Farm Ballads.

BY WILL M. CARLETON.

Tom was a-goin' for a poet, an' said he'd a-poet be;

One of these long-haired fellers a feller hates

to see;

One one of these chaps forever fixin' things

cute and clever;

Makin' the earth in gen'ral step 'long to tune

an' time.

An' cuttin' the earth into slices and saltin' it down into rhyme.

Poets are good for something, so long as they stand at the head;

But poetry's worth whatever it fetches in butter an' bread.

An' many a time I've said it: it don't do a follow credit.

To starve with a hole in his elbow, an' be considered a fool.

So after he's dead, the young ones'll speak his pieces in school.

An' Tom, he had an opinion, that Shakespeare,

An' all the rest,

With all their winter clothin', couldn't make

Aim a decent vest;

But that didn't ease my labors, or help him

among the neighbors.

Who wretched him from a distance, an' held

his mind in doubt.

An' thought if Tom wasn't shaky, or knew what he was about.

Tom he went a sowin' to sow a field of grain;

But half of that 'ere sowin' was altogether in vain.

For he was 'alays a stoppin', and gems of poetry droppin'.

And metaphors, they be pleasant, but much to thin to eat;

And germs of thought be handy, but never grow up wheat.

Tom he went to mowin', one bro'lin, summer's day.

An' spoke quite sweet concernin' the smell of the new-mowed hay.

But all o' his useless chatter didn't go to help

the matter.

Or make the grief less searchin' or the pain

less hard to feel.

When he made a clip to sudden, an' sliced

his brothers heel.

Tom he went a-drivin' the hills an' dales

across;

But scannin' the lines of his poetry he dropped the lines of his hose.

The nagging feet and fletter, in quite irregular meter;

An' when we got Tom's leg set, an' got him so great personal sacrifice, demanding an intense religious enthusiasm. When we are told that for twelve years, until the Government removed the Indians farther West, he stood at his post and forced success from the most untoward circumstances, we gain an insight into the nerve and capacity of the man. This enterprise thus ended, we see him promptly rallying out in search of some new one. In an open cane, with a couple of savages as oarsmen and guides, he coasts along down the eastern shore of Lake Michigan, till he reaches what was then a military outpost, now grown into our great Chicago, the Liverpool of the Lakes. Partially retracing his steps,

he selects the site where Grand Haven

now stands, as his future place of residence, a company offering him a situation there as their business agent.

At that time in the entire country

there was not a single white inhabitant, and the wilderness of the region was wholly unrelieved except by three lonely log huts. But there were abundant pine forests, a fine water-course, and a commodious harbor. He asks nothing more. By-and-by, steam or the river-current will saw his lumber and sailing vessels will float it to market. A small schooner built under his supervision is employed, and in this his wife and boys set out early in the fall for their new home. One of the huts shelters them for a time. When spring opens, a frame house stands open to receive them. But the winter meanwhile brings many a hardship. At one time actual starvation stares them in the face. Grand Rapids, the nearest settlement, is forty miles away. Nothing daunted, the father cuts a road, with his own aiding hands, this entire distance through an unbroken forest and saves his family by his heroism.

He acted as agent three years until the financial crisis of 1837 crushed the company that employed him. Then starting out alone he entered upon a series of financial successes truly surprising, and displayed a forethought,

a daring, and a business precision that soon won him place among the moneyed men of the period. First appeared the little store with but five hun-dered dollars' worth of goods bought on trust; then the saw-mills there, and still continues State Commissioner on the Board of Managers of the Soldiers'

National Cemetery at Gettysburg. In 1864 he was elected as Representative to the Thirty-ninth Congress from the Fourth District, delivering his first speech in his Congressional canvass on his native Island of Mackinaw. So pleased was his constituency with his record, that they returned him to three succeeding Congresses, the Fortieth,

Forty-first and Forty-second, by constantly increased majorities, making the Fourth District the banner district of the State. His popularity having outgrown the bounds of this district,

he successfully competed with some of the States's most powerful public men,

the two Howards (J. M. and W. A.)

and Austin Blair, Michigan's War

Governor, for a seat in the United States Senate on the expiration of Mr.

