C-C Resolution Given Support In Washington

Congress to Consider Small Businesses in Post-War Programs

The Chamber of Commerce Friday received replies from three members of congress in Washington to whom the local organization on Nov. 18 had sent a resolution asking that congress consider the so-called "small businesses" in mapping its policy for post-war economic planning.

Bartel J. Jonkman, fifth district representative, who acknowledged the communication which was signed by E. P. Stephan, secretary-manager, and C. L. Jalving, president of the Holland Chamber of Commerce, also included a sheet of the Congressional Record of Nov. 23 which carried a reprint of the local resolution.

Sen. Homer Ferguson wrote that a planning committee of the senate already has been organized to study and evaluate such matters, and has submitted the local communication to this committee at the request of the committee clerk.

Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg who wrote he would submit the resolution on the floor of the senate at once said the resolution is substantially in line with the objectives which the senate is seeking to promote through work of a special committee on postwar economic planning of which he is a member.

He added, "It is my feeling that the future economic life of America hangs upon our success in creating a prudent and practical pattern for the termination of war contracts and for the disposition of surplus plants and materials. The problem is a staggering one. The war department told us last week that it has one million contracts to demobilize. A task of such magnitude is appalling in its possible consequences. But I can at least assure you that these facts are seriously recognized by some of us in the senate and we are undertaking to find the earliest possible answer."

Local Hunter Was With Man Who Shot Legal Doe

Henry Looman, city building inspector, who returned here a few days ago from a northern hunting trip with an eight-point 150-pound buck, was a member of a hunting party which received the distinction of getting a legal doe, one with spike horns still in the velvet.

Bagging the freak deer was the Rev. Ben G. Wyma, pastor of the Free Methodist church of Manistique, who made the kill near the Limestone quarry near Manistique. Looman together with the Rev. George Huff, pastor of the Wesleyan Methodist church at Romulus, were the other members of the party, but they both bagged the conventional bucks.

Rev. Wyma's legal doe weighed about 150 pounds and had spikes six to seven inches long. Conservation officers have ruled that such rarities are legal, despite the fact that the sex is protected under Michigan game laws.

Two Holland Chaplains Meet by Chance in N.M.

Letters received in Holland this week tell of a chance meeting of two chaplains, formerly of Holland, which occurred Nov. 23 at supper in Clovis, N. Mex. They were Capt. Howard B. Scholten and First Lieut. James C. Ottipoby, both of the army air forces and both formerly affiliated with Sixth Reformed church here.

Chaplain Ottipoby, the only Indian chaplain in the service, stationed at Hobbs air field in New Mexico, had just returned from spending a leave with his wife and son and other relatives here and was planning to get his supper in Clovis when an army captain headed for the same table. The encounter was very unexpected and the delight genuine, according to the letters. Chaplain Ottipoby had talked with Chaplain Scholten's parents in Holland and related as much news of "home" as possible in the 30 minutes before Scholten's train pulled out.

Chaplain Scholten is stationed in Denver, Colo., but travels through many western states in his chaplain's work.

Breeches Buoy Used for Cables to Steady Wall

Grand Haven, Dec. 2 (Special)—Boatswain Carl Howell and Motor Machinist's Mate Edward Feddek of the coast guard training station scored four perfect shots with breeches buoy equipment at the Berkey and Gay Furniture Co. plant in Grand Rapids Tuesday in order to steady a wall which remained standing following a disastrous fire last Wednesday.

The four shots were made from different angles through a window five stories high. It was ticklish business as a miss might have jarred the wall, sending it crashing against Rows hotel.

Fennville Archer Brings Down Goose With Arrow

Allegan, Dec. 2.—There isn't as much meat in a goose as in a deer but Archer Albert Crane of Fennville is the envy of all bow and arrow hunters for accomplishing a feat not many of them can equal. While hunting for deer near the state conservation department's Swan creek wildlife experiment station, Crane sighted a goose resting in front of him. As he crept closer for a shot, the bird rose into the air and was quickly downed with an arrow through its back.

Although in previous archery hunting seasons, bow and arrow hunters have reported "near misses," Crane is the first one to report success in getting a goose with bow and arrow since the inauguration of the regular archery hunting season, conservation officials state.

Receives Yule Greeting From His Son in China

Cornelius De Kraker, 13 West Ninth St., Wednesday received a Christmas greeting from his son, Sgt. Adrian De Kraker who is with the 75th fighter squadron, 23rd fighter group, "somewhere in China."

The greeting which was dated Nov. 11 consisted of a mimeographed sketch showing a fighter plane bearing down on a rising sun which was behind the eight ball. Written along side were the words, "Wishing You a Velly Merry Christmas."

Sgt. De Kraker who was employed by the U.S. employment office before entering service Aug. 8, 1942, has been in China about two months. Before that he was in India about six months.

Safety Legion Started in City

More than 300 school children have called at the local police station the past few days to sign safety pledges and enroll as members of the Safety Legion of America, following talks in local schools by Capt. H. C. Berry who is making the rounds of the school in a white sound car, accompanied by a local police officer.

The pledge of the cub safety legioner includes the following promises: Not to ride two on a bicycle, never to ride bicycle at night without red reflector and headlight, avoid running and pushing on the school steps and in theaters and to be quiet and courteous at all times, not to run out from between or around parked cars, without looking from left to right for traffic, always to wait for the green light, never to throw anybody's cup or ball into the street on purpose, never to depend on any driver to look out for me, but always to look out for myself, to obey all traffic rules.

