From the Tower building the crowd moved to the Warm Friend tavern for a rally.

Holland Greets First Real Blast of Winter

Holland residents today greeted the first real blast of winter which was ushered in with a snowfall of three inches and a drop in temperatures. Predictions called for more snow tonight and still lower temperatures.

Today's minimum was 22 degrees, but temperatures of 10 to 15 degrees above zero were predicted for lower Michigan by Friday morning, with even colder readings expected by Saturday morning. Strong winds were expected to accompany tonight's snow squalls. Clear and cold weather are expected Friday.

Icy streets here were blamed for several accidents Wednesday night and today. The most serious accident occurred at 1:15 a.m. today when a large truck and trailer, driven by Roger Scott, 23, Clarksville, Kent county, skidded at the intersection at Eighth St. and Central Ave., jumped the sidewalk at the east side of the McLellan store on Central Ave. and tore down the metal fire escape of the Bristol hotel. The metal steps tore a hole in the top of the trailer.

The truck driver told police that a car in front of him attempted to make a left turn onto Central Ave. then went straight ahead. The truck driver said he swung left to avoid hitting the car and ended up on the sidewalk.

Two women were admitted to Holland hospital shortly after noon today for treatment of injuries.

Man Is Badly Hurt In Allegan Crash

Allegan, Nov. 30 (UP)—Floyd Walters, 21, of near Allegan, suffered a skull fracture and broken arm Wednesday night when the auto he was driving crashed into pipes suspended from the rear of a truck on highway 89 near Allegan city limits. He is in serious condition in Allegan Health center where the skull fracture necessitated 24 stitches in his forehead.

Walters, a driver for the Michigan Cottage Cheese Co., Otsego, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Walters, route 2, Allegan. The driver of the truck, owned by Erickson Trucking Co., pipeline truckers, was slightly bruised. His name was not learned.

Sheriff Louis Johnson and his deputy, Forrest Reichenbach, who investigated the accident, placed the blame on poor visibility, the result of a snow storm.

Camellias on Display In City Greenhouses

Park Supt. Dick Smal-lenburg, whose hobby is raising rare varieties of flowers and tropical fruits, at present is displaying with justifiable pride four types of camellias in the city greenhouses on Central Ave. The flowerless blooms which range from pink to red have no fragrance. They are common in parts of Europe and in the south but here they ordinarily sell wholesale at around $1.25 per flower.

Another rare plant which was in full bloom about two weeks ago is the Bird of Paradise plant whose flower resembles its namesake with its long beak and brilliant plumage.

These are only a few of the unusual plants the park superintendent has developed. His ventures with tropical fruit plants and trees have resulted in "crops" of oranges, lemons, bananas, dates, figs, avocados, limes and pomegranates. Especially interesting is the monstera plant, common in South America, whose bloom looks like a huge calla lily and whose fruit tastes like a cross between a banana and pineapple. Lemons usually weigh over a pound.

Local Officer Writes of Leyte Island Invasion

Ensign Don M. De Fouw, 22, commander of an LCT in the southwest Pacific, took part in the D-Day assault on the island of Leyte in the Philippines, Oct. 20, according to a recent letter received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. De Fouw, 607 Lawrence Ct.

"Our job the first few days was to take motorized vehicles to the beaches as fast as we could," he wrote. "One of our most important jobs shortly after D-Day was taking metal mats to the air strip. This was very important because until these were down we hardly had a plane left to go up. And believe you me, we needed those planes in the air. Our navy pilots did wonders. By the way, these mats are made by the Round Oak Stove Co. of Dowagiac, Mich."

"The first few days we were bothered by sniper fire and mortars from the hills while we were beached, but it wasn't too bad for us. Then the Japs came in and began playing hot with us. We hit a few. By that I mean the gunners on my ship. A week ago we downed a big Jap Sally bomber ourselves, which is a big feat for any fleet ship. I took the Jap flag off the pilot myself and it is now hanging in our cabin."

Ensign De Fouw continued: "The Filipinos were so glad to see us when we came. They came up to our ship by the families and said, 'Sirs we welcome you as our liberators.' They have been treated worse than dogs since the Japs took over. There is so much to tell that most of it will have to wait until another time. I saw MacArthur ashore one day on the air strip, in his fluffy cap just like you see him in the newsreels."

"I enjoyed the clipping you sent from the Sentinel showing the 8,000th Chris Craft landing boat or LCVP," he continued. "I wonder if the people of Holland actually realize the part these small boats are playing in all these island operations in every part of the Pacific. I'm sure I've

Pigeons, Bantams To Be Entered in Fifth Exhibition

Plans are being completed for the fifth annual Western Michigan Pigeon Association show which will be held Dec. 5 through 9 on the second floor at 184 River Ave., site of the fourth annual show last year.

Four hundred or more pigeons are expected to be on display as well as a number of bantams.

Dr. Peter Treleven of Lansing will judge the pigeon show. In addition to judging shows throughout the country, he has been both president and vice president of the National Pigeon association. He has bred all varieties of pigeons for years and holds the master breeders' certificate for breeding and showing Carneau for 21 years, also the Levi trophy for outstanding service to the National Pigeon association in 1941. Dr. Treleven who judged the first pigeon show here five years ago also held the office of secretary and president of the American Carneau association.

George Caball of Zeeland will judge the bantam show which is run in conjunction with the pigeon show and under the pigeon association's sponsorship. The bantam judging will be under the American Poultry association show rules.

