must pay $50 costs out of his earnings and must refrain from drinking. The check charge involved a $100 check in Holland last June 12 and the auto theft case involved a station wagon belonging to Elmer Kamphuis last July 20 in Holland.

Donald Pastoor, 28, of 74 West 32nd St., who pleaded guilty Oct. 19 to desertion and abandonment of his wife and son, was put on probation for three years and ordered to pay $150 costs on a monthly basis out of his earnings. He must obtain employment and contribute to the support of his wife and child and the court cautioned him not to be choosy about the type of work available but to take the first honest job that comes along.

1,500 See Dedication Of New County Building

ALLEGAN — Substituting for his hospitalized father, Allegan Attorney Leo W. Hoffman Saturday urged a crowd of 1,500 to dedicate the county's new million-dollar courthouse to "fulfill performance of the functions of liberty . . . illustrated so well by local, self-government."

The son of veteran 4th district Cong. Clare E. Hoffman, hospitalized Thursday after a slight stroke, told his audience that "no structure better exemplifies our republic than this county building."

"Allegan is not a rich county. . . and not a poor county, but we have always been able to perform the functions of government without outside help and can continue to do so in the future," he said.

Pointing out that the new building was erected for less than original estimates — a thing unheard of in Washington — he reminded his audience that "the only threat to a balanced budget in Allegan county comes from rising welfare, resulting from the dictates of welfare staters in Lansing and Washington."

"We owe it to our children to preserve the liberty and freedom for which Americans have fought and died," Hoffman said, pointing out that it was appropriate that Veterans Day had been chosen for the dedicatory program.

Five county bands marched in a parade which preceded the program, and five persons who were on hand for the cornerstone laying of the old court house in 1899, attended the ceremonies.

Group included Mrs. C. F. Peck, Mrs. Jennie Gillette and Charles Burdick, all of Allegan, and Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Drury of Otsego. Clem Rewa, chairman of the Board of Supervisors, served as presiding officer for the program in which four Allegan ministers also participated. Circuit Judge Raymond L. Smith introduced guests from counties as far away as Escanaba. State officials were represented by Billie S. Farnum, Michigan's new auditor general.

Tours of the new building followed. Open house also was held Sunday afternoon with refreshments and guided tours by county officials and their staffs.

Initial Victory Oilers Chalk Up

Cook's Oilers, opening up in the second half, rolled to a 90-80 win over Chicago Kimes for its first victory in three starts in a basketball game before 1,100 persons in the Civic Center Saturday night.

At one point in the second half the Oilers led by 20 points and this brought on some dribbling and passing antics by Gary Lee, George Duncan and newly acquired Webster Kirksey.

The Oilers dominated play in the second half and didn't give the Chicago team a basket until 5:38 of the third period remained. The board work of newly acquired Mike Graney, along with Ron Robinson, Henry Hughes and Paul Benes repeatedly set up the Oilers fast break.

At one point in the third quarter the Oilers had a lineup average of 6'5" and completely controlled the play and worked the score to 69-57 at the end of the period after leading by only two points, 45-43 at half.

Graney hooked three straight shots in the third quarter and in the final period Bill Fox canned five long toms from the corners. Although the second half wasn't close, the first period's action indicated a tough contest as the Oilers took a 23-22 lead. Both clubs were rebounding, especially the Jamison twins, Scottie and Max, for Chicago.

Robinson led the Oilers with 17 points while Duncan followed with 14. Lee had 12 and Fox and Hughes each made 10. Benes added nine and Graney and Pete Tillotson sank eight while Kerksey added two.

Danhof Reviews Con-Con Functions at VFW Banquet

Approximately 200 gathered in the VFW clubhouse Saturday night for a Veterans Day dinner sponsored by the VFW post and auxiliary.

Robert J. Danhof of Muskegon, Con-Con delegate for the 23rd district (Muskegon and Ottawa counties) reviewed functions of the Constitutional Convention in Lansing, now in its sixth week.

"I have never worked with a more dedicated group of public citizens before in my life. Even the newspaper reporters have been impressed, and the Lansing bars and restaurants have complained that there is no socializing in their places. The delegates are too busy with their work," he said.

Danhof explained that delegates in drawing up a new constitution to replace one passed in 1908 are working with the basic framework of American freedom, a framework into which all government is woven. He said Michigan's present constitution covers some 70 pages in the Michigan handbook, but there are 25 volumes of laws, some amending the constitution such as gas tax monies for roads and a share of the sales tax for schools and municipalities.

He said the convention probably will conclude its work in April and in all likelihood the voters of Michigan will vote on a new constitution in November, 1962. He suggested that organizations such as Holland's VFW start an educational program to inform the people on Con-Con issues, pointing to the public apathy that existed the past summer when three out of four voters stayed home in the election to name delegates.

Danhof issued a cordial invitation to all persons to visit the convention in Lansing a Civic Center.