The corners of the pledge card are numbered and may be torn off by an officer or teacher when the legioner breaks a rule. If the youngster has one or more corners left on his card at a certain future date, he will be eligible to attend a picnic or some other entertainment.

Children attending kindergarten or the first four grades receive their pledge cards in the schools, but the older pupils pass a quiz of true and false questions, write a safety slogan and apply for memberships at the police headquarters. Special prizes are offered for best slogans.

The reaction of pupils and teachers to the program has been very enthusiastic. The services of Capt. Berry were secured through the Holland police department.

Find Body of Man Dead Two Months Near Hamilton

Verdict of Suicide by Hanging Announced By Allegan Coroner

Hamilton, Dec. 2.—The badly decomposed body of John Smith, 51, Indiana Ave., Benton Harbor, missing for two months, was found hanging from a tree on property he owned west of Hamilton about 11 a.m. Sunday by Fred Reimink of Hamilton and Smith's brother-in-law of Benton Harbor.

Coroner Bert Vander Kolk of Hopkins and Sheriff Louis Johnson of Allegan county investigated and the coroner gave the verdict of suicide by hanging. It was evident that Smith hanged himself shortly after his disappearance about two months ago as only the upper part of the body was left hanging.

Mr. Reimink in hunting for a place to hunt deer Saturday noticed a car parked in the territory about 2 1/2 miles west of Hamilton in Manlius township and notified the Hamilton deputy who in turn notified the sheriff. On Sunday, Smith's relatives came to Hamilton and together with Reimink searched the area. The body was found about 12 to 15 rods from the car. Sheriff Johnson said the property is isolated and that Smith had driven the car as far as possible into the woods. The shack on the property had not been entered.

Smith, a carpenter and all-around handyman, disappeared from his home two months ago and officers had been informed of the fact. The body was taken to the Ten Brink Funeral home in Hamilton.

Collect Twelve Tons of Tin Cans

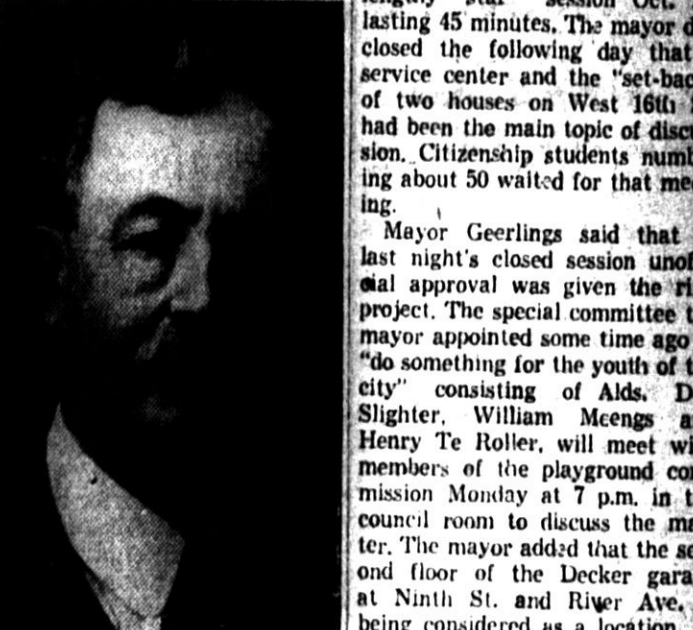

Plan Another Drive in Area Soon, According To Salvage Chairman

L. Phillip Van Hartesveldt, chairman of the city salvage committee, has said that approximately 12 tons of tin cans were collected in Friday's drive in the Holland area. He said the response was better than in the second drive a few months ago which netted about 10 tons, but not so good as the first drive which netted about 15 tons.

All tin cans have been dumped at the Fifth St. power plant and after Allegan has sent down what it has collected, the entire supply will be shipped some time next week to a detinning plant in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Friday's drive, the third in Holland, was carried on by the salvage committee of the office of civilian defense in cooperation with the Boy scouts and the street and park departments. A fourth tin can drive will be held in the near future, possibly in two months, Mr. Van Hartesveldt said.