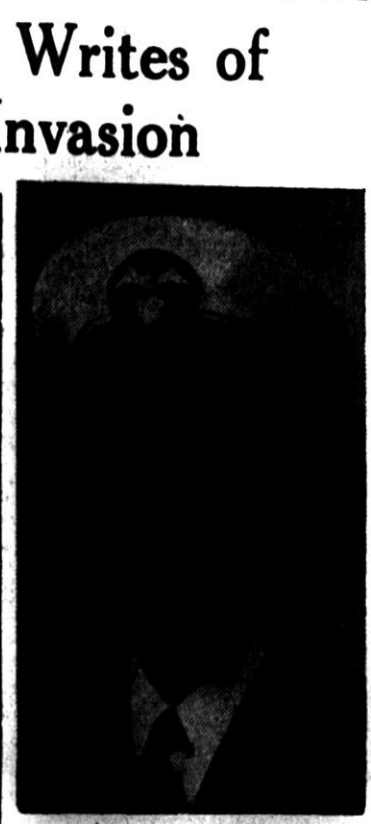

Seven youths affiliated with the pigeon association are assisting in plans for the show and already have arranged all the cooping and other necessary preparations for the event. They are Paul Veale, 14, 242 West 17th St., who specializes in rollers and tumbler; Alvin Van Iwaarden, 15, 204 West 24th St., flying homers; Warren Exo, 13, 252 West 17th St., rollers and tumbler; Bernard Wiersma, 14, 264 West 17th St., rollers and tumbler; Roger Brunell, 13, 193 West 18th St., rollers and tumbler; William Sloothaak, 20, 751 Michigan Ave., flying homers, and Robert Pieper, 18, 68 West 18th St., pouters and rollers.

Officers of the club are Herman Bekker, president; Edward Cotts, vice-president; and Fred Ter Vree, secretary-treasurer. Bekker is serving as show superintendent and Edward Brouwer as bantam secretary.

Ensign Don M. De Fouw

made many a trip in some of the very ones coming from Holland. Just like every time I take the wheel on our ship, I look down on its housing and there I see 'Dake Engine Co., Grand Haven, Michigan.' The point is, its good to know that many of these materials we use and need are coming from our vicinity.

"Now if you will follow the news in the papers and the broadcasts you will know where I am and maybe what we are doing. Things look good now but there will be more adventure and tough going. The Japs play for keeps and have no regard for their personal safety. I know you have read this time and again, but is so true; and dead to our men at times."

Ensign De Fouw, who received his commission last April at Columbia university, New York city, was graduated from Holland High school and attended Hope college for two years. He enlisted in July, 1942 and continued his studies at the University of Michigan in the V-12 program until November, 1943, when he was sent to Norfolk, Va.

Prince's Chow Good in France

Corp. Dick Prince

An Air Service Command Station, "somewhere in France"—Corp. Dick Prince, Holland, Mich., was one of two cooks to serve noon chow to men of an air transport squadron in France recently. The menu was shredded corned beef, red kidney beans, fried Irish potatoes, cocoa and doughnuts. Although the "open-air" chow line was inches deep in mud, the men sloshed through in rubber overshoes and were grateful for the hot meal.

Corp. Prince, former construction worker, lived with his sister, Mrs. John Van Til, Holland, prior to his entry into the air force in February, 1942. He attended the cooks and bakers school at Camp Lee, Va., before arriving in the European theater of operations.

Reports 16 Cases Of Scarlet Fever

Allegan, Nov. 30 During November, 16 cases of scarlet fever have been reported in Allegan county, an increased number over last month, according to M. R. French, director of the county health department.

Nine cases were from Dorra, five from Allegan city and one each from Ganges and Otsego city.

Dr. French warned parents to be on the alert to detect the earliest symptom, a sore throat. Children with a sore throat should be isolated at home, Dr. French said. Also notifying the schools and the health department of the cause for a school child being absent will aid in the control of scarlet fever.

The other communicable diseases that have been reported in November were: 34 chickenpox cases, 24 in Plainwell, eight in Fillmore, and two in Salem; 21 cases of mumps all in Overisel; two streptococcus sore throat in Allegan; one para-typhoid in Allegan city; one undulant fever in Hopkins; one meningococcus meningitis in Cheshire; one poliomyelitis in Overisel; one rheumatic fever in Saugatuck; and one typhoid fever in Martin.

Military Show Will Be Staged in Holland Armory

Hundred and Fifty in Group Which Will Drill, Give Judo Exhibition

Plans for a parade at 6:30 p.m. tonight by companies of the 728th military police battalion were canceled today because of changes made by the army which brought one battalion to Holland consisting of about 150 enlisted men instead of two companies of 300.

All other plans, however, will be carried out according to schedule, including the public demonstration in the armory from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. and the dance for enlisted men in the Tulip room of the Warm Friend tavern at 10 p.m.

About 60 men in five or six vehicles rolled into Holland about 11:15 a.m. and the complement arrived shortly after 12:30 p.m. Dinner was served in the armory and the men were free to rest or visit the town after setting up their weapons display for tonight's exhibition.

For the first hour tonight, the public will be able to mingle with the soldiers, inspect displays and ask questions. On display will be machine guns, carbines, riot guns, Springfield rifles, various shells, first aid kits, hand grenades, gas masks and a gas set which will permit those who wish to actually smell the different gases. Of special interest to the women will be the gas range used by the soldiers for cooking in the field and also K and C rations.

At the close of the first hour the company will put on an exhibition of close order squad and platoon drill, followed by a squad which will execute silent close order drill during which all movements are executed without command. There will be a judo demonstration in which no holds will be barred as the military police show how men without weapons are able to tackle and disarm those with rifles, revolvers and knives. The men will explain the vulnerable parts of the body and show how the most deadly holds may be broken with slight pressure on certain parts of the body. Formal retreat will close the program.

Capt. Al Wilson, in command of the company, was to arrive in Holland late this afternoon. Today is pay day in the army and the captain made a special trip to Detroit for checks. Wilson is an old-time soldier and served as an enlisted man in the Aleutians when the war first started. Many of the visiting veterans have seen overseas service.

