If you want to enjoy a plane ride when you are 81 years old perhaps the prescription of Dr. Abraham Leenhouts will work as well for you as it has for him. Born the year after Lincoln died, Dr. Leenhouts has had a long and vigorous professional career. Although his practice now is largely confined to keeping Hope college students healthy, he still finds time for a large circle of friends. And time to advise a Sentinel reporter to get plenty of rest.

Sleep If You Seek Easy Way to Health, Vigor

"I was born in 1866, and that was just one year after President Lincoln was assassinated," Dr. Abraham Leenhouts often says.

"My birthplace and the place where I spent my boyhood was in a log cabin near Zeeland, about 10 miles from Holland. When we wanted supplies my father would hitch his team of bays to a farm wagon and off we would go to Holland."

The trip would take two hours each way, he said.

"People who have five children in a family now say it is large, but there were 11 in our family," he said. "There were seven boys and four girls; seven are still living, the oldest is 87 and the youngest 72."

In 1881, Dr. Leenhouts began school at Hope. The school was then known as Hope Prep. "I was out in three years on a four-year course," he said.

"Like a lot of the kids nowadays I wasn't sure as to whether I wanted to go on to college or not."

Working for a year in Milwaukee as an office boy for a physician made him mind up that college and medicine were for him. "The physician in Milwaukee used me mostly for collecting his bills, which of course I didn't like so well," said Dr. Leenhouts.

After attending the University of Michigan for three years and being graduated in 1891, he came to Holland. "It was about that time that physicians began the drive for preventive medicine, that is, basic cleanliness. Babies died each year, for the simple reason that mothers would not place covers over food or keep or place a protective netting over the child," he said.

Dr. Leenhouts now is in charge of the clinic for Hope students. He believes in the importance of adequate rest for everyone.

"The human body is like a storage battery," said Dr. Leenhouts. "The body has to be recharged daily through sleep and when a person goes to bed that is just what happens, recharging the body and allowing the muscles and nerves to be built up again in preparation for the next day," he said.

"There is no set rule as to just how much sleep a person needs, but the amount of sleep really needed is, a good rest that leaves you with the feeling of being completely refreshed," said Dr. Leenhouts as he went on to tell just what happens when we sleep. "There are seven parts of the body that gain when we sleep."

"The first is the brain. While asleep the brain doesn't need to function at the rate it would during the day of overseeing the many tasks of your body. The muscles come next and like the brain they are resting during sleep, gaining strength lost during the previous day and building up energy for the day following."

"At night while asleep is the one time that the lungs can recuperate, and that is the third point. Number four is the eyes. They are under steady tension during the day and sleep relieves this strain. A person actually grows at night when he stretches out in sleep and allows the spine to rest. Between each vertebrae there is the cartilage cushion which is mashed together during the day from supporting the body, that finishes the fifth point."

"For the sixth item I'll point out one that many physicians use to help people who have a case of nerves," said the doctor. "The nervous system rests when you doze off to happy dreams and nothing but a good sleep can really relieve the nerves."

"Last but not least, and the seventh part of the body that sleep does wonders for, is the heart. Only when we are resting can the heart slow down from a hard day's work and recuperate for the next day's troubles and strains," he said.

The doctor went on to point out that once sleep is lost it cannot be regained, although many people try to fool themselves that it can be made up. Just like time, once it is lost it can never be regained. The body can however be built up again if sleep is lost.

He also pointed out the tragic error of many people who take sleeping medicines to gain their rest. It would be best if these people consulted a physician who can give them hints on how to go to sleep all by themselves.

"Many times a slow short walk before going to bed will do wonders. For those who think they just have to eat something before bed, it is better to eat small amounts of food that will digest easily and not to overload the stomach," said Dr. Leenhouts.

The object of this interview was to find out how an 81-year-old man felt during his really first airplane ride.

"Clyde Geerlings took me up for an hour's ride over the lake, around Holland and out over my old homestead near Zeeland," he said with a grin a mile wide on his face. "It wasn't really my first plane ride because my wife and I took a plane to Florida once, but she became air sick and I being a physician had my hands full taking care of her. This last ride was really wonderful. I could see everything so clearly. It seems that the plane wasn't moving at all but Clyde said we were traveling along at 80 miles an hour. I didn't feel one butterfly in my stomach," he said.

"I want to take a good many more rides now that I know how nice it is up there," said the physician as he looked at his watch and said he would have to be getting along since his nurse had patients in the outer room.

Holland Youth Who Admitted Breaking Into Five Places Appears

Grand Haven, Nov. 20 (Special)—Dale Lewis, 18, of Holland, who pleaded guilty Nov. 1 to a night-time breaking charge, was placed on probation for four years when his case came up for disposition today before Circuit Judge Fred T. Miles.

Conditions of his probation are that he be returned to Starr Commonwealth school at Albion Tuesday for one year to complete his high school education, pay $3 a month costs, and $12 a month toward restitution of the $145 taken from five places he allegedly entered, and make restitution for damage to a car belonging to Phillips Brooks of Holland, which Lewis admitted taking from the garage. The car was abandoned later in a ditch near Grand Rapids badly damaged.

Lewis will not be required to pay monthly costs while attending school at Starr Commonwealth, but was instructed to pay $6 a month costs for the first year after he completes his schooling. If all amounts are not paid at the end of his probation period, the probation will be extended another year. Lewis was specifically charged with breaking into the Margo Apparel shop in Holland Oct. 19.

Garfield Proffitt, Jr., 20, route 4, Holland, pleaded guilty to a charge of unlawfully driving away a car, automobile without intent to steal and will return later for disposition of his case. Proffitt told the court he was intoxicated at the time he allegedly took a car belonging to Alvin Kuiper of Holland. Proffitt's home is in Kentucky and he told the court he would like to return there.

Joseph Ferwerda, 18, and Floyd Eisen, 18, route 2, Coopersville, who pleaded guilty to charges of larceny, were placed on probation three years and required to pay $3 a month costs. Eisen, whose driver's license was previously revoked by the state, must serve 10 days immediately in the county jail. Ferwerda must start serving 10 days Nov. 29, the judge decreed.

Gordon Jack Meyers, 17, Coopersville, who pleaded guilty to the same charge, also was placed on probation for three years with instructions to pay $3 a month costs. His operator's license as well as that of Ferwerda was surrendered for 90 days. The three were charged with taking a quantity of motor oil from the B. J. Lemmen warehouse in Coopersville Oct. 15.

Max Robert Ott, Jr., 18, Grand Haven, who pleaded guilty to a charge of unlawfully driving away a motor vehicle without intent to steal, was placed on probation for one year, ordered to pay $3 a month costs, and make restitution of $85.41 to pay damage to a motor scooter he had allegedly taken from his parking place at the high school building. He was ordered to pay $50 within two days and the balance within six months.

Exchangites Hear Law Discussed

Advantages and disadvantages of Michigan's new community property law were outlined by Peter S. Boter, city attorney, before local Exchangites at their Monday meeting held in the Warm Friend Tavern.

Advantages lie mainly in lower income tax payments in certain brackets, while at present a great many questions have been raised by the law which are yet to be answered, the speaker asserted. The only definite advice which can be given is that everyone should keep a very detailed account of his source and payment of income.

"The state bar is not the sponsor of this bill," the attorney said. He urged repeal of the law soon. "Difficulties in probating estates have increased a hundred-fold," Boter pointed out.

The speaker was introduced by Peter Kromann. Exchangite Paul E. Hinkamp presented plans to past presidents Gene Ripley and Rex Chapman, the latter in absentia. Awards for membership recruitment were made to E. A. Stegink and William Vande Water.

Kromann presented the government's plan to conserve meat and wheat to "keep the peace." Opening prayer was given by Ernest V. Hartman. Phyllis Darrow and Tim Harrison sang vocal duets accompanied by Herb Ritsma.

Guests at the meeting included state Exchange president, Ernest L. Ray who addressed the group briefly, and Robert Van Voorhees of Holland.

Dr. Henry Boss, Veteran Physician, Claimed by Death

Dr. Henry Boss, 85, retired physician who practiced medicine in Holland and vicinity for 55 years, died Monday at his home, 315 River Ave. He had been in ill health for some time. He suffered a hip injury seven years ago.

Born July 25, 1862, six miles southeast of Holland near Overisel in Allegan county, he was the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Boss. His education included schooling at Hope college.

After graduation from the University of Michigan medical school in 1887, he began his medical practice at Fillmore station, located between Holland and Hamilton. After 19 years in that location, he moved to Holland, where he practiced for 36 years.

Forty-five years after his graduation from the University, Dr. Boss returned for an alumni reunion, meeting old friends.

Dr. Boss traveled extensively, visiting Germany, Switzerland, France, Cuba and many places in this country. He had many interesting experiences in his profession and held the distinction of caring for six generations in one family.

His wife, the former Mae Stratton of Laketon township, died about three years ago. He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Anna Wiggers of Holland, and several nieces and nephews.

Moran Elected Head Of Community Chest

Officers for 1948 were elected and three new board members were appointed at a meeting of the Community Chest Board of Directors Thursday afternoon in Peoples State bank.

Joseph W. Moran, supervisor of physical education in Holland public schools, was elected president, succeeding John H. Van Dyke, whose three-year term as board member expires this year.

