Fennville Resident Killed In Collision on Old US-31

DIES IN HEADON COLLISION — A twisted mass of torn steel was all that remained of a 1940 model car (above) in which Matthew Katusic, route 2, Fennville, was killed after a two-car collision on the Old Saugatuck Rd. Tuesday afternoon. Snow was falling and visibility poor when Katusic's car and one driven by George Slater, 22, route 4, Holland, collided. Slater's 1950 model car was also a total loss, according to Allegan County Deputy Henry Bouwman. The picture was taken as a heavy snow began to fall and the round spots are flakes falling close to the camera.

Three Others Hurt In Tuesday Crash South of Gibson

One man was instantly killed and three youths were seriously injured in a head-on collision at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday on the Old Saugatuck Rd., one mile south of the old Gibson store.

Killed was Matthew Katusic, 48 to 50 years of age, route 2, Fennville.

Injured were George A. Slater, 22, route 4, Holland; Jerry Bronkhorst, 18, route 1, Holland and Glenn Ter Meer, 16, of 3035 High gate S.W., Grand.

Ter Meer received multiple fractures to both legs. Bronkhorst received a fractured right ankle and nose. Their condition in good today at Holland Hospital.

Slater, driver of one car, received a fractured jaw, fractured right ankle and fractured nose. His condition is satisfactory.

Allegan County Deputy Henry Bouwman said it is believed that Slater was southbound and Katusic northbound. Although the accident occurred in an intersection it appears to have had nothing to do with the collision, Bouwman said.

The impact took place on the east side of the highway, Bouwman said, and virtually the '40 model Katusic car apart. Pieces were scattered over a wide area around the scene.

Bouwman said Katusic's car apparently rolled over before coming to a halt on its wheels on the south side of the road. Slater's '50 model car bounced back after the impact and stopped nose down in a ditch on the same side of the road.

Katusic was pinned in the car and died instantly. The three youths, all riding in the front seat, were thrown out of their car. Bronkhorst and Ter Meer were found lying on the pavement on the right hand side of the car.

An unidentified motorist found Slater walking around on the road and drove him to Holland Hospital. An ambulance from Dykstra Funeral Home took the other two to the hospital.

A mixup occurred shortly after the accident over the identity of the dead man. Neighbors mistakenly identified the body to Deputy Bouwman as a resident living nearby.

Katusic was finally identified through a license plate check by Holland police and a card on the body. The card indicated Katusic as employed at the H. J. Heinz Co. in Holland.

Coroner William Ten Brink said Katusic had no known relations in the area. Relatives from Chicago are expected later this afternoon. The body was taken to the Ten Brink Funeral Home in Hamilton pending final arrangements.

Warning Flashers Will Be Installed On Lincoln Ave.

A recommendation that red warning flashers be installed at the railroad crossing at 24th St. and Lincoln Ave. will be made to the Michigan Public Service Commission following a meeting this morning.

Donald W. Hughes, Railroad Safety Inspector for the commission, said his report containing the recommendation will be ready within the next week.

Representatives of the C and O Railroad, the City of Holland, Ottawa County and Holland Township met at 11 today at the crossing with Hughes. The meeting was requested by Mayor Harry Harrington in a letter to the state commission.

Hughes said he believed that added protection was needed at the crossing after he made a brief survey today. Public interest in the project was aroused when three Fennville women were killed when their car was struck by a train Sept. 21.

Preliminary plans call for double flashers on the south side of 24th St., the east side of Lincoln Ave., and the north side of 24th St., east of the tracks. The lights would trip automatically when a train on the main line is 1,760 feet from the crossing. The lights would also go on when a train moved on the adjoining switch track.

During the meeting there appeared to be little doubt that more protection was needed. The major point of discussion centered around the type and location of the flashers.

Because of joint authority over the roadway in the area, between Holland, the county and township, additional meetings are planned to discuss the cost of installing and maintaining the warning system.

Frank Smith, superintendent of signals for the C and O estimated the cost of installing three separate flashers would be at least $6,500, the cost to be paid 50 percent by the railroad and 50 percent by the city, county and township.

A $10 monthly maintenance cost would also be paid to the railroad. Hughes believed that it would be at least nine to 10 months before the signals could be installed because of difficulties in obtaining the equipment.

Attending the meeting were Mayor Harrington, City Engineer Jacob Zuidema, Holland Police Lt. Ernest Bear, Neal Van Leeuwen, chairman of the Ottawa County Road Commission; W. Osner, assistant engineer, Ottawa County; Harold Kragt, Holland Township and Deputy Sheriff Len Ver Schure.

Others were Maynard Buffin, trainmaster; Jim Malcher, assistant engineer from the C and O in addition to men previously mentioned.

They're Doubly Thankful This Thanksgiving Day

The Gerald Nykerk family has particular reason to be thankful on Thanksgiving Day Thursday.

The medical missionary and his family are all set to return to a new mission station in Arabia after a setback of illness which kept them here more than three years.

It was in October, 1951, that Dr. Nykerk and his wife were returned hastily to the United States after both contracted tuberculosis in Arabia. Dr. Nykerk spent 20 months in Sunshine Hospital in Grand Rapids and his wife spent 22 months there. Last year they returned to Holland and bided their time until arrangements could be made for their return to Arabia.

"We've so many things to be thankful for, and you can bet we'll never take good health for granted again," Mrs. Nykerk said. She is the former Rose Witteveen of Holland.

Since the family will be gone by Christmas time, the Nykerks plan to have Thanksgiving dinner with Dr. Nykerk's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Nykerk, and will have supper with Mrs. Nykerk's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Peerbolt. The Peerbolts cared for the three Nykerk children while the parents were in Sunshine Hospital.

The family will sail Dec. 17 from New York on the S. S. Excambion of the American Export Lines to Naples, Italy. They will spend Christmas week in Naples before sailing Dec. 30 from Genoa on the S. S. Victoria. They are scheduled to arrive in Bombay, India, Jan. 13, 1955.

From Bombay, the children, David James, 12, Nancy Lou, 11, and Laila Sue, 9, will proceed to Kodaikanal, South India, to enter Highclere school, a school for children of missionaries of the Reformed Church and five other denominations. About 250 are enrolled in the school. The term begins Jan. 17 and ends Oct. 27.

Dr. and Mrs. Nykerk will proceed up the Persian Gulf to Bahrain to pack their household goods and then continue to the port city of Basrah, Iraq, by ship. They will continue by car to Amarah, Iraq, where they will be stationed during their next term of service. A regular term of service in the Arabian Mission is six years.

Dr. and Mrs. Nykerk went to Arabia for the first time in 1941, traveling with Dr. and Mrs. Paul Harrison and working with them in Bahrain for the first year. Later they were transferred to Kuwait, Arabia, and worked there until 1949 when they returned to Bahrain to take Dr. Harrison's place when he retired. When illness forced the return of the Nykerks in 1951, Dr. Harrison returned to Arabia for another two years. He came back to the United States last year.

Now that both Dr. and Mrs. Nykerk have fully recovered from tuberculosis, they will be transferred to a different station in Arabia to give them the benefit of a cooler climate and better working conditions. Amarah is an interesting spot historically. It is near the traditional location of the Garden of Eden and also near Ur of the Chaldees and the ruins of the ancient city of Babylon. It is on the Tigris river about 120 miles south of Baghdad, the capital of Iraq.

