Ottawa Recount To Start Tuesday In Grand Haven

State Police to Provide Constant Protection For County Ballot Boxes

City Attorney O. S. Cross announced today that the recount of ballots in Ottawa county in the highly disputed gubernatorial race will start Tuesday, Dec. 5, at 2 p.m. in the supervisors' room in the court house in Grand Haven.

Cross, who was named special assistant to the attorney general for the recount of this county, received his instructions in a telephone call this morning. He conferred with County Clerk Anna Van Horssen and set the date.

Clerk Van Horssen received a telegram Tuesday from Secretary of State Fred M. Alger, Jr., requesting her to instruct all city and township clerks to turn over ballot boxes to a Michigan state police officer or other law enforcement official specifically designated by Commissioner Donald S. Leonard and holding a letter of authorization from him.

These ballot boxes will be taken to the county seat and placed under the jurisdiction of the county clerk. State police will provide constant police protection to prevent any possibility of tampering before or during the recount.

In Allegan county, Attorney Lella Boyce was named legal representative of the Republicans in the Allegan county recount. County vice-chairman George Gatten was named floor manager, and challengers will include Guy Teed, Weldon Rumery, Glen Overton, William McClelland, Perle Fouch, John Stockdale, Roland Huff and Charles Frost. Democrats to date had not announced representatives.

Meanwhile in Lansing, the state board of canvassers set the time and place for starting election recounts in 28 counties. Preparations for state-wide reballoting went ahead under full steam despite Democrat Gov. G. Mennen Williams' condemnation of the all-Republican canvassing board and Attorney General Stephen J. Roth's warning that the recount may be invalid.

The board advanced the hour for formal kickoff of the state recount in Wayne county from 1 p.m. to 9 a.m. Saturday.

Williams was a 1,154-vote winner over Republican Harry F. Kelly in the official canvass but GOP forces petitioned Monday for the general recount. Formal notices went out today of appointment of 120 state recount supervisors. Roth, who has named each a special assistant attorney general, withdrew earlier objections to 12 of the appointees who either are county prosecutors or were recent candidates for that office. He said investigations disclosed in most cases that they are the only attorneys available for the appointment.

Under state recount regulations, the county supervisors will have paramount authority to determine which ballots may be counted and which cannot, subject only to review by the state board of canvassers. Although Roth disputed the right of the state canvassing board to give recount supervisors supreme authority in determining validity of all ballots, the board ignored his opinion.

Harold Haugh Is 'Messiah' Soloist

Appearing as tenor soloist at Holland's annual performance of Handel's "The Messiah," will be Harold Haugh of Cleveland, Ohio. He will appear with three other concert soloists, the Hope college choir of students and faculty members and the college orchestra in the annual presentation which has been a musical highlight of the holiday season here for many years. It is scheduled for Monday, Dec. 12, at Hope chapel.

Haugh has gained great popularity as a soloist with his voice lauded as one of considerable dynamic range, clear and helped by a clean diction. His record of return engagements is proof of his popularity. He has never sung any place without being invited to return for a second engagement.

The singer, a native of Cleveland, was educated in public schools there and received an A. B. degree from Miami college. At the conclusion of his college studies, he was ordained in the Church of Christ (Disciple). He received a bachelor of divinity degree from Union Theological seminary in New York City and a master of sacred music degree from the School of Sacred Music at that institution.

For several years he was soloist at various churches in Cleveland and later in New York, including West End Collegiate church and Brick Presbyterian church. He did considerable radio work before concentrating in the concert and oratorio field. He has sung with most of the important choral organizations of the nation and has been in demand for recitals in college recital and lecture series.

In 1941 Haugh was called to Oberlin Conservatory of Music as professor of voice and choral director. He has continued active in the concert and oratorio field and has given several successful recitals in Town Hall, New York City.

He has been listed in Who's Who in Music for several years and recently was added to Who's Who in America.

Powers Testifies In Own Defense

Allegan (Special) — Melbourne Powers, 69-year-old former Douglas tavern operator on trial for the second time on a charge of murdering his son-in-law, returned to the witness stand this afternoon after testifying briefly this morning on the fourth day of the re-trial.

Powers reiterated he lived in dread fear of his son-in-law, Albert Strampel, 28-year-old veteran, whom he shot in an argument over the Blue Lantern tavern in Douglas last July. As in the previous trial, his testimony was strictly one of self-defense.

Powers' testimony was interrupted this morning to allow William C. Tange, gunsmith, to demonstrate the "pull" of two rifles he showed the jury. As in the previous trial, he said the gun which fired the fatal shot had only about a 21 pound pull instead of the ordinary 5 to 7-pound pull. The guns were passed around the jurors.

Prosecutor Chester A. Ray and defense attorney Leo Hoffman stuck closely to the transcript of the previous trial in all testimony. The only new evidence presented to date was a statement by Dr. C. C. Corkill, Douglas physician who attended Strampel before his death, who quoted Strampel as saying "Meb shot me because I was going to disclose something about finances."

Court room observers said it might be possible that testimony might be concluded today or Friday afternoon or Saturday.

A 28-year-old Holland man is in Grand Haven jail awaiting admission tests to allow commitment to Kalamazoo State hospital, according to Chief of Police Jacob Van Hoff. He waived examination in Municipal Court Friday on a charge of unlawfully driving away an automobile.

Downtown Area Decked With Yuletide Festoons

Festoons of fresh evergreen and huge wreaths were being placed on boulevard light poles and on the fronts of some downtown stores today putting Holland in a gay holiday mood for the Christmas season.