And Citizenship Class Is Disappointed Over Brief Meet in Public Ten students of Carl Van Lente's citizenship classes of junior high school, attending common council's meeting Wednesday night to see how a democratic form of government functions, went away confused and disillusioned.
A 25-minute "star" session and a 9 1/2-minute public meeting seemed a little off-balance to them, reports from the school indicated today.
Mr. Van Lente said that he was unable to attend last night's meeting, but that the pupils had discussed their visit at class today and their impressions were decidedly unfavorable.
He mentioned having accompanied a class to council meeting about a year ago and, although there was no delay in starting, the record breaking four-minute meeting at that time was a definite disappointment to the students.
While Holland's future voters prowled around the city hall last night, awaiting the start of the regular session in the council chambers, the aldermen and Mayor Henry Geerlings, who also is secretary of the school board, went into a private huddle for 25 minutes in the city clerk's office, delaying the start of the public session until 7:55 p.m.
And then, before the youthful onlookers hardly had time to settle themselves for the anticipated public discussions of city affairs, the elected servants of the public rushed through the formalities of brief reports and "yaps" and adjourned 9 1/2 minutes after the session had been called to order.
Especially ironic was the topic reportedly discussed at the closed session. Disclosures following the "star" session were that discussion was confined to the possibilities of a roller skating rink for youngsters here.
Who could be more interested in that than the student group which posed this question?
"And why should such an uncontroversial proposal be material for an airing behind closed doors, the future citizens might ask.
Common council indulged in a lengthy "star" session Oct. 20, lasting 45 minutes. The mayor disclosed the following day that a service center and the "set-back" of two houses on West 16th St. had been the main topic of discussion. Citizenship students number about 50 waited for that meeting.
Mayor Geerlings said that at last night's closed session unofficial approval was given the "pink" project. The special committee the mayor appointed some time ago to "do something for the youth of the city" consisting of Aids. Don Slighter, William Mcens and Henry Te Roller, will meet with members of the playground commission Monday at 7 p.m. in the council room to discuss the matter. The mayor added that the second floor of the Decker garage at Ninth St. and River Ave. is being considered as a location.
Nothing else was taken up, according to the mayor's "second hand" account of the proceedings.

Holland to Play Allegan Here in Opener Friday

Sloppy Passing Shows Up in Practice Game With Second Quintet

The Holland high school basketball team held its first full-game scrimmage Tuesday afternoon and Coach Malcolm Mackay's first team piled up a 50-point margin over Coach Fred Weiss' seconds but failed to raise hopes for a good basketball season.

Sloppy passing was the main shortcoming and the team was far from looking like the fine teams Mackay has come up with in the past few seasons. The game Tuesday was a race horse affair with the ball moving from one court to the other with plenty of rubber being used up and not much being accomplished.

The score would indicate a high scoring Dutch five, but most of the scoring was done with the first team members taking advantage of their height under their own basket.

According to Mackay, Earl Borr and Jason Krikke, the two seniors who were supposed to form the bulwark of the team, are playing far below last season's par and none of the other boys have shown stuff worthy of praise unless it would be Louis Van Dyke, a junior, whose improvement over last season has been rapid.

On paper the Dutch team looks better than on the floor. There are five boys who register at least six feet tall, Earl Folkert, Bob Fortney, Louis Van Dyke, John Bos and Gordon Zuverink. They have speed in Ed Benz and Jason Krikke. They have a couple of boys with 20/30 vision when it comes to making baskets in Earl Borr and Ken De Waard and one of the trickiest passers to come along in the past few years in "Little Jack" Tirrell, who up to date has shown only about 50 per cent of what he is capable.

A bright spot does remain in sight, however, and that is in the fact that Holland still has three weeks of practice and two games before tangling with a conference foe.

The team will meet Allegan at the local armory Friday and Zeeland the following week, which will give the Dutchmen two games before playing Kalamazoo on Dec. 17. Allegan and Zeeland are class B schools but are not to be underrated because both teams have able veterans in their lineups.

As far as picking a starting lineup goes, Mackay is far from decided. He has about nine or ten boys who so far have ranked close enough to equal to make the choice a tough one and in all likelihood much will be learned from the Dutchmen's first game with Allegan Friday night.

Three of Van Anrooy Family See Plenty of War Action

First Sgt. Oscar J. Van Anrooy

Three members of the Gerrit Van Anrooy family, 372 Pine Ave., have experienced enough action in the present war to fill several volumes, should they decide to become journalistic after peace is declared.

First Sgt. Oscar Van Anrooy who joined the national guard 21 years ago has just returned to Holland after spending more than 1½ years in the southwest Pacific area. He has been transferred to the ERC (enlisted reserve corps) and is subject to further call by the army.

His brother, Nevin, also a first sergeant, has been with him almost continuously since the two left with other members of Holland's Co. D for active service in October, 1940.

The third member of the trio is Second Lieut. Viola Van Anrooy of the army nurses corps, who entered army service with the Harper hospital unit in July, 1942, and who is now in Italy. The Van Anrooy family was one of the first of Holland to have the distinction of three members serving overseas.

First Sgt. Oscar Van Anrooy arrived on the west coast Oct. 26 from Australia and arrived in Holland Nov. 12. Having had plenty of opportunity to develop his "shooting eye" on Japs, he left Holland the following day for a deer hunting trip up north and on the fourth day was successful in bagging a 14-point deer at Iron Mountain. The party which consisted of Ald. Bertal Slagh, John Kemper, Don Rypma, Van Anrooy and the latter's brother, Floyd Van Anrooy of Chicago, returned to Holland with four deer. Slagh who experienced his first deer hunting trip had the distinction of shooting the largest deer, although its antlers were not so large as the one shot by the soldier.

Van Anrooy said despite many changes, Holland's Co. D is quite intact and the majority of Holland men have stuck together in the southwest Pacific theater. He said some were killed, others were given medical discharge and several transferred to other units, but the majority remain. He said nearly all the men were stricken with malaria at one time or another. He commented briefly on the battle in New Guinea in which the local company participated just about a year ago which lasted for 46 days—a period which in retrospect seems more like 46 years. He explained that New Guinea in itself is not valuable, but it was her geographical location that made the place desirable for the Japs who were establishing bases in a "half moon" around Australia. New Guinea, he said, has a few coffee and rubber plantations and a few villages on the coast of the resort type—otherwise the interior is just so much jungle inhabited by natives.