Peter Kromann, George Good and Ben Schrottenboer were appointed board members. The appointments were made after voters passed an amendment increasing the board membership at the final report meeting of this year's campaign Oct. 24.

Campaign Manager Carl C. Andreason said final figures on the 1947 campaign were still incomplete, but it was estimated Holland had gone 12 to 15 per cent over the goal of $25,050.

Garden Club's Interest In Conservation Grows

Garbage Disposal Issue Is Alive Again in Holland

The garbage disposal issue is alive in Holland again.

Plans for a city-wide program were briefly discussed by Common Council Wednesday night and council authorized a visit here by a representative of the Michigan Municipal League, who probably will recommend a practical program for this city.

Meanwhile, the Civic Improvements committee is open to suggestions, according to Ald. Melvin Van Tatenhove who reported the committee has been holding meetings on the subject and hopes to present something "concrete" to council soon.

Mayor Ben Steffens said he had been approached by the Woman's Literary club which plans a panel discussion on the subject and he said he had referred the representatives to City Inspector Ben Wiersema.

City Attorney Peter S. Boter reported he had discussed the subject of charter revision for Holland with former City Attorney Vernon D. Ten Cate. He said Ten Cate has many notes on the subject and will report to council in December.

Council also considered two letters from John Van Dyke, Jr., head of the Good Roads committee of the Chamber of Commerce asking council's co-operation in two matters involving road improvements.

The first asked that council co-operate with the Chamber and the Hospital board in asking the State Highway commission to complete the US-31 by-pass as quickly as possible. The letter pointed out that contracts already had been let for an over-pass on the Ottawa Beach shortcut and that construction of a new bridge over Black river and over the railroad tracks would be started soon. When these projects are completed, the road should be constructed to the letter said.

The communication was referred to the Street committee and Chairman L. C. Dalman said the engineer, working on plans for road improvements in Holland, and State Senator William C. Vandenberg already have planned to meet with State Highway Commissioner Charles Zeigler on the subject. Dalman said the committee would be glad to include other representatives in the group.

A meeting had been set for next Monday but had to be postponed because Zeigler will be out of town that day.

The other letter asked Council to consider paving Central Ave. from 27th to 32nd Sts. as well as the proposed stretch from 24th to 27th. The letter pointed out such a move would relieve traffic on M-40 and US-31 particularly in view of a proposed church and school in the area. It also pointed out that the neighborhood is building up rapidly, and an improved road might serve as a great convenience in getting to the Street Committee.

Boter pointed out that special assessments cannot exceed the assessment of the property and the cost of such improvements might easily be prohibitive. He also said sewers have not been constructed in that area, and as an alternative suggested an oil dust layer for street improvements.

A motion by Ald. Dalman to close an alley between 16th and 17th Sts. east of Columbia Ave, was withdrawn after Ald. Van Tatenhove said such property was in the industrial zone and it might be well if the city protected alley rights for possible future industrial use.

Ald. Fred Galien reported progress on committee meetings in regard to abusive use of city streets by heavy trucks.

Ald. Bert Slagh, chairman of the Buildings committee, reported that work of re-decorating the city library is nearing completion and work has been begun on installing a new door on engine house No. 2.

A petition signed by 20 of the 27 property owners requesting paving of 19th St. between Van Raalte and Harrison Aves. was referred to the Street committee.

Council approved an application for a license to operate a restaurant by Mrs. Frank Douma at 252 River Ave., a transfer from Helen Tyse. An application from the VFW Post Club, Inc., to operate a private restaurant at 28 West Seventh St. was approved, subject to approval by the Health Inspector.

Claims and accounts totaled $9,094.28. Other claims were hospital board, $15,184.86; library board, $524.21; park and cemetery, $2,270.53; Board of Public Works payroll and claims, $34,005.73. The city treasurer reported city collections of $21,697.78 and BPW collections of $34,005.73.

Ald. Raymond T. Holwerda gave the invocation.

An increasing interest in conservation was evidenced Thursday as the Holland Tulip Garden club, in its meeting in the Warm Friend Tavern, heard reports of a group which attended the Higgins Lake Conservation Training school in August.

The report was given in the form of a round table discussion by Mrs. W. S. Merriam, as chairman, Mrs. L. W. Lamb, Mrs. L. G. Stalkamp and Mrs. Harry Wetter.

The promotion of conservation education has been adopted as a project of the Federated Garden clubs of Michigan, of which the local club is a member organization. The Higgins Lake school was established by the state conservation department in a 250,000-acre forest, and within a radius of a few miles are illustrated most of Michigan conservation problems and practices, including problems in land use, forestry, geology, game and fish management, and recreation.

Michigan is first in conservation education and there is no other camp in the United States comparable to the Higgins Lake camp, according to Julian Smith, director of camping and outdoor education study of the Michigan department of public instruction.

Women of Michigan, representing garden clubs, have been going to the Higgins Lake workshop for nine years. Last year the garden clubs of the state sponsored a new project, with 66 Michigan teachers, representing 30 counties, attending the school on $25 scholarships offered by 55 different clubs.

Others who attend the school are service and sportsmen's clubs, foresters and teachers, many from out of the state.

Following the trend toward conservation education, Battle Creek has established the first outdoor study camp for school children in the United States. It was brought out. Lessening of delinquency and the growth of racial tolerance are being evidenced through this program.

Mrs. Lamb, who presided at the meeting, informed the club on the Blue Star Memorial Highway project of the National Federated Garden clubs, a combination of trunk lines dedicated to service men and women of World War II.

A feature of the program Thursday morning was a talk on tulips by Miss Lida Rogers, Holland High school biology teacher, who presented the history of the tulip in an interesting manner. She traced its development from a wild flower of Persia, through its importation into the Netherlands, to its present culture and popularity.

It was through a suggestion made by Miss Rogers before the Woman's Literary club a number of years ago that the idea of Tulip Time developed. To improve the festival Miss Rogers advocated more massed plantings in vacant spaces and the development of greater interest by the people of Holland in yard plantings.

Color pictures of unusual tulip specimens were shown.

Throwing Stones Through Windows Proves Expensive

Grand Haven, Nov. 20 (Special)—Leon Franklin Paul, 19, route 1, Saugatuck, learned Wednesday that throwing stones through windows is an expensive pastime.

Paul, arraigned before Justice George Hoffer on a charge of malicious destruction of property, was sentenced to pay $10 fine, $12.75 costs and serve 10 days in the county jail, with an alternative of 30 days.

The complaint was signed by Deputy Sheriff Edward Brouwer of Holland, charging that Paul through stones in the Louis Thias home in Holland township Nov. 13. Paul previously had boarded in the Thias home for two weeks.

Music Program Features Weekly Rotary Program

A music program featured the Thursday luncheon meeting of the Holland Rotary club which was held in the Tulip room of the Warm Friend Tavern.

Participating in this program were pianists Shirley Staal and Barbara Borr, who played three piano duets, Spanish Dances II and III by Moskowski, and Minuet in G. Beethoven.

A trio, Helen Hoekstra, Allene and Evelyn Huizenga, sang two anthems, "Mountain Stream," the theme of which is that of the Beethoven minuet played by the pianists, and "I Passed By Your Window." Brahe, Evelyn Huizenga, also sang a solo, "Comin' Through the Rye." Accompanist for the singers was Celia Bruinooje.

President Andrew Sall presided at the meeting.

Classes Disrupted

Harrington school pupils were given an unexpected holiday Tuesday afternoon when boiler trouble affecting the heating system made it advisable to dismiss the children at noon. According to Harold Mow, principal, the damage has been repaired and classes resumed.

John H. Van Dyke was elected alderman of the fifth ward at a regular meeting of Common Council Wednesday night to replace Ald. Edward Pritch who has moved from the ward. Van Dyke has been active in civic affairs and served as president of the Community Chest last year. Others nominated for the position were Arnold Hertel and Andrew Verschure.

Calvin Building Fund Goes Over One Million Mark

Calvin college today topped a million dollar campaign quota by $19,127, it was announced today at Grand Rapids drive headquarters. Officials said, however, that there were still churches unreported. The campaign was initiated Sept. 18 when classical supervisors met in Grand Rapids to discuss and adopt the program. Then from Nov. 10-15, between 6,000 and 7,000 men simultaneously canvassed the Christian Reformed denomination throughout the country.

This campaign total, together with funds already available, will enable Calvin to start work on its science building next spring, along with an addition to the library, school officials said. Other buildings contemplated, and to be financed from the recent drive, are a girl's dormitory, and a student center building. This student building would be used for athletics and speech and music training, it was reported.

The latter two buildings will be erected on the recently purchased seven and one-half acres of the Clark Memorial home property, located a few hundred feet from the Calvin campus.

A college spokesman said the acquisition of this property removed the last important obstacle concerning Calvin's expansion plans. The expansion program was made necessary by an enrollment of 1,400 students, an increase of 900 since the 1945 school year.

Young Mother, Accidentally Shot Last Week, Dies

No Criminal Action Slated in Grand Haven Against Her Husband

Grand Haven, Nov. 20 (Special)—Mrs. Mary Young, 34-year-old mother of three children, was dead today of a shotgun wound accidentally inflicted more than a week ago by her husband.