The men will stay in the armory tonight and will leave Friday for Muskegon.

Coopersville Boy Wins War Bond

Robert Adema, an outstanding 4-H crops member of the Ferris Hambleton club, Coopersville, is now the proud owner of a $25 war bond presented to him by L. R. Arnold, county agricultural agent for fine work done in judging crops at the recent 4-H show at Michigan State college.

This honor would normally make Adema a delegate to the National 4-H congress. However, due to war conditions the number of state delegates has been cut drastically. This meant the elimination of members of the state judging team. In lieu of the Chicago trip members were awarded a war bond.

The Hambleton 4-H club of Coopersville has had a continuous existence for the past 14 years and has enjoyed a reputation for training of winners in crops judging.

Many Christmas Trees Available For Local Homes

Grand Haven, Nov. 30—Thousands of Christmas trees will be available for Ottawa county homes this year largely due to the increased plantings sponsored by the soil conservation district since 1933, according to L. R. Arnold, county agricultural agent.

However, he stated that he hoped the county would not experience the marketing situation of Christmas trees which existed last year when thousands of trees were cut, stored in yards, and left unsold and later destroyed.

Part of the reason for this situation was due to the belief that trees were going to be scarce and some felt that no trucking of trees would be allowed. As a result high prices prevailed at the start of the season.

This price induced growers to cut heavily and early season cutting resulted in poor quality trees due to excessive dropping of needles.

Another factor which had great effect last year was that trees were offered at rock bottom prices in one part of the state, and steps have been taken to eliminate this in 1944 and Glen Eaton, forrestier, hopes that dealers and local growers will work closer together this season.

Dealers who place orders early with growers are assured of better stock due to the fact that the growers will cut the trees as late as possible. Thus the dealer can sell fresh trees which will retain needles longer.

Not all the nine million seedlings planted since 1938 are good Christmas tree species. White and Red pines are planted for permanent forests. However, many growers have interplanted spruce, Scotch and other varieties for the Christmas tree trade. From now on this county will supply many trees to dealers.

To Study Erosion At Local Resort

Washington, Nov. 30—U. S. engineers, as a result of action by U. S. Sen. Arthur Vandenberg will study the erosion of the Lake Michigan shore line at Macatawa park, south of the channel and breakwaters leading into Holland harbor.

The shore is reported to have eroded to such an extent that many lots are no longer in existence and cottages had to be moved back to prevent their destruction.

The district engineer at Milwaukee reported that the erosion of this section of the lake shore has been taking place for many years and is more rapid during high lake stages as in 1929 and 1943-44.

The questions to be determined by the engineers are: (1) Whether the government breakwaters are responsible for this change in lake currents and (2) what can be done about it.

Detailed surveys and studies will be necessary in order to find out whether construction of the piers at the entrance to Holland harbor in 1907-08 is responsible to any substantial degree for the erosion.

War News in Pacific Is Clarified by Professor

With the aid of maps that helped to localize the various campaigns in the Pacific theater of war and by vivid description of the strategy of the military leaders carrying on the warfare, Edward C. Prophet, assistant professor of geography at Michigan State college, in his talk before members of the Woman's Literary club Tuesday afternoon, put a crimp into the easy optimism of those who want to believe that the Japanese will soon be crushed.

Prof. Prophet explained that the globe is a much more accurate, though microscopic, instrument for the study of geography than is a map drawn on a mercator projection, since the latter exaggerates the area and distance and gives an erroneous view of places. He said this has been confusing to people in regard to war operations, leading some to draw false conclusions as to the ease of reaching objectives in this war.

"Many think Japan was pushed into this war by Germany. They want to believe that and are unmindful of the strategy the island empire has employed for 20 years before Pearl harbor," posited the speaker. He showed how Japan maneuvered to put a great stretch of mandated island area between the American mainland and the Philippines, leaving only Guam and Wake as military bases.

Prof. Prophet, student of public affairs from the geographical standpoint, traced the advance of Gen. Douglas MacArthur in his "island to island jumping," and his "playing for position" and actual "by-passing" of Japanese-held points, in order that he might take 600 vessels to lay siege to the Philippines. He also mentioned Adm. Halsey's strategy in "the greatest naval accomplishment of history," when he drove the enemy fleet back from Leyte bay.

The speaker paid tribute to Adm. Nimitz and Gen. Michener for their successes and to the air force and marines for the softening up of Truk, the Marianas, the Gilberts and Leyte. He decried the attempt of Hollywood rewrite men and advertising agents to "hush up the difficulties our army and navy are encountering and which Americans ought to be made to realize."

In closing, the speaker prophesied, "If we don't redeem the Philippines and give the islands back to the natives as we promised, we are through for all time. We are the only white people the yellow race respects and if we don't deliver the goods, there will be no future in our relations with the Orientals." The toughest part of the war is yet to come, he thought, and pleaded for wholehearted support of all defense activities.

Mrs. John R. Deihmers presided over the meeting. The hospital group met for a forenoon of sewing and luncheon.

Holland Man Declared Dead in Alaska Crash

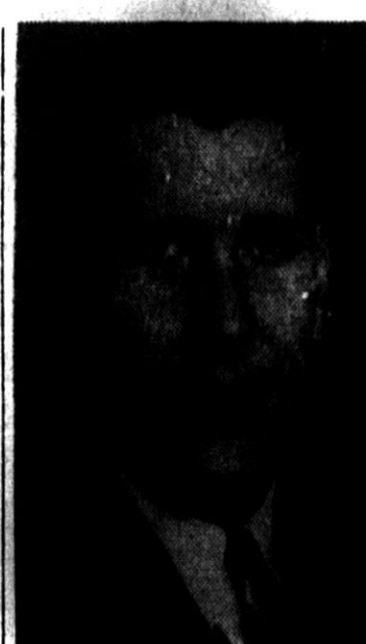

Previously reported as one of 19 passengers missing in a C-47 plane crash Sept. 18 in Alaska, Corp. Charles N. Dykema, 26, has been reported killed on that date, according to an official war department telegram received in Holland Tuesday night by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nick Dykema, 48 East 18th St., and his wife, the former Julia Beckfort.