The decorative scheme turned back to the huge wreaths this year, replacing wooden plaques of last year.

Arrangements also are being made to string colored lights at five local intersections this year instead of the three of former years. Intersections thus decorated are on Eighth St. at College, Central and River, plus Ninth St. and Seventh St. on River Ave.

Downtown decorations are in charge of the Retail Merchants' division of the Chamber of Commerce. President George Good said Christmas carols also will be played at intervals over the public address system.

He also announced store hours for the holiday season. Starting next week, local stores will be open Wednesday afternoons until Christmas. Night openings will be on Friday and Saturday, Dec. 15 and 16, until 9 p.m.

Stores also will be open four evenings the week before Christmas, starting Tuesday, Dec. 19. On Saturday, Dec. 23, stores will close at 5:30 p.m.

Other Christmas activities sponsored by the merchants include live radio programs Dec. 18 through 23 from 7 to 7:30 p.m., and a letter-writing contest to Santa Claus by youngsters.

His passenger, Stanley Leroy, of the Goodrich house, received a broken leg. Leroy was pinned in the car when it rolled over.

The accident happened when Fowler lost control of the car when it struck an icy spot in the highway. The men were on their way to Saugatuck.

The car rolled over three times and ended up on its top.

Allegan deputies Earl Tellman and Henry Bowman made the investigation.

Christmas Carol Question Cleared

Neighborhood shopping centers can have broadcasts of Christmas carols over loudspeaker systems if they band together, the city license committee reported Friday.

"If at all possible, we'll grant the broadcasting," Police Chief Jacob Van Hoff said today. "We like music as well as anybody."

The announcement stemmed from an application by a south-side merchant for permission to broadcast carols. The application was turned down by Common Council.

"We would rather have the carols sponsored by a combination rather than by one merchant," Van Hoff added. "Carols are very appropriate if they are controlled."

The Chamber of Commerce sponsors the loudspeakers in the downtown area.

The atmosphere was as gray as the day and as dark as the war news at 42 Ottawa county men boarded buses Wednesday afternoon in Grand Haven to leave for Detroit and induction into the Army. Of the 42 inductees, 19 were from Holland. Relatives and friends stood by solemnly while the young men—in the 21 and 22-year-old brackets—prepared to leave. In the picture, standing near the bus door, draft board chairman Sam Ryner gives final instructions to group leader John Bottle of Grand Haven. At the left, a girl exchanges a few last words with her boy friend inside the bus.

Scene Is Gray as 42 Ottawa Men Leave County for Army Service

The scene at the Grand Haven post office Wednesday at 2 p.m. reflected the grayness of the day and the darkness of the war news as 42 Ottawa county men left for induction into the Army today at Detroit.

The men comprised the third group to be inducted since the Korean war began, and was the largest group to leave at one time. The total inductees during the last three months is 107 from Ottawa county.

Calls have been issued for 27 more inductees to report Dec. 13. The January quota of 65 was announced earlier this week.

Nineteen of the men who left Wednesday were from Holland. They were: Earl H. Jekel, Norman D. Vande Burg, Harvey J. Geerlings, Robert J. Isaacs, Jack D. Brunell, Donald J. Van Ry, John H. Seidelman, Donald W. Westrate, George J. Czarkies, Ervin J. Smith, Kenneth L. De Pree, Ronald R. Lamb, Roger B. Le Poire, James E. Kammeraad, Donald A. Hardy, Gary J. Damveld, Marvin E. Tubergen, Laverne D. Brower, and Roger P. Van Nul.

Zealand sent three men: Jason F. Kuipers, Harvard Brouwer and Clinton Hop.

Hudsonville sent three men: Alvin J. Rosema, Robert L. Wierenga, and John G. Zylstra.

Six men left from Grand Haven. They were John D. Bottle, who was appointed group leader, Charles B. Nelson, Marvin G. Ernst, William Yedina, Stanley Stolarz and Vernon M. Buttles.

One man, Gordon E. Dalman of Holland, was scheduled for induction. He failed to show up because he is at sea with the Merchant Marine, according to draft clerk Mrs. Vincent Morford.

Three others who were on the original draft list released two weeks ago were either canceled or transferred. These men were Theodore M. Schipper, West Olive; John T. Vergeer, Niles; and Placide Talamantes, Prairie View, Ill.

The group was too large to ride in one bus. So 37 men went in the chartered bus, and five others went on the regular bus run.

Mrs. Morford said the board is calling 21-year-olds for induction, and that 20-year-olds are facing physicals at this time. Other counties—Allegan and Muskegon, for instance—are calling 19-year-olds.

Orders have been sent for 38 men to appear for physicals on Dec. 7. Earlier in November, 10 men were given physicals at Detroit.

The January call of 65 will take all men who passed physicals in September, Mrs. Morford stated.

Galvanized Garbage Cans Protect Health

A sanitary, rat-proof garbage can costs little. Yet it is an important and necessary factor in sanitation and the prevention of disease.

For this reason, many health departments have established minimum requirements for garbage containers. They must be metal to keep rats out and they must be covered as a protection against rats, insects and odors.

Sturdy garbage cans made of rust-resistant galvanized steel meet these requirements and can be purchased from any hardware dealer.

Now Is the Time To Prepare House For Yule Activity

Wooden Furniture Can Withstand Wear With Simple Cares

Christmas activities center around the home. So plan to have the house looking its best before the busy holiday season arrives.

