Tradition is Strong at Hope!

The class pennants illustrated here and on the cover were ‘discovered’ early in the fall of 1972 by three College women who became curious about what might be in the ‘attic’ of Van Raalte Hall. With permission from the dean of students, they went to the fourth floor of Van Raalte and found these pennants in a dark dusty corner. They became excited over the distinctive design of each and ‘felt’ the pride each class had taken in them.

These women — Jackie Stegeman, Barb Smalling and Jackie Bigelow, immediately saw the possibility of the pennants as good decoration for the modern DeWitt Center and also as a medium to bridge College generations. They had them cleaned and found the perfect spot for them: in the opening above the Kletz between the ‘bridge’ and the wall. The bridge is a nicely furnished quieter portion of the Kletz away from, yet a part of the busy coffee shop.

Spurred on by the desire to make Homecoming more interesting to returning alumni, the girls came to the Alumni Office to register their interest in other things pertinent to former students. They reasoned that returning Hope men and women would be pleased with evidence that the current students revered the nostalgic things of the College. The Alumni Office was pleased to cooperate. Class pictures of early Prep and College classes were brought out and arrangements were made to get others out of archives for display purposes.

The girls were disheartened because they could not get the pictures framed and hung before Homecoming. It took so much time. They kept their enthusiasm, however, until the job was done. The photos are now hanging in the second floor hall of DeWitt Center leading to the theatre balcony. The display is a favorite area observed by theatre goers during intermissions.

Alumni will be pleased to know that the Traditions Committee is carrying on — offerings and suggestions are solicited and may be sent to the Alumni Office. The fervor of this committee and the delight with which each find was reported will be recognized by many alumni as the traditional Hope Spirit!

The President's Message

An annual report, if it is to enjoy any significant audience, must be brief and to the point. How difficult this is for me, as I write my first annual report from Hope College. For, having discovered many interesting, exciting and unique qualities and activities at Hope, my natural desire is to share them with alumni and friends. The change from engineering to liberal arts, from a public to a private institution, from a large graduate-oriented university to a small undergraduate college, has served to bring the unique qualities and strengths of Hope College into focus, and has provided for me many contrasts, challenges and rewards. In this report I will share some of these impressions, present some of the highlights of this past year and outline some of our concerns and plans for the future.

Students

The most striking change has been to be totally involved in a private institution where the central mission and primary focus is to provide the best possible liberal arts education for undergraduates. At Hope even this mission is conducted within the context of the unique character of the college. What is it that makes Hope College so unique? For one thing, even though the student body ranges in ability (by virtue of both natural ability and prior experience) from good to truly exceptional, Hope seems to have the capability to bring out the very best in each student. There is abundant evidence, both among alumni and present students, that the great majority of our students develop essentially their full potential, often exceeding the expectations of themselves and others. And how does this come about? Probably none of us fully understands. But it seems to me that the important factors are a genuine commitment by both faculty and students to academic excellence, the dedication and personal interest in individual students on the part of the faculty, and a concern for the total development of the students — their character, their values, and their spiritual and personal commitments. This total development is accomplished in many different ways — two hundred fifty students serving as big brothers or big sisters to disadvantaged children through the Higher Horizons program, science students who love music and participate in the Chapel Choir or Symphonette, pre-medical students who combine academic excellence with active participation in inter-collegiate athletics (and without athletic scholarships!), and an openness and diversity in the development and expression of religious convictions. Whatever the form, this commitment to excellence and integrity in the total development of the student gives a distinctive quality to Hope College.

Another aspect of the academic life which impressed me this past year is the emphasis on individual and personal academic pursuits. This might take the form of an art exhibition, a recital, a student-directed play, the execution of a radio program on a local station, or a summer spent on research in association with a faculty member. Preparation for life, for leadership and responsibility, involves a blend of disciplined learning as well as innovative and original work. The former has always been the hallmark of a liberal arts college; today there is a great emphasis on the practical, the vocational, and the preparation for the first job. At Hope there is a blend of these two emphases — preparation for one's life work, and the development of the total person. And the blending of these two emphases, with ample opportunity to do so in a manner that best suits each individual, is an important dimension of academic life.