KALAMAZOO — For the first time in history, Hope College's football team went through an entire season without a victory as the Flying Dutchmen were crushed by Kalamazoo College, 42-12 here Saturday before 500 fans in Angell Field.

It was Hope's seventh straight loss, fifth in the MIAA and the worst defeat any MIAA team has received from another league team this season. It marked Kalamazoo's first win over Hope since 1956 in the battle for the wooden shoes and was the first non-losing season for the Hornets since 1956.

The victory was the most decisive ever recorded by a Rolla Anderson coached team and gave the Hornets a 4-4 record and 3-2 in the MIAA.

Dale Schoon, closing out his Hope career, scored both of Hope's touchdowns as he took over for his brother, Jon, who was sidelined with a back injury.

With Kalamazoo leading 14-0, Hope scored its first touchdown on a 29-yard aerial from freshman Cal Poppink to Schoon with 9:46 left in the first half. Neil Goodrich, who had injured his leg on the kickoff, reentered as he tried the extra point and the kick failed.

Hope's initial tally climaxed a 73-yard 12-play drive. With 7:44 left in the third quarter, Schoon caught his second touchdown pass, this one a four-yarder from Jim Bultman to culminate a 64-yard march in seven plays and highlighted by Jim Shuck's 19-yard run, 15 yards by Jim Bekkering and another 11 by Poppink. Bultman's pass attempt to Jerry Nieuwsma for the extra point failed.

Don Le Duc took a pitchout from Jim Harkema with 11:55 to go in the first quarter for Kalamazoo's first touchdown and this was followed with 1:10 left by a five-yard pass from Harkema to John Persons. Jim Smith converted twice and the Hornets held a 14-0 quarter margin.

Shuck fumbled a Kalamazoo punt on the Dutch 10 and the ball skirted into the end zone where Egis Lode fell on it for the Hornets third score with 6:49 left in the second period. Smith converted to give Kalamazoo a 21-6 halftime margin.

Kalamazoo's fourth touchdown came on a 20-yard pass play from Harkema to Dan Pell with 10:53 left in the third period. Smith converted. Lode climaxed a 50-yard drive with a two-yard smash for the next Hornet tally with 2:44 left in the third quarter. Harkema passed to Bob Sibilsky for the two extra points and the score stood 34-12 at the third period's close.

Norm Young drove five yards for the final Kalamazoo touchdown with 9:03 left in the game. Smith missed the extra point. The drive covered 79 yards and came after Tom De Vries had recovered a Hope fumble on the Hornet 21. The fumble stopped Hope's drive that started on the Hornet 38 after Shuck had returned the kickoff 43 yards.

The Dutch, aided by 30 yards in personal foul penalties, got to the Kalamazoo 18 late in the game but failed to come up with a first down. Hope marched to the Kalamazoo 18 in the first quarter but Loren Campbell intercepted a pass to start a drive that gave the Hornets their second touchdown.

A total of 205 yards were marked off in penalties, 150 against the Hornets. Four players were ejected, two from each team for fighting.

Hope captain Shucky Vander Woude wasn't able to play in the game because of a leg infection. It marred the climax to Vander Woude's fine football career.

Shuck led Hope's runners with 73 yards in 16 tries while Bill Hill had 33 yards in nine carries.

Vande Water and Donze Honored at West Ottawa

Marty Vande Water, West Ottawa senior fullback, was named most valuable player and junior halfback George Donze was elected 1962 captain Tuesday night at the team-parents banquet in Lakeview School.

Coach Ron Weatherbee revealed the selections and announced varsity letter winners. "Vande Water was pretty much the workhorse of the ball club both offensively and defensively. He was susceptible to coaching and a hard worker," Weatherbee said.

"Donze has come along way," Weatherbee said, "and is getting to the point where he looked like a football player." Donze carried the ball 46 times for 391 yards and an eight-yard plus average. He punted 31 times for a 30.5 average.

Donze scored five touchdowns for 30 points and caught 11 passes for 239 yards. He was on the receiving end of the 67-yard pass, the longest of the season and returned a punt 69 yards, tops on the club. His 54-yard run from scrimmage was also the longest on the team. Donze played only offense and is 165 pounds.

Vande Water carried the ball almost twice as many times as Donze or any other Panther back. He had 91 tries and gained 378 yards for a 4.15 p.e. carry average.

He scored two touchdowns and was a stand out on defense. Weatherbee used Vande Water at defensive end for the first four games and the 180-pound Vande Water played defensive tackle in the final four games.

Spark Overman was captain of the Panthers this season. West Ottawa compiled a 3-5 record and Peter Roon assisted Weatherbee.

Varsity letters were awarded Larry Schaffenaar, Marinus Donze, Max Dalman, David Vanden Bosch, Bill De Graaf, Adrian Merryman, John Hudzik, George Donze, Dan Lepo, Robert De Ridder, Llewellyn De Vries, Richard Faber, Bruce Johns, Patrick Donnelly and Vern Steinfert.