Along with clean windows, freshly ironed curtains and general cleaning, it's a good idea to give a little special attention to wooden furniture. Shining furniture does a great deal to add sparkle to the house. And giving it a fresh coat of protective wax also helps reduce damage which might be done to table tops by spilled foods and beverages and sticky little fingers.

If wooden furniture is dingy, the first step is a thorough soap-and-water washing. This must be done with care, however, so that the water doesn't have a chance to soak into the joints. The surface should be washed, a small area at a time, with suds made from mild soap and lukewarm water. Then it should be quickly rinsed with clear water and dried thoroughly with a soft cloth.

The best way to speed the process so that the wood is wet for the shortest possible time is to use two containers—one filled with soapy water, the other with rinse water. Place them within arm's reach along with plenty of soft cloths. Two lightweight pails with bail handles are convenient. Or, a new version of the two pail idea that's handy is the twin pail set. This is two pails fastened together by a single carrying handle.

After a piece of furniture has been washed, rinsed and thoroughly dried, apply furniture wax according to the manufacturer's directions. Polish thoroughly, rubbing with the grain of the wood until no trace of the wax remains and the surface has a lovely gloss.

Trio Sentenced To Prison Terms

Grand Haven (Special) — Three 18-year-old Muskegon boys were sentenced to serve prison terms at the Southern Michigan prison at Jackson Wednesday afternoon from the Ottawa circuit court.

Paul E. Golliver, Jasper E. Percy and Ernest J. Wilson, who pleaded guilty to charges of breaking and entering in the night-time, appeared in circuit court Wednesday afternoon for sentencing.

Golliver, who the court felt was more or less responsible for the whole situation and the court was convinced was responsible for the predicament the other boys found themselves in, was sentenced to serve 2 to 15 years.

Wilson and Percy were each sentenced to serve 1 to 15 years. The court recommended that as soon as possible the boys be sent to either Cassidy Lake, if eligible, or some work camp where they can discover that hard work isn't going to do anybody any harm, and that after you have served your minimum sentence you will have learned your lesson and that this will be your last experience of this nature that you will ever have to suffer.

Library Adventures

By Arnold Mulder

The recent near-fatal illness of H. L. Mencken recalls the fact that the "Sage of Baltimore" made magazine history in addition to his cutting a fairly wide swath in the field of books. His activities as a practical newspaper worker are fairly well known; he himself has devoted the greater part of two volumes of his series of informal autobiographies to that feature of his life. His books also are among the big sellers of their type of literature. It seems likely that the general public is less conscious of his magazine career than it is of those other activities.

It began about 1908. Mencken at that time was under 30, and he had been kicking up his heels for quite a spell with a gusto that had won for him the condemnation of the conventional and the delighted applause of almost all youthful iconoclasts. Stuffed shirts among writers were his special meat, and all the underdogs in the literary scene were sure to get a friendly pat from him. He almost "made" Theodore Dreiser, who had been trying for years to get a hearing, and whose "Sister Carrie" had been withheld from circulation for seven years because the publisher's wife was scandalized when, almost by accident, she read the gaily proofs of the book.

It was in fact at very nearly the moment when the Dreiser book was finally released for circulation that Mencken's magazine career began. Together with George Jean Nathan, another young iconoclast, he acquired "The Smart Set," and during the decade and a half that followed, the two young men turned it into an organ of hilarious irreverence toward many things in letters and the theater that the conventional doted on. A good many heads were broken, figuratively speaking, and a good many super-duper reputations were deflated.

On the whole the result was probably good for American literature, but as it is likely to be true of iconoclasts, these two members of the tribe sometimes destroyed the worthy writers with those who deserved to be challenged. Among others I remember an earnest Pooler that did not seem justified to me at the time and does not seem so today.

That Mencken and Nathan should edit "The Smart Set" was almost funny in itself. The magazine had been an organ of the politely smart world, and both Mencken and Nathan never tired of directing their most outrageous ribaldry at that crowd. But they kept almost nothing except the name of "The Smart Set," and before long it was as unlike its old self as today's "American Magazine" of the days of John S. Phillips, Ray Stannard Baker, Ida Tarbell and Charles Edward Russell.

After about 15 years the two editors grew tired of the game, and it was then that a new chapter was written in Mencken's magazine career. His publisher, Alfred A. Knopf, suggested a new publication that might appeal to the general Mencken-Nathan audience, to say nothing of the audience created by the typical Knopf books. So "The American Mercury" was born, with Mencken and Nathan as the joint editors.

The career of this magazine was spectacular as long as Mencken was at the editorial helm. It got itself barred at one time by the Boston Watch and Ward society, and as a symbolical gesture Mencken traveled to Boston and offered the magazine for sale on a street corner personally, for the purpose of getting arrested and getting a chance to test the case in court.

The magazine is still going, but it has changed its character completely, along with its format. Mencken left the editorship years ago, and the magazine took on an entirely different stamp. Magazines, like books, are reflections of human beings.

GRANDSTANDING...

The United Press has announced plans for a weekly college basketball rating, much the same as during football season.

A board of experts consists of top coaches around the nation—35 in all—broken down into sections such as East, Midlands, Midwest, Coast, Rockies, South and Southwest.

Their weekly ratings of the top collegiate oge teams will be carried each week in The Sentinel. The system works the same as in football—ten points for a first place vote, nine for second, and down to one point for a tenth place pick.

Midwest coaches serving as selectors are Pete Newell, Michigan State; Ed Krause, Notre Dame; Ozzie Cowles, Minnesota; Forrest Anderson, Bradley; and Branch McCracken, Indiana.