The Amarah mission has a 40-bed hospital and an evangelist worker, the Rev. Edwin Luidens and his wife, both well known in Holland. Miss Jeanette Veldman, former missionary to China, also works as a nurse in the Amarah station. Other workers are Miss Christine Voss, a nurse who is returning to Holland soon on furlough, and Dr. and Mrs. Maurice Heusinkveld.

Warriors Control Boards to Notch Easy 58-40 Win

GRAND HAVEN (Special) — A rugged sharpshooting Muskegon Christian basketball squad spoiled Holland Christian's cage opener Tuesday night at Grand Haven, as the Warriors whipped the locals handily, 58-40. A large crowd, including a big Holland following, saw the tilt in the new Grand Haven gymnasium.

Backboard control and superior shooting on the part of the Muskies played a dominant role in the Muskegon victory. The winners had almost complete control of the boards throughout the game, with the locals seldom getting a second shot at the hoop. Then some spectacular shooting in the final half really was the clincher for Coach Elmer Walcott's crew. The hot shot of the Muskegon club was Gerald Wolf, who netted 28 markers, 16 coming in the second half.

There is little doubt about it that the Muskegon crew, which includes five, two-year letter-winners, is further advanced at this early date than the Maroons. Coach Art Tuls of the Dutch experimented all night long with various offenses and a variety of players, in an effort to find a combination which would click. He used 12 men in the affair, while Walcott stuck with his starting lineup throughout most of the tilt.

Muskegon had all the qualities of a winning team, speed, height, experience and shooting ability, and all were exhibited well Tuesday night. If Walcott's aggregation has any big weakness which could hurt as the season wears on, it might be the reserve strength. At any rate the Muskies must even at this early date be stamped as a potent threat in class C.

Holland's best quarter was the first. The Maroons held the upper hand throughout much of the first eight minutes, with the Warriors taking a one point lead as the quarter buzzer sounded. The Tulsmen were doing a fair job on the boards and were collecting points on numerous foul shots.

From then on, the Muskegon quint took charge and never again trailed in the contest. They bounced to a quick eight point bulge at the start of the period although the Maroons did narrow the gap to a single marker at one stage in the period. By half-time, the winners were holding a comfortable 25-17 lead.

Holland rallied briefly on two occasions during the third stanza, pulling to within three points both times. However just when the pressure mounted on the Warriors, they always came through with a couple of timely baskets to thwart the Holland attack. The Muskies had plenty of drive and scrap at the crucial moments while the Dutch never did get a sustained offensive rally going. Although outplayed the Maroons were still trailing, 34-28 going into the final period.

Then came the Muskegon victory surge which saw them pour in baskets from all angles. Meanwhile, the locals couldn't recover.

Coach Tuls wasn't too downhearted following the tilt. He pointed out that until the first game is played, a coach never really knows where all of the weaknesses are. He promised plenty of hard work and more experimentation in the days ahead. The Dutch don't have too much time to prepare, however, as they tangle with Grand Rapids Christian on the Civic Center court Friday night.

Co-captain John Mulder who played in both the back and front lines for the Dutch led his team in scoring with 10 markers. He was followed by the other co-captain, Jun. Buursma with eight. Following Wolf with 28, was J. Van Hest with 11 tallies for Muskegon. Holland connected on 14 out of 32 tries at the foul line with Muskegon hitting on 10 out of 32.

Little Maroons Win Opener, 58-22

Holland Christian's reserve squad opened its season Tuesday night at Grand Haven by downing an inexperienced Muskegon Christian quintet, 58-22. The Little Maroons were never headed, as all members of the traveling squad played a good share of the contest.

Christian jumped off to an early lead in the first quarter and led 21-7 at the period's end. They continued to dominate play in the second stanza to move out in front, 32-14 at halftime. It was much the same story in the third quarter with Christian holding a 44-18 margin going into the final eight minutes of play. Fourth quarter action was all Holland with play interrupted on numerous occasions for four shots and jump balls.

The locals started with an inexperienced squad including two ninth graders, Jim Kool and Jim Meurer. Balanced scoring was the feature of the Dutch attack. ## Library Adventures

By Arnold Mulder

The British have finally admitted that America has a literature of its own. Not only have they admitted that fact, they are even agreeing that in some respects it is a literature that is richer than contemporary British writing.

Literary England has made those admissions through the London Times Literary Supplement, a publication of 100 pages under the title, "American Writing Today: Its Independence and Vigor."

Many of us on this side of the Atlantic had long entertained the fantastic suspicion-fantastic, that is, to the "superior" British - that we really have a literature. For decades after that thought found lodgment in the minds of Americans who did not suffer from a literary inferiority complex, the British critics continued to look down their noses and to brush off such claims as we might make, always without argument; they considered their own superiority so obvious that it was not necessary to prove it.

About 1931 the British critics received their first shock when the Nobel prize was awarded to an American novelist. Three or four years later there was another shock when still another novelist was so honored. Then a few years later an American dramatist won the Nobel award. And since then two other Americans have received the biggest prize open to the writers of the world.

The Nobel prize is of course not the only criterion, perhaps not even the most important. Those who are familiar with both British and American literature of the twentieth century have a full right to assert, without reference to the Nobel prize awards, that America is no longer a follower but stands on at least an equal footing with Britain.

So long ago as 1837 Ralph Waldo Emerson advised the American people to shake off their inferior complex with respect to Europe, especially to England. In a famous Phi Beta Kappa address delivered at Harvard, under the title, "The American Scholar," he called on his countrymen to stand on their own feet in their literature and learning.

But the sense of inferiority continued in this country for the greater part of a century. One reason was that England took it for granted. Late in the nineteenth century one of England's most respected critics asked the question: "Who reads an American book?" It was accepted as a rhetorical question, and the answer, "No one who counts," was taken for granted.

Paying no heed to Emerson's advice, American critics and scholars and writers continued to agree that, as compared with British literature, ours was not worth reading. So late as the first decade of the present century, American literature was universally regarded in the universities and colleges as a footnote to British letters.

At that time the British Empire was still a going concern. During the past half century America has taken the place, politically, that Britain occupied in Victoria's day, and England has been correspondingly reduced in rank.

American literature has kept pace with the country's stepup in political and economic power. Such a change was not inevitable; sometimes a small country has a great literature. All that is clear is the fact itself. And at long last the English themselves have admitted the fact.

Rites Read at Central Avenue Church

Mr. and Mrs. John Peter Spykman

Palms, candelabra and bouquets of mums formed the setting for the wedding of Miss Dena Anna Bloemendal and John Peter Spykman of Holland, which took place Monday in Central Avenue Christian Reformed Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Geerling, 261 East 14th St.

The Rev. Jacob T. Hoogstra read the single ring rites following traditional organ music played by Mrs. John Tibbe. Soloist was Mrs. B. Altena who sang "Because," "Bless This House" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride's gown of chantilly lace over nylon tulle featured a round collar, lace trimmed bodice and a lace ruffle edging the long train. A cap of lace trimmed with seed pearls held the shoulder-length veil. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and mums.