New Guinea is divided into two parts, the western half belonging to the Netherlands, and the eastern half, known as territory of Papua, which is under an Australian mandate. Co. D as part of the 126th infantry left Australia a little over a year ago for Port Moresby, New Guinea, to participate in what turned out to be the Buna battle. Buna which lies directly across from Port Moresby on the opposite coast was the stronghold of the Japs and the fiercest fighting converged on Sanananda point about six miles west of Buna, or just between Buna and Gona. To gain this objective, part of the 126th infantry had to scale the Owen Stanley range which is 13,000 feet high. The Holland men, however, were flown over this ridge to another location in the mountains and from there carrying all their supplies including machine guns, mortars and ammunition, on forced march covered the remainder of the distance, according to Van Anrooy.

The local men were relieved in February and were returned to Australia. Last Holland persons have the impression that the local men had nothing to do since February until he left some weeks ago. Sgt. Van Anrooy explained that after a rest period the local soldiers were kept very busy training new men arriving in Australia from the states.

Co. D, a machine gun unit, does not enter battle as a unit, he explained. Very often, gunners and their equipment are assigned to different rifle companies in an attempt to gain superiority in various locales. The machine gun unit is under battalion control and is used primarily to assist other units. Therefore when news of casualties trickle home, the local men in question may have been serving with an entirely different company far removed from the home base.

As for the Japs, Sgt. Van Anrooy refrained from expressing his opinions too pointedly. He said, however, that the Jap is not the best soldier in the world but that his military mind is a sort of religion that penetrates everything giving the Jap a sticktivity hard to beat.

Sgt. Van Anrooy joined Holland's Co. D in 1921 or 1922 just one year after it was organized. He was born in Holland and received his education in Grand Rapids and Crystal River, Fla. His wife is the former Thelma Jarvis of Holland.

Cab Driver Given Third Summons

Mrs. Dorothy Westley, 22, Tulip City cab driver, has been issued a summons for "excessive speed on an intersection" as the result of an accident Wednesday at the corner of 13th St. and Pine Ave. Involving the cab and an auto driven by Herbert Ten Have, 30, 304 West 14th St.

This is the third charge filed against Mrs. Westley in two months. On Oct. 1 she was charged with making an improper turn and on Oct. 13 she was charged with running a red flasher. Last Friday her attorney filed a motion to dismiss the case on grounds of double jeopardy, but the case has not yet been disposed of.

In the latest crash, Ten Have was traveling north on Pine Ave. and Mrs. Westley east on 13th St. The front of the Ten Have car and the right rear of the cab were damaged.

Police said Ten Have claimed that when he saw the cab it was too late to avoid hitting it. Mrs. Westley told police she thought Ten Have would wait for her.

Tells of Thrilling Escape From Java

The thrilling story of his escape from the Japanese invaded island of Java, Dutch East Indies, in March, 1942, was told here Monday afternoon by Lieut. Comdr. William M. Den Hollander, formerly chief of construction at the navy yard at Soerabaja, Java, who has been in Holland a week visiting various defense plants and securing information as to what supplies may be available for the Dutch government in meeting its military and naval needs in post-war and other planning.

Comdr. Den Hollander, who was honor guest at a luncheon in the Warm Friend tavern Monday noon arranged by the Buss Machine works, is at present attached to Washington as one of the Netherlands representatives of the combined chiefs of staffs and is also connected with the Netherlands purchasing commission in New York.

He described how the Japs invaded Java in three places on March 1, 1942, four months after the simultaneous attack of the Japs on Pearl harbor, the Philippines and Malaya on Dec. 7, 1941. On March 2, when the situation became hopeless, orders were given to destroy the navy yard at Soerabaja, the chief base for all the East Indies covering an area 1½ miles long and three-quarters of a mile wide.

Destruction of a naval base is as carefully planned as any other work, he said, and navy men first destroyed the machine tools, then sank docks and small vessels, dynamited the concrete docks and set all buildings afire. This systematic destruction was planned two years previously, and it was accomplished in eight hours, according to schedule.

After destroying the Soerabaja base which engaged mostly in repairs although some small escort vessels were manufactured there, Comdr. Den Hollander, high ranking officers and about 350 supervisors of the yard escaped by railroad to Tjalajap, a distance of perhaps 500 miles. The railroad was cut the next day by invading Japs, the officer said. Initial bombing of the base started Feb. 3.

From Tjalajap, the men sailed for Colombo on the island of Ceylon near India and then to Durban, South Africa, where they arrived about April 1, 1942. About six months later, the director of the navy yard, two commanders and Den Hollander were called to America. The others remained in South Africa. Den Hollander has been traveling in America since the first of the year.

Den Hollander's wife and two children are still in Java and although he has not heard from them since he fled from the island more than a year and a half ago, he believes they are confined in a special settlement for women and children.

Java which is about 1,000 miles long with a population of 50 million is by far the most civilized and developed of all islands in the East Indies, according to Den Hollander. The island is rich in natural resources and has large plantations for rice and rubber. The island is about 1,200 miles west of New Guinea and a like distance from the Philippines, the three places forming a triangle. Population of the entire East Indies is 72 million, he said.

Comdr. Den Hollander was born in the Netherlands and entered service in the navy in 1929. In 1937 he was sent to Java. He located relatives in the United States since coming to this country.