Other top mentors on the list include Clair Bee, Long Island; Nat Holman, CCNY; Phog Allen, Kansas; Eddie Hickey, St. Louis; Hank Iba, Oklahoma A & M; Tippy Dye, Washington, and Adolph Rupp, Kentucky.

COMPARISON DEPT.—Owosso high school has withdrawn from competition in the Saginaw Valley football league, which is considered one-two in strength with the Southwestern conference.

The league's smallest member, Owosso gave as its reason for withdrawal differences in size of enrollment with other member schools. The Saginaw Valley loop consists of Flint Northern and Central, Saginaw Arthur Hill and Saginaw, Bay City Central and Pontiac.

In 20 years of competition, Owosso has won only 27 games, lost 83, and tied six in league play. No wonder it was considered a soft touch by other league members.

A comment in the Grand Haven Tribune is interesting:

Goose Meal Costs Hunters About $7, Figures Disclose

Allegan (Special) — Allegan county goose hunters who entered the Sawm Creek "high banks" shooting arena this fall spent about $4,066.44 on shells and secured 516 geese, making the price of geese on the dinner table about $7—with unlucky hunters chipping in.

The figures were compiled by biologists at Swan Creek wildlife experiment station where hunters permitted in the controlled area answered questionnaires each day.

Total shells consumed amounted to 33,887, which, multiplied by an average cost of 12 cents, indicates total cash fired into the air during the 30 days of wildfowl season.

A total of 4,374 hunters gained permits to the special area, where 160 were allowed daily. On week-ends, permits were frequently exhausted by 3:30 a.m. although shooting didn't start until 6:30 or 7 a.m.

On the face of it this year's hunting netted fewer geese than last year's estimated 689, but more hunters were out and used more shells.

The staff pointed out, however, that last year's estimate of 3,600 hunters and 9,000 shells was rough figuring, since no one was required to get permits. The bigger kill last year also could be partly accounted for by the longer season—40 days—and more geese were in the area at the time.

About 7,500 were at the Todd farm sanctuary at the last census, with more arriving each day.

JAMES FARLEY AND GEORGE WASHINGTON

In commenting on the proposal to form a new Labor Party that would serve as a political organization against both Democrats and Republicans, James A. Farley told reporters: "I want to say that I am definitely opposed to such an idea because I am a firm believer in the two-party system."

A hundred and fifty-four years ago George Washington had something to say on the same subject,
and what he said was so far removed from what is now proposed that even James Farley should be astonished if he should be reminded of it. Washington would have been even more horrified at the idea of several parties than Farley is. In his famous Farewell Address, delivered in 1796 when he was stepping down from the presidency, Washington went Farley one better and came out strongly not for a several-party system, nor for a two-party political setup, but for a one-party America.

The words by which he introduced his advice to the nation on this subject were: "Let me now
take a more comprehensive view,
and warn you in the most solemn manner against the baneful effects of the spirit of party generally." And then he proceeded to show how political parties and their struggle for power would land the ship of state on the rocks.

In Washington's day there was of course only one party—the party that he headed. As long as his wise and patriotic hand was at the helm it was possible to administer the government under that system. But the breakup into two parties, representing two opposing philosophies of government was inevitable as soon as he had stepped down. Washington was a wise man but he seems not to have been wise enough to understand that two parties can both be right and both wrong, that no one party can be expected to have a monopoly on rightness or wrong-ness. In the light of our whole political history, Washington was completely wrong on this point.
For a century and a half the American people, while revering him
as a wise and patriotic leader, have quietly ignored this part of his famous Farewell Address.

The two-party system that they adopted has now worked for a century and a half. Unlike Washington, James Farley is basing his pronouncement on experience, not on theory. There have been splinter parties from time to time, but they have been mere eddies alongside the main stream of political activity. They have come and gone, and doubtless there will be many such splinters in the future.
Sometimes one of the two major parties has been supplanted by another major party, as was the case when the Whigs were crowded out by the Republicans. But always the two-party system remained. Farley points out correctly that the two-party system
is an American institution.

If the proposed Labor Party should crowd out either of the other two parties, nothing much could be said against it, but as a third party it would destroy America's political balance and would be a threat to our liberties. The two-party system is more important as a system than the life or death of either of the two parties that now divide the political field between them. Remember you must always register in order to VOTE. No matter what happens to either of our parties.

Lesson

December 3, 1950
Stewardship of Life
Romans 12:1, 2, 6-8
Philippians 2:25-30
By Henry Geerlings

In the minds of many people Christian stewardship consists only in giving liberally of one's money to the church. Still others would be willing to have it include the expenditure of time in the cause of the church, but even when both ideas are incorporated in one definition it seems that there is still something missing.
Especially is this true if one holds the view that good stewardship consists merely of giving a sufficiently large portion of goods and time to the service of the Lord,
with the implication that one can do anything he pleases with the remainder.

In earthly affairs a steward is a person to whom certain goods are entrusted and on the day appointed to him to give an account of his stewardship he must be able to give a satisfactory explanation of his use of all the goods in his keeping; not just a portion. In applying this principle to Christian stewardship, we accept the proposition that all we have of time, money and ability is held in trust for God, and, therefore, we have not discharged our full duties as Christian stewards as soon as we show that we have used a tithe for God, especially if we have used the other ninety percent contrary to His will.