Howard's term of service. The contest was hot, for the prize was dazzling,

and the rival contestants were each sustained by hosts of warm partisan friends.

Mr. Ferry was originally a Whig,

but joined the Republican party at the very outset of its organization. To all its great measures of reform he has given most hearty welcome; some of them it has been his proud part to positively promote by an earnest advocacy of them before the people and in State and National Legislative as-

FOURTH OF JULY.

We had, up to a recent date, flattered ourselves that we were to enjoy a good old-fashioned celebration on the Fourth of July next; but we learn that the efforts that have been made in that direction, have resulted only in disagreements.

We fear that our people will become somewhat notorious for irrepressible ideas. If schisms are allowed to divert them from a united effort; and we would fain believe that prejudice exists among them inconsistent with the development of great projects, requiring united action. But such are the condition of things, as viewed by a looker-on.

A citizens' meeting was held, appropriate committees appointed, and the announcement made that the pioneer settlers of this Colony would celebrate their twenty-fifth anniversary on "the day we celebrate."

We had hoped that this project would be a success, and that that day would witness the great gathering of the old settlers of this Colony. Such a celebration would have commanded the hearty approval of all; and which, if successfully inaugurated and carried through, would tend largely toward increasing social equality, and also the respect and confidence of American institutions; bringing nearer together friends and neighbors, and harmonizing the elements of school districts, towns and villages, rallying around the Flag of Our Country, uniting in giving thanks to a kind Providence for the years of health and prosperity, and the increase of wealth and happiness secured them under the great Magna Charta of religious and civil liberty.

We regret to say, however, that though the committee have seemingly done their duty, the whole project has been abandoned; a part seceding, with a view of celebrating at the village of Zeeland. May not a little local jealousy have crept in to mar the proceedings? or must we seek for the rogue, disrupting, "inside of Sects?" In truly lamentable condition, would either cause place us before the eyes of Christian philanthropy, or the age of progress and reform. We must learn to bear each other's infirmities "with charity toward all and with malice toward none." Then we may begin to see a brighter hope for the future—not till then.

ANOTHER GLANCE AT HORACE.

OR CHAPPAQUA WISDOM AND CONSISTENCY.

According to John Bunyan, the ground before the entrance to the cave of the giants, Pope and Pagan, was covered with blood, bones, ashes and mangled bodies. This might be said metaphorically of the approaches to the Presidency. For a long number of years we have seen men of ability and reputation sacrificing all the true honors of their lives to the insane idea of becoming President. When once an individual is seized by this madness, it becomes an infection that never leaves him. From the first moment of this attack, he grows more and more reckless and unprincipled, repudiates his former most cherished sentiments, turns his back on old and tried friends, forms alliances with those who had always detested him, and finally

Living shall forfeit all remorse,
And doubly dying, shall go down
To the vile dust from whence he sprang,
Unwept, unhonored, and unsung.

This Presidential fever is inveterate and incurable. It seizes the citadel of life, and renders its victim ridiculous and contemptible.

"It is a green-eyed monster, which doth make the most of its food."

The most conspicuous instance of the malady at present may be seen in Horace Greeley, the sage, philosopher and wood-cutter of Chappaqua. Before he became a victim to the madness that now possesses him, he had definite notions of the Presidential disease, was well acquainted with its symptoms, and had a clear perception of its intractable and contaminating character. At a banquet given in Montreal, in 1868, Mr. Greeley, in speaking of Daniel Webster made use of the following language:

Mr. Webster was not only a gentleman, but he had the elements of moral greatness; and he had faults as well. He failed in one respect, and in this respect I differ with him—he wanted to be President, and I don't. [Cheers and laughter.] But for that one misfortune, he would have been the greatest man that America ever produced. We have seen our greatest man, Mr. Chase, making the same blunder. I have seen men who had the disease early, and died of it at a very old age. [Laughter.] General Lewis Cass died at about eighty-two, and up to the day of his death he wanted to be President. No one ever escapes who once catches the disease; and he lives and dies in the delusion. Being a reader and an observer at an early age, I saw how it poisoned and paralyzed the very best of our public men, and I have carefully avoided it."