Roger Solomon, Robert Kelava, David Piet, Vande Water, Ernest Overkamp, Glenn Bareman, Ed Terpstra, William Overkamp, Dale Overway, Harry Knipe, Craig Nykamp and Steve Piersma.

Gordon Brewer, Hope athletic director, spoke to the group. He listed the benefits of losing as (1), all things desirable are not attainable, (2), you must meet losing in a socially acceptable manner and (3) costliness of mistakes.

He related some of his experiences of starting a football program while coaching at Byron Center. Brewer said there were five real opponents a player does battle with in a football game.

They are (1) temptation to make something less than an all-out effort; (2), anger; (3), temptation to be small, selfish and intolerant; (4), fear of making mistakes, losing and physical contact and (5) temptation of making unreal excuse when you lose. Brewer concluded with a poem about a football player.

About 85 persons attended the banquet. Frank Duffy was master of ceremonies and Dr. John Piet gave the invocation. Weatherbee presented each of the 15 seniors with a team picture and the coaches were presented a gift from the team.

Another one of the points of the new constitution concerns financial aid. The document states that the amount of aid that is given to athletes overall shall be the same as that given to non-athletes proportionately.

Every school must report every year all of the aid that is given to athletes. Reports must be made in the fall and in the spring and a rotating committee of faculty representatives, appointed by the governing board chairman, will study the financial aid reports.

On the committee are the faculty representatives from Alma, Adrian, Albion and Olivet.

A committee was also appointed to look into the obtaining of an MIAA commissioner. The new constitution states that the commissioner will be appointed for a three year term subject to reappointment by the governing board and his duties will be to secure officials and handle general supervision over league activities.

Vanderbusch, John Tuls of Calvin and formerly of Holland, and Dr. Richard Stavig of Kalamazoo are on this committee. The group plans to first ask the other schools if they have any suggestions as to a possible commissioner. Vanderbusch said it is hoped to have a commissioner selected by next spring.

Formerly the MIAA commissioner was appointed for an indefinite term. DeGay Ernst, who served as commissioner for 28 years, resigned last spring.

On the matter of post season games, the new constitution states that MIAA teams are barred from competition in post season games.

Individual competition in post season activities must be approved by the MIAA governing board. The board, acting under the new constitution, approved Hope's Sheridan Shaffer and two Calvin runners, Ray Hommes and Al Bierling, to run in the NCAA college division cross-country meet Saturday in Wheaton, Ill.

Post season competition came in for a lot of comment last year when Hillsdale, then a member of the MIAA, participated in the Mineral Bowl football game. Hillsdale resigned from the MIAA on Dec. 15, 1960.

The rewriting of the constitution was completed last May and studied by each school during the summer and this fall. A member from each college served on the committee and Dr. John Hollenbach, Hope vice president, represented Hope.

Zeeland Man Fined On Income Tax Charges
GRAND RAPIDS — Cyrus Mulder, owner of the Zeeland Sash and Door Co., was fined $1,000 and placed on two years probation Thursday for filing false income tax returns from 1955-58.

Mulder, 58, who had previously pleaded guilty, was sentenced by U. S. District Judge Raymond W. Starr.

Remnants of an ancient ship uncovered in a Cape Cod harbor indicate the Vikings may have visited U. S. shores.

PIANO RECITALIST — Barbara Holmquest, internationally-known pianist, who performed on the Hope College campus in March, 1960, is returning by popular request to play a program of Mendelssohn, Beethoven, D. G. Wren, Debussy and Samuel Barber Thursday at 8:15 p.m. in Dimmet Memorial Chapel. Since her last performance Mrs. Holmquest has performed in Italy, Germany, France, England and Sweden. She will return to Europe next February for a second tour. She has been acclaimed by critics as "one of the few pianists who can play Debussy's music with this manner of perception."

Some Major Changes Made In Document

OLIVET — Members of the MIAA adopted a new constitution Tuesday at the annual fall meeting here and it marked the first time in the 74-year MIAA history that a new constitution has been written.

Any previous changes in the league constitution were made by amendment but this was the initial revision of the complete constitution. The league was founded in March, 1888 and will celebrate its 75th anniversary during the 1962-63 school year.

Hope College officials reported "the new constitution is essentially as it was before" but a few significant changes were made. The MIAA is composed of Hope, Alma, Albion, Adrian, Calvin, Kalamazoo and Olivet.

One of the changes concerns a governing board. The governing board, under the new constitution, shall consist of the athletic director, student representative and faculty representative of each member school.

In addition to the trio from each school, one of the presidents of a league school shall serve as chairman of the governing board. Formerly only the faculty representatives and student representatives were on the governing board.

The presidents named Dr. Gordon Riehmiller of Olivet to serve as chairman until June, 1962. Hope athletic director Gordon Brewer, faculty representative Al Vanderbusch and student representative Sherwood Vander Woude are Hope's representatives. A new student representative will be selected next year since Vander Woude is a senior.