No further information on the accident in which the plane crashed into Mt. McKinley during a routine flight from Anchorage to Fairbanks was included in the wire, but the family here Monday received a 12-page mimeographed report of information on the tragedy compiled by Ellsworth B. Buck, Staten Island, N. Y., father of one of the officers lost in the crash. Buck on Nov. 10 had written the next of kin of each of the missing men for information and then compiled the letters and newspaper clippings he received.

The letter containing the most complete information was written by Mrs. Rudolph Bostelman of LaGrange, Ill., who received most of her information from airline officials and persons who participated in covering the tragedy.

Mrs. Bostelman learned that weather conditions had seemingly no particular and conclusive bearing on the fact that the plane crashed into a mountain. She wrote, "No doubt the peak was obscured by what they call a vapor formation." Presumably the pilot attempted to fly through it but missed and struck with the left wing. At a cruising speed of 160-180 miles an hour, the plane whirled around and caused an impact so great that it broke the nose off the plane completely and at this point the engine dropped out. That is why the plane didn't burn.

"Wreckage is now on a large snow-covered plateau which has a layer of 400 feet of snow with a perpetual temperature of 24 degrees below freezing. At the forward edge of the plateau is an endless steep rock drop and the snow layer overhangs it in such a hazardous way that it is easy to anticipate the tremendous difficulties in ever attempting an ascent there. At the left is Eldridge glacier which is difficult to climb and has enormous cracks 200 feet wide. "It is believed that all men were killed with the first impact. Some bodies were identified as having fallen out of the plane as it barrel-turned.

"Other facts offer a possible explanation why the pilots were flying 25 miles off their source and at higher elevations. It seems that Mt. McKinley is visible from the airplane but not close enough to photograph. Pilots frequently go off their course and take passengers nearer the mountain to take pictures. For three days search planes flew over the regular route and it was another passenger plane which found the wreckage on Sept. 21."

Dykema, well known basketball player, was born in Holland April 6, 1918. He attended Holland High school and before his induction was employed by Holland Furnace Co. He left for Alaska Oct. 10, 1942, and was coming home on his first furlough in 2 1/2 years when the crash occurred.

Surviving besides the parents and the widow are two brothers, Louis and Claude, and a sister, Mrs. Harry Jacobs, all of Holland.

Mrs. A. J. Koppelaar, 44 East 19th St., who lives near the Dykemas, Tuesday recalled having met Mr. Buck about 30 years ago when he spent a summer vacation at Macatawa park.

Master Sergeant Gets Bronze Star

A U. S. Troop Carrier Base, Aviation Theater of Operations—Master Sgt. Roland W. Van Slooten, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Van Slooten, route 3, Holland, Mich., has been awarded the Bronze Star medal.

Sgt. Van Slooten was honored by direction of the President for his meritorious service to his squadron and country during the period from June 6 to Sept. 30, 1944. He is a flight chief in his unit and as such it is his responsibility to see that all aircraft in his flight are in commission at all times, or at least, in commission at the earliest time.

His squadron was in continuous operation during the complete invasion of France, having sent a full squadron over the Cherbourg peninsula on the initial night of the invasion. After airborne personnel had been dropped in France, the unit then began supply missions over the same territory. This necessitated his being on the "line" from early morning until late at night, sometimes checking his planes for as many as three flights a day.

He has been with his squadron since many months before it came overseas, having held, in sequence, many positions in the squadron, going from maintenance man, to crew chief, to maintenance chief, and now flight chief.

Recently, his unit spearheaded the invasion of Holland, dropping paratroops on the first night, releasing gliders the next day, and then running in supplies for many days thereafter.

Keen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Keen, 16 West 27th St., and his wife, the former Margaret Plasman, is living with her parents on Maple Ave.

Enrollment at Hope Is Almost Halved by War

The war has caused a 46 per cent drop in civilian enrollment at Hope college since the 1941-42 school year and the number of faculty members has dropped 28 per cent in the same period.

A survey by the state department of public instruction recently revealed that total civilian enrollment in Michigan colleges taken as a whole dropped 33 per cent since 1942 while the faculty membership dropped 8 per cent. Hope college had 556 students in 1941-42 compared with 299 now and had 87 faculty members compared with 30 at the present time.

Since the beginning of the war nine instructors have been subtracted from the college faculty and two have been added. Three of the former faculty are now in the armed forces.

Robert Cavanaugh, former instructor in voice and theory (music), is an ensign in the navy; Bernard Arendshorst, former accounting instructor, is an ensign in the navy; and James Means of the music department is in a special branch of army aviation overseas.

Others who taught at the college but are now otherwise engaged are Miss Elizabeth Oggel, teach of English, now teaching English at William Woods college at Fulton, Miss.; Prof. Egbert Winter, former education instructor, not teaching at present; Prof. Bruce Raymond, former head of the history department, now senior training officer in the Veterans administration division engaged in the rehabilitation department of college and universities, Prof. William Schier, former speech instructor, now on leave of absence working for his doctor's degree; Miss Faye Connor, former librarian, who is school librarian at Huntington, Ind.; and Prof. Oscar Thompson, former biology instructor, who is farming near Fennville.

Additions to the faculty have been Miss Reba Burrows of Elm-hurst, Ill., who is teaching theory and history of music and Palmer Quackenbush who has been added to the music department and directs the orchestra.