Miss Corry Bloemendal, sister of the bride, as maid of honor wore a gown of yellow net over taffeta and carried maroon and white

Grandstanding...

The first chapter of this story was written in 1942 and the final chapter won't be written until this time next year. But an important part was written Thursday night at the Hope College football banquet.

It's a perfect sports story, filled with words like, "Drive, determination and will to win." The words have been written about Lynn Post, selected as co-captain of the 1955 Hope College football team.

This honor, partially achieves a goal started back in 1942. That was the year his brother, Ernie Post, played quarterback on the Holland High team, and Lynn in watching the games got a terrific desire to play football.

But when he got to high school, coaches called him "game" but reported he didn't have the size and lacked ability. Ernie Post continued to play football at Hope College. He worked as first string fullback, one of the smallest men ever to play the spot for Hope, but the best Lynn managed at the same time was a sub on the varsity his senior year, after two years on the reserve football team.

Post didn't play football from 1948 through 1950 but kept in shape, building himself up, anticipating another crack at the sport. He got it in 1951. Taller and stronger, Post made the 1951 Hope team, playing substitute end. He saw enough action, most of it late in the season, to win a varsity letter on a team that won the MIAA co-championship.

The next two years were spent at Pensacola Naval Air Station in Florida, where he was a member of one of the nation's strongest military teams. He didn't play too much in the Navy but picked up additional football savvy.

First day of fall practice from the post of first string this past season. The co-captain's honor, given by his teammates speaks for his football success.

Dr. Bob Powers, well-known to Holland football fans of the late '30's can be credited with bringing John Adams, Hope's 1955 co-captain to the local campus.

The Saginaw physician took Adams on a tour of Hope in 1951 and Adams made his choice. Powers introduced him to Dean M. L. (Bud) Hinga. Powers' football coach, and the Dean in turn acquainted Adams with some of the present campus figures.

Most promising as a basketball player at Saginaw Arthur Hill, Adams was expected to do his best playing as a cager, but the record he has compiled on the gridiron has thrown a kink into that statement. Adams will be playing basketball again this season.

When Bud Hinga reminisces about football, Bob Powers' name will pop up in the talk. Powers, who played guard and fullback, was an all-MIAA selection, a 60-minute player and one of Hope's all-time greats.

Bill Heydorn had little football know-how when he came to Hope College, but in the four years he became a top-notch rugged line-men. He's now Hope's most valuable player and a candidate for the Randall C. Bosch trophy, awarded annually to the MIAA's outstanding football player.

Coach Al Vanderbush tells this story about meeting Heydorn. "He told me he wanted to play football, but had only played a little in high school," Vanderbush said. "I remember Bill's dad (now the Rev. William Heydorn of Pleasantville, N. Y.) was the roughest basketball player I ever played against," Vanderbush continued, "and if his son could be half as rough on the football field he'd be a great football player."

Coaches describe Heydorn as an "intent" player. "No one took our losses any harder than Bill," Backfield coach Ken Weller said. A pre-med student, Heydorn, Hope's co-captain this year, along with Don Vander Toll, other co-captain and pre-med student, have had to sacrifice a lot for football, the coaches reported.

Late afternoon labs and classes have curtailed their practice sessions.

When John Adams and Lynn Post were named co-captains and Bill Heydorn was named most valuable at the Hope College banquet Thursday night they all smiled, and searched for that "hole in the floor" modest men always seek when pushed into the spotlight.

Coach Al Vanderbush told the audience at Hope College Thursday night that "this was the best bunch of boys I've ever coached and they had the best spirit. Hope had a lot of tough breaks this year and from a won and lost record, the year was the second worst in my 25 years of coaching."

SPLINTERS: A thank you from the Grandstander for the cooperation given the Sentinel by the Hope College and Holland High football coaches. They made the job much easier. . . . Warren Buitendorp, Hope College sports publicity man and another valuable asset to the Grandstander, will be the guest of the Michigan State College public relations staff this weekend at the MSC - Marquette football game. . . . Several Ottawa Hills football players chose to attend the Hope-Kalamazoo football game last week in Kalamazoo. The Ottawa Boosters Club sends the team to one college game each season and the team picked the contest over the Michigan-Michigan State game. . . . John Adams is tied for second in MIAA scoring with 30 points. . . . Hope basketball coach John Visser is using record practice sessions prior to the heavy work "just to get the boys in the mood."

The United States government is spending about two billion dollars a year on scientific research. About 85 per cent of this science budget is being spent annually on military purposes.

THANKSGIVING

We bow our heads on Thanksgiving and give thanks for the blessings received as well as offering thanks for the legacy that we received from our forefathers. Their first Thanksgiving according to history was much more than a feast. It was a day specially designated and set apart for the giving of thanks as the Pilgrim Fathers had weathered a long hard winter. Then after a long hard season the first harvest had been reaped. Now they had a start in their new world. This had taken vision, courage and a great deal of hard work by all members of the small colony.

Their Thanksgiving was more than a confession of gratitude; it was an expression of their continuing need for help and so in all humbleness they took a day away from their endless toil to express their deep gratitude to Almighty God.

Many will remember the Thanksgiving days of the past when the members of the families gathered at grandmother's house and that there were not the many modern conveniences that we have today. There were, however, all of the good things of those times to be thankful for even though there were not all of the modern conveniences that we have in many cases today.

Let us approach this Thanksgiving with the same spirit of our Pilgrim fathers. We can enjoy the Thanksgiving Day with as many of the members of the families that can be present. We should not forget to remember the many members in the armed forces, neither should we lose sight of the fact of the true purpose of the occasion. Let us all give thanks to God for all of the good things of the past, the present and the future.

We will all find blessings for which to be thankful. All of us can offer a prayer as a free people. Free to worship God, each in his own way. Free to know the truth and to speak our minds. Free to choose our own work. Free to grow, to create, to achieve according to one's own ambition and ability.

These freedoms are some of the reasons for the great strength of our people and our country. These are some of the things that we should be thankful for and offer thanks to God on the morrow, Thanksgiving Day.

Remember to drive safely. This is something that we all need to remember every day in the year. All of the new models are on display and are appearing on the highways. They surely look and perform fine. Let's not smash them up along with ourselves and others on the highways.

Sunday School Lesson

November 28, 1954
In Time of Trouble
Psalm 142:1-7; 46:1-3, 10, 11

By Henry Geerlings .....

Every thoughtful person has sought a solution of the problem of human suffering. Everybody is wondering at the fact that people have trouble. There is a still greater mystery in the fact that good people seem to have more trouble than those who Christians call the people of the world.

Who sends trouble? We need not be surprised that we find the question hard to answer. In the beginning God said to Eve that He would greatly multiply her sorrow. From that day to this every human life has had its sorrow and every human mind has, more or less intelligently, sought a solution of the problem it brings.

Ever since Eve wept over the dead body of Abel, good people have been bewildered when their children die. Ever since Hagar without food or shelter wandered through the wilderness with her outcast boy, people have been wondering at the inequities of life in the matter of poverty and wealth.