Instead we must be able to give a satisfactory account of all of that with which we have been entrusted before we expect to hear the Master's complete approval of our stewardship. The criterion of stewardship does not consist in the amount of goods which one gives away, but in the utilization of all of one's time and money and ability in ways
which are pleasing to God.

These ways of pleasing God are legion. He approves the spending of money and time for the spread of the gospel. This necessitates the support of the church and its efforts at home and abroad. Gigantic as these tasks are, they do not consume
all our time and money, so the account of our stewardship is not therefore complete. The remainder is that part of our goods which we are often wont to look upon as to be used to suit ourselves, but even though this be true in the sense that we have first given all that God expects of us to causes mentioned, there is no more reason why God cannot be pleased with the manner in which we use the rest, than there is justification for spending it in ways which displease Him. We account satisfactorily to our Master for the goods we have used for ourselves when we can show that we have put first things first.

We are apt to think of the pastor and the missionary as persons who have devoted their lives to Christian service with the implication that those who have entered business or other professions have dedicated themselves in a lesser degree to Christ's service.
In neither case is this always true. Many who do not devote all their time and energy to definite Christian service are able to account satisfactorily for their stewardship. This is true if their activity is not displeasing to God and if the product of their toil is turned to proper Christian uses.

The great system of the division of labor makes it impossible for all to be preachers of the Word and it may make it difficult to serve in the part time Christian calling. He who builds or sows or reaps may do so in the service
of God, confident of His approval.
A perplexing problem which the Christian faces in the effort to arrive at a fair distribution of his goods and services between what he may call the definite service of the Lord and his own personal use.
Of old the tithe was fixed as that portion of goods due the Lord, but today we are living under the Christian dispensation in that we are freed from legalism on the one hand and enjoy a fuller revelation on the other. Nothing can therefore take the place of a clear conscience as a guide to making gifts to God, but as has often been said one's conscience
frequently needs to be educated.
Usually this means that our gifts are apt to be smaller rather than larger than Christian justice requires, but in a more and more complex world with its multitude of opportunities for service and gifts, one may at times need to study restraint in giving.

The person of small means cannot give even proportionately as much as those of larger means.
A certain bare minimum is essential for existence and if we jeopardize that we merely render ourselves objects of charity whom others must then support. The person of great wealth can give more than the proverbial tenth,
for the remainder of his wealth is ample for his needs. In other words, if our government recognizes as just, progressive proportional taxation, then certainly nothing less just is due to the Judge of heaven.

Car Mixup Keeps Fred On Road Many Hours

Simon Den Uyl has his own car to drive in Detroit and Carl Andreason has his car back in Holland, following a mixup of cars Monday which kept Fred Eggen-schwieler on hazardous roads several extra hours.

It all happened when Fred was instructed to pick up Den Uyl's car at the Warm Friend Tavern and drive it to Detroit. He got into the Andreason car by mistake and never knew the difference.

When Carl left the hotel where he had had a luncheon meeting he found his car missing and notified police. The story was quickly patched together and state police were called to flag down Eggen-schwieler.

Just how far Eggen-schwieler had gone was not determined, but police were prepared to look for him in the Lansing area. Such a location would keep him on the highway an extra four hours or so.

Locals Look Good In Wild-Scoring Game in Indiana

Vande Wege, Ron Bos Divide Scoring Honors For DeVette's Team

Valparaiso—Hope college bowed to a rangy Valparaiso college team 96-81 in the 1950-51 season debut for both teams here Saturday night.

However, local rooters, players and coaches aren't too disappointed with the loss to a team that annually ranks among the best in the nation and usually plays at least one game at famed Madison Square Garden.

Hope coach Russ DeVette figures his green spotted squad learned a lot by playing the rugged Indiana team.

"Their superior height showed that we need defensive work, concentration on getting the rebounds and better board play," the Dutch mentor said.

Hope stayed with the "bean-pole" Hoosier team for the first hectic 12 minutes of play. At that junction, the scoreboard read 21-21.

Then the local team was dealt a telling blow. Guard Ken Van Regenmorter hurt his knee and was sidelined. That broke up DeVette's starting combination and the home team slowly forged in to a lead that stood up the rest of the evening.

Although Van Regenmorter re-entered action later in the game, he wasn't able to go full speed. Valparaiso stretched its lead to 50-35 at halftime.

Hope came back battling in the second half and traded point-for-point with the home team. During that second half, Valparaiso had a fight on its hands to outscore the red-hot Dutch by two points.

Throughout the game both teams threw defense to the winds and concentrated on shooting and offense. And Hope did remarkably well for its first game. The locals made 25 out of 33 free throws, including 13 out of 16 in the first half.

The Dutch made an amazing 31.46 per cent of their shots from the floor. They cashed in 28 out of 89 times.

Valparaiso floored a team that averaged six-foot three. Especially effective was center Doehrmann who stands six-five and weighs 220 pounds.

"He's pretty effective under those boards with that height and weight," DeVette concluded.

Veteran and captain Bud Vande Wege and newcomer Ron Bos shared leading scorer honors for Hope. Each bucketed 17 points.

DeVette was pleased with the showing of Bos, who was playing his first varsity game. Bos last year played for an intramural team at Hope and was invited to try out for the varsity this year.

During the evening, DeVette emptied his bench and 13 men saw action. All but one man broke in to the scoring column. The squad included several newcomers.

Jun Bremer and Zeke Piersma were outstanding under the boards for the locals against the taller Valparaiso rebounders.

"It's encouraging to see all the men break into the scoring column," DeVette said. "It indicates good balance."

Hope plays its next game against Adrian Dec. 9 at the Armory.