Mrs. Young, who was shot in the right groin, died at 9:30 p.m. Wednesday in Municipal hospital where she had been in critical condition since the accident occurred Nov. 11. She had lost much blood and had been given several transfusions.

The husband, Albert, 35, told officers he had inserted a shell in the gun preparing to hunt rabbits upon returning home from work, and the gun discharged accidentally, shooting his wife who was doing household tasks in the kitchen.

Prosecutor Howard W. Fant said today he was of the opinion the shooting was "purely accidental" and that no criminal action will be taken against the husband.

Mrs. Young was born Nov. 9, 1913, in Chicago, where she attended school. She was married 14 years ago. She was a member of St. Anthony's church in Robinson township.

Besides the husband, who served three years in the Marine corps and was discharged from service a year and a half ago, she is survived by three children, Sharon, 12, Ronald, 9, and Daniel, 11 months; her mother, Mrs. Clara Bauholzer, and one brother, John, both of Robinson township.

Rotarians View Science Display

Three divisions of science, important to modern living, were demonstrated for members of the Holland Rotary club, at their meeting Thursday in the Warm Friend Tavern, by William G. Cobb, and Arthur T. Wells, who are traveling in this part of the country with a General Motors exhibit, "Previews of Progress."

The three phases of science explained and demonstrated were sound, infra-red light, and jet propulsion. First explaining developments in sound, the men exhibited an Edison phonograph, with which they cut a record by use of the Hill and Dale method, in use today. They also played the one billionth recording made by the RCA Victor corporation, on a plastic base, and went on to demonstrate a wire recorder.

Mr. Cobb said that wire recorders were put into use in 1895, thereby destroying the idea this is a new development in the field of recording.

Showing the use of infra-red light, the men used a heat scope, developed by the head of the GM research laboratories. By this heat scope, they showed how the body and other organisms and inorganic matter gave off infra-red light.

Explaining the principle of jet propulsion, which was first used 300 years before the birth of Christ, the demonstrators used to small model planes, which were run along a wire stretched the length of the Tulip room in the Tavern. The first model used attained a speed of nearly 100 mph, and the second model, a replica of the P-2 rocket, traveled 137 mph.

Among other interesting facts disclosed by the men, was the fact that 90 per cent of the electricity used in a light bulb goes into the atmosphere as heat, and but 10 per cent is used to produce light.

R. J. Vandenberg, of Pella, Iowa, was a visiting Rotarian at the Thursday meeting presided over by President Andrew Sall.

Good Citizenship Gets Emphasis in Local Junior High

Student Government Aids in Development; Counseling Important

This year special emphasis is being placed on good citizenship in Holland Junior High school as this is believed to be the most important value to be learned in a child's school experience. Students are being graded in home rooms and classes, on leadership, co-operation, and endeavor as well as in accomplishment. Many chances are open for pupil participation in student government. The senate and police board meet on alternate Wednesday mornings during the weekly activity period. The control of pupil conduct in halls, on the stairs and on school grounds is largely in the hands of student police officers. Whenever there are cases on the docket the police court meets, hears the cases, decides penalties, and sees that court orders are carried out.

The second annual school fair was held in the school gymnasium on the night of Nov. 6. Each of the 22 home rooms had a booth or refreshment stand. The study hour groups worked in shifts during the afternoon in putting up booths, all of which had been planned by the students. After the "hot-dogs," hamburgers, and pop had been consumed and the 9 o'clock signal rang, "clean-up" squads under leadership of student police officers put the building into "good shape" again. Such planning and working together develops good citizenship school authorities believe. Proceeds of the fair are to be used for financing assembly programs next year and for purchase of needed equipment in the building.

Junior High officers are Tom Carey, president; Don Northuis, vice-president; Sandra Jilison, treasurer; Bonnie Boeve, secretary; and Kenneth Kaji, chief of police. Police court members in addition to the chief are Malcolm Gordon and James Dwyer, with Robert Eshelman as faculty advisor.

For several years the Junior High faculty has been studying and planning for better guidance of Junior High students. At the close of the year the 6A's come over to Junior High for tours of the building, to receive explanations and to ask questions. Rural 8th grade students are invited to Junior High in April to receive the same orientation.

Several weeks each semester are devoted to educational guidance, and in ninth grade, to the tentative four-year planning for high school. By the time a student leaves Junior High his educational planning is fairly completed, but it is flexible enough to permit adjustment.

It is hoped that in the near future Junior High will have a part time counselor for girls and one for boys. Miss Clara McClellan is visiting teacher for the building.

Programs in home room and assembly have many purposes: for entertainment, information, guidance or discussion. One film selected by the committee for personal guidance purposes, entitled "Charm and Personality," will be shown to the entire student body early next semester. This week a long book film, "My Friend Flicka," will be enjoyed in celebration of Good Book Week.

There have been Mothers' teas to welcome mothers of all new entrants to Junior High. The teachers welcome the parents at any time, and invite them to come to school to visit, observe, or discuss pupil problems. With parent and teacher working together, better adjustment for the child results, said Miss Bernice Bishop, school principal.

Dr. Philip Phelps, first president of Hope college, accepted the responsibility of building a system of higher education for Dutch settlers in Holland. The cap and gown was used to inaugurate every succeeding Hope president until Dr. E. D. Dimment was chosen to head the school in 1918.

First Girl Graduate Likes Hope's Progress

There have been many changes in Hope college since the 1880's and one of the first girl graduates likes most of them.

She is Mrs. J. A. Otte, who graduated in the class of 1882. There was another girl graduate of the same class, Gertrude Alcott, who later married Prof. E. A. Whitenack. Mrs. Whitenack died a few months ago.

Mrs. Otte was 87 years old on her last birthday, but she can't see why her age is important in the story of her life. She doesn't think it unusual that she's still interested in reading, writing and visiting at her age. She thinks everybody ought to continue to develop intellectually.

Mrs. Otte missed by three months being born in Holland. As it was she was born in Albany, N.Y., where her father was stationed before coming to Holland to become the first president of Hope college.

"Dr. Van Raalte brought his colonists here, fired with great religious zeal. Those early people had no college degrees, but they were determined that their children should be educated. They were well aware that their church required an educated ministry," she said.

"They must have a college and theological training, for they had no higher ambition for their sons than to see them become ministers and missionaries. This was Van Raalte's ideal in education."

"But who in this new world could train them? They were obliged to call American teachers. Slowly the academy grew. That was not sufficient. The Rev. John Van Vleck, the principal, resigned on account of illness, and then our boards of education and domestic missions in New York prevailed upon my father (Dr. Philip Phelps) to leave his parish in the East and to try to develop the academy into a college and also to be an English missionary pastor," Mrs. Otte recalls.

Dr. Phelps was graduated from Union college in Schenectady and held degrees of A.M., D.D., and L.D. He agreed to Van Raalte's plan and became principal of the academy.

"At that time there were only three American families in Holland: Heber Walsh, Henry Post and a Mr. Howard and family. In 1862 a freshman class was formed and in 1866 eight young men were ready to graduate. My father was inaugurated as president of this new college and on July 17, 1866, the first commencement exercises were held and a Theological department was begun. With but one exception these eight young men took a regular theological course and then occupied pulpits many years with success. This to the great joy of parents and grandparents.

"But my father was an American, as nearly every one was among the early professors and teachers. It could not be otherwise at first. In the meantime other Americans came in—they helped the Dutch bring in the railroad; factories were started and the settlement began to grow and progress in every way.

"A few years passed and my father resigned to go East. Dr. Charles A. Scott, also an American, was president for awhile before his death. By this time, there were a number of the children of those early colonists who had been educated and had degrees. Dr. Gerrit J. Kollen was elected president. He was a son of one of the very early Dutch pioneers, and a graduate of Hope college. He was one of my father's students.

"The college officials asked my father to come here to inaugurate Dr. Kollen. He came and put on Dr. Kollen the same presidential gown and cap that had been given him at the time he took over the college in 1866. From that time on every president of Hope college has been a real Dutchman.

"The conclusion is that the early Dutch people here were inclined to be isolationists. They were afraid of Americans. I could give many amusing instances of this. They were afraid of the English language, of the English church service. Everything must be exactly as it was in the 'old country'."

"But to their everlasting credit and honor, through Dr. Van Raalte's influence, they became aware of the fact that they had come to an American country; gradually they learned to love the American people and that these early Americans had been the ones who had helped them in many ways, so that now we here in Holland think little of any difference. We all are Dutch-American or American-Dutch," she said.

Mrs. Otte recalls that Dr. Phelps admitted her to college studies as an experiment. He had a hard time "selling" the Dutch on the idea of education for women, but this same trouble was being experienced by other educators in other parts of the nation. After she and Mrs. Whitenack successfully completed their courses, it was easier for other girls to enroll.

The second class to include girl graduates was the class of 1885. The girl graduates of the class of '85 were sisters of the graduates of 1882. Mary Alcott, who later married G. J. Diekema, and Lizzie Phelps.

Mrs. Otte herself married a medical missionary and spent many years in China. After her husband died she made Holland her permanent home.

"After all Van Vleck hall was the only home I knew for 25 years," she said. In those days the president had an apartment in Van Vleck.

"I feel Dr. Lubbers (Irwin J. Lubbers, president of Hope) is doing a wonderful job. If he is able to fulfill his program I'll have even more reason to be proud of Hope," Mrs. Otte said.