In this regard, mention should be made of the importance of external support for the research programs. Support is vigorously pursued, and as a result, during 1972-73, Hope received $163,970 in grants from federal agencies, such as the National Science Foundation, and private foundations and institutions. In 1971-72 Hope ranked third among all four-year colleges in the midwest in the amount of funds received from the National Science Foundation. Because of the importance of this external support for research and academic programs, the Office of Research and Academic Development was established this past year, with Professor Eugene Jekel as the chairman. This office has the responsibility to promote and manage external grants for our research operations. These grants are essential for our continued emphasis on innovative and original work by both students and faculty, and we will continue to vigorously seek such support.

Financial Affairs

No one can assume the presidency of a private liberal arts college without immediately becoming immersed in the total financial operation of the institution. In reporting on this aspect of Hope College, I should first recognize the outstanding work done by Mr. Clarence Handlogten during the six years he directed the college's financial affairs. Under his leadership an excellent budget and control system was developed, with the result that Hope was recognized as financially well managed. When Mr. Handlogten left Hope on August 1, 1972, he left not only an excellent system and well managed operation, but also an able assistant, Mr. William Anderson, who has assumed the duties and position of Controller and Chief Financial Officer. Under his leadership, the college completed another year — the fifth in a row — of deficit-free operation.

The major sources of operating funds for a private college are tuition and fees, endowment income, and gifts and grants.

- Swarthmore: Endowment $66,000,000, Enrollment 1,200, Tuition & Fees $4,200
- Wooster: Endowment $15,091,000, Enrollment 1,820, Tuition & Fees $3,621
A few words about these data are in order. First of all, our tuition, fees, and room and board for 1972-73 were $2,960. This is lower than virtually every other private college of comparable quality. This has been done deliberately to ensure that every qualified student who so desires, can, with financial aid, attend Hope. However, these fees must still cover 81% of the operating budget. This percentage is high in comparison to most comparable colleges. The primary reason for this is the fact that Hope College has a very small endowment, about $2,300,000. For purposes of comparison, the endowment at a number of other private colleges is given elsewhere on page 4. The major offsetting factor is that Hope receives substantial annual support from alumni, friends, parents, foundations, industry, and congregations of the Reformed Church in America.

Hope alumni contributed $462,586 to the College during the 1972-73 fiscal year. Unrestricted, undesignated gifts to the Annual Fund amounted to $139,297 and designated gifts to specified accounts were $323,289 excluding contributions given through the College's deferred giving program. Of 11,134 alumni on our records, 3,250 (more than 29%) participated in the financial support of Hope during the year of this report.

This is substantial participation in comparison to other colleges and is a reflection of the loyalty of our alumni, and of the effective leadership of alumnus Jack De Witt, national chairman of the Annual Fund and his committee of class representatives.

The giving of Reformed Churches to Hope College is significant and substantial, particularly when compared to many other church-related colleges. The $351,873 received from churches was contributed by 398 of the 937 congregations that comprise the Reformed Church in America. This generous giving by many congregations is a reflection of the commitment within the Reformed community to a comprehensive Christian world and life view, and the importance of such a view in higher education. We are grateful for this support, and assure the churches of our commitment to provide the best in Christian higher education for the young people of our denomination, and to promote the welfare, strength and mission of the church as we are able. We are also committed to improving our communication with the churches. During this past year, as part of the Build Hope campaign, a faculty member and an interested layman visited essentially all of the consistories in the six western Michigan Classes. The result was a renewed interest in achieving our individual and mutual goals, and a greater commitment for financial support by the churches. We are anxious to establish similar contacts with churches in other areas and are making plans to do so in this next year. We value deeply the prayers, encouragement and financial support of the Churches.

One cannot comment on those who give generously to the College without mentioning the Women's League for Hope College. My personal introduction to this spirited group occurred just three weeks after we moved to Hope, when we experienced our first Village Square. This was a delightful occasion for all of our family, as it gave us a dramatic insight into the generous and sacrificial support which plays a major role in making Hope College what it is.

It should also be noted that Hope participates in the Michigan Colleges Foundation, an association of sixteen private colleges that join together in soliciting business and industry for operating funds. Of the amount listed on page 11 under foundations, $67,418 was received from the Michigan Colleges Foundation, which represents primarily support from industrial and commercial firms in Michigan.