Ever since Job was cast out of his own house because of leprosy, and lay in an ash bank, men have been wondering at the coming of sickness for which there could be found a visible physical cause. From the mysterious disappearance of Joseph to the day when the tragic official report came that a certain World War soldier was missing devoted fathers have been wondering why God permitted them to bear the cruelty of uncertainty rather than have definite assurance of death. Ever since David's heart broke with the tidings of Absalom's death, devout fathers have been dazed with the conduct of ungrateful sons.

Ever since Jesus went to the cross good men have been amazed that God does not put out His hand and save His people from the anguish of seeing wrong triumph over right. Why was Homer a pauper? Why was Milton blind? Why was Spurgeon cut off from his place world wide usefulness when barely past middle life? But why go on? Every page of history in every age and in every climate furnishes us with evidence of the mystery—the mystery of lives crippled, handicapped, crushed.

Among the ancient Jews there seems to have been the practically universal opinion that suffering and misfortune were the direct judgments of God because of sin. To them adversity was proof of God's displeasure, while prosperity was an evidence of His approval. That this was the orthodox view among ancient Jews is clearly set in the marvelous Jewish drama we call the book of Job. This same view is held among them to this day. The truth is that many people who are not Jews hold to that doctrine even here in the heart of the twentieth century.

Trouble is inevitable. In the world of nature there exists what is called friction. When one piece of matter comes into contact with another, the reaction tends to slow down their motion and to destroy them. Were it not that the infinite Master Mind who created the material universe is constantly active to maintain it, disaster would have resulted long ago.

In the spiritual world the same principle prevails. Friction arises and we call it trouble. The world is full of it. Job declared centuries ago that man is of few days and full of trouble. Eliphaz said that man is born unto trouble as the sparks fly upward.

Some of the difficulties that hamper men are of their own creation or are imaginary and could be avoided. But aside from all such there are real troubles that fall to our lot. Jesus said to His disciples, "In the world ye shall have tribulation."

The Lord Himself had troubles, none of which were of His making. They were caused for the most part by his enemies. A few were the result of mistakes among His friends. He also took upon Himself the sorrows of others.

The apostle Paul had many troubles during his Christian ministry. They were not caused by his own errors. The years he spent in prison, the riots of the heathen, in one of which he was almost stoned to death, his shipwrecks, and various other troubles were the result of causes beyond his control.

It is plain, both from the teaching of the Scriptures and from the testimony of human experiences that no follower of the Lord is to be free from what we call trouble. In the very expression with which Jesus warned His disciples He added, "Be of good cheer, I have overcome the world." Our victory or defeat is determined by the outside help we receive.

Worship Services Begin Thanksgiving Observance

Although roast turkeys and stuffings, cranberry sauce and pumpkin pie play leading roles in Thanksgiving Day festivities, almost all Holland families will precede the traditional feast with attendance at one of the many Thanksgiving worship services scheduled in Holland.

Most churches are holding morning services, with ministers giving Thanksgiving meditations, accompanied by music appropriate to the season.

It was 130 years ago that the scattered settlers of the Territory of Michigan first raised their voices in a united prayer of Thanksgiving. Forty-one years before Thanksgiving became a national holiday, Michigan residents had set aside a special day to thank God for a bountiful harvest, freedom of worship and all things that are good.

Thanksgiving services this year began for many last Sunday. Some churches planned services tonight, but most follow the tradition of a Thanksgiving morning service.

Local churches and their plans for the holiday worship follow:

The Rev. Raymond Van Heukelom will preach at 10 a.m. Thursday at First Reformed Church on "A Goodly Heritage." Music will be provided by the choir, under direction of Anthony Kolker.

Ottawa Farm News
Richard Machiele
County Agricultural Agent

Don Hearl, associate county agent in Muskegon, has been doing some work with Christmas tree growers in setting up a cooperative plan for selling their trees. I understand some Ottawa County growers were present at the Muskegon meeting and are co-operating in that plan. I would like to get a reaction from the growers in this county as to whether we should try to form an Ottawa county selling cooperative. We know what the past experience with one cooperative in this county has been. With this plan a master list of available trees could be kept at the extension office and turned over to the buyers as requests come in. So often we have requests for trees from outside buyers and have no one to refer them to. Some advertising in trade journals could be done under a plan of that kind. If the response is good we would be agreeable to try some type of organization sometime before the next selling season comes along.

By the looks of the wheat crop this fall, an application of nitrogen next spring is going to pay off. There are many thin yield, low stands of wheat that will definitely benefit from an application of nitrogen fertilizer. The average yield increase by using nitrogen in the spring has been from 6 to 7 bushels per acre with a cost of about $3.25 per acre for material. There are different types of nitrogen fertilizers that can be used. Nitrate 33 percent nitrogen fertilizer is probably the most economical at the present time. Sixty-five pounds of ammonium nitrate is generally enough per acre. If you like details of top dressing wheat with nitrogen, drop us a line.

Our winter oat plots are still looking good. I paid particular attention to the one on the Tony Wolfe farm in Robinson Township. It certainly has a dark green color. I am anxious to see what the outcome will be at harvest time next year.

International Livestock show held in Chicago each year is scheduled from November 26 through Dec. 4 this year. Those of you who are interested in good livestock might want to spend a day or two at this show at the International Livestock Building located near the stockyards.

I had my first call last week to check a poultryhouse. They were having difficulty with condensation. With cold weather coming on this trouble will develop in many poultry houses in the county. Proper ventilation with air intakes and outlets will help solve many of these problems. Last year a number of poultrymen installed automatic ventilators. This helped considerably in preventing formulation of moisture on the walls of the poultryhouse.

We have two bulletins in this office: Poultry House Ventilation and Poultry House Insulation. If you are having trouble, you might like to have a copy of these bulletins.

The dates of the West Michigan Fat Stock Show to be held in Grand Rapids are Dec. 7, 8 and 9. Entries will come in on the 7th, judging will take place on the 8th and the sale will be held on the 9th. The public is invited, admission free. The new location this year is at the Darling Freight House located on the South Beltline, Buchanan Ave. It looks like one of the biggest shows we have had in the past few years. Quality should be good.

The committee will report its findings to the Council of Social Agencies and its findings will be made public.

Drills Continue For Hope Cagers

Dutch to Battle Central of Iowa At Civic Center

With the opener against Central College of Pella, Iowa just days away, Hope College basketball coach John Visser will concentrate on polishing his 17-man squad the rest of the week. Hope opens against Central at Civic Center, Saturday, Nov. 27.

Visser indicated some of the underclassmen on the team will play in the preliminary contest and then will dress for the varsity contest. The showing the freshmen make in the coming week's drills will decide who moves up with the varsity.

The Hope team is built around six lettermen. They are Bob Hendrickson, all MIAA last season, and Willie Rink, both seniors, John Adams, Harold Molenaar and Dwight Riemersma, juniors, and Norm Kramer, a sophomore.

Dave St. Aubin, and Bruce Springsteen are two sophomores working for positions. Springsteen also was a member of the football team.

Included in the freshmen group is Jim Hilmet, 6'5" former star center for Kalamazoo Central. Hilmet dropped football because of a knee injury but appeared ready to go.

Another Kazoo resident, Matt Peelen, State High graduate, is working out. Peelen is a freshman. John Jeltjes and William Kaiser, former Grand Rapids players are other freshmen trying out.

