Capture of the Supposed Murderer of Mr. Nathan—A Career of Crime.

From the New York Journal of Commerce.

A two years' search has at last, unless the detectives are at fault in their identification of the prisoner, resulted in the capture in the city of Washington, of Forrester, the notorious burglar, and the alleged murderer of Mr. Benjamin Nathan. It has hardly ceased to be fresh in the public recollection that one night in July, 1870, Mr. Nathan, a rich Wall street capitalist, and a leader of the worship and the charities of the Israelite communion in this city, was butchered in his house on West Twenty-third street, opposite the Fifth Avenue Hotel, and in his own chamber, by the crushing blows of some mysterious intruder. He had risen from his bed, and there were some who found, in his position and in the appearance of the room, indications of a severe struggle with the assassin. No sound was heard, and it was only on rising the next morning that the other occupants of the house discovered the horrible work of the night. A small safe in Mr. Nathan's room had been opened and some papers appeared to have been taken, but the plunderers amounted to little. The family were passing the summer at their country seat, and Mr. Nathan and his two sons were only in the house that night in order to be ready to attend a solemn commemorative of his deceased mother, which was to take place at the synagogue early in the morning. Besides the three gentlemen, there were in the house only the housekeeper and her son. A dog—a short bar bent into a hook at each end, used by ship-carpenters for pinning logs together—was found on a lower floor, but proof was not satisfactory that it had been used either in the murder or in the burglary. Suspicion glanced on one or two of the occupants of the house, but finding no justification, did not rest there, and the murder remained to the anxious public an insoluble mystery. The police, no less anxious than the public, busily traced up every clue that seemed to them likely to lead to the murderer, and it is believed that the late Superintendent Jourdan sacrificed his life to the anxious labors of the search. Several persons, indeed, in various parts of the country avowed each that he was himself the assassin, but very little attention to their stories was paid by the police, who attributed the avowal in some cases to minds crazed by the horrible news, in others to a low cunning, which was fishing for a free passage to New York. It was intimated that the police were satisfied that they knew who the murderer was, but they were not disposed to be very communicative on the matter either to inquiries for the information of the public police of other cities. At length, however, they gave up all hope of apprehending the assassin unaided, and a circular with photograph was sent to chiefs of police and private detective agencies throughout the world, asking their co-operation for the arrest of Forrester, the man whose capture at Washington is now announced. What was the evidence which made our police so sure that Forrester was the man has not been made known beyond the facts that Forrester was an adroit and daring burglar, and was reputed to have the peculiar habit of leaving at the places of his villainous exploits some rude instrument like the dog found at Mr. Nathan's, to deceive the police into the belief that some raw burglar had perpetrated the crime.

Forrester, who goes also by a number of other names, has served four years in the Illinois State prison for burglary, and has now hanging over his head the greater part of a thirteen years' sentence to the same place for a like offence. He has three or four times escaped from the prison, and several other times from the custody of detectives who had re-captured him. These exploits have made him a semi-mythical hero among his fellow-scoundrels; and various stories, more or less credible, are related of his wondrous deeds in the delivery of imprisoned confederates. Not long before the murder of Mr. Nathan he was seized in front of St. Bernard House, Prince street, New York, by a private detective, but was rescued by Theodore Allen, the keeper of the house, through which he escaped before the detective could get assistance. Immediately afterward he left New York, and having been caught again at New Orleans, was released by habeas corpus before a warrant for holding him could be received. It is alleged in his behalf that at the time of the murder he was in the neighborhood of New Orleans, and it is understood that he has offered to surrender himself and be tried for murder, provided his Illinois sentence should be remitted. He is said to have been born in Scotland in 1835, of respectable parents, who came to this country when he was quite young. His early life in New York was not exemplary, and having been kidnapped into a California ship, he was not long in learning (if he still needed instruction) the lessons of scoundrelism which are so abundant in the new country on the Pacific. His first Illinois sentence was in 1862.

Homes Reduced by Dress.

Only those women who have not the money to "dress" can fully appreciate the weight which society ruthlessly heaps upon this disability. To be unable to "dress," is to be treated with almost disrespect in the car, the boat, at the public gathering, the street and the shop; to be ignored; to feel the shrug of contempt, the sneer of levity, and the smile of scorn; to be thrust aside, to be laughed at, to be unceremoniously displaced, to be cruelly driven out of good society, to have your heart, your intelligence, your thoughts, your virtue, your character, held as nothing against silk; to be stung, to be outraged, to be proscribed, to be insulted; all this and much more for the lack of money to "dress."