Willard Welling Weds Miss Goldie Lampen

In a charming ceremony performed Thanksgiving Day at 4 p.m. in the home of Mrs. M. Lampen, 117 West 17th St., her daughter, Miss Goldie Mae Lampen, became the bride of Willard Julius Welling, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Welling, 22 West 17th St. The double ring ceremony was read by the Rev. Howard Teusink, friend of the groom, before an improvised altar banked with palms and ferns.

Wedding music was furnished by Miss Betty Bareman, who sang "Oh Promise Me," de Koven, and "Because," d'Hardelot, and Miss Gertrude Beckman who accompanied Miss Bareman and also played traditional wedding selections.

The bride was lovely in a gown of white brocaded satin fashioned with sweetheart neckline, long sleeves and shirred bodice, with small, covered buttons extending in back from neck to waistline. Her fingertip veil was caught in a seed pearl head-dress. She carried a white Bible topped with Jonathan Hill roses, and white ribbon streamers.

Miss Jean Van Dyke as maid of honor wore a powder blue chiffon floor-length gown fashioned similar to the bride's. She wore a spray of roses and tiny white mums in her hair and carried a bouquet of pink roses and white chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Lampen wore a navy blue tailored dress and Mrs. Welling wore black crepe. Both had gardenia corsages.

Jerry Mulder assisted the groom as best man.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the home of the bride and Thanksgiving dinner was served to 25 guests. Serving as waitresses were the Misses Evelyn Van Slooten, Viola Kronmeyer and Hilda Rankens.

Appearing on the reception program were the Misses Betty Bareman and Gertrude Beckman and Mrs. M. De Boer who presented two readings, one of which was original and was dedicated to the bride and groom.

Two Fires Here Over Week-End

Holland's fire department was called out to two fires Saturday and Sunday nights, according to Chief Andrew Klomparsen. An alarm at 8:45 p.m. Saturday called the firemen to the Artz Coal Co. office in the Zwemer block on East Eighth St. near Garrison Ave.

The fire was caused by an overheated furnace, the chief said, and most of the damage was confined to contents of the building. Fire damage to the building itself was negligible.

Included in the loss which may approach $200 were 40 chickens and a quantity of feed. Firemen remained at the scene about three-quarters of an hour. Two lines of hose were connected immediately to put out the flames which started in about the center of the Artz portion of the building. The coal piles are not located at the office.

On Sunday night, firemen were called to the Legion club rooms in the Tower building, Eighth and River, where a wastebasket, thought to have contained paper and oily rags, caught fire. The club rooms which are being remodeled for a service center were not damaged. The waste basket was carried out to the street.

Chief Klomparsen, who said the blaze may have been started by a carelessly tossed cigarette, urged greater precautions by smokers.

Accidents Are Caused by Fog

Muskegon Trucker Is Facing Charges; Train Tears Door From Car

Heavy fog Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 24-25, was responsible for numerous accidents and incidents north of Holland, according to sheriff's officers who were kept busy until 4:30 a.m. investigating calls.

Around 1 a.m., officers found a stalled oil truck about two miles south of West Olive on US-31 partly on the road with no flares or other lights to warn traffic. When officers received the initial report over the two-way radio, the truck had been driving on the wrong side of the road and nearly upset a car of Muskegon war workers returning to Holland.

A few minutes later an Illinois car was involved in a minor collision with the truck. A summons was being issued here to the truck driver, Raymond Thomas, Muskegon, on charges of improper equipment and driving on the wrong side of the road.

A little later, officers assisted an Indiana car which had left the road in the fog about six miles north of Holland on the Port Sheldon road.

A Pere Marquette switchman notified officers that someone had parked his car so close to the tracks just north of Holland leaving the left door open that the train caught the door, nearly tearing it off. Officers found the car belonged to a Mexican who lived in a shack near there. He said the fog was so thick he had no idea he was so near the tracks.

Sheriff's officers also prepared to issue a summons for George Den Uyl, 221 Lincoln Ave., they charged he drove 60 miles an hour on US-31. The driver explained that due to the fog he had missed the sidewalk where he usually let riders off and was retracing his route.

Officers described the fog as appearing in "spots" and at times so thick that even those who were well acquainted in the vicinity could not find their way.

WILLKIE'S WARNING

Wendell Willkie has issued a warning to the Republicans of the nation that they are far too optimistic about "the inevitability of a GOP victory next fall."

The quote ends there, but it is perhaps legitimate to continue along the line of Willkie's warning for a little. Republicans throughout the nation, whether they are for Willkie or against him, had better heed the warning if they have a real desire to win. Especially should those who soured on Willkie since the last election take note of the warning. Nothing could be more fatal for the Republicans than to take for granted that the election is in the bag. The assumption that a hard fight is ahead is far more wholesome; without such an assumption not only is victory not assured but defeat is almost inevitable. As in the war effort, complacency is the greatest foe of the party that wants to win the election.

True, the Republicans have been sweeping the state governments in the by-elections, so that considerably more than half of the American people are now under Republican rule. But it is also true that the machinery of the federal government is in the hands of the Democrats, and that gives the Democratic party opportunities for free political advertising that can't be matched by hundreds of millions of dollars on the part of the Republicans. The Democrats have the enormous advantage that they can charge much of the bill for campaign expenses against the American people in taxes.