Ron Sisson of St. Joseph, Dave Spaan, of Grand Rapids South, Mert Vander Lind, Grand Rapids Ottawa Hills graduate and member of the Hope football team and Bob Vander Lugt, from Pennsylvania, all freshmen, are trying for posts.

Holland freshmen on the squad are Don Scheur from Holland Christian and Dwayne Teusink of Holland High. Scheur did not play two years of service basketball. Teusink was a member of the Holland High team last season.

Visser reported the game should be one of contrast. The Hope team will stick with the fast-break offense while the Central club is expected to play set ball with a lot of passing.

According to Dean M.L. (Bud) Hinga of Hope College, the Dutchmen played Central several years ago. Hope defeated Central in the first meeting.

Junior League Stages Fair

Holland Armory was transformed into a gala, colorful fair ground Friday evening when Junior Welfare League staged a big Country Fair.

About 300 persons attended the event, which featured square dancing and a variety of cleverly decorated booths.

A prize for the best booth was awarded to a committee including Mrs. Don Oosterbaan, Mrs. James Mooi, Mrs. Cliff Springer and Mrs. George Steininger, who planned and built a dart throw game. The large booth featured a huge clown face, with dart targets as eyes. Two large clowns decorated the front of the booth, which was done in green and yellow.

Another popular booth was the cake walk, where fancy cakes were given away to the lucky person when the music stopped. A loop-the-lass game required the customer to "loop the toe" of a lass sitting in a haystack.

Other booths included a comical picture taking booth, two penny tosses, ring the duck, fortune telling, auction sale, clown toss, cork gun target shoot, a pantry shelf with preserves and home-made candy, weight guessing, apron booth, basketball toss, and refreshment stand.

The center of the Armory floor was "fenced in" with bales of straw for square dancing, with Mr. and Mrs. Claude Ketchum calling.

Mrs. James Brooks and Mrs. Don Winter were co-chairmen of the fair.

Car Rams Into Gas Station

ZEELAND (Special)—Zeeland Fire and Police departments answered a call at 7:55 p.m. Saturday when a car driven by Henry Vellinga went off the road and into a gas station at 320 North State St. Two gas pumps and a canopy support were sheared off by the impact.

A fire started from gasoline coming in contact with station wiring but was extinguished in about 15 minutes.

Vellinga, a Calvin College student from Canada, who had no operator's license, was driving a car belonging to Marvin G. Essenburg, 891 Harvard Dr., Holland. Essenburg said that they were going south on North State St. when Vellinga started to make a right turn. Essenburg said he thought they were not going to make the turn and pushed the wheel to the left. The car went into the gas station causing an estimated $1,500 damage to the pumps and building. The station is owned by Merlin Timmer. The 1953 model car was damaged extensively.

Vellinga was ticketed for driving without an operator's license and causing an accident. Essenburg received a ticket for permitting an unlicensed driver to operate his car, causing an accident.

Dog Notes

The Dog That Dug A Grave
By Peter Boggs

A few years ago I came across a most unusual story. Here it is: Just outside of Denver Colorado, a small terrier puppy was crossing the road when he was hit and killed by a speeding auto. When nobody claimed the animal, a policeman put the body behind a roadside sign until the proper authorities could take it away.

Then "Spike," a bulldog, arrived on the scene. He sniffed at the terrier and then trotted off. He stopped behind a nearby stone wall and began to dig vehemently. After he had succeeded in digging a deep hole he went back to the scene of the killing. There, very tenderly, he picked up the dead terrier. He carried him to the newly-dug grave and laid him in the hole. With his nose he shoved the displaced earth over the victim. (Whenever a dog digs a hole he does it with his paws and always shoves the dirt back into the hole with his nose.)

As far as could be learned "Spike" had never seen the dead terrier. The two were not friends, or even acquaintances. Why dogs will come to the aid of other injured or sick dogs, especially ones they have never seen before is a mystery to me. It is one of many canine reasonings I can't explain.

Dogs Are Cranks

Yes, in some respects dogs are cranks. If you don't believe this, try switching your dog's sleeping box or blanket. He won't be fooled and he won't like it. Once given a bed, a dog isn't satisfied to sleep anywhere else in the house.

A dog quickly learns that his bed is his own property. He is exceedingly jealous of it. You will find that some dogs will take almost any abuse from another dog without fighting; but let a strange dog get into his bed and the fur will start flying.

I mention this to bring out the reason why some thought and care should be given to his sleeping quarters when a dog is first brought into a house. Choose a place that is dry and free from drafts—a place that the dog can call his own forever afterwards.

Don't place a puppy in a damp cellar for it will soon become ill. It doesn't necessarily have to be a well-heated place. A dog doesn't need heat, his only requirement is that the place chosen for him is dry and not drafty.

The Question Box

Question: My wife bathes her dog every day in our bathtub. I don't think this is good for the animal. What do you think?

K. N. Answer: I won't enter into your dispute about the use of the bathtub, but I will say that a dog shouldn't be bathed every day. A dog shouldn't be bathed often than once a month. A good brushing daily will keep the animal clean.

Question: Is it true that dogs suffer some sort of ailment for the rest of their lives after once having distemper?

D. S. Answer: No, this is not true. Quite often, however, dogs surviving distemper may suffer a kidney disorder seven or eight years later. But not all dogs.

Supporters Will See Diggs Take His Oath of Office

Negro Congressman From Michigan Visits Site of His New Job

By Esther Van Wagoner Tufty
WASHINGTON (Special)—When the first Michigan Negro Congressman raises his right hand to take the oath of office as the newly elected Congressman from the 13th Detroit Congressional district, some 300 supporters will witness the event in the visitors gallery.

The 32-year-old Charles E. Diggs, Jr., said on his hurried first trip to Washington that he was making arrangements for a special train to bring his friends "to the inauguration."

Very cautious and serious at his first press conference the Congressman-elect was reluctant to comment on the McCarthy issue or even to state his choice of a committee assigned. As to the latter, he's seeing Congressman John Dingell, of Detroit, who is a member of the committee making selections.

Why did he win? "Because I am a Democrat in a Democrat district," was his quick reply. Then he added that no one factor was determining, although the "Wilson dog story gave impetus" and his appeal to the "young people who should be allowed to vote at 18 years of age." Legislation he will introduce will be aimed at getting public housing, better roads, and federal aid to education, to meet pressing needs of his district which is 45 percent Negro.

He'll fight "for repeal of discriminatory immigration laws."

Confessing to a "secret desire to go to night school to get a law degree," he fears this will be just as impossible as it was in Lansing, when he was serving two terms in the State Senate and trying to commute to law school in Detroit. He graduated from Wayne University after his first two years at the University of Michigan. In 1942 he was drafted into the Army and was promoted to second lieutenant before being discharged 28 months later.

At present, he plans to leave his wife and three children in Detroit and do some commuting.

This president of the House of Diggs, an undertaking establishment, will be one of three Negroes in the House. The others are William L. Dawson of Illinois and Adam Clayton Powell of New York. Before their entrance to the House, only two others since Reconstruction days of 1879 had been elected: Republican Oscar De Priest of Illinois and Arthur Mitchell of Illinois.