It matters not whether this rule of society is right or wrong; the fact remains to blight and ruin. The fashionable lady thinks nothing of paying $75 for making a dress, made up of forty yards of silk, at from $4 to $10 per yard. These are the women who rule the street, drawing-rooms, theaters—dare we say churches? After such, the lesser lights pattern. What defense have the girls who work for from $4 to $10 per week against this array?

The rich can be fashionable, the poor cannot be by honest means. The poor industrious shop girl looks upon even $50 dresses, and they are beyond her reach. There is a $40 gulf between them and her—between her and the respect and attention of society. Her virtue will span the chasm. She longs to lift the load of poverty, to receive the caress of society, to be freed from bondage. She sells herself to hell for dress. After the first step is taken, it is not long before all honest labor is eschewed, and the foul vice made to be the only service of income. This is no picture, but what happens every day, and is a plain statement of how the recruits to brothels are made. This mania for "dress" is devastating our American women to an alarming extent. The wives and daughters of the rich men who lead society in this fearful race of extravagance are responsible for a great share of the prostitution which curses the nation, as well as for thousands of business failures, scattered families, and the long train of miseries among us under the cover of "keeping up appearances." Let those who have the courage, take this lesson and act upon it.—Exchange.

The most rigid examination is being made into the cause of the Metis disaster. While the authorities are investigating the circumstances of the case we hope they will not forget to inquire into the competency of the Government inspectors who are employed to determine whether a boat is seaworthy or not. The number of unsafe boats afloat on our waters is positively alarming. We have reason to believe that men are appointed to the important position of inspector who have not the least qualification for the office. They simply glance at what is in sight on board, and if things visible are well painted and have a clean look, the boat is set down as staunch and seaworthy.

"The Claimant."

A New York Sensation—Reported Arrival of Orton, Otherwise Tichborne, by Steamship Arragon.

From the New York Herald, Sept. 6.

As the trial for fraud and perjury of the "claimant," "Arthur Orton," "De Castro," "Sir Roger Doughty Tichborne," approaches, there is a feeling in some minds that after a successful starring tour through England, he may be induced to leave that country at his own expense. Should this prove to be the case, it would not be remarkable for him to land on our shores. Some color was given to this view of the subject yesterday, by the appearance of a respectable looking person, who announced himself as Stillman—Dr. Stillman, of the steamship Arragon, nineteen days out from Bristol, arriving in this port on Tuesday afternoon. The doctor had a communication to make. Under his charge had been shipped from Bristol a portly individual, with smooth hair, a slightly Roman nose, and a decided limp, whom he recognized as Sir Roger Doughty Tichborne, the celebrated claimant for the Tichborne estates. But why in this guise was a mystery. The doctor communicated this discovery of the identity of his patient to the captain of the Arragon, who, having seen the claimant in court, was convinced that if he was not that person, he certainly bore a very strong resemblance to him. A reporter accompanied the doctor down to Castle Garden, where the passengers on the Arragon were landing. Mr. Casserly was inquired for, but being absent, Colonel Cantador and other officials were informed that the "claimant" was then on the premises. The earnest assertions of the doctor soon convinced the officials, and a rush was made for the rotunda. Sir Roger was evidently bashful, for he required some finding, but at last his portly figure was discovered checking his baggage. Colonel Cantador and the officials eagerly shook him by the hand. There he stood, the veritable embodiment of the wonderful claimant, as he appeared in the last portrait published in Harper's. Alas for popular portraiture! "Are you the claimant? Are you Sir Roger?" "Ee's I be," said the jolly looking individual, his English being evidently as bad as his French and Latin. "Why do you come here, leaving your bright prospects in England?" With a significant wink and a shrug the "claimant" appeared to intimate that his prospects were anything but bright. Here Dr. Stillman broke in. "You see, Sir Roger is suffering under a complication of disorders, and being of a roving turn he thought that a touch of his old life would do him good; he therefore came out a steerage passenger, under my care, and in the name of Arthur Slocombe." At this stage of the doctor's speech, the claimant broke in, "Noo I beant under no disorders. If I wor you couldn't cure me. I am a claimant, and I claim to be Arthur Slocombe of Somerset, an' nobody else." Whereupon everybody joined in the laugh on the worthy doctor of the Arragon. Some one stood drinks. The Castle Garden officials remarked that there had been a "claimant" on every emigrant ship in port for the last six months. Sir Roger removed to a well-known emigrant boarding-house close by, and the doctor seemed distressed at the non-success of his little scheme.