A substantial increase in our endowment would do much to provide a stronger financial base for the operation of the College. One of the important objectives of the Build Hope Fund is to provide endowment for scholarships and faculty salaries. Mention should also be made of the college's deferred giving program which has received renewed emphasis under the leadership of Mr. William Stone of the Development Office staff. A deferred giving program can be tailored to meet the needs of each individual, providing income as long as it is needed, and yet leaving the principal to Hope College. These gifts, as they become available to the College, will be added to the Endowment Fund. Finally, within the Endowment Fund we have set up the Hope Heritage Fund, the income from which provides scholarships for students. It was decided this past year that all memorial gifts, unless they are specifically designated, would be added to the Hope Heritage Fund, and thus use them for our permanent endowment.

One final word on endowment. Important as this is to the College, far more important is the "living endowment" of thousands of alumni, parents and friends who give regularly and sacrificially, who offer encouragement and counsel, who encourage prospective students to attend Hope. To all of you, we express our deepest appreciation.

In regard to operating expenditures the only way our college can succeed financially, in view of its limited endowment and low tuition, is to carefully and wisely control expenses. This is in fact done in a substantial measure. But the result is that our salaries are lower, for both faculty and staff, than those in comparable institutions. With inflation and rising costs, we need to give this matter our attention in the immediate future. We sometimes tend to curtail maintenance in order to balance the budget. But this is false economy, for it eventually leads to major expenses. Many important academic projects are not pursued because of inadequate resources. I have come to discover the truth of the statement which was made by the Chicago Tribune in 1958: Hope College "probably accomplishes more in proportion to its resources than any other educational institution in the country." Though times have changed since this statement was made, this is still true today. Our goal is to provide resources to accomplish more in order to improve effectiveness.

Financial assistance programs continue to aid increased numbers of Hope students. Sixty-seven percent of the student body in 1972-73 received some form of financial assistance and the average aid given to students was $1,260. Financial assistance totaled $1,760,676 last year with scholarships and grants sponsored by the College going to 718 students. The total scholarship and grant budget increased nearly 7% over the preceding year and the number of recipients showed a 6% rise.

Important recent developments on the state and national scene laid the groundwork for increased financial assistance from the federal government and the Michigan Department of Education. The Michigan scholarship and tuition grant was increased from $800 to $1,200 and the federal government approved the addition of a gift aid program entitled the "Basic Educational Opportunity Grant Program," both scheduled to start in 1973-74. Our strong financial aid program continues to be responsive to the legitimate needs of students and the program continues to grow at a rate at least equal to the growth of educational expenses at Hope.

Campus Development and the Build Hope Fund

One objective of Build Hope is to increase the endowment fund with particular emphasis on scholarships and faculty salaries. The second major objective is to complete the campus development plan needed for the next decade. Last fall the Board of Trustees publicly announced the Build Hope Fund which has a $8,850,000 goal in capital funds. The trustees pledged $2,200,000 toward this goal, and the faculty, staff, and students pledged $130,000.

In regard to campus development, it should first be noted that the De Witt Student and Cultural Center has made possible a substantial improvement in student life and cultural activities. The availability of the new theatre has permitted the College to stage some significant productions. The major production during this past year was the premiere of a musical version of "Cyrano de Bergerac" under the direction of Jose' Ferrer, which played to full houses for two weeks.

The new Peale Science Center, housing

Academy Award winning actor-director Jose Ferrer spent nearly two months on the Hope campus last year as a theatre department artist-in-residence. During his stay Ferrer directed a musical version of Cyrano which received its world premiere in the college's DeWitt Cultural Center.
the departments of biology, chemistry, geology, and psychology, will be in full operation for the start of the fall semester. Dedication ceremonies are scheduled for October 26.

This attractive functional center has alleviated the serious overcrowding in the old science hall and provides opportunities to strengthen our programs in the sciences. With the current interest and emphasis on the health sciences, the completion of the Peale Science Center is particularly strategic for the development of new academic programs. The remaining indebtedness on this building is a $1,650,000, 30-year, 3% loan from the federal government. One of the important projects of Build Hope is to raise this amount of money as a sinking fund, the income from which will pay both the interest and principal, relieving the General Fund of this obligation.