Three years only have elapsed since this utterance, and already may Mr. Greeley be addressed in the words of the Roman satirist—

"Change but the name of thee, the tale is told."

Although always erratic and visionary, always wedded to specious fallacies, always abounding in contradictions, yet he has now involved himself in a mesh of antagonisms which are wonderful in comparison with his former position.

We propose to contrast Greeley, the Radical Republican, with Greeley, the "Liberal Republican." He has indeed bowed the knee to Baal, and sold his principles for a mess of pottage. If there was any one thing more than another to which he professed an unalterable attachment, it was the principle of protection, or, as he expressed it, "protection to American industry." Yet, in order to purchase free trade votes, he threw overboard the child of his affection, leaving it to find favor or countenance as it could. Knowing that he has no possible chance of getting so much as one electoral vote unless he is nominated at Baltimore, next July, by the Democrats, he is employing every artifice in his power to bring about such a consummation. He is in alliance with the Tammany Ring, as has been charged home to him, and it has not been denied either by him or the Tribune. A late number of the N. Y. Commercial Advertiser publishes the following suggestive paragraph:

August Belmont, Horace Greeley, Jas. S. Thayer and Benjamin Wood breakfasted together at the New York Hotel yesterday morning at 10½. Has Tammany sold out to Greeley or has Greeley sold out to Tammany? Which?

We have the lion and the lamb lying down together—free trader and protectionist crossing their legs under the same mahogany—Jew and Christian fraternizing in a most exemplary manner. The files of the Log Cabin, and of The Tribune would furnish volumes of scurrility and abuse which Horace Greeley poured out on the Loco Focos, Free Traders, Rum Party, Democrats, he called them, and to whom he now cuddles and to whom he sacrifices the opinions upon which he used to pride himself most. Here is a specimen of the compliments that formerly rained from his pen. "Point," he says:

"Point whenever you please to an election district which you will pronounce morally rotten—given up in great part to debauchery and vice—and that district will be found at nearly or every election to give a large majority for that which styles itself the Democratic party."

"Take all the baunts of debauchery in the land and you will find nine-tenths of their master spirits, active participants of that same Democracy."

"May it be written on my grave that I never was its follower, and lived and died in nothing its debtor."

Here is rhetoric for the Baltimore platform!

The New York World still cries "give us a straight Democratic nomination!" because, among other reasons: "It is to evident that Mr. Greeley has but the barest handful of adherents who would follow him out of the Republican organization; whereas, on the other hand, there are countless hosts of Democrats who would sooner vote for the eternal Devil than for a man who has been, for thirty years, the fiercest assailant of their party." Is not the Democrat a little given to plagiarism in declaring its readiness to endorse "the infernal devil" to "beat Grant?"

GENERAL NEWS.

The total reduction of taxation effected by Congress in its last session is about $5,800,000. Of this $11,933,000 represents the reduction of duties, $19,240,000 the additions to the free list, and $2,000,000 the abolition of Internal Revenue taxes.

MADRID, June 19.—The Government has received intelligence of the reappearance of the Carlist insurgents in the Provinces of Tarragona, Biscay and Galicia. It is said that Valmaceda, Captain-General of Cuba, has resigned.

The Savannah News predicts that if the Baltimore Convention nominates Greeley, Georgia will go for Grant by 20,000 majority. The News is a Democratic paper, and commands the Democrats who say they will remain away from the polls rather than stultify themselves by voting for Greeley.