In the United States there are 19,500,000 men and boys and 19,000,000 women and girls. This is an excess of males of two and a half per cent., a far difference showing for the whole country from that of New England, where the females are considerable more numerous than the males. It would seem, therefore, that the maidens among us have an overwhelming chance for marriage; yet it is a singular fact that more men than women of the same generation enter wedlock. The "marriageable age" of a hearty bachelor extends indefinitely, from twenty-one to fifty; that of a virgin is usually confined to brief limits. So a bachelor who has neglected to make love at twenty-five to a maiden of eighteen, has still a chance at forty-five to win a maid of 18 who was actually unborn when he ought to have been first married.

From Gray to Black—Consequences of an Old Man's Marriage.

From the Georgetown (S. C.) Times.

We learn from unquestioned authority that Ma. John Fenters of this county, aged 73, has recently taken to himself in marriage a young and blushing bride of not quite 14 years, and that such has been the effect upon his venerable head, that his hair, which was silvery white, is rapidly assuming the black color of his youth. We have heard of hair growing white in a single night, but we do not know as we have ever before heard of the capillaceous ornament which adorns the head taking the back track, and turning from gray to black. Our informant assures us that the old gentleman has used no hair dye, and that the change is attributable entirely to the new state into which he has entered.

CHINESE WOMEN.—One of the greatest failings in the character of the Chinese is want of respect for women; and indeed the chief hindrance of their progress to a more enlightened life is the want of her influence in shaping and controlling the sentiments and customs of Chinese society. She has no social position or influence. Her condition is but one step above that of a slave. She is regarded, as she is, in fact a tool, for man's pleasure and convenience, and as greatly inferior to him in all respects. She is not cultivated in our sense of the term. Her face is utterly blank of intelligence and refinement. Very rarely, indeed, is that chaste and delicate feeling, and tender, thoughtful sentiment, which is the crowning glory of the women of America, seen sleeping in her features, or flashing from her eyes, or sparkling from her lips; but the whole contour and expression of her face, is painfully stolid and repulsive, and has more in it of the type of the animal than the angel.

ORIGIN OF THE "FIGHTING EDITOR."

—The "fighting editor," the journalist who backs with his fist or revolver, what his colleague has written, is a being not unknown to the columns of Western papers, and the streets of Western towns. He is not, as is generally thought, indigenous to America. His profession was created in France, during the reign of Charles X. M. Constant de Rebecque, editor of the Minerva, became sated with duels; and hired a fencing master to sign his articles and slay his attackers. Within a year five officers of the king's bodyguard fell under his sword. He received and accepted a challenge to fight twenty-three young officers of the St. Cyr Military College, agreeing to fight them all in turn. They, however, adopted their enemy's plan, and hired a rival bravo, Croquart, to meet this one. The duel lasted three-quarters of an hour, and ended in the death of M. Rebecque's champion. Did the editor despair? No. He instantly engaged Croquart at a higher salary than the St. Cyrans could offer, and thenceforth wrote what he would.

The New Orleans Picayune publishes a review of the commerce of the Crescent City for 1871-72. From statistics presented it appears that within the past five years the imports of New Orleans have almost doubled. The total amount of produce from the interior shows a deficit of about $30,000,000, compared with the receipts under that in 1869-70. This is accounted for from the fact that the figures which exhibit this difference represent value as measured by the fluctuating paper currency. Considering that this currency was nearly twice as much depreciated in 1869-70 as it was in 1870-71, and the currency prices were correspondingly higher in the former period, it may be fairly claimed that there is no material falling off in the total amount of domestic produce received in the city. In short, the city is steadily enlarging her import business, and at least holds her own in exports and domestic receipts.

KEEP UP ORGANIZATION.

Thorough organization is the secret of great victories. A well-organized army can beat double its own force badly disciplined. In numbers we are stronger than our opponents, in organization we are superior, and the signs of the times indicate our certain victory in November. But we want something more than a barren victory—a victory that leaves us the field, and permits the enemy to retire in good order. We want a victory that will stand through all time as a warning to ambitious men, who would barter principles for power. Greeley has gone over to the Copperheads because he wants to be President. The Copperheads accept him because they think, or did think at the time of the bargain, that he could be elected, and thus serve their purposes in the future. Now, to break up this coalition, and to administer to such men as Greeley a lasting rebuke, we must make their defeat an overwhelming one. We can do it if we but work for that end. Every man must be active in the good cause. Every man has some influence. The weak must contribute their share, and the strong must lead the way. Organize campaign clubs in every town. Appoint canvassers who will do thorough work. See every doubtful man, and present the issue fairly. It needs no eloquence to commend its merits to any fair-minded man. The acts of the Administration speak for themselves. They cannot be successfully attacked. Invite attack by challenging our opponents to impeach them, then refute every charge by the presentation of facts. Spread before the public Republican documents. They will do their work effectually, and set the people thinking.