Students' Wives Content With Life in Barracks

Hardships of Living On GI Bill Income Is Worth Education

Wives of veterans studying at Hope college, despite limited incomes, are content because their husbands can attend college.

The degree of hardship varies, as some veterans have incomes other than $90 per month, given them by the GI Bill of Rights. In many cases, their wives are working, to supplement this small income, which all agreed was too little for standard living purposes.

Mrs. John Stephens, whose husband is a sophomore, said it hasn't been bad; that the challenge has been more fun than anything else, she said that the government checks were rather unpredictable, but she and her husband "crossed their fingers and hoped."

Asked if living under these conditions was worth the effort, Mrs. Stephens replied, "definitely!" She advised the non-veteran to wait until completion of his college education before marrying, unless he has money in the bank or a steady, livable income, as there is not time to work and go to college, too.

Mrs. Gerald Gnade, mother of a 22-month-old daughter, Carol, agreed with Mrs. Stephens that living under existing conditions was worth their husbands' chance for education, although, she said, "there are moments when the Gnade family wonders." So far, living has not been too bad, but that's no indication of the future," she said.

Mrs. Gnade, like Mrs. Stephens, didn't see how any non-veteran could afford to be married while in college, without a substantial income from outside.

While at the Gnade home, Mrs. Frederick Miller came in to borrow a recipe, and when asked the same questions as Mrs. Gnade, agreed that non-vets should not be married without a sure income.

Mrs. Harold Dykstra said that most of the time, the going is hard with their 15-month-old son Gerry, and small quarters, but she felt that her husband's chance for education was worth it. Mrs. Dykstra advised non-veterans to wait before marrying, as she said it is impossible to live on a $90 a month income.

Mrs. Norwood Reek, also considered she and her husband fortunate to be able to live in the barracks while her husband attended college, but she too agreed that living was hard.

She also recommended that non-veterans wait before becoming involved in the bonds of matrimony, for the same reasons as did the others. "There is no way to exist without a steady reliable income, no matter how small, and if a married man has to work, he will find it impossible to get good grades," she said.

Summing up this advice, given by those with experience, it would seem that the non-veteran had better not try to be married and live while at college, unless he has the money to support himself and his wife, without working while in school.

Hope Receives Two Gift Checks

Hope college has received two checks of $500 each. It was announced today by Dr. Irwin J. Lubbers, college president. Donors were the Rev. James Wayer of the class of 1901, pastor of the First Reformed church, Racine, Wis., and Mrs. Gelmer Kuiper of Chicago in memory of her husband, the late Gelmer Kuiper of the class of 1889. According to Dr. Lubbers, the gifts resulted from the recent announcement of Hope's building program which involves the erection of a women's dormitory and central heating plant immediately and the building of a gymnasium and library at a later date.

The gifts, the college president pointed out, do not constitute an opening drive for funds, but are rather the outgrowth of a broad program instituted by the alumni at their annual meeting last June. According to Dr. Otto van der Velde, chairman of the committee in charge of this program, the alumni have organized what is known as the Hope Centennial club for the purpose of promoting the cause of Hope college, with the view of making the year 1966, the centennial year of the founding of Hope College, a year for completing a centennial development fund.

BIRDS AND MEN

Said the clerk as he handed a gallon of anti-freeze to a motorist, collecting therefor the modest sum of $1.65 (the same article sold for something like 75 cents a few years ago). "We men think we're so much, but it's the birds that are really smart; when cold weather threatens they migrate to the south."

The motorist agreed, but as he forked over his depreciated money he couldn't help thinking, "So what?" After all, we are men, and birds are birds, and it would probably take a few billion years to breed the "smartness" of the latter into the former. That being the case, we human beings must jolly well stay put in the cold climate, and envy of the freedom of the birds won't get us anywhere.

For it is always our old enemy, economic necessity, that rules our lives. We have a living to make, almost every last one of us, and migrating like the birds just doesn't work out; we just can't migrate away from our jobs and expect the pay envelope at the end of the week. It isn't so much that the birds are smarter, they merely are luckier. For they too are governed by their economic necessity, but it is to their economic advantage to migrate; food is easier to get in warmer climes and their jobs actually migrate with them.

Various unconventional philosophers have often played with the idea of winning freedom from economic necessity. Many a novel has been written in exaltation of the life of the vagabond. A certain type of mind is convinced that the tramp, who is without the restraints of a job and who is footloose, is much happier and hence much wiser than the citizen who toils and moils and worries and slaves and listens to alarm clocks and factory whistles and office gongs all day long.

Such philosophers are doubtless right—for the temperaments that are adapted to such a life. The vagabond who hasn't an extra shirt to his name is often happier than the busy man of affairs who has a fat bank account but who lacks the time to eat even his meals at leisure.

The trouble begins when you try to apply this recipe for happiness to whole populations. Hoboes, after all, do not produce, and if we all became hoboes, no matter how happy we might be as individuals, we would soon all die of starvation. You can't abolish economic necessity. An individual may succeed, not a people. Birds are merely lucky, and happy hoboes are parasites.

Little Maroons Bow
In Finale To Bucs

Holland's Little Maroons ended their grid season Thursday night at Grand Haven by bowing to the Little Bucs 20-6. It was the second loss for the Hollanders at the hands of the Grand Haven outfit this season. Coach Carroll Norlin's squad finished the year with three wins and six losses.

After a scoreless first quarter,
Grand Haven's Bob Tasma scored on a fake pass just before the half, making the count 6-0. The kick was missed. In the third quarter Bob Van Schelven of the Bucs raced 12 yards around end for a score. The kick was good and Grand Haven led 13-0.

Holland came back immediately by taking the kickoff and marching over to score in two plays. A 50-yard pass from Roy Morris to Bob Emmick put the ball on the 10 before Morris passed to Jim Slag for the touchdown. A plunge for the extra point failed. The Little Bucs' last score came in the final period when Bob Frevel went over from the two on a quarterback sneak. The conversion was good making the final count 20-6.

The Way of Love
I John 2:7-11, 15-17;
I John 3:13-18
By Henry Geerlings

If it be true that John wrote the books that bear his name—the gospel, the three epistles, and the Revelation—then he wrote a greater number of books than any other person save Paul.
Scholars are not all agreed that he actually wrote all five of these books, but the best tradition we have received would encourage us to believe that he did.

There is one theme that stands out conspicuously in four of these five books, the gospel and the three epistles, and it is by no means absent from the fifth one, the Revelation. It is on this ground to a very large extent that many persons have come to believe they should be attributed to John, for he has very appropriately been called the beloved disciple. It has been said that the theme of Paul's letters is faith, while that of Peter is hope, and that of John is love.

There are kinds and degrees of love. There is the love of passion, such as is manifest in the mating seasons. There is the love of affection, such as binds persons together in domestic relations, this is the love of kinship. There is the love of selection, such as God had when He selected sinners to send His Son to die for them. This latter kind of love is what we mean by Christian love. It is utterly unselfish, and acts not for gain, or can be helped by what is done for them. The Christian love can be cultivated. It may come to have all the expressions of affection.

The source of the Christian love is God's love. We love because He first loved us, selected us to be the recipients of His offers of forgiveness and salvation. We say this on the authority of John, who magnificent obsession was to talk about love and to urge believers to manifest love as an outstanding mark of Christians.

John loved a Christian life a long time, ripening in experience and maturing in his attitude. The one time son of thunder became the advocate of love and loving one another. He believed that the Christian stands out with certain characteristics expected of him, among these being his show of real love. John could well be advertised as an expert on Christian love. He knew it and lived it.

Love is a driving force. It deserves to be in control. It has the will to rule. Love and life are inseparable. Love shows its control in our relation to individuals. Love lets us speak no ill of a neighbor. Love impels us to kindness.
Love sends us on missions of mercy. Love will not let us amount to nothing, unless we absolutely resist its urge to have us amount to something.

Love is a benefactor. It insists on making gifts. So we talk of the love of God, and because of His matchless gifts there is no better definition of God, than God is love. The greatest gift of God, the one that proved perfectly the supreme reach of His selective love in His Son, Jesus is the gift to us that measure the fullness of God's love for us. What God has done for us is the highest measure of His love. If we mean it when we say that we love God, or that His love fills us, then in turn we must be benefactors. This is the case with many. They match their professed love with their generous gifts. They speak of love for the church and support the church generously.

Love is a promoter. The urge, the ought, is to share love with others. That God loves us is something to be told. That love can do for all what it does for us is a practical doctrine to be promoted.
Love is an unseen dweller in a Christian, but its presence will soon be known. We are supposed to speak out for Christ. How can we be silent if His love blesses us, and we know of persons ignorant of Him and His love? We are true to Christ when we select Him as the object of our love and trust.
If we love Him we will promote His cause. We will do more than talk. We will minister in His name. The world is in dire need of witnesses for Him and the church He established. True it is that in large parts of the so-called Christian world there are enemies of divine love at work, who would do away with the church and Christ and God Himself. Now as never there is need for promotion of the love of God in Christ, so that His name may not be lost to growing generations.