UPTON CLOSE GETS THE AX

Objecting to a given citizen's opinions is one thing; reducing him to silence by force is quite another. Fighting against anyone's ideas with all the arguments and all the logic that can be mustered is one thing; preventing anyone we disagree with from stating his case freely and openly is quite another.

The latter is what is happening to Upton Close, the man who became the center of local controversy in connection with his appearance in Holland a short time ago. He has now been forced off the air; he himself predicted that this would happen and now it has become a fact. When Mr. Close first made the charge that the forces that disagreed with his ideas were gunning for him few people probably believed that such a thing was possible in America.
There were many who disagreed with Mr. Close, among them some in Holland, but nearly all of those people are American citizens first before they are partisans, and true Americans want their opponents to have the same right to express their views that they themselves demand.

The network over which Mr.
Close has been speaking served notice on his sponsors that it
"wouldn't sell the services of Upton Close" after December 14,
when their present contract expires. Technically they have the right to do this, and in terms of technicalities this is not a case of censorship. But on the surface only. In actuality forces that do not like Mr. Close's opinions are taking this means of sealing his mouth. To such a pass have we come here in this land of free speech.

Upton Close happens to know more about conditions in the orient than nine out of ten political analysts who have the ear of the public. He served as a missionary and educator, and he has been a student of oriental life and history for a quarter of a century. It is conceivable that he may be all wrong in his interpretations of our relations with China and other oriental countries. That isn't even remotely the question. If he is wrong, set him right and set the American people right by refuting his contentions. That's the American way; but don't silence him by force. For free speech can be destroyed through economic force as well as through political coercion.
The never-ending battle for free speech has been joined again. If these anti-American dictators win, it will not be Upton Close who will be the chief loser; the American people will be the principal victims.

THE CHURCH INVITES YOU

A young private in the 34th
Division of the American Army, Joseph Engelhardt, Jr., wrote this to his pastor after the Tunisian campaign: "On that darkest Sunday, when we could not go to religious services, and just before the enemy broke through, our chaplain carried Testaments into the foxholes with special passages of the Scripture marked for our reading. With them came the message, 'Read the verses and pass them on to the next foxhole.'
Those words brought us comfort and reassurance. They made us able to do our duty. That day when we could not go to church,
the church came out to us."

Thank God for the church that came out to them. And at this Thanksgiving season, thank God
for the Church of Jesus Christ and that it through us may go out to all the world, into every circumstance of human need and to the last man.

Why not accept the invitation
and go to church next Sunday?

World-Wide Christian Fellowship
John 17:18-23; 1 Corinthians 1:1-3

By Henry Geerlings

No religious picture is more beautiful than that of the early disciples banding together in the hour of their need. And in that action they set an example for us. They were cast out from their homes and families because of their faith in Christ, but that did not bother them one bit. While they had suffered greatly, they knew that they had gained immeasurably. They counted all things to be lost for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ.
They did not want to lose their homes and families but they endured greater losses rather than lose Christ. They knew what they believed and they were willing to die for it. When they came to church they knew they met people who had suffered in the same way as themselves. This feeling brought them closely together and they were sealed in their faith in Christ.

Spiritual kinship is a reality. It exists. It has existed from the time that Jesus first called His disciples and then sent them out as apostles. In that first band of twelve they had a common treasure. They slept together under the stars, walked together over the hot trails of Palestine, taught together by the lakeside or in the mountains. These men enjoyed a real kinship in spite of their different backgrounds and temperaments. They were learning the same things and molding the same kind of characters. This kinship was growing to the place where they would regard each other as brothers during all the years to come. The kinship of the three years of close fellowship was not to be tossed lightly aside.

The early disciples were ready to share all their possessions. They had been taught to be unselfish.
In this they had the example of their Lord. In many parables, such as that of the rich fool whose chief concern was bigger barns to shelter his wealth, He had taught them that the Lord loves a cheerful giver. Many of the disciples had seen the Lord and felt the force of His personality and they felt that Christ was a man who spoke with authority. When he told them to love another they believed Him and did as He said.
What is more, He showed them
from His own example just how important such unselfishness was.
He emptied Himself of His divine glory and came down to earth from the splendor of heaven to endure suffering and the cross to save mankind. By His sharing we are given the opportunity to enjoy the bounties of heaven.

We need this close fellowship today. But we must travel the road that leads to it. There is no ease in Zion for the Christian who takes his Christianity seriously.
Our Christianity will never mean much to us until we are called upon to pay a price for it. As long as religion seems an easy way to get through life it means little.
When it means no more than bearing a sermon once a week it does not amount to very much.
If all interest in religion were limited to that there would be no church. Indeed, it is those whose flaming faith cannot abide within them, who go out making new converts. If the early Christians had had only a passive interest in their religion there would have been no early church with its sharing of goods and good will.
It would have been stamped out by persecution within a few weeks.

Jesus identified His disciples with Himself and His work. His commission was of the highest authority. It was possible for Him to say that He had come by the direct command of His Father. It might mean the same to us but it did not mean the same to the disciples, for they did not fully understand His identity with the Father as to His nature. His person. His power, and His authority.
We must not blame them too strongly for these truths were of a gradual revelation. The twelve themselves had to grow in their understanding and appreciation of Jesus.

Not only did our Lord think of all people geographically, but He also thought of them through all generations. He knows all of those who have believed on Him, all of those who believe on Him now, and all of those who will believe on Him through the ages to come.
He prayed for His immediate disciples, but while He was doing that His loving thought embraced those whose fellowship He would share because they had received
His word and believed on Him.