When your clubs are organized, send the names of your officers and your locality to the National Committee at Washington, D. C., and request a supply of documents. Work early and late from now until November; see that every Republican voter drops his ballot, and then you can rest from your labors, and enjoy, with a good conscience, the fruits of the glorious victory you helped win. You have a leader who has proven as great on the fields of politics as he was on the field of battle. See to it, that he receives from the hands of a grateful people that earnest support which his great services entitle him to receive.

THE TWO RECORDS.

Horace Greeley has been the enemy of the South for the past thirty years, and not until he was seized with the Presidential fever did he profess friendship for its people. No man in America has given publicity to such revengeful feelings toward a section of the Union. He stands before the world as convicted of using expressions toward political opponents which no party necessity can defend or justify. Yet he is accepted by the Democrats as their standard-bearer to defeat the party which gave him whatever prominence he now holds. With his past record, covering over thirty years of hatred, denunciations, and abuse of the Southern people, he comes before them professing to be their friend. Is he honest in his professions? If he is, then he has been dishonest all his life. If he had changed his coat before he was nominated the sudden conversion might have had some effect, but to change after his nomination looks very like a matter of convenience and policy.

General Grant has been consistent toward all sections. He is as true to-day as when he commenced his brilliant career at Belmont. He has no policy to enforce against the will of the people. A great soldier, as shown by his deeds, he is no less great as a statesman. He has never sacrificed a principle to lift himself into power. He stands upon his merit as a man, and is willing to go before the bar of public judgement on his past and present record. He has never said an unkind word of the South or its people. On the contrary, he has shown personal sympathy when sympathy was valuable, and official magnanimity when the reverse might have been expected. We are not prepared to believe that even Southern Democrats are ready to accept so false a friend as Horace Greeley for so true and firm a friend as General Grant. We know that political prejudice will oftentimes build the judgement, but when the Democratic party unite on "a life-long Abolitionist," as Sumner styles Greeley, it is high time for its followers to drop prejudice and allow reason to exercise its way.

THE KIND OF MEN WHO 'RAE FOR GREELEY.

John N. Andrews, of New York City was convicted in 1863 for leading the rioters who burned the negro orphan asylum, hung negroes to lamp-posts, and resisting the draft, and served his term in Sing Sing. He is now shouting for Greeley and reform, and wants to uphold the laws passed by a Republican Congress to protect life and property from riotous gangs.

William Dorsheimer, of New York, wanted to be minister to Berlin, or any thing he could get. He didn't get any thing, and shouts for Greeley, hoping to do better when the civil service is reformed.

Ethan Allen, of New York, is just like Dorsheimer.

Tweed, Connolly, Ingersoll, Oakley Hall, Tom Fields, and all the New York Tammany stealers want to try it with Greeley. Honest Horace will make a new bargain with them, as he did in 1871, when he agreed to keep still about the ring if they gave him the advertising plunder.

Colonel E. M. Yenger, late of Mississippi, now editing a rebel sheet in Baltimore, is for Greeley, and all the relatives of his murdered victim, Colonel Crane, are for Grant.

Fernando Wood, of New York, of whom Mr. Greeley said, October 28th, 1862, "was indicted for felony, and escaped going to Sing Sing by the statute of limitations."

James R. Doolittle, ex-United States Senator, who obtained for one Conant a permit to buy cotton, and used his influence as Senator for him, and claimed part of the profits as payment Mr. D. vehemently urges reform.

Jeke Thompson, ex-rebel, who proposed to burn Northern cities, and could publish "What I know about Indian trust funds while I was Secretary of the Interior Department, and had them under my control."

John Cochrane, of New York, who was asked to resign as Brigadier General of volunteers, on the ground of utter incompetency and criminal conspiracy to have a battle lost to our arms, and who does not usually change his politics oftener than once a year.

N. B. Forest, ex-rebel General, who ordered prisoners shot, butchered and burned, after they had surrendered, and wants the colored men of the South to vote for Greeley.

John B. Gordon, of Georgia, another rebel General, Commander-in-Chief of the Ku-Klux.

Thomas Hendricks, of Indiana, who, while United States Senator, committed treason by correspondence which gave aid and comfort to the enemy.