The various bureaus engaging in this free political advertising have to be somewhat discreet of course, and such agencies as the OWI have even been required to make specific promises that they would not use their appropriations to boost the stock of the candidates in power. But anyone at all familiar with such organizations knows that there are any number of ways in which the advertising can be put across while the forms of the contract are kept. The "ins" have so great an advantage that the "outs" had better not be too sure, if they wish to become the "ins."

War psychology is another advantage that the Democrats have which the Republicans will ignore at their peril. The Republicans have been just as ready to make sacrifices to win the war as the Democrats, and they have worked just as hard. The fact remains that the war is associated with the party now in power, and there is a widely held assumption that that party alone can carry it to a successful conclusion. In terms of practical politics it makes little difference that that assumption is illogical; the mere fact that millions feel that way is a Democratic advantage that may not be overlooked.

Many Republicans do not like Willkie. But when he says something that is as sensible as his recent pronouncement those Republicans had better heed it and act accordingly.

The Sin of Covetousness Exodus 20:17; Luke 12:13-25
By Henry Geertlings

Every man has a right to enjoy his possessions. One has no more right to covet his neighbor's ox than he has to steal. Covetousness is closely related to envy and jealousy, and these sins breed a multitude of crimes. To covet a neighbor's property or wife or honors is to envy him his possessions and his happiness. That is the root of all evil. That destroys brotherly love and inspires men to cruelties and crimes. Covetousness has been the hideous mother of sins lying, stealing, perjury, bribery, even murder. Envy no man his riches and honors; covet no man's possessions; but grant to every man the right to enjoy life in the unenvied, uncoveted possession of wife and children and property and honors. We ought to rejoice in our neighbor's prosperity and happiness, and bear him no ill will.

It seems to be quite evident that Jesus saw the difference between the brothers was not being approached in the spirit of fairness.
It is more than probable that each of them wanted more than his share, and that an equitable adjustment could not be reached while the spirit of covetousness existed. And so, while Jesus did not settle the difference, he laid down the law and proposed the spirit by means of which a settlement could be made that would be satisfactory to both parties.

This is appropriately called the parable of the Rich Fool. His like can be found at any time, in any place. He mars the ethical landscape of every community. In this case the man was a good farmer.
He carefully tilled the soil, sowed the choicest seed, cultivated the growing grain and did all else that was humanly possible. But that was not enough to produce a good crop, nor indeed, any crop at all.
It was God who gave the increase.
It was the soil which God had invested with fertility that did his work, while the man slept, and made any sort of crop possible.
Jesus said that the ground of a certain rich man brought forth plentifully. It was the ground, with which the man himself had little to do, except to get it into condition. Indeed the man himself was amazed that his crop was so abundant.

The man did not have long to decide. The weeks between the time he was going to have an unusual harvest and the time the barns would have to be completed were not many. It may be he prepared underground receptacles or vaults, which was not unusual; or it may be that he erected buildings as we would do, which agrees better with the statement that he tore down his old barns, replacing them with larger and better ones.
There was no sin in that.

But the point of the parable is that this man imagined he could keep his soul alive, and for all time, on wheat and barley and the like. But growing grain and growing a soul are two separate and distinct things. The trouble seems to have been that he had degenerated into a body without a soul.

God entered the picture at this point. With a suddenness that startled him the man was made to see how senseless was his planning and how useless his wealth.
While he bent over his well-spread board, God touched him upon the shoulder and told him that his hour had come. When his crop was largest, his barns filled to overflowing, and he could afford to live in comfort, he had to say farewell to it all. He was not rich at all, for the fact that he was not rich toward God. The covetous soul had its habitation in grain and soil and crops and barns.

How can we root this unworthy longing out of our hearts? There is a desire for right things and we may press them as far as we will. We are actually to covet the best virtues, the best ideals, the best objectives. We are to go after them with the same urge we see men using to get fame and money and high station and the like. We are to employ everything at our command to please Jesus and to serve him with all our powers.

Capt. Morse E. Rhea, commander of the Holland Coast Guard station, gave an interesting talk before members of the Kiwanis club in the Warm Friend tavern Monday night, on the duties of the U. S. coast guard. In his introduction, Capt. Rhea told of the origin and gradual improvement and enlargement of the coast guard organization; how the men not only guard the U. S. coasts, but in wartime, operate over the whole world.

The speaker related how coast guards transport school teachers up around the Bering sea and the Aleutian islands, how they transport medical supplies, look for lost fishermen in northern waters and offer their assistance to whaling fleets. Their duties also entail supervision of the collection of customs duties and the docking of gasoline boats to protect the docks from fire and explosion. The coast guard even runs a boat to protect the large fur-seal herds which appear at the Pribilof islands on a definite day each year, and to watch for poachers, he said.

Capt. Rhea told of the tremendous increase in the coast guard since war was declared, there now being 250,000 in comparison to 12-000 before the war. They man invasion boats, troop transports and the guns on some merchant vessels. Their first duties are to save lives and to service U. S. ports.

Capt. Rhea expressed appreciation to Holland fishermen for their cooperation in refraining from molesting any government properties when they were given the privilege of fishing on the piers at Macatawa. More than 8-000 permits were issued for fishing there, he said. The speaker also thanked Holland church-groups for their weekly gifts of cookies for the men and the Red Cross for its services, particularly the recreation room.