Another one of the points of the new constitution concerns financial aid. The document states that the amount of aid that is given to athletes overall shall be the same as that given to non-athletes proportionately.

Every school must report every year all of the aid that is given to athletes. Reports must be made in the fall and in the spring and a rotating committee of faculty representatives, appointed by the governing board chairman, will study the financial aid reports.

Survivor Tells of 40 Days In New Guinea After Crash

Editor's note: A reference to the 126th Infantry, 32nd Division in a UPI story Tuesday describing the survival of two men in a 1942 crash of a C-47 in the New Guinea jungle led The Sentinel to Lt. Col. William Sikkel of Holland, who commanded the missing platoon, and another survivor Sgt. Edward Holleman of Hudsonville. The following story pieces together the story of the crash of "The Flying Dutchman" in New Guinea on Nov. 10, 1942.

By Al Bransdorfer and Roger Snow
HUDSONVILLE — One of six survivors of a military C-47 crash in the New Guinea jungle in 1942 today recounted details of a harrowing 40 days spent wandering through a tangled mass of mountain jungle to get help for injured survivors of the crash.

Edward Holleman, now 47, and living at 3509 Barker Ave., Hudsonville, was a 28-year-old platoon sergeant of the Headquarters Company of the 126th Infantry of the 32nd Division on Nov. 10, 1942.

On that day he and half of his platoon crashed in the northeastern New Guinea jungle aboard the military transport.

The wreckage of the ill-fated plane, dubbed "The Flying Dutchman," was found by a group of American and Australian researchers last week, 19 years to the day from the time of the crash. There were no bodies aboard.

Six of 23 men aboard the plane were killed in the crash, a seventh died of injuries the first night, and two men from a party of four sent for help drowned in a swift mountain river.

The two men left from one party and another party of four men who went for help survived.

The fateful flight of "The Flying Dutchman" started at Port Moresby on the southern coast of New Guinea on Nov. 10, 1942.

A platoon commanded by then 2nd Lt. William Sikkel of Holland, was split into two groups, half of the men flying on the "The Flying Dutchman" and half aboard a plane christened "Eightball."

Sikkel today is an insurance agent living at 47 East 29th St. and a lieutenant colonel in the Michigan National Guard.

The platoon took off early on a clear morning with instructions to be "prepared to fight on landing." The two planes carrying Lt. Sikkel's platoon, along with some six or eight other planes, were scheduled to land at Poppendeta in northeastern New Guinea.

Aboard some of the other planes were members of Holland's Co. D, 1st Battalion.

The 2nd Battalion, from the 126th Infantry, commanded by Col. Henry Geerds of Holland, had been sent as an advance party to clear areas of operation from which supporting troops would assume the offensive. Poppendeta was one of these locations cleared by the advance detachment.

From Poppendeta, troops flown in departed on an 11-day mountain climbing expedition which culminated in contact with the Japanese southeast of Buna in northern New Guinea. This marked the start of the long Buna campaign from Thanksgiving of 1942 until Feb. 1943.

On Nov. 25 and 26, at the beginning of the Buna campaign, a total of 13 Holland men lost their lives, many serving with Co. D.

The aircraft which left Port Moresby on Nov. 10 flew low through mountain gaps to escape detection and attack by Japanese Zeros. The use of passes was limited due to a consistent cloud cover which limited visibility every afternoon.

For this reason the C-47 transport planes carrying Lt. Sikkel's platoon left Port Moresby in the early morning.

A chaplain, Capt. Theodore W. Barron of Wenatchee, Wash., was to go along with the platoon. Lt. Sikkel told the chaplain that since he was from Holland and was used to Dutch hospitality, he would let the chaplain fly aboard "The Flying Dutchman."

The chaplain apparently was not convinced, but a flip of a coin decided the issue. Chaplain Barron was to fly aboard "The Flying Dutchman," along with Sgt. Holleman and the rest of Sikkel's platoon.

The flight from Port Moresby to Poppendeta was only a 30 to 45 minute flight covering approximately 90 to 100 miles.

"The Flying Dutchman" assumed its takeoff position, followed by the "Eightball," and left Port Moresby in clear weather. Flying in a sort of follow-the-leader fashion the eight or ten planes in the first recorded airborne infantry assault in history headed for Poppendeta.

The planes left in clear weather, but flying at tree-top level through rugged New Guinea mountains, they encountered cloudy and rainy conditions.

"The Flying Dutchman" hit a downdraft, and although the pilot gunned the engines to gain altitude, the plane came crashing down into the trees and thick jungle at the peak of Mount Brown in the Owen Stanley mountain range of Central New Guinea.

"The Flying Dutchman" hit the mountain peak at an altitude of about 12,000 feet. Another 30 feet, and the plane might possibly have cleared the mountain.