We reflect the love that is in us by our zeal in action for love's sake. We are ready to show love for others as Christ did, as far as it is possible for us. How we act because of our love determines the degree of maturity we may attain in our love. Unused love quickly weakens and dies. As our Christian love is manifested we have our fears removed. We dare great undertakings when constrained and urged by love. Fortunately we do not need to wander for God has set the pace and marked the way. We are to be followers, not pioneers in the field of Christian love. At best we will be but slight representatives of His greater love for us. The great practical involvement in the having and using of Christian love is that we be found loving one another for Christ's sake.

Doris Ewing, a former Grand Haven girl who is now a recreational director at Scott field, Ill., after 3 1/2 years with the Red Cross in India, chats with the Rev. William C. Warner, Ottawa chapter president, at the annual meeting of the county chapter Monday night in Grand Haven.

Recreational Worker
Addresses Red Cross

Grand Haven, Nov. 20—A plea for sympathetic understanding of the man in service today was made by Doris Ewing, a former Red Cross worker in India now attached to Army Special Services at Scott field, Ill., at the annual meeting of the Ottawa county chapter of the American Red Cross in Legion hall Monday night.

"Whether or not we like a peace-time Army or approve of Universal Military Training, let us have an Army which will contribute socially and morally to our young men as well as contribute to the technical side," Miss Ewing said.

The recreational worker related some of her experiences at work at Scott field and said the man in service today is not accepted on the same social standard as during the war. "We owe a lot to these boys and I'm ashamed of the people who are ashamed of the boys in uniform. We must help the boys to believe he is helping the Army. Transfer your knowledge to others that there is a standing Army today of fine, fine boys and men, and help them do the job they must do," she said.

The speaker, who served as a Red Cross worker in India 3 1/2 years before returning to this country, spoke of the changeover from a wartime to peacetime program. She said the Red Cross support during the war was "tremendous" and it was something of a surprise to learn she could get far less in the way of supplies in this country than when she was in India.

The Rev. William C. Warner, of Holland, chapter president, presided at the dinner and introduced Executive Secretary Beth Marcus

Uncle Sam Making Sure He Won't Be Caught Unawares

Industries Will Be Alerted Overnight in Case of Another War

From Our Washington Bureau
Washington, D.C. Nov. 20 (Special)—Uncle Sam will not be caught unawares again.

Next Pearl Harbor time... if there be a next time... America's war industries can be alerted almost overnight. That's the industrial mobilization plan which has been launched by the Department of National Defense.

In Michigan, which wrote an impressive industrial record in World War II, the over-all industrial mobilization plan has been translated into three specific actions:

1. The Army and Navy are selecting specific government owned plants to keep in a standby capacity. These plants may be leased to civilians but only on the agreement they can be turned back to the government for immediate war production if an emergency requires it.

So far, only one government-owned plant in Michigan has been placed in this "stand-by" capacity... Clayton and Lambert plant in Detroit. It is being held by the Navy at the present time.

2. Ten Michigan plants which are being leased or sold by the War Assets administration have or will have "national security clauses" in their contracts. This clause would keep the plants in condition to resume war production and would authorize the National Defense department to take possession on 120 days notice.

The plants in Michigan with national security status are Muskegon Motor Specialties plant, Packard Motor Co. at Willow Run, Tinkin Detroit Axle Co. at Detroit, Tinkin Detroit Axle Co. at Melvindale, Bohn Aluminum and Brass Corp. at Adrian, Dow Magnesium Corp. at Marysville, Dow Magnesium plant at Ludington, Extruded Metals Inc. at Grand Rapids, General Motors-Fisher Body at Flint, and General Motors-Chevrolet division at Saginaw.

In some instances the national security clause will not go into effect until the present lease runs out, but in most cases it is already written in the contract.

3. An industrial survey of all industry... big and small... will be conducted by Army, Navy and Air Corps officers from the Ordnance office in Detroit early in 1948. Purpose of the conferences with plant management will be to determine what articles of war each plant could manufacture.

Top officials at the Department of National Defense regret the war scare caused by their mobilization plans but they argue "the only way to win a war is to prevent it."

With this thinking they plan to convince the world that the United States is so strong it wouldn't be smart to attack it. If there is a "next time," we want to be ready, they said.

It took life-precious time to convert an automobile factory to a jeep factory before. New blueprints, dies, jigs, and "know-how" were needed in a hurry.

Now, after the war, the Army wants to be sure they are not dumped into the discard or sold for scrap iron. Their plan is to "store 'em" and have them ready for use.

Students Arrested In Grand Haven

Grand Haven, Nov. 20 (Special)—Two Holland high school students were in the county jail in Grand Haven Monday, unable immediately to pay fines on disorderly conduct charges, an outgrowth of a demonstration in Grand Haven high school staged by Holland students celebrating a football victory over Grand Haven.

Jimmie Baker, 17, route 2, Holland, and Robert Medema, 18, of 144 West 16th St., were assessed $25 fine and $4.45 costs each by Justice George V. Hoffer when they appeared on charges placed by city police.

According to Grand Haven principal Glenn H. Olsen, about 75 Holland students went to Grand Haven before noon Monday. The first group of 20 to 25 paraded through the high school corridors giving the Holland yell and creating other disturbances while the Grand Haven student body were engaged in an assembly.

City police herded three or four groups from the building and out of town. The last group of 25 to 30 girls was stopped at the school doors.

Holland Hunters Return With Deer

It wasn't all bad news for local deer hunters today. Several have already reported to The Sentinel that they "got their deer." Perhaps the best shooting record in Holland so far this year belongs to the father-son combination of Fred Plomp, 46 and Bill Plomp, 20 of 294 East 14th St. They each came home with a buck Saturday night, although they had made reservations to stay several days.

Bill shot a 110-pound spikehorn 10 minutes after entering the woods while his father got his 10 point, 225 pound buck at 2:30 in the afternoon. The pair were hunting at Vogel Center, east of Cadillac on Dyer Lake, about 180 miles from home.

It was Bill's first hunting trip while Fred has been hunting since 1937.

Others reporting their successes are:

Harry Geertlings, 22, of 98 East 23rd St. who shot a nine-point buck weighing 200 pounds. He shot the deer at 7:50 a.m. Saturday northwest of Kalkaska, while hunting with his father and others.

Ray Hilbink of 220 West 13th St. shot a 120-pounder in Clare county Saturday morning. He was hunting with Bill Seyler and Walter Wyrick. Also reporting success was William Bowerman of Lake-wood Blvd. who shot a six-point buck near McBain, Saturday. He returned home early Sunday morning.

A youngster, also proving his marksmanship is 14-year-old John Stegenga of route 2, Holland. He shot his buck, a 116-pounder, near Woodville at 10:15 Saturday morning. He was accompanied by his father.

Returning from Canada with two deer were W. A. Butler and J. H. Petter.

John Elman of Agnew reported that he shot an eight point buck, weighing 150 pounds, Sunday in the hills near his home.

Dutch Protest Threat to Tulip Bulb Shipments

From Our Washington Bureau
Washington, Nov. 20 (Special)—Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson scheduled hearings for Tuesday and Wednesday to determine whether tulip bulb imports from the Netherlands should be limited in the future.

Under an amendment to the plant quarantine act of 1912, passed last session, Anderson may limit imports of nursery stock strictly to amounts needed for propagation purposes "in order to protect American agricultural interests from insects and diseases."

Holland sent Dr. C. J. Brieler and Dr. B. J. Hermans, experts in plant diseases, and H. G. Dakens, representing the Plant Exporters association, to protest any ruling affecting the eight million dollars which tulip bulbs bring to the Netherlands annually.

These men will maintain that Holland maintains high standards of disease and pest control. They will also state simply that Holland "just can't afford to lose so important a source of exchange. Bulbs and nursery exports are especially important as a source of dollars to pay for our much larger volume of imports from the United States in machinery, fertilizers, steel and industrial equipment."

Holland Edges Grand Haven 12-6 In Final Period

Stage Two-Touchdown Rally After Buccaneers Had Taken Early Lead

Coming from behind to score two quick touchdowns in the final quarter, the Holland High gridgers edged a stubborn Grand Haven eleven, 12-6 Friday night at Grand Haven. The win gave the Dutchmen undisputed second place, in the contest—at least temporarily. Final standings will not be known until the Muskegon-Muskegon Heights contest ends this afternoon. Also the victory Friday gave Coach Bob Stupka's warriors a 3-4 record for the season, ending one of the most successful football seasons in recent Holland High history.

All of the scoring was done in the second half, with neither team able to get their offenses clicking in the first half. However a partisan Grand Haven crowd of some 4,000 did have more to cheer about than did the Holland rooters. Grand Haven was on the offensive most of the time and was able to penetrate Holland territory. They didn't advance beyond the Holland 25, however. The second quarter was nearly a repetition of the first with no aggregation showing scoring form.

Fireworks began soon after Holland received the second half kickoff, however. After moving to their own 40, Holland fumbled and Grand Haven recovered. Speedy Russ Rescorla went nine yards and Jim Verduin made a first down to the Holland 22-yard stripe. Rich Cuti went to the 13 before the Buccaneers drew a 15-yard penalty. Cuti then threw a 30-yard pass to Verduin, who went over for the score. Rescorla's conversion kick was blocked by Fuzz Bauman.