Here is one of the New York Tribune's "campaign notes": "The first Greeley and Brown flag in Buffalo was thrown to the breeze yesterday from the Hazard elevator. The owners are Republicans." To this the Buffalo Commercial Advertiser appends the following explanation: "That same bit of bunting used to be hoisted as a Grant flag. But that was when its owner was an applicant for a federal office, and didn't dream he was going to be disappointed. Whenever you see a Greeley flag floating on a former Republican concern, you may be sure there is a sorehead underneath it."

New York, June 19.—A London special says: The state of Spain is alarming. There have been two partial risings of the Republicans in Andalusia since the Conservatives proposed the dictatorship of Serrano with absolute powers for spending money and suspending the Constitution. The Conservatives are enraged at the rejection of their proposals by the King, and say that this is the last attempt to form a Conservative Ministry under Amadeus. "A Radical Ministry, and then a deluge!" exclaims a Serrano journal. It is said that Serrano has left for England in disgust, and Sagasta for France. The Radicals are arming the town population.

Some time since Greeley, writing in the Tribune over his own name, addressed Frank P. Blair, jr., as follows: "General, I learned long ago that principles were inconvenient, and that he who makes his own aggrandizement his aim must wear them loosely or put them aside altogether. I doubt that you would ever have attained your present dizzy elevation had you permitted yourself to be encumbered with them. But I am old-fashioned, and can not change my camp or my flag with your admirable facility." There was a certain Hazael, who said; Is thy servant a dog, that he should do this thing? But, alas! he did it; and Greeley follows his example.

The Editorial Convention for Western Michigan has been called to meet on the 30th of July next at Manistee. It is unfortunate that the Convention at Manistee is called to meet so near the day appointed for the Republican State Nominating Convention at Lansing. We think that many of the editorial craft have intended to attend the Convention at Lansing, and probably are so far committed to that object as to preclude the possibility of attending the one at Manistee. We had hoped to attend the meeting at Manistee but can not without inconvenience, at that time. We know of other parties in the same fix, can not the time be changed and accommodate all who desire to attend?

NATIONAL PROGRESS.—The Great American Institute announces its Forty-first Annual Exhibition, to be opened in the City of New York, on the fourth of September next. Applications for space to exhibit the best Agricultural Productions, Mechanical Inventions, Artistic devices, and valuable articles of American manufacture, are now in order. It is intended to make this the most extensive, useful and meritorious exhibition ever held in America.

The opening address will be delivered on Wednesday, September 4th, at 2 o'clock P. M.

The closing address will be delivered on Wednesday, November 18th, at 2 o'clock P. M.; and awards made by the Board of Managers will be announced.

"Unquestionably the best sustained Work of the kind in the World."

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

There are few intelligent American families in which Harper's Magazine would not be an appreciated and highly welcome guest. There is no monthly Magazine an intelligent reading family can less afford to be without. Many Magazines are accumulated. Harper's is edited. There is not a Magazine that is printed which shows more intelligent pains expended on its articles and mechanical execution. There is not a cheaper Magazine published. There is not, confessedly, a more popular Magazine in the world.—New England Homestead.

A repository of biography, history, literature, science and art, unequalled by any other American publication. * * * The volumes are as valuable as a mere work of reference as any cyclopaedia we can place in our libraries. Harper's Magazine is a record of travel everywhere since the hour of its establishment. Livingston and Gordon Cummings, in Africa, Strain, among the Andes, and Ross Brown in the East, Speke on the Nile, and Macgregor on the Jordan—indeed, all recent travelers of note have seen their most important discoveries reproduced in these pages. Most of our younger and many of our older writers find here their literary biography. Our artists see the best evidences of their genius and the most enduring specimens of their work in the Magazine.—N. Y. Standard.

Harper's Bazar.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

It is really the only illustrated chronicle of fashion in the country. Its supplements alone are worth the subscription price of the paper. While fully maintaining its position as a mirror of fashion, it also contains stories, poems, brilliant essays, besides general and personal gossip.—Boston Saturday Evening Gazette.