In the absence of President Leo Ebel, the meeting was in charge of Secretary Abe Vander Ploeg.
The club is planning a father-son banquet Dec. 13 in the Warm Friend tavern.

Henry Keuken, 56, route 2, Grand Haven, also pleaded guilty to a charge of drunk driving upon arraignment before Judge Hoffer and was sentenced to pay a $50 fine, $9.10 costs and serve five days in the county jail. Keuken was arrested by city police Saturday night.

Russell Meade, 17, Coopersville, was arrested by the sheriff's department Saturday afternoon on a charge of assault and battery upon the complaint of his father, Charles 50, upon whom the alleged assault was made. Arraigned before Justice Howard W. Erwin of Coopersville, Meade pleaded guilty and was sentenced to serve five days in the county jail.
After the expiration of his jail sentence, he will be turned over to the Kent county officers as he is now on probation from the Kent county superior court on a charge of unlawfully driving away a motor vehicle.

Representatives of the state department of public instruction at Lansing will be present to discuss reorganization of school districts, changes in school laws, business practices of school boards, school finances and instruction films.

Schulling Thanked
For Council Work

The officers of the Ottawa County Council of Churches and Religious Education, also known as the Sunday school association, has adopted the following resolution for George Schulling, council president, who has accepted a position as lay pastor of Grace Park Reformed church in the Detroit area after serving as council president for 23 years:

"It has been the privilege of few men to serve an organization in continuous service for a period of more than 23 years, especially when that service is a voluntary service of the heart, carrying with it no remuneration other than the joy of serving God with talents entrusted to one. Yet, George Schulling has rendered his service to the Ottawa County Council of Christian Education with outstanding distinguishment.

"Beside the effort devoted to a busy career in postal work, civic and church activities and service within his own congregation, he has willingly given of his time and talent to the welfare and inspiration of our annual Sunday school conventions. He has been a good administrator and a wise counselor, and we shall greatly miss him in the work of our Ottawa County Sunday school council.

"The council wishes to take this occasion to express its indebtedness to Mr. Schulling for his splendid service rendered, and wish him God's choicest blessing in his new field of labor in God's vineyard."

SUNDAY DINNER
Suggestions

WHAT to offer the family for the coming Sunday dinner seems a bit of a problem. Chicken was substituted for turkey on so many Thanksgiving, so that roasting chickens are now hard to find, though plenty of fowl is available.
There still is not much beef or lamb. Pork, however, is coming in and the market continues to offer a good supply of veal.

There is no lack of fresh vegetables to accompany the poultry or meat course, though some varieties, such as onions, peas and mushrooms are rather scarce. But cabbage, celery, cauliflower, eastern spinach, avocados, beets, parsnips, potatoes and rutabagas are plentiful, and so are pumpkins, for the opening of the pumpkin pie season.

Unfavorable weather has cut down the supply of green beans from Florida and sent prices up.
A distinctly cheering note in the food situation, says the Service for Homemakers, is provided by a distinct improvement in the citrus fruit situation. Florida oranges and grapefruit are now offered in excellent quantity, with prospects of continuing good supplies. Winter Nellis pears are available, and Emperor grapes are coming in from California. Cranberries are still on the scarce side.

Century Club Program Features Comedy Skit

Members of the Century club were entertained Monday night in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Wynand Wichers on the Hope college campus by a group of amateur players in a farcical skit called the "Ration Board Blues." The program had been arranged by Miss Dorothy Visscher.

Setting for the two-part skit was the local O.P.A. office and the first scene dealt with the "impression of what many people believe is the daily operation of the rationing board." In the second scene the group created the "impression of how the public sometimes appears to the O.P.A. staff."

Several amusing situations highlighted the performance and the audience greatly enjoyed some of the letters which were actually taken from the "collection." Characters in the performance, including three clerks, the chief clerk, a farmer, a little girl, Mrs. De Simp and a farm woman, were impersonated by Alice Hopkins, Beryl Doane, Homer Doane and Miss Visscher, with Harold Hopkins assisting as property man.

Mrs. Peter Veltman, accompanied by Mrs. Martha Robbins, sang a group of charming vocal solos. Her selections were "The Spirit Flower," Campbell-Tipton; "Homing," Del Rio; and "The Star," Rogers. Arrangements for the music were made by Mrs. Nella Diekema.

Marvin J. Lindeman presided. In charge of the social hour were Dr. and Mrs. J. Harvey Kleinhekel, Dr. and Mrs. John R. Mulder, Miss Catharine Mersen and Daniel Ten Cate.

Todd-Naberhuis Vows Spoken in Bride's Home

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Naberhuis, 212 West 10th St., was the scene of a pretty wedding Thanksgiving day afternoon when their daughter, Miss Anna Ruth Naberhuis, became the bride of Carl Edward Todd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orrin N. Todd of Grand Rapids. The Rev. William Van't Hof performed the single ring ceremony before an improvised altar of palms, ferns, and vases of large white chrysanthemums and October roses. Two seven branch candelabra completed the setting.

Preceding the ceremony Pvt. John Naberhuis of Camp Claiborne, La., sang "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly." As the wedding party assembled Miss Hazel Ten Broeke of Zeeland played the wedding march from "Lohengrin." Immediately following the service, Herman Naberhuis sang "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride was lovely in a white slipper gown fashioned with a slight train. Small seed pearls were embroidered around the neckline and tiny satin covered buttons extended from the neckline to a low pointed waist line at the back. Her fingertip veil was caught in a tulle of pearls. She also wore a single strand of pearls, the gift of the groom. Her white Bible was topped with an orchid corsage.