Blood Brothers Expand Plant

Allegan (Special)—Excavating and grading has begun south of the Blood Brothers Machine Co. plant for a new $150,000 office building, Glen Wilbur, vice president and general manager of the firm, said Saturday.

Four houses on North St. owned by the company have been torn down to make way for the brick and concrete structure. The main section will be 160 by 60 feet, with a wing of 40 by 60 feet.

Need for more office and storage space, and better protection from fire resulted in the construction plans, Wilbur said. The new building, connected by a corridor to the main plant, will be air-conditioned and nearly sound proof.

Hoping to move into the addition by next July, officials plan to move offices from the first floor of the main plant to the space now occupied by the business offices. The resulting ground floor rooms will be utilized for expansion of manufacturing facilities.

Leader Dog and Blind Man

Leader Dog Week Is Proclaimed

The week of Dec. 3 to 9 has been proclaimed "Leader Dog Week" by Gov. G. Mennen Williams.

The Leader Dog league for the Blind, a Michigan non-profit corporation, has been providing trained leader dogs for blind persons for this and other states for 11 years.

The purpose of "Leader Dog Week" is to completely inform the people of Michigan of this important work, so that it may be continued and extended to include every eligible blind citizen.

There are approximately 300,000 blind people in the United States, of which an estimated 30,000 to 50,000 would be eligible to use dog guides. At the present time with the combined efforts of all dog guide training centers, only approximately 400 units are produced in a year and at the very least, a hundred of the 400 are replacements.

The Lions of Michigan conceived the idea of founding a school to serve the blind. They have continued their support since that time, and now seek to enlarge the school facilities so that increased production of units will make many more sightless persons mobile.

E. R. Dangremont is president of the Holland Lions club.

Ottawa to Send 65 in January

Ottawa county will be called on to furnish 65 men for induction into the Army during January, the state draft board announced today.

Allegan county must furnish 22 men.

Sixteen local draft boards will not have to supply men in the January draft because the call for 1,890 men that month is "unexpectedly low," Col. Glenn B. Arnold, state draft chief, said.

In addition, 283 draftees will be alerted to fill in last minute vacancies.

The 16 boards which will be bypassed in January supplied more than their quotas in the past, Arnold explained.

Chicks Go Down Before Lee Rebels In Season Opener

Zeeland (Special) — The Lee Rebels from Grand Rapids stayed off a last half drive by Zeeland high school to win the season's opener for both schools 58-51 at Zeeland gym last night.

Lee led at the half 34-23 and Zeeland started to close the gap in the second half. The Chix outscored the Rebels 28-24 but couldn't pull ahead enough to win.

At one point early in the fourth quarter, Zeeland narrowed the margin to two points, for the closest coach Joe Newell's boys came all night—except for an early first period lead.

Forwards Ray Wagner and Bernie Raterink paced the Chix with 21 and 11 points respectively. Dick Schram netted 18 and Bob De Young 12 for Lee.

The Rebels exhibited outstanding shooting from the floor, and completely outplayed the Chix in the first half.

Zeeland controlled the backboard, but passing showed need for improvement. Sharpening up all the way around was the verdict after the game.

Other Zeeland players to see action were Ward Ver Hage and Roger Smailegan at center, Don Bouwman, Milt Lubbers and Roger Van Ommen at guards, and Del Komejan at forward.

In the first game, coach Mel Bouman's reserves defeated the Lee seconds, 54-45. Dave Kuylers led the locals with 15 points, while Keizer scored 14 for Lee. The junior Chix were in command most of the way.

Zeeland swings into action again Thursday with a game against Holland Christian at the Holland Armory.

Winter Hazards Cited by Police

Holland police today called attention of parents of two special hazards of winter—hitching rides and throwing snowballs.

Chief Jacob Van Hoff urged extreme watchfulness over children to keep them from injuring themselves or others.

The chief cited a recent case where a boy hooked his elbow around a car's bumper and got a free ride—until he found he couldn't get loose. He attracted the driver's attention, and she stopped to free him.

Both were frightened. "Why, if I'd started up suddenly, I might have pulled the boy's arms off," the woman said.

Throwing snowballs at cars or neon signs is dangerous, too, the chief pointed out. A neon sign at Vandenberg's jewelry store is the latest casualty from a snowball. City ordinances outlaw both forms of winter "sports."

Natalie G. Bosman Gets Appointment

Notice has been received from Tachikawa Air Base, Japan, by Mr. and Mrs. George Bosman, 30 East 13th St., that their daughter, Natalie G. Bosman, has been appointed to teach an evening course in history-civilization for the Department of Information and Education, U.S. Army. The course is for Army officers who wish college credit.

Miss Bosman, who teaches in the Army Dependents school at Yakota, has been in Japan since the latter part of August. She has made numerous week-end trips to places famous for sight-seeing. Early in October she went to Oshima island to see its volcano, Mt. Mihara, which had then been active for several weeks.

She writes, "...the volcano had stopped erupting, but we walked over and up it. The lava was still hot. We bought camella-wood walking sticks...walked across a lava sand-flat about one and one-half miles, and then began the climb..."

She spent Thanksgiving weekend at Karuzawa, where the studio of Paul Jacoulet is located. M. Jacoulet, one of the world's foremost wood-block printers, took Miss Bosman through his workshop. She writes: "...he seemed amused that I could speak and understand French, and said I could go through his workshop because of this! He uses only the finest materials, real silver, gold, pulverized pearls, etc."