There never was any paper published that so delighted the heart of women. Never mind if it does cost you a new bonnet; it will save you ten times the price in the household economy it teaches.—Providence Journal.

The young lady who buys a single number of Harper's Bazar is made a subscriber for life.—New York Evening Post.

The Bazar is excellent. Like all the periodicals which the Harpers publish, it is almost ideally well edited, and the class of readers for whom it is intended—the mothers and daughters in average families—can not but profit by its good sense and good taste, which, we have no doubt, are to-day making very many homes happier than they may have been before the women began taking lessons in personal and household and social management from this good-natured mentor.—The Nation, N. Y.

Local News.

Look out for Sun Strokes during the hot weather.

The Ice Cream Festival at the Union School building last evening was a decided success.

A son of a Mr. Koppa, residing some four miles from the city, had his arm broken on Wednesday last.

Hon. W. B. Williams of Allegan was in this city yesterday looking hale and hearty and enthusiastic for Grant and Wilson.

The weather of the past week has been very warm and dry. Thermometer ranging from 90 to 95 degrees in the shade.

Van Lantgen & Ter Haar's brick are arriving, and work has commenced on their new store. It will be one of the best buildings in the city.

The Wind Flouing Mill of Mr. A. Geerlings is full under way, the foundation walls are up and workmen are engaged in getting inside material into shape.

The grading of Eighth street is nearly completed, making it one of the worst streets (in its present condition,) in the city; prompt measures should be introduced to have it paved, or farmers will refuse to come to town.

Gen. C. O. Loomis, of "Loomis Battery" fame in the War of the Rebellion, is at present at the National Soldiers' Asylum at Milwaukee, rapidly approaching his end. There are no hopes of his recovery. He made a brilliant record during the war.

Preparations are being made at the mouth of the River for picnic parties, on the Fourth of July. Bowers will be erected, and all the delicacies of the season can be obtained. The steamer Fanny Shriver will make hourly trips with a vessel in tow, that all may be accommodated. Fare only 25 cents for the round trip.

About 4 o'clock Friday morning last the residence of Mr. Henry Jones of Olive was discovered on fire; the alarm was immediately sounded, and the neighbors proceeded to the scene of conflagration and assisted in securing nearly all the furniture in the house, together with many of the doors, windows and blinds. The house was built only last season and was valued at about $1,500. Insured for $1,000.

By referring to an advertisement in another column, our friends will learn that the splendid little steamer, Fanny Shriver can be chartered any day or evening to run to Lake Michigan on excursion trips, for the small sum of five dollars. This will give families and picnic parties a chance to secure an excursion ride for a small compensation. This is a move that should be well patronized.

We this week use considerable space in advertising the Harper & Brothers publications. We hope our readers will read them carefully, no better matter is published than can be found in the periodicals named. The Monthly Magazine is an encyclopaedia of biography, history literature, science and art; The Weekly assuming the front rank in illustrated literature, its reading matter is of a high order, instructive and entertaining. The Bazar is spoken of by the ladies as the Multum in parvo, and a desirable acquisition toward securing peace at home, full of choice valuable reading matter. We will club the News with the Magazine Weekly or Bazar at the rate of $5.00 per year.

AN ACCIDENT.—On Wednesday last while workmen were engaged in moving the Furniture store of J. M. Reidsma & Son on Eighth street, an accident occurred to the building. By some mismanagement the screws used in raising the building became unsteady, and being left without proper support suddenly gave way and the building surged and dropped about 18 inches, with a crash. Efforts are being made to get it into proper shape and condition. Luckily no one was injured. An another accident occurred near the depot of the Chicago & Michigan Lake Shore R. R. a day or two since. As the construction train was nearing the depot, one of the trucks jumped the track, the train being in rapid motion, caused three of the cars to fly the track thus making some two or three cords of good wood. No one was injured.