Four members of Sgt. Holleman's group were killed in the crash along with the plane's pilot and co-pilot. Killed were Sgt. James Verstay, 23, of Grand Rapids; Pvt. Vernon Moak of Grants Pass, Ore.; Pvt. Charles Raddatz, 22, of Lincoln, Neb.; and Pvt. Charles Stokes, 25, of Petersburg, Neb. One badly injured soldier, Pvt. Margarito Padilla, 24, of Trujillo, N. M., died of injuries before the first night was over.

The plane started burning after the crash. A large fuel reserve burned furiously. Ammunition carried in the plane began to explode. Holleman led his men to safety through the clearing in the undergrowth, made by the plane, to the relative safety of thick cover about 100 yards away from the burning aircraft.

The plane burned most of the first day and night with small fires occasionally starting up. When the plane finally stopped burning, only about one-third of the craft remained, the forward two-thirds of the plane having been destroyed.

Lost in the fire were three days' rations and three days' emergency rations. All the food that remained for the 16 survivors, most of them injured and some badly hurt, was a survival kit consisting of K rations and tomato juice.

Holleman tried to fashion a small stove for his men out of the wreckage to protect against bitter mountain cold. His attempts failed.

Holleman and his men spread large maps over the drab-colored airplane in an effort to make it more easily visible from the air. The men never gave up hope, feeling that somebody would begin looking for them.

Several times other C-47s would fly over. Holleman tried to attract attention by waving white cloth or paper or by lighting flares.

The men had salvaged two balloons which inflated upon being immersed in water and were used to hoist radio antenna aloft. In an effort to get one of the balloons aloft for a signal, Holleman's men saved their urine to get enough water to inflate the balloon. The experiment did not work and the balloon only inflated to about half size.

On Nov. 12, the second day after the crash, the survivors decided that the four men in best physical condition should set out in search of help.

Pvt. Frank Thomas, 22, of Petersburg, Neb.; Pvt. Duane Butler, 23, of Homer, Mich.; Pvt. Carlos Failing, 22, of Big Rapids, Mich.; and Pvt. Gerald Grove, 22, of Scranton, Iowa, set off for help. Holleman told Thomas to fly "a couple shots" if the group found water. The four men had been gone only about a half-hour when their shots were heard by those left in the plane.

Taking a compass bearing on the sound of the shots, Holleman and a couple of his men went in search of water. The half-hour walk to a mountain stream took two hours on the return up the steep mountainside.

The water bearers crawled and hacked their way through the tangled jungle growth, carefully marking trees as they went. Soon the men had enough water to send aloft their second balloon signal.

Holleman waited until they could hear planes flying overhead before sending up the balloon. One C-47 transport flew directly over the downed plane and failed to see the balloon.

On the fourth day after their plane went down, the men found the plane's instrument panel along with the body of the co-pilot. Both had been thrown into the dense undergrowth some 20 to 30 feet ahead of the plane.

The bodies of the co-pilot and Padilla, who died the first night, were covered with a heavy layer of moss. Sticks bearing the men's dog tags were placed at the heads of the simple graves. These two were the only men who had not been burned in the crash.

Burying the crash victims could not be accomplished. The heavy mat of roots made digging impossible, and the men had nothing with which to dig.

It was the plane's instrument panel, however, which eventually saved the lives of Holleman and his three companions after they left the plane in search of help.

Holleman tore the compass from the instrument panel and later used it to chart a southwest course out of the mountain jungle.

Six days after the crash, the men decided they had better send out another four-man party to get help. This time, with the men in the best physical condition already gone, it was decided to send the men who, although injured, could still walk.

Holleman, although he had been burned in the crash, was chosen. Along with Holleman were Pvt. Floyd August, 29, of Dorchester, Neb.; Pvt. John Mobley, 22, of Oakland, Calif.; and Corp. George Kershner, of Dayton, Ohio, the plane's radio operator and only survivor of the plane's crew.

The four men on the mission had a miserable time of it. For the first seven days after leaving the plane it rained steadily. And high in the mountains it was bitterly cold.

Holleman had taken along half of a pair of field glasses, hoping to use the lenses to light fires. The group never saw the sun through the heavy jungle growth until they reached a small path and clearing on their 10th day away from the plane.

Following their southwest course, the group labored down steep inclines one day and up almost vertical cliffs the next. One night, it got dark before they could reach the top of a steep mountain and the four men had to spend the night perched on a small ledge overlooking a vast abyss.

Since the ledge was too small for all four to lie down, the men slept in shifts with two standing and two sleeping throughout the night.

On the 10th day out, the men stumbled upon a small path through the jungle. Following the path, looking for signs of human life, the men were found by friendly natives, and Holleman was given his first bite to eat in 16 days. He had not eaten since breakfast prior to leaving Port Moresby, on Nov. 10.

By this time, the four men in Holleman's party had lost 40 to 50 pounds, and, looking thin and haggard, could barely walk 50 feet without stopping to rest.

The group was slowed down and delayed for a period of four days when Mobley came down with malaria.

The men were given food, mostly yams grown by natives, and were escorted from one small native village to another by groups of friendly natives.