'Pack Rats' Have Different Tails

Tourists in the comfortable "wilds" of the western United States are frequently annoyed by the activities of "pack rats" that run actively in and out of cabin windows "soring" things that may not have value to humans and frequently could have no possible value to the pack rats.

Members of the genus Neotoma range practically from coast-to-coast in North America, being found from Pennsylvania to California represented by one species or another. In the east they are called "Cave rats" or "Wood rats"; in the West, almost universally "Pack rats". They seem to develop habits suitable to the demands of their environment. In the Western mountains they build nests of trash among the rocks. In deserts their nests may reach a bushel in volume. Where burrows are easily found among ledges their nests may be much less elaborate. In California the species there represented may live in live oak trees.

These rats, all differ from the common Norway rats most conspicuously by having hairy tails instead of the relative hairless tail found in the better known animal. Pack rats' tails are not scaly as are those of Norway rats.

Pack rats are probably not promiscuous in their breeding habits as are the Norway rats and many related animals. The unusual life story if something like this. January and February are the breeding months of most importance. The young, two to four in number, are born from February through May. The young open their eyes when 17 days old and are weaned by the mother when three weeks old. In spite of the weaning the young may stay with the mother for some time. The father is not allowed to stay with his family while the young are immature or at least in the family group. The mother makes a remarkably good parent.

Including the tail, the average rat may be to 15 1/2 inches long. The tail may be 6 1/2 inches of the total length. The weight may be to 1/2 pound and the fur is rather heavy for a rat. The ears are relatively large. The animals are reddish brown above and white or nearly so beneath. The Eastern, Southern and some of the western species have tails that are less bushy than some of the best known pack rats.

Pack rats are edible and may thus provide food for lost persons since they are easily caught.

WASHINGTON (Special) — While the men reporters were lunching and questioning Premier Mendes-France at the National Press Club Madame Mendes-France was talking very frankly to a few women reporters at the French Embassy, while also enjoying some very fine French cokeny.

It was obvious the wife of the most powerful man in France knows what's going on both sides of the Atlantic. But her hostess, Madame Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador, said, "No politics," so the interview was mostly about Mendes-France trying to make the French drink less wine and more milk, pasteurized that is and in every school room.

His wife thinks this right and noble but wasn't quite consistent because she herself isn't a milk-addict because its fattening and if the French children want a little wine in a glass of water, why not?

Later the talk turned to why the French did not embrace EDC, which was a brain child originally of the French.

She said, "No man could have persuaded the Parliament and the French people to change their minds about EDC which they feared as a sort of supra-government."

She expressed delight at the overwhelming vote in the House of Commons in England on the Paris accords, arming West Germany. She hopes the Bonn government will go along.

This French visitor doesn't look French. Maybe because she isn't. She's Egyptian. Slight of figure, she wore what Americans call a "basic black dress" with only one ornament, a red rosebud. Her dark hair, becomingly streaked with gray, was worn in a bushy bob. She's feminine to her fingertips and refused to give her age. Her hostess, Madame Bonnet, explained, "In America reporters always ask how old are you... in France no." But she's probably in her early 40s very early 40s.

At any age, Madame Mendes-France will be vitally attractive.

Father's traditional job of carving the turkey on Thanksgiving day isn't always so easy as the time-honored pictures portray.

But father shouldn't feel too badly if he flubs here and there. The chap who demonstrated turkey carving at the 4-H Turkey Show in Civic Center last week said there isn't a man carving at the dining room table whose wife couldn't do a better job at the kitchen counter.

There's only two things to remember. Have a good sharp knife, and if you really want nice slices don't have the turkey too well done. It's a good idea to let it stand 20 minutes before attempting to carve it.

As for those slick demonstrations on TV, there's only one explanation. Those turkeys are cold!

Most people like their turkey very well done—the kind that falls off the bones. So call your own signals. You'll probably end up with a well done turkey and letting mama carve it in the kitchen.

Grace Vander Kolk, county home demonstration agent, demonstrated how to stuff a turkey. Her favorite recipe calls for bread two or three days old, onion, celery, butter and eggs. Putting eggs in dressing is gaining popularity. It makes the dressing hold together, and it's a new gimmick to have a slice of dressing with the white meat when you carve the breast.

The inevitable question arose. Is frozen turkey as good as fresh turkey? The answer was that frozen turkey is just as good as fresh turkey, provided it has been properly processed.

In fact, it's better than an even bet that frozen turkey is much better than fresh turkey. Just think of all the millions of families eating turkey on Thanksgiving Day, and of all the turkey processing that must be done before the holiday.

If you think all those turkeys could be killed and processed in the period two or three days before Thanksgiving, you're just plain naive.

Circuit Judge Raymond W. Fox of Kalamazoo was delighted with the pair of wooden shoes presented him at the annual Red Cross meeting on Nov. 15. He also laughed at the suggestion, he could now claim the name Judge "Van Fox."

"Last week somebody tried to make me a Frenchman," he said. He explained that some listeners became confused over radio newscasts on the death of the French designer, Jacques Path. And calls poured into the office of "Judge Fox" to see if the Kalamazoo jurist had passed on.

Speaking of Red Cross, annual report for all Red Cross activities were distributed at the annual meeting. The printed statements which include a financial report are available at Red Cross headquarters at 6 East Eighth St.

Remember the Sentinel story recently about the Robinson township woman shooting an eight-point doe?

A local family was chatting about it around the dinner table. "One of the youngsters piped up, 'That's like a lady with a beard, isn't it?'"

Dr. Herman Planten, Amsterdam editor who visited Holland early this month and witnessed a busy time at The Sentinel office for the Nov. 2 election, wrote that he arrived in San Francisco Nov. 10 after visiting various American cities. "Remember me to all the nice people I met while in Holland, Mich.," he wrote.

If you're sending Christmas greetings to missionaries overseas, etc., just remember that the rate is 8 cents per ounce these days, whereas it was 5 cents a year ago. The increase went into effect last June. Greetings may be sent to Canada and Mexico for 3 cents, same as in the U.S.

Here's a household suggestion that came from our Harlem correspondent: When peeling onions, start at the stem end, peel down, to root end and carefully cut off root end. Onions will remain whole after cooking.

Remember the picture of a rare white squirrel that appeared in the Nov. 13 Sentinel? Well, the captor, George Chap, retired Chicago policeman who lives near Fennville, has found a home for the unique albino. His son, Roland J. lives in Chicago and made his father's find known to the Brookfield Zoo. Sure enough, next time Roland comes home he's going back to Chicago and deliver the squirrel to the Zoo.

It was a great day for the Zuverinks recently when little Dawn Mara, adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Zuverink, was baptized in Sixth Reformed Church. There were four other babies, but little Dawn in her long christening dress was the only one who cried.

The general consensus was that she'll make a good Tiger rooster. Daddy, star pitcher for the Detroit team, wasn't too perturbed.

An uncle, Vern Zuverink, just home from the Navy after four years, was present for the ceremony.

Library Adventures

By Arnold Mulder

A writer in a "Public Opinion" column of a national literary magazine complains that that publication "murdered" his copy. It seems he had written an article with more than ordinary care. He copyread it several times, and had revised and rewritten it more than once to make sure that every word carried its full freight of meaning.