GRAND HAVEN, Mich., June 25—The celebration of St. John's Day, at Muskegon, to-day, by the Knights Templar, was a very grand affair. About 90 Knights from East Saginaw, 40 from Grand Rapids, and 60 from Chicago. The Right Eminent Grand Commander, O. L. Spaulding, of St. John's, Governor Parsons, of Alabama, and other prominent Masons were present. The banquet at the Occidental was a brilliant and eminently social success. The parade in the streets and the excursion on the lake rendered the whole affair one of great pleasure. There were four bands in attendance. The Chicago Knights returned through Grand Haven this evening, by boat for Chicago.

THE STRUGGLE OF '72—THE ISSUES AND CANDIDATES OF THE PRESENT POLITICAL CAMPAIGN.—The above is the title of a book of 500 pages, published by Union Publishing Co., of Chicago, and edited by Everett Chamberlain, late of the Chicago Tribune. We are glad to see that a work of this kind is being prepared thus early in the season of the approaching campaign, to enable the reading and voting portion of our citizens to get a condensed history of the political career of those that are nominated as our national rulers. Mr. Chamberlain, the author, is a staunch Republican and a firm supporter of the present administration. He is well known in the Northwest, and no doubt his name attached to this work will give it a large sale. One great feature of this book is its illustrations, which have been drawn, at great expense, by the celebrated Artist Stephens, of New York, and are original. Some of the best hints of the times can be seen by buying this book. It will be sold by Agents only. We feel justified in saying that this book will do a good work in the right direction.

The Grand Haven Daily Herald is publishing a series of articles relative to the early history of this county. Such letters cannot but be interesting to our readers, and we publish the following, throwing out a hint that if any of the early settlers of this Colony would furnish us material relative to its early day we would gladly publish it in the News.

LETTER VII.

Editors Daily Herald.
"In the last letter, the good old steamer 'Columbus,' Capt. Walker, arrived in this city on the 1st of June—made fast to the Grand Haven Company's Dock, (now Parks & Co's. mill) landed our household goods and put on board a large supply of dry pine cord-wood, for which I think the captain paid Hon. T. D. Gilbert, (now President of City National Bank, of Grand Rapids,) $3.00 per cord. Mr. Gilbert, then a young man, owned a large, red-painted scow, which he loaded from the bank at Spring Lake, where he had purchased land from the government. Grand Haven was about the only place the Buffalo steamers could get wood to any advantage.

Our early settlers yet remaining on the River will never forget the familiar Red Scow, aiding the commerce for many years, either sailing with a fair breeze, or in tow of river steamers. The Grand Haven Company mentioned, consisted of Hon. 'Rix' Robinson, Mr. Luke White and Dr. Williams. They kept the only store then in Ottawa county, and they kept a good stock of supplies for new settlers—hundreds of barrels of flour, pork, clothing, crockery, hardware, medicines, building materials etc. F. B. Gilbert, Esq., (brother of the former) was the principal clerk.

Another Company also existed at this time, composed of Hon. 'Rix' Robinson, Mr. Robert Stuart and Rev. Wm. M. Ferry, 'Father' Ferry, being the principal manager, laid out and platted our city, which has had large additions made to its dimensions since by C. B. Albee, Dr. Munro, L. V. Harris, H. C. Anley and others.

After enjoying the hospitality of 'Father' Ferry's family, with our goods on board the River steamer 'Owastamonk' (then commanded by Capt. T. W. White), we left here for Eastmanville (then Scranton). Mrs. White and Miss Mary A. White accompanied us on their way to Grand Rapids; and some good singing we had on board while ploughing the current through the almost unbroken forest of pines on each side of the River.

The boat leaked like a basket, and required constant pumping and shifting of freight. This boat, in a few months, ended her career. She was laid up by the side of the Company's mill, called 'the big mill,' in distinction to the little first mill built here. Both boat and big mill were burned.