Finally they arrived at an Australian army post some 60 miles from Port Moresby. The Australians radioed officials at Port Moresby informing them of the crash. The four men rode on trucks the remainder of the distance to Port Moresby.

Holleman arrived at Port Moresby shortly after midnight on Dec. 21, and was hospitalized immediately, after spending over 40 days battling the rigors of the New Guinea jungle.

A trip that had originally taken only 30 minutes by air had taken the four men over 35 days to complete on foot.

Experienced Australian bushmen immediately began a search for the downed aircraft and the eight injured and hungry men left aboard.

Still on the plane with the chaplain, Capt. Barron, were Pvt. Marvin Patton, 22, of Dayton, Wash.; Corp. Lawrence Peterson of Chicago; Pvt. Theodore Romero of Brush, Colo.; Pvt. William Smith of Shaw, Colo.; Pvt. John Bellus of Omaha, Neb.; Pvt. Martin Brandon of Hart, Mich.; and Pvt. Antonio Montez of La Union, N. M.

The Australian searchers scoured the mountainous terrain and failed to turn up a trace of the missing aircraft or its cargo of wounded men. Holleman learned later that the search party had probably come to within one day's journey from the wrecked plane but failed to find it.

Patrol searches for the downed aircraft came to an end in January, 1943, about two months after the plane crashed, and hope for the eight men still aboard her faded.

Lt. Sikkel, who had been engaged in the Buna campaign, became a casualty and was returned to Port Moresby where he was hospitalized during the time Holleman and his three companions were hacking their way through the jungle.

As commanding officer of the platoon, Sikkel was responsible for mail sent to his men. During the month of December, 1942, Sikkel marked Holleman's mail and the mail of the other men who went down with "The Flying Dutchman," with an MIA (missing in action).

On Jan. 1, 1943, Holleman was released from the hospital at Port Moresby, and on that day Sikkel saw Holleman, "looking like a bag of bones," walk past the hospital. Sikkel ran from the hospital, collared Holleman and told him to send a telegram to his wife, explaining that he was alright. The telegram was sent to Mrs. Holleman in Hudsonville on Jan. 1, and on Jan. 5 she gave birth to the Hollemans' first child, a son, Robert.

It was at Port Moresby that Holleman discovered what had become of the two missing members of the first four-man party sent out from the wrecked airplane.

Thomas explained that his group had come upon a river a short time after leaving the plane and had decided to follow the river, hoping it would lead them out of the mountains.

He discussed the crossroads in the theology of the Roman Catholic church and its insight into the use of the Bible in Catholic homes, as opposed to the increased importance given to the role of Mary. He told the group about the influences which caused him to become a Protestant Christian, chief of which was the continued and diligent study of the Bible. His earliest experiences with Protestant Methodists in Sao Paulo, Brazil, was an inspiration to him in the early days of his life as a Protestant, he said.

His address was delivered in the Dutch language and was interpreted by the Rev. G. J. Ten Zythoff, instructor of Greek and New Testament.

Rev. Ten Zythoff presided at the meeting and conducted devotions and Dr. H. Englund spoke briefly in behalf of the seminary.

Arrangements for the lecture were made by William O. Rottschaefer, Reformed church layman from Grand Rapids.

Local Guard Unit Fought In New Guinea

Holland's National Guard unit, Company D, has been found to have had a direct link to the moss-covered wreckage of a World War II C-47 transport plane found last week high in the mountainous jungles of New Guinea.

The aircraft crashed while moving troops, including Holland's guard unit, from Port Moresby in southern New Guinea, to Poppendeta and Pongani, a pair of jungle airstrips to the north.

The Buna Campaign, of which the airlift was the first step, was the initial combat in World War II for local guardsmen.

Company D had been activated and entered federal service on Oct. 15, 1940. The unit moved from Holland to Camp Beauregard, La., on Oct. 25, with a complement of 77 enlisted men and three officers.

Company D spent the winter at Camp Beauregard, moving to Camp Livingston, La., on Feb. 27, 1941.

After the start of World War II, the unit was moved to Fort Devens, Mass., in February of 1942. In April of that year, the local guardsmen were moved to San Francisco.

On April 22, 1942, Company D left San Francisco aboard the S.S. Lurline and landed at Port Adelaide, Australia, on May 14, setting up camp at Camp Sandy Creek, near Adelaide.

On July 18, the unit moved to Camp Cable near Brisbane. Two months later, on Sept. 18, 1942, a liberty ship carried Company D to Port Moresby, New Guinea. The unit arrived at Port Moresby on Sept. 23.

Company D was part of the airborne assault on Buna which left Port Moresby on Nov. 10. It was on this short flight over rugged mountain jungle that "The Flying Dutchman" crashed into a peak in the Owen Stanley mountain range.

Following the Buna campaign, which ended in late January of 1943, troops of the Holland unit were sent to Australia for rest and additional training in April.

Company D went back to New Guinea for the second time on Sept. 4, 1943, landing at Milne Bay on the southeastern tip of the island.