In the Good Old Days

For about three weeks the Ottawa Furniture Co. has been engaged in having a system of fire protection put in their factory and on Saturday last a test was made at which a number of citizens including city officials, members of the fire department, representatives from other factories and others were present, according to a story appearing in the Feb. 2
issue of the Ottawa County Times published in 1900 by M. G. Mantling. A tank holding 15,000 gallons was erected on top of the factory at a height of 20 feet above the highest point of the building.
From this tank a system of pipes is run all over the plant and the pipes are not only connected with the tank but also with the city water mains and is so arranged that the supply having the highest pressure feeds the pipes. At intervals of eight feet sprayers are attached to the pipes and these sprayers have soft metal plugs so that when a fire starts in any part of the factory the soft metal plugs of the sprayers near the fire are melted and the water turned on and the fire is soon put out.

Six of Holland Hurt In Two-Car Crash Near Hudsonville

Two cars were badly damaged and six local persons were taken to St. Mary's hospital in Grand Rapids, the result of a car crash on M-21, 1 1/2 miles west of Hudsonville at the Zutphen intersection, the same place where Dickey Gold of Holland was killed Oct. 31 and where Peter Kievit, Holland, landed in the ditch with a truck a week or so later.

Cars were driven by Harm Ensing, about 65, Hudsonville, who was crossing M-21 going south, and by Herman De Jong, Lincoln Ave., Holland, who was driving east on M-21. Ensing was alone but other passengers in De Jong's car included his wife, Leona; Mrs.

Edith Broekhuis and her three-year-old daughter of route 3; Miss Laura Jean Moore, route 4, a sister of Mrs. Broekhuis, and Miss Julia Riemersma, route 3.

Mrs. De Jong was most seriously injured with head and face injuries. Extent of injuries to the others was not determined but was believed to be minor. De Jong and Miss Moore returned immediately to the scene of the accident after being discharged from the hospital and were later taken home by sheriff's officers.

Ensing's car was turned over in the road and he was thrown from the car but injured only slightly and was not taken to the hospital.

De Jong had sold his car last week but the new owner loaned him the auto on Friday so he could take Mrs. Broekhuis, her daughter and Miss Moore to Grand Rapids to board a train for New York. Mrs. Broekhuis' husband is in the service. De Jong was discharged recently from the army.

Occupants of the De Jong car claim the Ensing car was seen coming over the railroad track north of the highway which is at a considerable elevation and made no attempt to stop, driving on to the highway directly in front of the De Jong car.

Two Cars Crash At Intersection

Cars driven by Harold D. Graham, 35, Muskegon, and Robert Harrington, 16, route 5, were involved in an accident at 12:15 a.m. Sunday at Eighth St. and Columbia Ave., resulting in damage to both cars.

Harrington, traveling south on Columbia, was given a summons for failure to come to a complete stop at the red flasher. The right front of the car he was driving was damaged. Graham's car, traveling east on Eighth St., was damaged on the front and left side. Mrs. Marian Graham, 32, Newaygo county, riding in the latter's car, suffered head bruises and small cuts.

Harrington told officers he did not see the Graham car until he was in the intersection and then swung to the left in an attempt to avoid the crash.

In another accident, Gerrit Danvel, route 1, traveling west on Eighth St., turned north on Dock St. (between Maple and Washington Aves.) to avoid a car turning into a driveway and hit a parked cement truck, according to police.

Richard James, Miss Marfia Wed

Fennville, Nov. 3 (Special).—Miss Mary Ann Marfia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Onofrio Marfia of Fennville, became the bride of Richard James, son of Mr. and Mrs. Perry James of Glenn, Saturday at 10 a.m. at high mass solemnized by Rev. Charles Nugent in St. Peter's church, Douglas.

The altar, decorated with vases single ring ceremony performed delabra formed the setting for the of white flowers and lighted candles in the presence of about 75 relatives and friends.

Preceding the ceremony Miss Frances Marfia sang "O What Could Jesus Do More?" She was accompanied by Mrs. T. G. Kiess, organist, who also played the wedding marches.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father wore white lace and satin and a finger-tip veil of illusion which fell from a cluster of white flowers. Her bouquet was of white roses and calla lilies. Mrs. Carl Stuenkel, her sister's only attendant, wore a gown of apple green taffeta and net and a large picture hat in the same shade. She carried a bouquet of mixed flowers.

The groom was assisted by Tom Tucker as best man and Sam Marfia and Jack Olson, altar boys. During the ceremony Miss Marfia sang "Ave Maria."

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served to 40 guests at Hospitality house in Fennville after which the young couple left on a 10-day wedding trip. Upon their return they will make their home in Glenn, where the groom is associated in farming with his father.

CRUISER IN ACCIDENT

A cruiser of the Holland police department, driven by Officer Harris Nieuwma, was involved in a minor accident at 9 a.m. Monday at the corner of 10th St. and Columbia Ave., where a car driven by Henry Waterway, route 4, crossing Columbia Ave. drove into the right front of the police car. Waterway who was given a summons for failure to stop for a stop street said the traffic sign was turned around.

Remember, it is always harder to get out of a mess than to get into it.

Install Christmas Candles After All

The Christmas candles on boulevard lamp poles have been installed downtown here in preparation for the Christmas season. The tall bright red metal candles are topped by a white "flame" and decked with evergreen festoons.

A check of the decorations revealed that most candles could be repaired and salvaged, following announcement several weeks ago that the candles were badly worn and damaged and would not be used this year.

Decrease in the supplies will result in one less block in which candles will be installed. This block formerly decked with candles will be on River Ave. between Ninth and Tenth Sts.

The decorating project is sponsored by the merchants' division of the Chamber of Commerce. Extra lighting is not permitted for the duration.

State Reports 69 Draft Delinquents In October

Lansing, Nov. 28 (UP).—Sixty-nine new delinquency cases were reported during October by local draft boards. State selective service headquarters said 1,105 delinquency cases are now pending in Michigan, of which 861 cases have been turned over to U. S. district attorneys for prosecution.