Mr. N. Throop kept a small hotel on Franklin street, in 1837, which was continued by Wm. H. Middlemast until he had completed and occupied the Washington House, on the spot where now stands the general store of H. Brower & Bro. The Washington was a large three-story building with two-story wings to accommodate the traveling, under different proprietors, viz:—Middlemast; Edgarly, a Chicago man (name forgotten), then by Hon. H. Pennoyer, and lastly by our city Alderman, Hon. J. A. Leggat, till 1856, when it was destroyed by fire, after great improvements and additions to it were made by Mr. E. B. Albee, the owner.

There is to be a grand Fourth of July celebration at Grand Haven, every body is invited to attend.

The new Methodist Church at Spring Lake is to be dedicated to-morrow Sunday the 30th. Rev. Geo. B. Joolyn, D.D., President of Albion College will deliver the dedicatory sermon. This is said to be one of the most beautiful churches in this part of the State, it has cost about $5,000.

These Bitters are good for all diseases arising from a derangement of the stomach. As a corrective, it cannot be excelled. Pleasant to the taste, assists digestion, and keeps the system generally in good condition.

Elephantine Surgery—A Huge Patient on the Dissecting Table.

Romeo, the performing elephant belonging to Forepaugh's Menagerie—and probably the largest specimen of the elephant species in this country—had a most extraordinary and painful surgical operation performed on him at Chicago, on the 4th inst. For several weeks past the elephant had been suffering from a most severe inflammation in his fore legs and feet; and, fearing the old fellow would die, Mr. Forepaugh concluded to place the animal under the knife, and have his legs and feet cut open and ascertain the exact nature and extent of the malady. Stout chains were procured, and the monster was safely secured, when the surgeon proceeded to operate upon the huge hill of flesh. Nearly forty pounds were removed from his feet and legs, causing a loss of three pailfuls of blood, after which red-hot irons, six feet in length, were plunged into the openings made by the surgeon's knife, which were from six to eight inches in circumference. The terrific bellowings of the huge creature as the heated irons were repeatedly thrust into his bleeding wounds, together with the smell of the burning flesh, and the sight of the blood, flowing in torrents from his gaping wounds, created a panic among all the flash-eating animals in the menagerie, presenting a scene of indescribable terror, and not soon to be forgotten by those who were present. The poor brute, after lingering for three days, in excruciating agony, died on Friday, the 7th inst.

REMARKABLE HOUSEHOLD PET.—Last summer one of our Cincinnati belles, on coming home from Europe, brought home with her an Esquimaux dog. She turned him loose in her house, and during the first two weeks he tore up $5,000 worth of lace curtains, gnawed holes in her carpets, scratched the gilding from the mirror frames, besides ruining most of the upholstery in her parlor. Since then he has been five times to a horse doctor for treatment, and once to a regular physician, who esteemed the call a mortal insult. He has frightened all the children in the neighborhood, and there has not been a cat seen anywhere in the block since his arrival. He is better than a trombone player at keeping people awake, and is never so happy as when baying at the moon on summer nights. His regular diet is strawberries and jelly-cake, and yet he is not happy. He pines for his native clime, his far-off home in Labrador, and will not be comforted.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

LIBBY PRISONS AT VERSAILLES.—From information given by several Paris papers, it seems that the political prisoners still in durance at Versailles are treated with unusual inhumanity. A large number of prisoners are kept in the underground cells of the Prison de Nouailles, and the damp has already sent many of them to the hospital. One of the rooms is 9 feet long and 15 feet broad, and contains 25 prisoners, who can scarcely find room to lie down at night. Air and light are admitted through two small windows, and the inmates of this hole are only allowed to take a walk in a narrow court during half an hour every day. There is no apparent excuse for such rigor, since the upper portion of the prison is not filled; neither does the law specify that political prisoners shall undergo worse treatment than common felons.

Cheap Babies.

A funny joke, and all the more palatable as its truth can be vouched for, says a New Jersey paper, occurred at a prominent church in that State. It seems that a worthy deacon had been very industrious in selling a new church book, costing seventy-five cents. At the service in question, the minister, just before dismissing the congregation arose and said: "All you who have children to baptize will please present them next Sabbath." The deacon, who by the way, was a little deaf, having an eye to selling the books, and supposing the pastor was referring to them, immediately jumped up and shouted: "All you who haven't any can get as many as you want by calling on me, at seventy-five cents each."