Late in 1943, the local guard unit moved from Milne Bay to Goodenough Island, and proceeded from there to make a beach landing invasion at Saidor, New Guinea, on Jan. 2, 1944.

The company was moved from Saidor to Aitape, New Guinea in April and participated in an invasion of Morotai Island on Sept. 15. The unit landed at Leyte, Philippine Islands, on Nov. 16, and moved on to Luzon on Jan. 27, 1945.

Company D was deactivated Feb. 28, 1946, at Kure, Japan. During the period of federal service the men of Company D saw a total of 654 days of combat.

Of the original Company D leaving Holland in 1940, nine men were killed in action, one was killed in a military accident, one became a prisoner of war, and 11 men were wounded in action.

Report Given On Costs of Text Books

A detailed report on new text books sold to junior and senior high students was presented to the Board of Education at its monthly meeting Monday night by Edward Donovan, administrative assistant to Supt. Walter W. Scott, who submitted a seven-page report on text books, cost to retailers, markups, etc.

The study, the result of a criticism on prices a month or so ago, was referred to the schools committee.

Donovan's report revealed that all school text book publishers are under a $500 state bond not to sell to one school for less than another. In general, the suggested markup is 25 per cent, and prices listed by two local suppliers generally were below this markup. Publishers also were willing to sell to schools at the same price as retail suppliers.

A letter from Fris Book Store to Supt. Scott, read earlier in the evening, indicated that handling text books for school children was not the "graveyard" many persons believe, but stores generally are willing to put up with the attendant troubles for the additional sales school traffic may bring.

In another report, Donovan announced that the Holland and Inter-City Bus Lines as of today will discontinue its routes for high school students within the city school district, since a second two-week trial period from Oct. 30 to Nov. 11 resulted in less than 30 children using bus service and grossing just over $65 for the period.

Supt. Scott announced two Con-Con hearings on education Nov. 15 and Nov. 29, both to be held in the main auditorium at Kellogg Center in East Lansing.

He also announced a meeting of the PTA Council Thursday at Cumerford's with Dr. H. Griggs of Western Michigan University speaking on "New Patterns in Elementary Education."

Scott announced two airborne tv programs for tonight in the Holland High auditorium. From 7 to 8 p.m. the program will be primarily for tv installers and dealers associated with the educational programs. From 8 to 9:30 p.m. parents of children in tv classes will be invited to view a presentation on the experimental program.

Scott also reviewed a report from Dr. Harold Bottrell on the Community Resources Workshop held in Holland last summer, mentioning that the program in general was well received and the achievements were noteworthy. It is expected a similar course for graduate credit will be offered next summer.

A letter from J. De Vries who supervises a noon-hour Youth for Christ meeting in Holland High school asking that YFC continue the program was referred to the schools committee.

A letter from Raymond J. Lokers, superintendent of Hamilton public schools, expressed appreciation for flowers the Holland board sent on the occasion of the dedication of the new high school.

The schools committee reported on a meeting with Kenneth Heuvelman, coordinator of special education in Ottawa county, and other persons interested in maintaining Prestatie Huis for mentally handicapped children. The area of special education will be discussed further at an informal meeting of the Board of Education next Monday at 7:30 p.m. in Thomas Jefferson School with Carroll Norlin as chairman. The meeting will be open to the public.

The schools committee reported that consideration is being given on opening the new high school to the community and that the superintendent presently is making a survey to discover the extent to which various high school departments might want to participate.

Secretary James Hallan announced notice from the Ottawa County Treasurer that $85,570 would be forthcoming in school aid funds.

President Jack Plewes announced that he and the superintendent and assistant superintendent had attended a meeting of the Lansing Board of Education. In meeting procedures, he said the Lansing board sends copies of minutes to all members thereby eliminating reading of minutes which sometimes consumes 12 to 25 minutes in a Holland meeting. The board currently is studying procedures of other school boards with a view to more efficient organizational methods. Member Harvey Butler suggested considerable time might be saved if all committee reports were not read. Members usually receive these reports the previous Friday.

A* members were present at the meeting which lasted over three hours. Vern Schipper gave the invocation.

Questers Shown Reproductions Of Antiques

The Etta Fox Chapter of Questers met Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Harvey Kleinhekel, Ed Broin, curator of the Baker furniture museum presented an instructive program on furniture making and design. He displayed two antique Italian chairs which he had secured during his travels in Europe and then displayed two reproductions of these chairs made by the Baker Furniture Company.

Mr. Broin explained the process of making and finishing these reproductions. He showed samples of the wood used in making furniture in the Holland factory. The subject of Mr. Broin's talk was "Antiques and Reproductions."

The classification of European antique is an article made during the reign of that period as specified. The U. S. government definition of antique furniture is that the article was made prior to 1830, the beginning of the Machine Age.

Coach Tom Carey presided and announced that halfback Jim De Neff was elected by his teammates as the most valuable player on the team.