The only new building planned for this decade is a physical education center. The need for a new facility for physical education is well known by alumni. Andrew Carnegie donated the funds for our present facility which was built in 1906 when the enrollment was 400 students. Even though the college enrollment is now 2,100, Carnegie-Schouten gymnasium is still our only physical education facility. Not only has the enrollment increased, but the College has developed a program of intercollegiate athletic competition in fifteen sports—nine for men, six for women, an academic program for physical education majors, and a diverse program of physical education for all students. In addition, there is considerable interest in intramural sports and general recreational activities. The fact is that we are attempting to carry on a program of excellence in an inadequate facility.

A functional, economical building is planned. No large spectator arena is included, since the College plans to continue scheduling intercollegiate basketball in Holland Civic Center. The building will provide space for instruction, recreation and intramural and intercollegiate sports. Its design features versatile, multi-use spaces and includes three gymnasia, an indoor track, squash and handball courts, several locker rooms, offices, classrooms and a swimming pool. The cost of this building is estimated at $2,500,000. A site for this building has already been acquired on the edge of the campus (just south of the tennis courts on Columbia Avenue, between 13th and 14th streets). However, we do not plan to begin construction of this facility until the total amount needed is available in gifts and pledges. This is now our major project.

Two major remodeling projects are also part of Build Hope. The first is the conversion of the old science hall into a humanities and social science center. Our desire is to do a thorough remodeling, making this building comparable, as much as possible, to a new facility.

To this end, plans have been completed, and the estimated cost of remodeling is $300,000. The second major remodeling project is the conversion of Voorhees Hall to an administrative center. Because this building does not meet the code as a dormitory, it is used solely for faculty offices. This is a very attractive building, of Flemish (Dutch) architecture. It is appropriate to preserve this for campus use. Like the proposed physical education center, the College has adopted a policy of not proceeding with projects until funding is available.

A word about Van Raalte Hall. For some years, the College has been under pressure to do extensive remodeling in order to bring the building up to code for classroom use. Further, with the collapse of a ceiling in a classroom last November, the Fire Marshal prohibited any further use of this hall for teaching purposes. Considering the quality of the basic structure, and the cost of remodeling, it appears that remodeling would not be a wise course to follow. Further, with the remodeling of the old science hall and Voorhees, Van Raalte would no longer be needed for classrooms and offices. Thus, when the remodeling of Voorhees and the old science hall is completed, we can remove this building and open up this part of the campus as a central mall. These are the tentative plans which we are pursuing at present.

The complete list of Build Hope projects is shown on page 36 of this issue.
Each one has been carefully evaluated and reviewed, and is essential for the continued strength of the College. Under the capable leadership of alumnus James M. VerMeulen, the Build Hope Fund has reached 50% of its goal. Much of the giving to date has been in terms of long-term or deferred gifts. As the College is now gearing its efforts to solicit the entire alumni body through the Build Hope Fund, we are hopeful that with their generosity we can proceed on capital projects.

Academic Programs

This was the first year of operation under the new academic calendar. Classes for the fall semester began in August with semester exams completed before Christmas. The second semester began in mid-January; commencement took place May 14. A successful three-week "May Term" offered a number of unique courses including an archeological dig in the Middle East, a geological field trip to Colorado, and internships in local industry, business, and government. Overall, the new calendar was well received by faculty and students, and provided a number of opportunities for innovative courses.

During the year, the Academic Affairs Board continued to study the core curriculum. The College continues to believe that a core curriculum in an appropriate context, will ensure a liberal arts focus in the academic program of each student. Yet we do want to be sure that this core program is the right one, that recognition is given for work taken in high school, and that there is adequate flexibility within the curriculum to respond to individual interests and aspirations.

While many students continue graduate or professional studies after graduation, a substantial number wish to begin their careers immediately. One of our major concerns is to ensure offering adequate opportunities for using undergraduate years as preparation for a career. In prior years many of our students were education majors who took teaching positions upon graduation. In view of the marked decrease in the number of teaching positions available, it is important for us to provide alternate courses of study. Among those to which we are giving particular attention, either through expanded or new programs, are business administration, computer science, and the health sciences. We anticipate that early in this new year announcements will be made on these programs.