A majority of the cases derive from failure of selective service registrants to keep local draft boards advised of address changes, headquarters said. Under present regulations, all registrants failing to comply with selective service orders may be called for immediate induction.

(The Holland board reported that there were no delinquents here.)

Christian Drops Opener to Ottawa, 27-26, in Thriller

A record breaking crowd for an opening basketball game jammed into Holland armory Friday night to watch Ottawa Hills and Holland Christian tangle in a swaying battle which saw the score finally teeter in favor of the Indians, 27-26, with only a minute and a half remaining.

It was standing room only, and very little of that, but the estimated 1,200 watchers were treated to an outstanding and thrilling game, with the Maroons in an uphill battle most of the way but rising a couple of times to snatch the lead and throw a big scare into a desperate Ottawa five.

Christian led, 26-25, when Bob Altana sank a free throw with about two minutes to play after a 25-25 deadlock had stood for a few minutes despite frequent shots at the hoop by both sides.

After Altana's foul gave Christian a one-point lead Ottawa became a driving force and pushed down into Christian's side of the floor with Don Botts, first line reserve, collecting on a two-handed shot from just outside the foul circle giving the Indians a 27-26 lead which they clung to for the last minute and a half.

Ottawa Hills was a little rusty on their shooting but they packed the individual power to hand a smoother Christian five the defeat.

Bob Altana played the outstanding game for the Maroons racking up 11 points and, assisted by George Slickers with eight, accounted for 18 of the 26 points. Both boys give promise of giving Christian a scoring combination which they lacked last season.

The Maroons led at the first quarter, 8-6, but in the second quarter the Indians took a 17-13 advantage and then proceeded to hold the lead the rest of the game except for Altana's foul shot with about two minutes to go when they dropped behind, 26-25.

Local Flier in Famed Navy Patrol Squadron

Lt. (jg) J. Glenn Van Valkenburg, of 240 West Ninth St., is home on 30-day leave after having served 10½ months in the Aleutians as administrative and personnel officer of navy patrol squadron 82. The squadron flew more than 10,000 hours in weather which veteran combat pilots call "the toughest flying weather in the world" with the loss of but one plane.

The squadron was commanded by Lt. Comdr. Frank R. More, Sunbury, Pa., and Lt. Van Valkenburg, referred to him as the best source of information.

More, in an official news release, attributed the success of his squadron's Aleutian operation first, to the skill of his pilots, and second to the sturdy Catalina flying-boats which flew 1,450 hours in a single month.

"Maybe we were lucky," he said, "but that isn't the whole story. The pilots had the right kind of training and they used it. I think the navy is sending unusually well-trained pilots into the Aleutians for the type of work we're doing. . . . good pilots who know the kind of weather they're up against and who learn what to do about it."

"Frequently our planes had to land in 45 to 50-knot cross winds, with sleet and snow on the runways. And in the summer, we always had fog."

In February, 1944, three of VPB-62's Catalinas bombed Paramushiru, in the Kuriles, right after a task force had shelled the island. That particular mission was regarded by veteran Aleutian pilots as one of the most hazardous ever attempted by PBVs. Yet not one of VPB-62's three planes was damaged.

More said his pilots regarded as "routine" the difficulties encountered while flying patrols in the heavy Aleutian fogs.

"When a motor failed," he said, "the crew simply threw enough equipment overboard to lighten the plane sufficiently to keep it in the air."

"There's a regular priority on what goes out first. . . . right down to the navigator," he jests. "One pilot jettisoned all the gasoline from the tanks on one side, after making sure he had enough fuel in his other tanks to bring him home."

Lauds Holland for Normalcy in War

A visitor to Holland Friday who chose to remain anonymous expressed what he termed his "utter enthusiasm" of the way Holland has managed to carry on during wartime.

On his third visit here in 10 years, the traveler said it was refreshing to find this town as near normal as any town can be in wartime. "The people here are affable and pleasant and the business contacts are kind and alert, but not in a manner that approaches complacency. I found waitresses in restaurants pleasant and accommodating and the prices reasonable."

"Since last spring I have traveled between 4,000 and 5,000 miles over this country and have been confronted with intoxicated persons, and all exigencies of wartime conditions in travel. I have found people shaken from their normal lives and have seen them living an artificial, synthetic type of life. Seeing your fair city is a delightful surprise."

"Holland is what it is today because the folk who live in it still have a reverent attitude toward the Deity and appreciate the finer things of life," the man concluded.

Discharged Coxswain Is Three Star Veteran

For Coxswain Julius Newman the war is over. He has been granted his honorable medical discharge, returning last week to the home of his mother, Mrs. Johanna Newman, and his grandmother, Mrs. Gertrude Blok, 291 West 18th St. He also has a sister, Mrs. Ray Beekman, 263 West 18th St. He and Mrs. Blok, who is 81, observe the same birthday anniversary, April 22.

Newman enlisted in October, 1942, and after four months training at Great Lakes, Minneapolis, Minn., and Philadelphia, he was sent overseas. Like many others, he never had a leave. He was first sent to a base in Africa, then transferred to a LST.

He wears three stars, designating three major engagements, Africa, Salerno, and Normandy. Of these three, Salerno was by far the worst, he reports. His ship made several trips to France and a few to Ireland, carrying troops, both wounded and trained, also ammunition. They were under such constant attack by the enemy that the men hated to see daylight appear. He had several apparently miraculous escapes.

Newman, who suffers from a nervous disorder, was hospitalized in three different centers in England and at one time was unconscious for three days. The Red Cross notified his mother of his critical condition. For months he was unable to write and was received by his mother only from others writing or through the Red Cross.