A RARE ACT.—It was Michigan that sent back $12,000 of the money forwarded from San Francisco to relieve the sufferers by fire, and not Chicago as some people were led to suppose. Chicago never never gives back anything, because she wants all she can get, and a little more too. But it was a rare act this returning of so much money. It is not often we hear of such things, and when we do, it is well to make a note of them, if only to encourage others to do likewise.—Sacramento Bee.

"They Say."

"They say." A more sneaking, cowardly, fiendish liar than "They say" does not exist. That personage is a universal scapegoat for personal gossip, envy, spite, and malice; without form of flesh and blood, when invoked, and yet stalking boldly in every community. The character is a myth, and yet real; intangible, and yet clutching its victim with remorseless power. It is unseen, and from an exhaustless quiver wings its poisoned arrows from day to day. And no mail is proof; no character, position or sex escapes; no sanctuary is too sacred, no home is bulwarked against its assaults. When one base heart wishes to assail some person's character "They say" is always invoked. That is the assassin who strikes in the cloud; the Thug who haunts the footsteps of the offender, and tortures from careless word or deed, an excuse for the stiletto. Men dare not always reveal their own feelings. With smiles and pretended friendship they present the envenomed shaft as coming from "They say." Be sure, reader, that when some villainous tale is told you and the relator cannot give an author more tangible than "They say" for it, the slander is the creation of the heart by your side, reeking with the poison of envy and hatred, and earnest with a wish to have the falsehood of "They say" put into reality, and become current coin in the community.

Business Law Condensed.

The following brief compilation of business law is worth a careful preservation, as it contains the essence of a large amount of legal verbiage:

It is not legally necessary to say on a note "for value received."
A note on Sunday is void.
Contracts made on Sunday cannot be enforced.

A note by a minor is void.
A contract made by a minor is void.
A contract with a lunatic is void.
A note obtained by fraud, or from a person in a state of intoxication, cannot be collected.

If a note is lost or stolen, it does not release the maker; he must pay it, if the consideration for which it was given and the amount can be proved.
An endorser of a note is exempt from liability if not served with notice of dishonor within twenty-four hours of its non-payment.

Notes bear interest only when so stated.

Principals are responsible for the acts of their agents.

Each individual in a partnership is responsible for the whole amount of the debts of the firm.

Ignorance of the law excuses no one.
It is a fraud to conceal a fraud.
The law compels no one to do an impossibility.

Signatures made with a lead pencil are good in law.

A receipt for money is not always conclusive.

The acts of one partner bind all the rest.

COURTSHIP UNDER DIFFICULTIES.

For the consolation of the young hearts grieved by parental interference in matters of matrimony, we revive a scrap of history: A Massachusetts Puritan, the Rev. Mr. Smith, had two daughters, Mary and Abbey. The elder married; and her father preached a wedding sermon from the text she chose: "Mary hath chosen a better part, which shall not be taken from her." The younger wished to marry, but her father objected for a year or more, disliking her lover, young John Adams. When he finally yielded, and asked his daughter to choose a text for the inevitable sermon, she suggested: "John came, neither eating bread nor drinking wine, and ye say, 'He hath a devil.'" The jest caused her father's consent to be retracted, but she married, nevertheless, and became the wife of one President of the United States and mother of another. It is by no means probable that the young hearts grieved as aforesaid will make their lovers Presidents by marrying them, but they can see that even parental opposition may be misjudged.

A College student, in a discussion with a professor, as to whether the sense of seeing or that of touch was the most delicate of the senses, maintained that the sense of touch was. "What proof can you give of this?" asked the professor. "Why," responded the student, "there's my chum's mustache, he's all the time feeling of it, and nobody has ever yet been able to see it."