When it appeared in print, there were sentences that said exactly the opposite of what he intended to say. When a typesetter harried by heat and haste overlooks a "not," for instance, and a proofreader, equally harried, fails to notice the omission, the result may be fantastically curious.

Along with others, the great and the less great and the not great at all, I have suffered as much as anyone from this human element in the complex machinery of publication. A few examples may be enlightening to those who jump to the conclusion that the mistakes that appear in a piece of published writing are evidence of the writer's ignorance.

The other day I had occasion to use the word "proscribed." It of course means to condemn or reject or prohibit. It was used in some such sentence as this: "The reading of the Old Testament should of course not be proscribed."

As I wrote the sentence the thought flashed through my mind: "Will the word come out in print as 'prescribed'?"

And sure enough, that's the way it came out. The article made me say: "The reading of the Old Testament should not be prescribed." If I had a reader, I wonder what he thought of the sentence.

One of my worst word-hurdles is "definitive." In describing a biography, it means "fully developed." When a writer produces a biography that is complete and authoritative and contains all the possible evidence, the book may be called "definitive."

But whenever I write the word, the thought always flashes through my mind, "Will it come out as 'definite'?" And nine times out of ten it does. That substitution of course makes hash of any sentence.

Experience taught me many years ago that it isn't safe to use a foreign word or phrase. Proud of my college Latin, I had written "in medias res." It came out in print "in media res."

A theological professor, who should have had more sense than a recent college boy, devoted a whole article to proving that I was an ignoramus.

Also there is for any writer the hazard of the transposed line of type. In correcting a typographical error the printer replaces the defective line with a newly set slug. In the hurry he sometimes gets it in the wrong place, with the result that the sentence reads like gibberish. Anyone who has ever actually worked in a newspaper plant recognizes the result for what it is. But the reading public probably blames the writer.

The author of a book has an advantage in that he gets a chance to read proof on his work. But it sometimes happens that when an error is corrected the typesetter, in recasting the line, makes another error. Unless the author gets several revisions, he can't be sure of the result. Someone has said that a book has never been published without a typographical error in it.

The writer whose work appears in newspapers or magazines is less fortunate. He has to depend on proof readers; and proof readers are human and subject to human error.

Lawyer Attempts To Commit Smith To Ionia Hospital

KALAMAZOO, Mich. — Circuit Judge Raymond W. Fox ordered a plea of innocent entered Monday for Louis Maurice Smith, 18, a patient at Kalamazoo State Hospital who raped and strangled a student nurse Nov. 5.

However, Ralph Birkhold, lawyer for the youth, said he would move to have the youth committed to Ionia State Hospital for the Criminally Insane as a "criminal sexual psychosomatic" before the case ever reaches trial.

Fox ordered the youth held for trial. But Birkhold said he would file a petition within the next few days to have the youth committed to the state hospital.

The youth has been charged with first degree murder in the slaying of Marilyn Kraal, 20, pretty student nurse from Holland, Mich.

If Birkhold files a petition which is accepted, the court would appoint two psychiatrists to examine the youth. If he is found insane, he would be ordered committed.

Birkhold told newsmen that if the petition is denied and the youth is forced to face trial he would plead insanity for the youth.

Smith, a sex deviate with a long record of moral offenses, told in his confession how he duped the student nurse into accompanying him into the basement by asking her to unlock the hydrotherapy room so he could get his playing cards.

The youth was bound over to Circuit Court after he was examined here last week before Municipal Judge Clark M. Olmsted.

LOUIS H. OSTERHAUS

Municipal Judge Of Grand Haven Succumbs at 72

GRAND HAVEN (Special) — Municipal Judge Louis Henry Osterhaus, 72, died in Municipal hospital at midnight Monday just six hours after he had been admitted. He had engaged in the practice of law in Grand Haven for 47 years.

He was appointed municipal judge by City Council Nov. 2, 1953, after Grand Haven voted 476 to 73 to establish a municipal court instead of having two justices of the peace. The term was to run until the spring election in April.

Jacob Ponstein will continue to serve as associate municipal judge. There are only two other attorneys in Grand Haven who could qualify for the position—Harvey L. Scholten and Howard Fant. Other attorneys, Harry Liefers, Jr., and Edward T. Kirby, newcomers to the city, have not established the mandatory three-year residence.

Judge Osterhaus was born in Stanton Dec. 7, 1881, attended public schools there and in Grand Haven, and at the age of 15 was appointed a page boy in the state senate at Lansing. When legislative adjourned in June, 1897, he secured employment in a lawyer's office in Grand Haven and studied law and acquired a general education. He passed two examinations in 1906 and was admitted to practice.

He held many law positions, serving as circuit court commissioner, city attorney and was active in bar associations. He ran unsuccessfully in 1929 and 1947 for circuit judge. He was active in the Rotary Club and the Chamber of Commerce.

Surviving are the wife, Adeline, J., a son, Lt. Comdr. Louis John Osterhaus of Norfolk, Va.; two daughters, Hazel of Oakland, Calif., and Maryon, teacher in the Grand Haven schools, and four grandsons.

The body will remain at Kinkead Funeral Home until 11 a.m. Friday when it will be taken to Presbyterian church, Franklin and Fifth, to remain until the time of service at 2 p.m. The Rev. Wallace Robertson will officiate. Burial will be in Lake Forest cemetery.

Hope Players to Stage 'The Glass Menagerie'

Care of Atypical Child Discussed

Education for the atypical or exceptional child provided the subject for discussion at the monthly informal meeting of the Board of Education Monday night in Junior High School.

The atypical or exceptional child was roughly defined as a child who in some way has departed from normal, either mentally, physically or both. Much of the discussion centered about the current programs of the special education and orthopedic departments.

Discussion brought out that the main aim of caring for mentally retarded and physically handicapped children is to fit them into society with the ultimate aim of making them as self-sufficient as possible. It is also the aim of the special education departments to integrate the child into his own class wherever possible. This is usually done gradually by sending the children first to gym and music classes.

It was brought out that about 4 percent of the total enrollment is in need of speech correction. The school system has a speech correctionist on the faculty who as the program develops will work with other local schools and possibly aid others.

Education parents and other members to adopt proper attitudes in "accepting" mentally retarded or crippled children into family activity also is a part of the program.

There was some discussion on psychiatric treatment for mentally disturbed children. There was very little discussion on treatment of the gifted child, other than for teachers to give additional assignments to keep such children occupied.

In all, the general concept of education for the atypical child was for treatment of the "whole child," not just giving a retarded child something to do or give exercise to the orthopedic case.

Russell Welch, principal of Lincoln school, served as chairman. Participating in the presentation were Mrs. Lorna Jean Pierre, orthopedic and lowered vitality; Harold Kuiper and Mrs. Dena Schutmaat, ungraded rooms; Miss Anita Samonte, speech correction, and Dr. Frances Howell, physiotherapist. Dr. O. van der Velde also was present and participated in discussions along with school principals, board members and others.

Geerlings Also Wants Answers In Murder Case

State Senator May Ask Legislative Probe Into Death of Nurse

State Sen. Clyde Geerlings of Holland said Friday that he may ask for a legislative investigation into the circumstances surrounding the rape-murder of a local student nurse Nov. 5 at Kalamazoo State Hospital.