In almost every letter to her family, Miss Bosman reiterates "how fortunate we are to be citizens of the U.S.A. Conditions here, particularly for women and children," she writes, "are almost beyond belief. Never have I been so thankful for, and aware of, our freedom, until I came to Japan."

More than eight inches of snow fell, leaving 5 1/2 inches on the ground at present.

State police warned that highways still were dangerous with thick coats of ice in most places. There was 17 inches of snow on the ground at Grand Rapids, 16 at Houghton, 11 at Pellston, eight at Grand Rapids, seven at Sault Ste. Marie and six at Detroit.

News of Interest to Western Michigan Farm Operators

Outlook Bright for Fruit, Vegetable Growers in State

Favorable Prices Also Forecast by Leaders; Labor Shortage Seen

Fruit and vegetable growers in Michigan can look forward to good demand and in general, favorable prices for their products in 1951, according to agricultural economists at Michigan State college. Production as usual, however, may be more difficult as costs rise and some shortages develop in labor and supplies.

The economists believe vegetable growers can expect a lively campaign of contracting 1951 acreage in January and February at very favorable prices. They can also expect higher production costs and more difficulty in getting labor, especially for the "stump crops." Commercial fertilizer supplies should be adequate, with possible shortages only in the nitrogen fertilizers.

Packaging material costs have started up and are likely to rise further. Less emphasis on small unit packages may help growers cut costs.

It looks like a good year ahead for processing crops with the exception of cabbage, the economists conclude. Tomatoes, sweet corn and asparagus should be good bets.

In the fruit picture, new apple tree plantings look advisable to the MSC economists. Many orchards need replacements.

There's room for increased blueberry plantings. Good demand and untapped midwestern markets are influencing growers to expand.

Michigan tart cherry growers can expect a crop of about 60 to 70 thousand tons in 1951 if production follows the trend of the past decade. Increased plantings are causing concern over the future size of crops. Peach tree numbers have also increased, but size of crop is usually limited by weather damage in some areas.

Eliminate Hazards By Barn Clean-Up

Approach of winter means it's time for a thorough barn clean-up says A. D. Morley, Allegan county agricultural agent, who points that the barn will soon become the principal work center for daily farm chores.

Unfortunately, there are hazards in many barns and feed lots in Allegan county, the agent reports.

Following are some of the clean-up recommendations advocated by David Steinicke, extension safety specialist at Michigan State college:

MSC Bulletin Outlines Milker Sanitation

Demands for the production of milk and high sanitary quality are well founded, says J. M. Jensen, Michigan State college dairy scientist, in the foreword to a bulletin recently authored by him.

Practical Sanitation in Caring for Milking Machines, issued by the Michigan Agricultural Experiment station, carries results secured in studies in milk quality and cream.

Milking machines and cream separators are recognized to be "problem" equipment where milk and cream contamination is concerned, Jensen points out.

Step-by-step pictures in the bulletin show a washing and sanitizing procedure that utilizes the value of brush washing, and yet permits fast, routine washing with only a limited amount of dismantling.

Tests showed that milking machines are more reliably washed by assembled washing after each milking than when dismantled and washed once daily.

A copy of the publication circular bulletin 218, can be obtained from a county agricultural agents' offices or by writing to the Bulletin Office, Agricultural hall, Michigan State college.

CROP GROUP TO MEET

'The Enchanted Cottage' Presented by Chad Guild

Excellent acting and outstanding costuming and stage setting combined to make the first two performances of the Chad Guild's production, "The Enchanted Cottage," successful. The three-act fantasy by Arthur Pinero, was given Wednesday and Thursday nights and was repeated for the last time on Friday in the Woman's Literary club house. The play is directed by Miss Ervina Van Dyke and is given by the Christian High Alumni Dramatic Guild.

Action in the play takes place in a cottage at Fittlehurst Park, Sussex, England, shortly after World War II. It is the story of an English war veteran, who after being disgraced in the war, takes a bitter attitude toward life and comes to the cottage to live alone. Ignoring the pleas of his mother and stepfather to return to London, he marries a plain village girl, not because he loves her but because she is as ugly as he. The play continues to tell how the couple finds happiness despite the circumstances.

Peter Van't Slot ably characterizes the role of Oliver Bashforth, former handsome Englishman, now a bitter, scarred veteran. Playing opposite him is Miss Belva Van Tatenhove, who takes the part of plain, humble Laura Pennington, whom Oliver marries. Miss Helen Van Vels is cast in the role of Mrs. Minnett, "scarecrow" housekeeper of Oliver who provides suspense in the play.

Oliver's best friends are blind Maj. Murray Hillgrove, also a war casualty, played by Donald De Vries, and absent-minded Prof. Charles Cursellis and the nervous, plain and lovable Mrs. Cursellis. Kenneth Vander Zwaag and Miss Julie Keen are cast in these roles, which provide humor in the play.

Oliver is upset by the frequent visits of his flighty sophisticated mother, Mrs. Smallwood, portrayed by Miss Norma Piers, and her equally overbearing stepfather, Rupert Smallwood, played by Alfred Hietbrink, who want their son to return to London. Joe Kramer is cost in the role of Rigg, friend of Maj. Hillgrove.

Taking part in the drama are Miss Jean Kalkman and Andy Jonker, first couple; Miss Marcia Van Tatenhove and Jay Volkers, second couple; Miss Sandra Lanning and Harold Branderhorst, third couple; Misses Anne Van't Slot and Eleanor Bareman bridesmaids; Mrs. Seymour Kroll, bride. Miss Lois Bouman provides background music.