We are encouraged by the success that our graduates are having in admission to graduate and professional schools and in securing positions. At least 19 of the graduates of last May have been admitted to medical schools, including institutions such as Johns Hopkins, the University of Chicago and the University of Michigan. It is also significant that a number of 1973 graduates have been admitted to outstanding graduate schools. Figures for the number of the 1973 education majors who obtained positions are not yet available; in 1972, 82% of the education majors who were seeking positions received appointments (the national average was 50%).

It is evident that there are still opportunities for those who pursue their academic program with enthusiasm and excellence, and thus have something special to offer when they seek a position.

Some Concerns and Plans for the Future

The major long-range concern of almost every private college relates to enrollment and finances. These are, of course, closely related. If tuition is raised too high, colleges price themselves out of the market. If tuition is too low, they do not have the resources that are needed for a quality program. This is a particularly crucial issue for a college such as Hope which is heavily dependent upon tuition for operating funds.

In regard to enrollment, there is another major factor which lies ahead. The number of high school graduates will increase a small amount for the next few years, and then drop off rather sharply over the next 18 years. There are now about 18 million persons in for years. There is a strong, projected change in the size of the student body. The total number of young people in college will probably decrease over the next two decades. It follows that Hope will have to offer something extra, something special, something distinctive to students in the years ahead.

In 1965, after a rather extensive study known as the Profile Report, it was decided that Hope College should grow to 2,600 students. Last fall the enrollment was about 2,100 and it is now evident at 2,600 is an unrealistic projection. We have just initiated a new study, under the direction of Professor Dean Bryson of the Education Department, on the projected size of the College. This study, after review by the faculty and trustees, should form the basis for some specific planning regarding the future size of the College.

There is another matter which is receiving major attention in college and university circles. This is the matter of tenure. The reason this is such a crucial issue is that in prior years, which were years of expansion in higher education, there was little concern over the number who were given tenure, because with expansion and hiring of young faculty members, the fraction of the faculty who were tenured remained at a reasonable level. With little prospect for expansion in the future and perhaps even some contraction, the fraction of tenured faculty is now a major concern in most colleges. A high percentage of tenured faculty reduces flexibility, increases cost (because a high percentage of the faculty will be at the associate or full professor rank), and makes it difficult to bring in younger faculty. New young teachers often bring in new perspectives, particularly those who have been trained in recently developed fields. The entire matter of size, tenure, and financial strength for the future will be receiving careful attention in this next year.

There is one related matter which is of immediate concern to us, and this is the fact that there will be some decline in the size of the freshman class this fall. The reasons for this are not immediately clear, but this matter is being carefully evaluated, and plans for our admissions program for next fall are being carefully reviewed and revised. With more than 900 high schools in the State of Michigan, over 900 congregations in the Reformed Church in America, and over 11,000 alumni, to me it does not seem at all unreasonable that there are 600 high school graduates each year who would truly enjoy and profit from being a part of the student body of a college which has the quality and environment of Hope. An enrollment of 600 freshmen would enable the college to maintain its present student body size.

Most educators and scholars who have studied the situation in the private colleges stress that the strength of private colleges in the future will rest upon those colleges having something unique and distinctive to offer — that each college must have a clear and well-defined mission and character which sets it apart from public institutions. Thus, it is particularly important for Hope to have well-defined purposes and goals. A start in formulating such a statement was made this past year and a draft of this has been discussed by the faculty, and had preliminary review by the Board of Trustees. In this regard, it has also become apparent that a review of certain statements in the Articles of Incorporation is in order. This entire matter is being studied and the Board of Trustees will, in all probability be taking action during next year.

In reviewing this past year, it is evident that I owe a real debt of gratitude to more people that I could possibly mention in a report such as this. However, I would mention the support and counsel which Mr. Hugh De Pree, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, and Mr. Willard Wichers, Secretary, have given to me personally and to the College as a whole. Their devoted service and loyal support have been a tower of strength for Hope College and I know that students, faculty and alumni join in expressing our deep appreciation.

To the many students, faculty, administrators, staff, alumni, parents, and friends who have contributed so generously of time, resources and energy, I express my personal appreciation as well as that of the entire community. We are indeed grateful. Ultimately, our gratitude is to God who has provided generously and continues to use Hope College to accomplish His purposes in the lives of students and faculty, and through them in a world which seems in such need of purpose, integrity and love. And this is, in a significant measure, what Hope College is all about.