Vern Kupelian, Holland High history instructor, spoke to the group. He pointed to certain reasons for the team's success this year as "unity and spirit, willingness to learn, pride and confidence and devotion to your team."

"But the next nine to 12 months will determine failure or success in football," Kupelian warned. "There will be natural pitfalls each person will be faced with such as automobiles, girls, nothing else to learn because we won last year and new freedoms. You must learn how to accept these freedoms," Kupelian said.

"Coaches Carey and (Carl) Selover have given you the opportunity to learn, to experience, to achieve. Unless you develop upon these in your varsity year, their efforts would have been in vain," Kupelian concluded.

Carey and Selover received trophies from the team engraved "LMAG champs" and a large cake will all of the names of the players served as a table decoration. A football field with stick figures was included in the decorations.

A tribute to Dan Williams, who was injured in the Central game, was given and letter award certificates were given to the players.

Dr. Henry Bast gave the invocation and films of the Holland-Muskegon Orchard View reserve game were shown. Reserve team cheerleaders served the team table and other sophomore girls served the parents.

Zeeland Church Scene of Rites

Mr. and Mrs. Sherwin Hulst (Prince photo)

Spiral candelabra, ferns, white mums and snapdragons formed the setting for the fall wedding of Miss Barbara Lynn Bloemsmma and Sherwin Hulst in First Reformed Church of Zeeland on Friday, Oct. 27.

The 8 o'clock double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. Newhouse. Miss Bloemsmma is the daughter of Mrs. Bernard Bloemsmma of 215 Lincoln St., Zeeland, and the late Mr. Bloemsmma. Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hulst of route 3, Zeeland, are the parents of the groom.

While the organist, Elmer Lievens, played traditional wedding music, the bride approached the altar escorted by her brother, Lt. Tom Bloemsmma. She was given in marriage by her mother.

Mrs. Roger Lee Yntema, sister of the bride, attended as matron of honor while Miss Carol De Jonge was bridesmaid. Other attendants were Wayne and Leroy Hulst, brothers of the groom; best man and groomsmen, respectively, Jerry Bloemsmma, brother of the bride, and Gene Morren, ushers.

Miss Bloemsmma chose a gown of imported French chantilly lace fashioned with a Sabrina neckline. An insert of illusion topping the skirt of lace and nylon chiffon was styled in a Cinderella design. Alternating panels of chantilly lace and nylon chiffon formed the bouffant skirt which terminated in a sweep train. Long lace sleeves extended to points over her wrist and her elbow-length veil fell from a matching cap of silk organza trimmed with seed pearls. She carried a white Bible with a white

Hospital Guilds Busy

Several hospital guilds are planning or working on various Christmas projects, the board of directors of Holland Hospital Auxiliary was informed at its monthly meeting Monday.

The auxiliary will provide ushers and ticket takers at a floral design showing by Dick Zwiap Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Woman's Literary Club. Arrangements for every month of the year will be demonstrated.

Other guild activity includes Christmas greens by the Martha Kollen guild; candy, fruit cake, etc., by the Junior Welfare League as well as the annual Candy Cane Ball Dec. 16 in Civic Center; Christmas wrapping paper by the Margaret Hummer guild, and a bazaar of homemade gifts by the North Shore Guild in December.

The board took action on providing 135 units of dry hot plates for patients' meals in the hospital. These units involve a stainless steel ring, a heated palette and a cover, designed to keep food hot for a reasonably long period. The units which may involve an expenditure of $3,000 are financed through profits of the coffee shop.

Mrs. W. A. Butler, chairman of the coffee shop, reported on shop finances. Mrs. Vernon D. Ten Cate, chairman of gifts, displayed many items available in the shop for Christmas.

Hope Names VanderWoude Most Valuable

Sherwood (Sharky) Vander Woude, captain of the Hope College football team, today was named Hope's most valuable football player and enters competition for the Randall C. Bosch of Holland trophy awarded annually to the MIAA's most valuable player.

Vander Woude was hampered this season with a leg injury but saw limited action. Coach Russ De Vette used Vander Woude at quarterback, halfback and fullback and as a linebacker on defense.

The 21-year-old senior from Randolph, Wis., was an All-MIAA selection last season. He is an all-A student and plans to attend the University of Michigan medical school next year.

Although Vander Woude punted only one time in MIAA this season, the boot covered 49 yards and was the longest recorded in league play. His play against Albion, in which he injured his leg, was outstanding and he made the majority of tackles and led the Flying Dutchmen on offense.

All of the selections for most valuable player will be announced today at the league meeting in Olivet. The football coaches will have their teams vote for the league's most valuable player later this week.

The players rate the MVP selections, one through five, and a player can't vote for his school's nominee. The winner receives the Bosch award.

Bosch, Holland industrialist, has been presenting the gold-diamond studded football for the past 25 years. The last Hope player to win the award was Larry Ter Molen in 1938. Bosch also awards a similar honor to the most valuable basketball player in the MIAA.