Mrs. Herman Naberhuis, as matron of honor, wore a light blue floor length gown with full sleeves, fitted bodice and a full skirt. She wore a corsage of pink roses and white pompons. Herman Naberhuis assisted the groom as best man.

A reception followed for 30 guests with Mrs. Delwin Andersen and Miss Henrietta Van Huis serving as waitresses.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Orrin Todd, Leo Todd of Grand Rapids, Miss Marjorie Borgman of Pottsville, Miss Nathalie Nyhuis of Allegan and Miss Kay Douma of Grant.

Mr. and Mrs. Todd will be at home after Nov. 29, at 212 West 10th St. The bride's going-away outfit was an aqua colored two-piece wool tailored dress with brown accessories. She wore an orchid corsage.

Mrs. Todd has lived in Holland all her life and was graduated from Holland High school and Hope college. She is a teacher at the Montello park school. Mr. Todd was graduated from Godwin Heights High school, Grand Rapids, and also attended Hope college. He is employed at Precision Parts.

M. L. Hinga Addresses SS Officers, Teachers

Coach Milton L. (Bud) Hinga in addressing teachers and officers of the Sixth Reformed church Sunday school at their annual banquet Wednesday night in the church parlors, suggested that parents analyze themselves and the "good old days" and judge for themselves whether they were any better than their children are today.

Prefacing his address with the thought that it is a wonder that "kids nowadays are as good as they are with the parents they have," Hinga related numerous stories dating back several years indicating that the "good old days" really were not so good as people choose to believe today.

He said he was not speaking on juvenile delinquency, nor was he minimizing the importance of finding the proper solution, but he contended that the older generation is responsible to a large degree for the present situation and urged that the elders go easy on the "when I was your age."

"Way, way back, Socrates wrote a long dissertation on 'The Flaming Youth' and every older generation ever since has been writing on the same subject," the speaker said.

Woman's Literary club members were entertained Tuesday afternoon by a delightful program featuring vocal solos by Mrs. Stuart A. Ludlow, soprano, of this city, and a fascinating discussion of new books by Mrs. James Wayer of Racine, Wis., formerly a member of the local club.

In explaining the choice of "George Washington Carver," the biography by Rachman Holt, which she was to review for the club, Mrs. Wayer mentioned a number of other new books which had attracted her attention. Among them were "Mary Todd Lincoln," also a biography, "Under Green Boughs," with hints for gardeners, "The Bridge of Heaven," which gave a "disappointing view of missionary work," "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," and "Mrs. England Goes on Living," an intimate picture of home life in England during war time.

Returning to the book of the day, Mrs. Wayer characterized it, as timely because of the race tensions so prevalent today, with Michigan and other northern states now realizing a Negro problem which for many decades has been relegated to the south.

Music and Book Review Feature Club Program

The author, who spent a year of study with Dr. Carver before he died, characterized him as a transcendent genius of a man, who, born a slave, became a world renowned botanist, teacher, and scientist. It is not a mere success story, but an American epic, the "portrait of a great man," she said.

With great clarity Mrs. Wayer pictured the obscure background of the man, his struggle for an education, his association with the prominent Negro personality, Booker T. Washington, and his work for the betterment of the Negro race, finally reaching his heights in his research in scientific agriculture which was conducted in his Tuskegee laboratory. This man, who discovered 300 different uses for the lowly peanut, opened new doors of opportunity for his race, she declared.

In conclusion Mrs. Wayer summarized some of the outstanding accomplishments of modern American Negroes, the way for whom was opened through the efforts of such men as Dr. Carver and Booker T. Washington.

They don't want your tears

"DON'T CRY. Don't let them see you cry!" whispers the older Red Cross Worker.

And as the litters of wounded come up the gangplank of the hospital ship, the young novice swallows, shuts her eyes for an instant, and nods.

They don't want our tears . . . these boys of ours. Not though they face a future that at first can seem harder than death.

They want our courage . . . they want our resolution. Courage and resolution to match and sustain their own.

Courage to keep us going on with this great task—no matter what it may cost these coming months in blood and sweat.

Resolution to back the boys who are taking these risks, with every breath that's in us, and every dollar that we can rake or scrape.

The boys realize, far more than we can, how fast war uses up machines, ammunition, equipment.

The guns and tanks that took Hill 609 in Tunisia had to be rebuilt or replaced before they could thunder down upon Messina and Naples.

The landing barges that brought our men to the perilous beaches of Salerno must be repaired and reoutfitted before they can drive ashore in France or the Balkans.

We cannot win the war with the bullets our bonds bought last summer. Those bullets are already buried in Jap and Nazi graves. And another horde of the desperate, cornered enemy is coming on.

Bullets and shells . . . tanks and guns . . . ships and planes. These are the things the boys are asking us for . . . the boys at the front and the boys behind them who will never again do things with two hands, or walk with two feet, or see with two eyes.

They don't ask us to give what they have given. They only ask us to skip the easy tears . . . to invest our money instead of spending it . . . to lend the mere money price of Victory.

They only ask us to buy War Bonds.