Gordon J. Van Wylen
July 1, 1973
For the fifth consecutive year, Hope College ended its operations with a modest surplus. This achievement, in light of the financial plight being encountered by many colleges, is one which the Hope Community can be proud.

This year, the Church, Alumni and friends of the College contributed approximately 8.8% of the operating budget in addition to those designated for capital expansion, endowment, and research.

To a large degree, this participation has made the difference between the College operating with a surplus or a deficit. We are indeed thankful for your support and confidence in Hope College, its staff, and its students.

The Hope College Annual Fund is composed of undesignated, unrestricted contributions from alumni, churches, friends, parents, industry and foundations.

The Annual Fund helps to make up the difference between income from tuition and the day-to-day operating cost of the College.

The loyal annual support of Hope's constituency has enabled the College to operate deficit-free these past years. It is this continuing annual support which gives great encouragement to the faculty and administration in their mission to provide excellence in Christian higher education.

Annual Fund contributions are allocated and administered at the discretion of the President and Board of Trustees. It is by unrestricted giving to the Annual Fund that donors can eloquently express confidence in the College administration and their faith in the Hope tradition.

Pace Setters

Pace Setters are alumni, parents, and friends who have contributed $100 or more to the Annual Fund.

Church Contributions

In 1866 the General Synod of the Reformed Church in America gave its final approval for the establishment of Hope College. Church contributions since that time have been important in sustaining and strengthening the College as many Reformed Church congregations considered Hope College a necessary and worthy mission endeavor of the Reformed Church.

The following churches have contributed to Hope College during the period July 1, 1972 through June 30, 1973. These churches have contributed to one or more of the following College funds: The Annual Fund (for general operations and current expenses) ... The Build Hope Fund (for capital improvement, debt retirement, and endowment) ... The Peale Science Center ... General Scholarship Fund ... Brumler Hall ... Dykstra Hall ... Wichers Hall of Music ... The Chapel Choir ... The Symphonette.

The Build Hope Fund

The Build Hope Fund is an $8,850,000 fund-raising effort designed to complete the College campus development program, increase endowment for scholarships and faculty salaries, and supplement academic programs. Success in this formidable undertaking will provide Hope with the basic physical facilities needed for the foreseeable future and will enhance the continued financial stability of the College as we endeavor to fulfill our mission in Christian higher education.

This program was officially launched on October 13, 1972 and will continue through 1974. Program presentation and opportunities for participation were presented initially to the College family (trustees, faculty, administration and students) and in western Michigan. As the program develops, alumni and friends from coast to coast will be given the opportunity to participate in this most important program.

The following individuals and organizations have either contributed or pledged their support to the Build Hope Fund.

There are many ways in which Hope College alumni and friends can promote the strength and well-being of the College. Perhaps the most important is to represent the College, in your place of residence and work, to prospective students and their parents, neighbors, business associates, high school counselors, foundations — in fact, to everyone who ought to know about Hope College. We have an important educational mission — the education of young people in the context of excellence and purpose as we know it at Hope. But young people who aspire to an education of this quality and character need to know about Hope. And who can do this better than those who have personally experienced Hope College? We also need to share our vision with those who might wish to use some of the resources they have been given to assist us in our mission.

Alumni and friends play a key role at Hope College through their gifts. The support of the Annual Fund by alumni and friends as well as church congregations and other organizations has been instrumental in the continuing deficit-free operation of the college. As the Build Hope Fund is extended into 1974, alumni and friends will be given the opportunity to participate in this important program by designating gifts for campus facilities and endowment. There are also opportunities for giving through the planned giving program, which enables the donor to have an income as long as it is needed, with the principal ultimately going to the College. The College has the expertise to plan such gifts, on a confidential basis, with the interests of the individual donor in mind. Many have taken advantage of such services, and have been most satisfied with the arrangements which have been made. Others have named Hope College as a benefactor in their wills. The specific way in which you give may vary as your financial situation changes. Whatever way you choose, we want you to know that we are most grateful. There’s a role for you at Hope.