Holland got their first "break" when they recovered a Grand Haven fumble on the Buccaneers 23-yard stripe. A series of line plays moved the ball to the one-half yard stripe, before Coach Ed Graybill's line stiffened and held. The locals lost the ball on downs, but a weak Grand Haven punt went out on their own 15, giving Holland another scoring chance. After an incomplete forward pass, Bob Malchow streaked down the sidelines to the four. Dave Kemper then sneaked over from his quarterback spot to score. Bauman's conversion kick was wide, making the score 6-6 midway in the final period.

The Dutch, finally hitting their stride, kicked to the Grand Haven 40. On the first play, then, the entire Holland forward wall helped Dave Kemper and Fuzz Bauman complete a beautifully executed "screen" pass which was good for Holland's second touchdown. The local line remained standing while Kemper tossed to Bauman, just over the line of scrimmage. Bauman's road ahead was not a rocky one, but he successfully dodged all would-be tacklers and scored. His conversion was blocked, putting Holland on the long end of 12-6 count.

With three minutes remaining in the contest, the locals again kicked off to a badly stunned Grand Haven aggregation. They garnered one first down to the Dutch 41 before the final gun sounded.

It took the Hollanders three quarters to get moving, but once they started they were not to be stopped. There was little doubt about superiority after the tilt ended, even though Grand Haven had piled up eight first downs to Holland's five. The Stupkamen attempted five passes and completed two while the Grand Haven gridgers completed three out of seven.

This contest marked the climax to an outstanding Holland High grid season under Coach Bob Stupka. The locals were off to a slow start this year after winning but one game out of the first four, but they finally hit their stride to take three out of five conference wins. At the time, Holland's victory over Muskegon Heights, seemed upset, but a look now reveals that the locals had earned every bit of glory awarded them.

Volleys From Ambush

PERHAPS IT IS just coincidence, but there has been considerable discussion, spoken and printed, on the subject of the abnormal mind lately. At a local meeting E. P. McLean said "You should boast of your abnormalities of the mind, just as you boast of your operations."

He left the impression that your chances of being on base, mentally speaking, were about 35-65.

The subject has received as close scrutiny as a schoolgirl's first diamond.

So, since we all get our conversational jumps from the same springboard, there has been quite a little koffee kietzing on the subject of popularizing whackiness.

And maybe it is just as well. When tuberculosis, syphilis and cancer became socially acceptable in conversation, science began to make a little more headway in treatment. Nowadays when one contracts any of these diseases he sensibly consults a competent authority, places himself under care and more often than not is nursed back to health.

But the popularizing of mental quirks, like every worthwhile project, has come in for some good-natured ribbing. Here's one of the results:

J. N. Clark, Zeeland attorney was discussing the subject of wills at the Sons of the Revolution meeting. He said that most wills started out by saying, "I, John Doe, being of sound mind . . . To which a waggish listener objected. He suggested that the legal language be brought up to date in this fashion:

"I, John Doe, having a 60 per cent chance of being in my right mind . . . And suggested three witnesses instead of two, since mathematically one would be mentally incompetent."

Another volley was the cynic's description of a town's wealthiest man: "He's eccentric. If he was poor, he'd be a nut."

One local man had this to say of the pressure of neighborhood public opinion on his affairs:

"When the neighbors start feeding me, I'll do things their way. Until then I do as I please."

But, every good move has its quota of scoffers and maybe the day will come when mental unbalance won't be considered a disgrace.

Mark Twain seems to have been among the first to recognize that emphasis on foibles was an outlet. He said that indulging little eccentricities kept big ones away.

The Ambusher recalls a friend from his high school days. She was teacher of German subjects. One day she cornered your newsboy and delivered herself of some down-to-earth advice. (This wasn't a novelty. Everybody got her advice sooner or later.) It seems the Ambusher was taking himself too seriously, which was the literal truth. This tilting with a world that was no better than it is would be causing the Ambusher mental anguish no end. And that made sense, too. I can recall the depression that followed each little discovery that heros had feet of clay. She advised a middle-of-the-road mental attitude.

Today after, for these several decades, the Ambusher knows what she said was worth money in the bank, although mild cynicism around the edges was an inevitable result.

But she did teach the value of being able to laugh at oneself when the going gets toughest—mentally speaking of course.

With that preparation it was an easy step to sail through a course in abnormal psychology without applying the symptoms subjectively. Apparently the whole thing adds up to loosening your stays a little now and then to avoid mental frustration.

Not that the keepers of the science of psychology will agree with this generalization, completely at least.

But anyhow a good laugh will keep away the creeps in this era when the upset mind is common to literature—written and visual.

Even the dictionaries have enlarged their index of things to be afraid of. The new edition has 30 specific things to fear, each with a fancy psychological name listed under phobia—from acrophobia (heights), agoraphobia (open spaces), agoraphobia (pain), and androphobia (men) on down to xenophobia (strangers) and zoophobia (animals).

Take your pick, fellow Americans and join the throngs.

If there are any who are compiling case histories of abnormalities, permission is hereby granted to include this column in their collection. Such use, however, should include the explanation that this is a dull news week, locally speaking, and there was little enough to write about.

Of course there was the Jaycee's benefit game which lost the club a considerable sum, exact amount of which has not been reported, and it looks like the Jaycees are farther away from ownership of a wrecked plane than ever.

The weather has taken a turn for the chillier, but everybody knows about that and practically everybody who can is making plans for warmer climes and the rest of us are wondering if the coal will hold out.

Merchants are decorating for the Christmas season and soon we'll be singing carols, but if that is mentioned it will spoil a later column. And Thanksgiving must be left to the more formal writers.

My mums are frozen, but so are yours and why should we discuss that? I had more enjoyment from my mums (can't spell that tricky one) this year than ever. One bush had pure white flowers and another a russet-like red. What a glorious mixture they made when Mrs. Mama fixed them in a low crystal bowl.

Cornie, the scooper who used to supply such luscious chunks of this cornet, called to tell about sitting hillside to watch the Grand Haven Pirates walk the Dutchmen's plank (12-6). And that reminds us of the hot coffee in the press box that was welcomed because I had a late engagement and needed to stay awake.

And of course, the news from the world centers gets more depressing day by day, but here we are back at the beginning. See what I mean?

Church Asks for Simple Weddings

Portland, Ore., Nov. 20—Episcopal churches in Oregon frown upon the "wedding director" who presumes to take charge of ceremonies. The Rt. Rev. Benjamin D. Dagwell, Bishop of Oregon, declared, "We want no lockstep processions or operatic productions in the church. The note of simplicity and sincerity is desired."

"Suggestions from the bride or bridegroom or their families may be offered to the clergy before they gather, but during the time of the ceremony (and it is called by the prayer book The Solemnization of Holy Matrimony) procedure is under the direction of the officiating clergyman."

The bishop said that a new profession, that of wedding director, is in the process of evolution. "This functionary apparently contracts to 'put on' a wedding from costumes to reception. They operate either in their own 'parlors' or will take over in a church or parish house. We have no desire to discourage this business, but we do give notice officially that church weddings are religious ceremonies and not social functions."

The Holland fire department answered an alarm at 7:24 p.m. Thursday and extinguished a roof fire at 375 Central Ave. The department responded to a still alarm this morning at a bicycle shop at 166 West 10th St. where a machine had caught fire. Damage was minor. Firemen also answered a still alarm Thursday at Hope church following a small explosion in the furnace room. There was no fire.

Sports Briefs

Many minor sports are again beginning to take a rightful place in the public consciousness. Among these is cross country running, a wholesome and satisfying competitive sport. Normally, the runners speed about four miles over a "cross country" track that may include more, many or few natural barriers.

A sports fan has wondered why the team with the lesser score wins and here is how it works. The first man to cross the line receives one point, No. 2, two and so on. Thus the team, and they may be made up of a dozen or more runners, with the lowest aggregate score is declared winner as in golf when the winner receives the lowest aggregate of strokes or swings at the ball.

Incidentally, cross country runners are popularly called harriers. In some universities the cross country race is held the same day as the football contests between keen rivals and at least one major school the harriers finish their race in the stadium, timed to conclude half time festivities.

Perhaps a trainer or a team physician is often the most forgotten man on any athletic squad, but a report from the U.S. Military Academy says that a team trainer is just as important as any coach. In an article the West Point spokesman described how physical medicine helps to prevent athletic injuries and to return the injured to their various competitive sports in good condition and in the shortest possible time.

Physical medicine includes the employment of ultra-violet and infra-red radiation, heat, cold, water, electricity, massage and exercise. "The present trend in the larger universities is that the control of injuries and the development of good athletic teams must go hand in hand," the authority said. He said statistical studies of athletic injuries show that the most frequent injuries are those of joints, muscles and bones.

According to statistics the most frequently injured parts of the body in their correct order are: knee, ankle, shoulder, leg, thigh, hand, head, chest and ribs, hips and pelvis, nose, back, foot and neck.

Word comes from East Lansing that if Michigan trips Wisconsin today and goes on to play in the New Year's Day Rose Bowl tilt, Gov. Kim Sigler said there is a strong possibility that he will fly to Pasadena, Calif., for the game.

There may be some people who are wondering how the St. Joe athletic club of Ft. Wayne, Ind., got their name. One of the visiting spotters told reporters the club house is located along the banks of the St. Joe river in Ft. Wayne.

Incidentally that "sleeper" play which they pulled to get their first touchdown against the Hurricanes really was beautifully executed.