Among those serving on committees are Mrs. Louis Damstra, stage manager; Mrs. Edwin Bos, Misses Charlotte Mulder and Anne Van't Slot, costumes; Harold Branderhorst, sound and lights; Mrs. Damstra, Mrs. Kroll and Jay Volkers, properties; Mrs. Bos, Miss Jean Kalkman and Alfred Hietbrink, makeup; Harris Ver Schure, Seymour Kroll and Alvin Driesing, stage crew. George Knoll is business manager.

Henry W. Harrington, 84, died at 12:10 a.m. Saturday at home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Low, Lake Shore Ave., route 4. He had had a heart attack last Saturday.

A retired farmer, Harrington lived at Harlem for 60 years and only recently moved to his daughter's home. He was born Dec. 16, 1865, to the late Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Harrington, pioneer settlers here.

Surviving besides the daughter are four sons, James H., Charles W., Russell S. and Irvin A., all of Holland and vicinity; 17 grandchildren; five great grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. Mae Nywening of Yakima, Wash., and a sister-in-law, Mrs. Jennie Harrington of Pueblo, Colo.

Both parties agreed that 4-H club, and FFA and MSC short course training contributed materially to the success of the farm partnerships, Wilt explains.

Four Heirs Seek Irwin Fortune

Allegan (Special)—Four grandnieces and nephews of the late LeRoy Irwin, 92-year-old Watson farmer who left a hidden cache of money last year, have petitioned probate court to be named as heirs to the estate which inventories at $32,480.

Hearing has been set for Dec. 5 by Probate Judge Harold Weston, who said if the four should prove their claim, at least 11 other descendants could also become heirs.

Irwin, who died after a brief marriage last November, left no will. But $25,000 in cash found on his farm plus other savings in banks and postal certificates, appeared destined for four nieces and nephews. His wife, the former Mary Sage, had signed away any rights to his estate.

The four heirs-at-law are Earl Irwin, Grand Rapids; Ola Hendricks, Shelbyville; Loa Brantigan, Greenville; and Mary Berton of Palmyra, Mo. The new claim comes from Ruby Jacobs, Ruth Taylor, Willie Cox and Johnnie Cox, all of Palmyra, who are children of a deceased nephew of Irwin.

After fees and an inheritance tax of $2,751.06, the estate to be divided will be about $25,731, Judge Weston said.

Cow Testers Report Stepped Up Production

Production in the Ottawa Southeast Cow Testing association stepped up somewhat in October despite the fact the 15 per cent of the cows were dry. Twenty-five herds with 450 cows were on test, Robert DePre, tester, reports 750 pounds milk per cow, 30.7 pounds fat. A total of 337,606 pounds milk were produced by the 25 herds.

Nineteen fresh heifers were entered and ten animals removed, five because of low production.

L. R. Arnold, county agricultural agent, is concerned over the tester situation. At present it appears there will be only one association operating after Jan. 1, 1951. No replacements can be secured for Bob De Pree who must go into the Army nor for Melvin Hodge, who has turned in his resignation. Arnold would like to secure someone who would take the tester's course at Michigan State college, Dec. 4-15. A job would be ready at once.

Other figures on individuals and herds as follows:

Eugene Brower, first and Elmo Heft, second, high cows under three years; Gerald Poest, first, and Heft, second, cows under four years; Howard Loew and son, First, and Henry Modern, second, under five years; Hubert Heyboer, first; and Henry Van Farrowe, second, over five years.

Gerald Poest, first, small herd owner, five to 10 cows; Harold Ter Haar, first, and Heft, second, medium herd, 11 to 20 cows; Neal Andre, first, and Lloyd Heckel, large herd, 21 or more cows.

Just as Plotts was rounding up a posse, the hunt was called off. The husbands were home, safe.

Success Comes to Young Farmers

How do I get started in farming? This perplexing question frequently comes to Allegan county agricultural agent A. D. Morley.

As an aid to young men who may be faced with this problem, the agent cites some recent research by Don Shepard of the Michigan State college department of short courses, covering 90 young Michigan farmers.

The study shows that many of the more successful young farmers have come up through having their fathers start them in 4-H club work just as soon as they were old enough. In other words, the sons started early to secure experience and to earn money.

Many of the sons enrolled in the FFA program when they entered high school. They continued to expand their earnings and gained additional experience or education under the direction of the father, agriculture teacher, or 4-H club agent, or perhaps all three.

Shepard points out that these factors are usually most important:

1. The prospective young farmer needs to be really interested and must like to farm.

2. The prospective young farmer needs all the farm experience and education he can secure.

3. It is important that the prospective farmer accumulate capital at an early age. The study showed that the young man who accumulated around $1,000 early in life and then invested it wisely in farm property made the most rapid progress.

4. If the young farmer has a father who has helped him do all of this, he is well on the road to becoming a farmer. If the necessary conditions for a partnership are present, he is a fortunate young man.

CROP Program To Begin Soon

The "CROP" program, known as the Christian Rural Overseas program, will get a belated start in Ottawa county this year. Clarence Reenders, Grand Haven, has been chosen as county chairman for the relief drive.

This is a united church program. Ministers will assist in getting the program. Reenders will organize throughout townships after Dec. 1. Each township will have a chairman and canvassers will be selected.

Two years ago Ottawa made an outstanding record through the organizations set up by Reenders, chairman. Two carloads of wheat and one double carload of evaporated milk were sent out from this country in addition to some cash which went to headquarters.