Earlier last week, Dr. Roy A. Morter, medical superintendent of the hospital, said "prime factors" in the slaying of 20-year-old Marilyn Kraai were the "immature judgment" of student nurses at the hospital and the fact that she "willingly" accompanied the murderer, Louis Maurice Smith, an 18-year-old sex deviate patient, to the spot where she met her death.

Dr. Morter's report touched off a wave of protest in Western Michigan and Sister Mary Xavier, director of the Mercy Central School of Nursing at Grand Rapids where Miss Kraai was a student, has sharply criticized Dr. Morter's report which places full blame on the girl for her death.

Sen. Geerlings in a registered letter sent Friday to Dr. Harry E. August, chairman of the Michigan Mental Health Commission, also asked answers to the five questions Sister Mary Xavier asked in Thursday's United Press dispatch, as well as answers to several other questions directed to him.

Geerlings wrote: "I received a call from a parent of one of the student nurses at the hospital on the Sunday following the murder of Marilyn Kraai, asking me what assurance I could give that adequate precautions would be taken to prevent any further tragedies."

"I immediately called Dr. Morter in Kalamazoo and he assured me that every precaution would be taken and that parents of student nurses should rest assured that no such tragedy could recur."

"From the report of your commission as published Monday, from questions asked by Sister Mary Xavier and from letters and telephone call which I have received from parents and relatives of student nurses in my area, I can only conclude that they feel that assurance is definitely lacking," Geerlings wrote.

In her sharp criticism Thursday, Sister Xavier charged that Miss Kraai's death was the result of laxity in supervision of student nurses at the hospital rather than because of their "immature judgment" and that the hospital and not the girl should be blamed for her death.

Sister Xavier's specific questions follow:

1. When student nurses are assigned to nursing practice on the wards, are they always under the strict supervision of a qualified psychiatric instructor whose sole responsibility is to the student?

2. Are student assignments made on the basis of educational needs rather than service needs of the department?

3. Are students always accompanied by an attendant when they escort patients from one building to another or one floor to another?

4. Are records easily available to student nurses in the department which indicate the behavior tendencies of patients they are caring for?

5. Are student ever left in a department alone?

Sister Xavier said Mercy Central School of Nursing plans to continue the affiliation in psychiatric nursing at Kalamazoo State Hospital, provided satisfactory answers are given to the five questions.

New Hospital Addition Described for AAUW

Extended services of Holland Hospital which will be provided upon completion of the new addition, were described in detail for Holland Branch, American Association of University Women, Thursday evening by Hospital Director Frederick S. Burd. The branch met in Durfee Hall, Hope College.

Using large blueprints and floor plans, Burd presented the entire layout of the hospital, as it will combine present facilities with the new wing, to be built perpendicular to the north end of the present building.

He traced the "hospital story" back to the survey made by hospital consultants who found local facilities sadly lacking in number of beds and in virtually every department for supporting services. He said the survey was based on the area served—460 square miles—population, age group, which is slightly older than the average, and income, which is slightly less than average.

Fifty-three beds will be added to the present 72. A complete renovation of the present facilities will be worked in with the new, all centered around a practical, convenient "service core" of vertical transportation, including dumb waiters, tray conveyors, chutes, elevators, etc.

Burd described the plans included for each floor—with vastly improved provision for emergency, obstetric, surgery, maintenance, pediatrics and many other departments.

The director emphasized that much of what is accomplished depends on the current fund drive in the areas surrounding Holland city. Total cost is expected to exceed $1,100,000. The federal government will provide much financial aid, with "no strings attached."

Mrs. Ted Boeve, legislative chairman, planned the program, which also featured a presentation on "What We Stand For," an objective summary of AAUW legislative program on local, state and national levels, and as it pertains to various committees. Mrs. Boeve, who prepared the presentation, acted as moderator. Taking part were Mrs. John De Haan, Jr., Mrs. H. J. Knutson, Mrs. Stanley Boven, Mrs. Brian Athey and Mrs. Carl C. Van Raalte.

Mrs. Orle Bishop, president, conducted the business meeting. Miss Barbara Lampen was named as the new International Relations chairman. Mrs. J. D. Van Putten reported on the recent successful used book sale, sponsored by the Fellowship committee.

The banquet was held in the 7-15 room of Durfee Hall and attracted about 150 people.

An All-MIAA tackle last season, Heydorn was switched to guard this year. On the Hope team four years, Heydorn played a reserve tackle spot his freshman year. On the Hope team four years, Heydorn played a reserve tackle spot his freshman year. He played defensive tackle his sophomore year and with the reinstatement of single platoon football in 1953 worked both ways. The Hope co-captain was presented an award by James Den Herder, local businessman.

John Adams, Saginaw right halfback and Lynn Post, Holland end, both juniors, were selected by their teammates to be co-captains for the 1955 season. Adams led Hope in rushing and total offense during the past campaign. He netted 678 yards in nine games for a 75.3 yards per game average. Post, a member of the 1951 MIAA co-championship team, led the Dutch in pass receiving. He snared 10 for 108 yards from his right end position.

Let's Plant Beauty--Right Soil Is Most Important for House Plants

The dry atmosphere of our homes is the hardest condition our house plants have to adjust to. We can make it easier for them by providing soil through which their roots can travel easily and one which will hold moisture while still allowing good drainage and aeration.

A potting soil of two-thirds peat moss and one-third sharp sand was suggested last week. Some people like to substitute sphagnum moss for half of the peat in this mixture. Like peat it is valuable in holding moisture, like a sponge. Sphagnum also has antibiotic properties—that is, it fights bacteria. It may be chopped fine and used as a mulch on top of the soil, where it acts as a good indicator of soil moisture, for it becomes light brown when dry and warns that the pot needs watering.

Small chunks of charcoal, placed in the bottom of a pot in place of the customary pieces of broken flower pot or stones used for drainage, will keep the soil sweet. A few pieces of charcoal should be used too in the container when one grows plants in water or propagates cuttings in it.

For one group of plants the above potting mixture should not be used. Cacti have adjusted themselves to different growing conditions than other plants need. A mixture of one-half sharp sand and one-half light soil, plus, to insure an alkaline condition, one-half level teaspoon of agricultural lime per three-inch pot recommended. The pot may be one-third filled with broken crock for good drainage. The soil should never be soggy, but neither should it be so dry that it is hard. These plants can store moisture in their stems and leaves, but that does not mean that they should not be watered regularly. They remain alive through abuse but remember cacti blossom in the desert only when the rains come.

The potting mixture used for cacti can be used for succulents too though the latter require more water. In this latter group are sedums, aloes, echeveria (Hens and chickens), euphorbia (Crown of thorns), crassula arborescens (Jade tree), kalanchoe coccinea (this has clusters of red flowers at Christmas), the peperomias, including the "Watermelon begonia", and the sansevierias.

The Christmas cactus is really not a cactus, but in its native habitat grows in decayed humus in crotches of forest trees. Equal parts of light loam, sharp sand, and well rotted leaf mold make a good soil for it. Keep it well watered except for a rest period after blossoming and give it moderate light.