He was brought to Chelsea, Mass., last August for care until his discharge last week. He is in possession of a special citation which reads:

"You are hereby commended this date, Oct. 15, 1943, at the Captain's Meritorious Mast, for excellent performance of duty and Coxswain Julius Newman displaying exceptional initiative in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States navy during the initial assault invasions of both Sicily and Italy and the follow-up trips thereafter.

Among the many prisoners of war which has ship transported, was a German boy, 13 years old, seriously wounded. At first he was mistrustful of his fate, but soon good care changed his attitude.

After the first thrill of setting his foot on American soil at Chelsea was over, Newman longed to return to his buddies and see the war through. Having become reconciled that he can take no more active part in warfare, he now longs for the day when his health will permit his return to work. Before his induction he was employed by the Charles Sligh Furniture Co.

He is one of six grandsons of Mrs. Blok who are serving their country.

HHS Football Statistics Stand Up Well

The Holland High school football team ended the 1944 season last Saturday afternoon against Grand Haven and it might be interesting to take a look at the statistics.

Maybe the early season predictions of a strong club caused the prevalent feeling that Holland was not playing up to par but most of their games were interesting to watch and the Dutch won three important victories, especially the 6-0 conquest of Grand Haven.

Their statistics stand up well for their hard schedule and were it not for the overwhelming defeat Muskegon handed them they might have come out on top in some of the statistics.

A schedule which includes Muskegon, Kalamazoo Central and Benton Harbor can always be regarded as a hard one and the Dutchmen go into most of their conference battles a decided underdog because of the size of their school. The same is true for Grand Haven—even more so Holland.

A glance back and fans can remember the work of Bob Kuipers, Roy Zwemer, Joe Caravia, Frank Bagdadi, Stan McClure, Red Hulst and Pete Van Dornen and the points of Warren Nysson against Grand Haven. It's hard to name the players who did an especially good job because they run into quite a few. They all played fair ball even though outplayed by Traverse City, Muskegon Heights, Muskegon, and Kalamazoo.

Holland opened the season with Traverse City and looked fairly good for an opening game but a woefully weak pass defense resulted in a 26-14 win for the northern city boys. After a week's drill on a pass defense the boys met State high and suffered a 7-6 setback which was a telling blow and forecast a losing season. The boys failed to overcome the breaks with the necessary spirit when the chips were down in that game.

They rebelled from a spiritless, easy-going eleven in the next game against Muskegon Heights and played the mighty Tigers on even terms most of the way, but Joe Hegedus burst loose with three touchdown runs in the second quarter which spelled their third straight loss.

St. Augustine looked considerably less great to the Dutch after the loss to Muskegon Heights and they rallied for their outstanding game of the season, whipping the Irish 25-14.

Then came the roar and thunder of a powerful Muskegon crew hitting its stride; loaded with confidence at playing Holland they walked off with a 39-0 triumph and went on to claim the mythical state championship.

Again Holland rebelled this time downing a favored St. Joe eleven with Bob Kuipers playing an outstanding game Holland won, 6-0.

Then came Kalamazoo and another chance for the Dutchmen to move ahead. Kalamazoo was greatly inspired, however, and chalked up a 19-2 win for Holland's second disheartening defeat, Benton Harbor was merely an aftermath with the Tigers winning, 18-0.

Then came Grand Haven and Coach Malcolm Mackay made two important changes. He used Jack Van Dorpe at quarterback most of the way and started Joe Caravia at half. Zwemer was out with a bad knee but Caravia would have started anyway. It was a passing game, with the Dutch winning out in the last 19 seconds. The victory took the sting out of the season's defeats.

There were two turning points—State High and Kalamazoo Central, and it meant the difference between a winning year and a losing year.

When a football team is on the losing end, it is hard to give it credit. The big thing is the team that is scoring and how they are scoring and, consequently, there have been several unsung heroes on the Dutch squad.

No. 1 on this list is Pooey McCormick, who added more spirit and drive into the Dutch line than any other player. He worked his way up into the first string the hard way and gave all he had in every game.

No. 2 Bob Harrington, Bob Kuipers reserve, who played almost every backfield position on the team and was considered by his mates the hardest runner to bring down.

No. 3 Don Hulst, who's choice on the all-conference team brought to light the fact that he had been playing a fine defensive end most of the season. He was Holland's fanciest runner on offense.

No. 4 Don Rinkes, who started the season at the tackle which McCormick later took over. He was always battling for the spot and was Coach Mackay's outstanding reserve lineman.

No. 5 Jim Schurman, a real unsung hero. He played regular guard alongside McClure most of the season and ably assisted McClure in making the center of the Holland line the most impregnable spot in the line.

No. 6 Kenny Van Tatenhove, who worked all season at every practice to get a starting berth. He got into a few games but the Grand Haven fracas was his masterpiece and he tossed the winning touchdown to Joe Caravia in the last 19 seconds.

Here are the statistics for the year:

	H	O
First downs	77	101
Yds. gained by rushing	1,287	1,601
No. of forward passes	98	104
Forward passes completed	28	50

EVEN AFTER WAR'S ENDING, IT MAY TAKE A LONG TIME FOR EVERY ONE TO GET A TELEPHONE

★ Buy an EXTRA War Bond NOW

LIKE YOU, we are planning what to do after peace comes. Our chief problem will be to take care of folks who want to know, "How soon can I get a telephone?"

Of course, there's only one satisfactory answer—a telephone at once. But in many cases it may be as long as two years after final victory before we can be in shape to give that answer.

In some places, we will have to erect and equip new buildings. Where we already have buildings, it will be a matter of adding to present central office equipment, or cables or both. In every case, the telephone factories, after release from war work, must be retooled and then manufacture the needed apparatus.