Outside of Leon Kleis, the official, who ran over to the sidelines to watch the outside boundary, it is doubtful whether anyone else saw the man lying on the ground. It's a cinch no Hurricane player did, because the pass receiver stood quite unmolested.

There is one pass combination on the Holland High football squad which very few have seen in action this season. This is the Bob Stupka to Ed Damson passing team. Some of their tricky work was demonstrated in a game of touch football with the gridgers this week.

With about 60 yards to go for a first down (that's what the other team said) Damson crazy-legged his way straight down the field while Stupka uncorked a terrific pass. By this time Damson had outrun the entire secondary and easily grabbed the Stupka pass for the score. The two coaches call it their "quick opener" and offer a challenge to the famed Oosterbaan-Friedman combination at Michigan.

Needless to say, Damson was shortwinded for some time afterward.

GOP Leader Says Elections Need Dramatization

American Women Are Interested in Politics, But Find Them Dull

From Our Washington Bureau
Washington, D.C., Nov. 20 (Special)—Elections need to be dramatized—not glamorized—for women!

That is the thesis of Mrs. Robert Macauley, director of the women's division of the Republican party, after meeting some 500 Republican women leaders in three regional conferences at Detroit, Hartford, Conn., and Salt Lake City.

Mrs. Macauley talked with Michigan's GOP women leaders in Detroit and found them "enthusiastic about a GOP victory in the 1948 election." She found Vandenberg-for-President sentiment, not only in Detroit, but everywhere. However, "it was nothing you could call a draft."

Mrs. Macauley said, "Politics are so dull to most women, they should be dramatized for female voters."

At an all-woman press conference, she cited this example: "If you're selling soap, you don't say it gets you clean. You say it will get you a sweetheart."

Mrs. Macauley isn't sure how the Republicans will carry out the dramatization in 1948 and, if she was, "I wouldn't say yet."

Reporting on her conferences, the attractive young GOP leader said Republican women will go on a house-to-house campaign to get out the votes.

Timmer Moves To Dismiss Charge

Grand Haven, Nov. 20 (Special)

A defense motion to dismiss proceedings against Blaine Timmer, charged with operating a motor bus without proper license, was taken under advisement by Circuit Court Judge Fred T. Miles here Monday afternoon. The defense argued that Holland city had no legal right of appeal, on grounds it was a criminal action.

The charge against Timmer alleges that on July 16, 1947, he operated a motor bus in Holland, without first obtaining a license. At the time of the alleged offense Timmer was an employee of the Lakeshore Bus Lines, owned and operated by Alfred Brinkman.

The case was first tried before a jury in Holland Municipal Court Aug. 11, which resulted in a disagreement, and re-tried Sept. 15, when Timmer was found not guilty, after which the case was appealed to the Circuit Court.

Opinion States Milk Law Void

Grand Haven, Nov. 20 (Special)

City Attorney Charles E. Manner told the City Council that charter provisions governing the distance involved in pasteurization of milk outside the city are void. The opinion was prepared for the council.

The charter provides that "no pasteurized milk or milk products shall be sold in Grand Haven that is pasteurized more than five miles outside the city limits and no grade A raw milk shall be sold that is produced more than 10 miles outside, except during period of emergency when approved by the health officer."

Manner said if the provisions should be held valid by the courts, the council still has the authority to amend it. He suggested that a study be made, if this ordinance has the effect of creating a local monopoly for the particular area free from outside competition.

The opinion was prepared following a meeting two weeks ago when a large delegation of producers, dealers and distributors protested.

The opinion said the city has the authority, under its police powers, to regulate the production, marketing and sale of milk in the interests of public health and safety, but that such regulations must be reasonable and not arbitrary, must not invade the fundamental liberties of the cities.

The subject was first introduced when a Grand Rapids milk company applied for a license, claiming the ordinance is void.

George Haverdink believes he owns the largest barn in Michigan—at least he hasn't heard of a larger one. Some idea of the immensity of the farm building can be gained from comparing it with the car parked in the foreground. The building was constructed by James Kleinhekel 37 years ago. The farm it serves is now operated by the fourth generation of the same family.

Old MacDonald Never Had a Barn Like This

Hamilton, Nov. 20—If there is a larger barn in Michigan, George Haverdink, present owner of Meadow View farm, hasn't heard of it.

The structure, built 37 years ago by James Kleinhekel, father of Mrs. Haverdink, is in the form of an L, with the main part of the barn 106 x 88 feet, and the wing 48 x 88 feet.

The barn has two floors, the second one for threshing, and the first one for nearly all purposes. Vehicles may drive in on the second floor on an approach from the west end, and unload grain and hay. From this floor hay and oats can be dropped for feeding.

The structure includes a large silo, 12 feet wide and 42 feet high. Inside the barn, in the northeast corner, are six overhead grain bins, which can each hold 450 bushels of grain. Located with the grain bins is a grain elevator, used in storing and moving the grain.

Also in the barn is a feed yard, which is used to feed 50 head of cattle. In the part of the barn constructed to hold 10 head of horses, there are now several hogs, as there is little need on the farm for horses, and all but two have been sold.

On the northwest corner of the barn is a tool shed, 54 x 24 feet, which houses most of the equipment used frequently on the farm. Kleinhekel deeded the farm to the Haverdinks in 1936, which now makes the fourth generation in the family possessors of the 200-acre farm, nearly all of which is tillable.

Other buildings situated near the barn are a brooder house, and a corn crib, which is capable of holding 3,500 baskets of corn.

The barn was built after a barn erected by Mr. Kleinhekel's father 69 years ago, burned in a lightning storm.

Loot in Coopersville Break-in Set at $2,000

Grand Haven, Nov. 20 (Special)

Loot taken in a break-in Wednesday morning in the Luther J. Mulder garage on US-16 in Coopersville was set today at close to $2,000 in cash and checks, according to Trooper Lincoln Dygert of the Grand Haven State Police post and Detective Leroy R. Hunt of the Rockford post who are conducting the investigation.

Officers said a sledge hammer was used to break open the 600-pound safe from which culprits removed checks and cash from a drawer, envelopes and money bag, but overlooked $3,500 hidden in a tin can in the safe.

Officers believe the yeggs used gloves since no fingerprints were obtained.

Detective Hunt said the job was similar to other break-ins in Coopersville and in Kent county. He said 24 jobs have been pulled in Grand Rapids and vicinity, several in Muskegon county and three in Ottawa county.

Garden Clubs Hit Bulb Exclusion

From Our Washington Bureau

Washington, Nov. 20 (Special)—Representatives from national garden clubs backed up the Netherlands protest against further exclusions of Dutch nursery stock imports by Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson as hearings closed here Tuesday night.

They argued that Congress definitely intended to exempt Holland tulips when the word "bulbs" was omitted from the new section of the plant quarantine act which permits the secretary to exclude plants from entry into this country.

Both H. G. Dekens, representing the Dutch exporters, and Dr. J. C. Brieger representing the Dutch government, testified not only against the exclusion of tulip bulbs but also Dutch azaleas and ornamental plants.

American nursery representatives said the foreign nursery stock has been bringing diseases and insects into this country. They asked for drastic limitations on plants but made no direct mention of bulbs.

Mrs. Frank Ball, representing the Virginia garden clubs, said that without imports American gardens "would be little more than patches of broom sage and squaw grass."

Secretary Anderson will make a decision sometime in the near future.

New Members Feted at Junior League Dinner

Red candles in silver holders surrounded by evergreen lent a festive air to the tea room of the Woman's Literary club Tuesday night as 60 members and guests of the Junior League gathered for a potluck dinner honoring new members of the group.

Guests sat at small candlelit tables arranged about the room and new members were seated together at a head table.

Welcoming new and associate members was Mrs. Vernon Poest, president of the organization.

New members, who were presented with yellow chrysanthemums, include the Misses Eleanor Smith, Donna Bolt, Elaine Ackerson, Margaret Waltz, Virginia Kooker and Doris Marcus and the Mesdames James Terkurst, Raymond Helder, Frank Laxense, Kenneth Kooker, Edward Brodin, William Jesick, Paul Vander Hill and Stuart Padnos.

An innovation this year is the addition of a group of associate members to the league membership. In this group are the Misses Doris Brouwer, Elizabeth Arendshorst and Adelaide Dykhuizen and the Mesdames Gerald Kramer, Jack Bos, Lucien Raven, Alvin Bos, Duffield Wade, Sidney Tiesinga, Edward Damson, Neal Mills, Louis Hohmann, Nelson Bosman, Clarence Becker, Dick Japinga, Adrian Van Putten and John Van Putten.

The league, organized in 1932 with less than 20 members, annually sponsors welfare projects in the city and provides layettes and glasses for needy children as well as providing some local hospital equipment. Last year's major project was the purchase of 12 new-type bassinets for the Holland hospital, two of which are now in use. The league plans eventually to equip a new nursery requiring 25 or 30 bassinets.

Officers of the group introduced at the dinner are Mrs. Poest, president; Mrs. Andrew Volink, first vice-president; Mrs. James White, second vice-president; Mrs. Bruce Mikula, secretary; Miss Althea Raffenaud, treasurer; Miss Jean Pollegrom, materials chairman; Mrs. Stanley Boven, purchasing chairman; Mrs. Jon Hietbrink, distribution chairman; Miss Barbara Lampen, investigation chairman; Mrs. Robert Barkema, glasses chairman and Mrs. Vernon Klomprens, chairman of the membership committee.

Education Week Visits Drop Off In High Schools

Parents Visit Grades In Larger Numbers, School Figures Show

Visits by parents of students in the high school were fewer this year than last, while visits in the elementary schools were higher, Superintendent of Schools Carroll C. Crawford said at the close of National Education week.

Supt. Crawford attributed the decline in the secondary school visits this year, to inclement weather Monday night, when those schools held open house.

There were more than 200 families represented in the junior high school, where Clara McClellan's room was the highest with 52.3 per cent family attendance.

In the Froebel school, 122 visits were made by parents, and the second grade, taught by Elina Stoker, had 57.4 per cent of parents represented. Harriet Goodman's room at Lincoln school, was highest in family attendance, with 86 per cent. One hundred and sixty seven parents visited the school.

Longfellow school received 186 visits from parents, and Florence Kossen's room had 100 per cent attendance. In the Van Raalte school, Mary Kossen's room had 56 per cent attendance, and the school had 208 visitors.

Washington school had 195 visitors, with Buena Henshaw's room highest in attendance, with 81 per cent of families represented.

Supt. Crawford said that this was the first year the schools had received visits by fathers of pupils in the daytime while classes were in session.

No special program was planned this year, as school authorities felt having parents see the school program as it really is, was important, Crawford said. Tours were conducted through all the school buildings.

Local WCTU Discusses Temperance Progress

"Temperance, Mission and Peace" was the subject of a program presented at the Women's Christian Temperance union meeting Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Paul E. Hinkamp, 64 West 14th St. The Thanksgiving theme was used for decorations.

Hymns were sung with Mrs. D. Vander Meer, accompanist. "Thanksgiving Psalm" and "Hymn of Thanksgiving" were read by Mrs. C. Dressel. Mrs. Edith Walvoord opened with prayer.

Mrs. Walvoord, speaker for the afternoon, gave many interesting facts about the work carried on successfully by the United Presbyterian church through a paid temperance and reform committee in Egypt, through visual education and temperance literature and through the keen interest of the young people in the temperance movement. A growing interest in the temperance cause is also felt in other denominations and the support to further the cause, the speaker said.

India is much in favor of temperance and plans for total prohibition within five years are anticipated. France and Japan still carry on, though in small groups. Mrs. Walvoord said. The Reformed church has begun to take a definite interest in the cause under the name of "Social Welfare," sending some of their ministers to Yale to study the problem of alcohol, she concluded.

The program ended with a recording of a true story telling how a GI befriended an Indian orphan boy. The story illustrates how Christianity may settle racial problems and help to establish world peace.

Mrs. C. Van Duren, vice-president, presided at the meeting. Tea was served from an attractively decorated table by Mrs. Vander Meer and Mrs. I. T. Schupert with Mrs. Hinkamp pouring.

Hurricanes Edge Detroit Eleven On Muddy Field

Locals Score Twice In Final Quarter To Eke Out Victory

Playing in a sea of mud and a mid-November snowstorm the Holland Hurricanes managed to trip the Detroit Bluejackets, 18-7, in a contest Saturday night. Only about 500 fans braved the weather to see the Hurricanes win their second league contest of the season. In an earlier engagement the two teams had battled to a 0-0 tie under similar weather conditions.

After taking an early lead in the second quarter on a beautiful 65-yard punt return by Don Leeuw, the locals failed to score again until they clinched victory with two touchdowns in the final period. Holland's first marker came after Paul Matelic punted to Don Leeuw from the Detroit 35. Leeuw caught the ball on his own 35 yard stripe and raced untouched down the sidelines for the score. Vern Vande Water's conversion was wide.

Detroit wasted little time in retaliating when Duke Mitchell took the Hurricane kickoff and was almost "away." He was not downed until a Hollander grabbed him from behind on the Hurricane 28-yard line. Three line plays failed to gain before Quarterback Jack Jones passed to Nick Galante on the Holland four yard stripe. On the next play Joe Le Bouf went off tackle for the remaining four yards and the score. Le Bouf also plunged over for the extra point giving Detroit a 7-6 lead about two minutes before the end of the first half.

Both teams skidded and splashed around in the mud throughout the third quarter with neither able to get their offenses clicking for any sizeable distance.

Still trailing 7-6 with the contest entering its final stages, the Holland Hurricanes struck with lightning-like swiftness midway in the period. After Holland had pushed the Bluejackets back to their own nine-yard stripe, Mitchell punted to Jack Westphal standing in a puddle on his own 47. He scooped the ball from the mud, and behind superb blocking, skidded his way 53 yards for a score. Vande Waters kick today, was again wide and Holland held a 12-7 lead.

Holland threatened again, after receiving a Detroit punt, but was stopped on the four yard line. Detroit took over and fumbled back in their end zone. Amidst a scramble of mud-spattered jerseys, Holland's end Dick Massuck came up with the ball, accounting for the third touchdown. The final horn sounded while the referee was untangling the pileup in the end zone. Kicking after the contest was officially over, a Vande Water pass was smothered, and Holland won 18-7.

Handicapped by the terrible playing conditions, neither aggregation played in top form. Holland garnered four first downs while Detroit managed two. Passing was next to impossible against the driving snow, although Detroit completed one out of three and Holland none out of four.

It was feared that Joe Stormont, Holland tackle suffered a broken hand in the game. Coach Mal Elliott said after the game, "We aren't sure, but it looks as if the hand is fractured." No further information has been received here as to the result of the X-ray.

Get Most for Your Money When Buying a Turkey

How much you pay for your Thanksgiving turkey will depend somewhat on the quality of the bird. High prices do not always mean quality so you should know how to pick one that is worth the money.

Some points to look for in a good turkey are suggested by Gladys Knight, Michigan State college home economist. The skin should be clean, waxy, unbroken and tender with few pin feathers and no bruises. Stocky bodies and broad breasts indicate a high proportion of meat to bone.

The best turkeys have a plump appearance and breast, thighs and legs are well-fleshed. There is a good covering of fat under the skin of these parts. Don't buy a turkey that is much too large for your Thanksgiving day guests and waste what you have saved by selecting good quality. You may be able to buy a half-turkey. One pound of turkey, dressed weight, should be allowed for each person to be served.

Another point to consider to get the most turkey for your money is the way it is dressed. If the head and feet are on, it is picked but not drawn, and the tendons are not removed from the drumsticks, you will have to count on 15 per cent of the weight as waste. If it is full-drawn there will be no waste and less labor.

Farmers' Week at MSC To Feature Steer Show

Visitors at the 1947 Farmers' week at Michigan State college will have an opportunity to see a fat steer show featuring excellent quality, according to an announcement made by Graydon Blank, MSC animal husbandry specialist.

Over 90 calves from 59 farms have been entered in the annual beef feeding project, sponsored by the animal husbandry extension department of the college. They were weighed in the project last summer during the first week of July. Steers making the required two pounds of gain per day over the approximate 200 day feeding period, and weighing at least 700 pounds at the close of the project, are eligible for the show and sale which will be held Thursday, Jan. 29.

Because of the high standards of the project, not all steers are expected to qualify for the show. However, the number will be large enough to make the show one of the largest and most competitive for beef men in the state.

Enrollments by breeds show 33 Herefords, 31 Shorthorns, 30 Angus and three Red Poll. Annual meetings of the beef breed associations will be held on Wednesday, Jan. 28, the day before the show and sale.

Hardware Dealers Hit Exempt Co-Ops

By Esther Van Wagoner Tufty
Washington Correspondent

Washington, Nov. 17—A spokesman for nearly 2,000 hardware merchants in Michigan and some 19,000 elsewhere told the House Ways and Means committee this week that co-operative organizations "have only one advantage over independent merchants . . . the tax exemption they are allowed."

Rivers Peterson, managing director of the National Retail Hardware association, of Indianapolis, recommended the overhauling of the federal tax code by the committee so as to eliminate tax exemptions "to any corporation engaged in business in competition with corporations which do pay Federal income taxes."

Surprisingly, Peterson's own organization is tax exempt. But he said he would be most willing for it to be taxed if others were likewise taxed. And this, he said, would help to "reduce the national debt and the tax burden of the individual and corporation."

Harold W. Schumacher of Lansing is manager of the Michigan Retail Hardware association.

Kindly Landlady Happy at Choice

The story of the apartment for a family with a child under six months old had a new development today. Mr. and Mrs. George Wolters, parents of Roger, who is three months old, got the apartment at 321 River Ave.

They were selected from many applicants by Mr. and Mrs. Victor Van Fleet, landlords with compassion, on basis of friendly competition in which all applicants agreed the apartment should be rented to the family with the greatest need.

Today Mrs. Van Fleet said she was pleased with her new tenants and Mrs. Wolters said she was pleased to have such a nice place to live. Both agreed the cottage the Wolters were vacating was not "unheated" as reported, but that the cottage was oil heated. Mrs. Wolters said it just wasn't warm enough for a baby. Mrs. Van Fleet agreed. She lived under similar circumstances when one of her two children was tiny.

In fact, it was Mrs. Van Fleet's experience in attempting to rent shelter for her children that made her determined she would rent to a family with children.