Colonel Jolly, of Alabama, who is Chief Cyclops of the Ku-Klux.

General (?) James M. Ashley, of Ohio, Montana, Colorado, and Kansas, (who obtained his title of General from his large sign, "General Agent Ayer's Pills," when he was a druggist); who traded in town lots in Colorado by a secret understanding with the man he had had appointed Surveyor General of the Territory; was turned out of the Governorship of Montana by General Grant for worthlessness. Was a strong anti-slavery advocate and Radical Republican after leaving the Democratic party till his arrival at Montana, when finding the rebel Democratic element so strong in that territory, "crawfished" as they say west, and pandered to them, with the view of being sent to Congress as delegate, and is anything at any time that will give him office. He now wants to administer Indian Affairs under Mr. Greeley, and certainly both wants and needs reform.

B. F. Buckner, ex-rebel General, who met General Grant at Fort Donelson, and wants now what he wanted then—"Anything to beat Grant."

J. A. Craven, of Indiana, ex-member of Congress, who voted against a vigorous prosecution of the war or thanking Union soldiers; Copperhead.

J. F. Hoke, ex-rebel General, who captured four hundred prisoners in North Carolina, and ordered them all shot.

C. E. Dyke, of Florida, ex-captain in rebel army, who was stationed at Andersonville, Ga., who offered thirty days' furlough to each of his men who shot a prisoner, and who wrote regarding having seen the bodies of Union soldiers hanging on a tree: "It did a patriot's heart good to see their stinking carcasses hanging to trees."

Judge Woodward of Pennsylvania; Copperhead during the war.

Wade Hampton, ex-rebel Lieutenant-General, who directed and ordered the Ku-Klux outrages in South Carolina.

General N. P. Banks, the hero of many "masterly retreats," and who supplied the rebel General Kirby Smith and Dick Taylor with arms, ammunition, and ration for a year by his campaign up Red River, but made money enough from cotton to take no notice of the curses bestowed on him by his command.

General Dick Taylor shakes hands with General Banks across the "bloody" and supports Greeley.

General James M. Leach, ex-rebel General, now a member of Congress; a Ku-Klux in North Carolina.

Samuel Brown, of York county, South Carolina, now of Albany State Prison, would support Greeley if he could get out of the imprisonment he is serving for Ku-Klux outrages, for which he was convicted. His heart is with the cause, however, of Greeley and reform.

Cassius M. Clay, ex-United States Minister to Russia, who was recalled because of complaints of the Imperial Government for being guilty, as alleged, of conduct which rendered it impossible to hold intercourse with him, either official or social.

George N. Saunders, ex-rebel, who was the party who proposed the burning of Northern cities and introducing small-pox and yellow fever in our lines.

Charles R. Buckalew, ex-United States Senator, who was guilty of treason by entering into correspondence with the rebels during the war, while holding his seat as a Senator of the United States.

We clip the following from the Detroit Tribune of Sept. 24th. The rights of Woman are evidently being acknowledged by the expounders of law, and ere long we may expect their right to vote will be accepted:

"It appears that the Indian women of Michigan have some rights which all are bound to respect, in acquiring real estate for homesteads on the public lands of the Indian reservation. As will be seen by the following letter from Commissioner Drummond to Senator Ferry, the occasion for which will be seen on perusal, the Commissioner puts the notable construction upon the act of last session, restoring the Indian reservation lands to market, in putting the Indian woman upon an equal footing with the men in the right to enter and secure homesteads."

GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, August, 27, 1872.
HON. T. W. FERRY, Grand Haven, Michigan.

SIR:—In reply to your letter of the 22d inst., relative to the act of Congress of June 10, 1872, by which the unoccupied lands embraced in the reservation for the Ottawa and Chippewa Indians of Michigan under the treaty of July 31, 1835, and opened to homestead entries by Indians only for the space of six months from its passage, I have the honor to state, that Indian women may avail themselves of the benefit of such act in the same manner as men, where they are "heads of families" or being unmarried, have attained the age of 21 years.

Very respectfully, your obdt. servant,
WILLIS DRUMMOND,
Commissioner.

VERY LIBERAL.

While Horace Greeley was endeavoring to convince the sturdy freemen of New England that his cause was the cause of justice and equality, his friends in West Virginia were laboring industriously to carry an amendment to their State constitution, the purport of which was to prevent the colored man from holding office.

The Tribune was startled over this new development of Liberalism, and in its issue of August 14th, gently reminded the Greeleyites of West Virginia that the adoption of this amendment would injure the chances of its beloved Chief for the Presidency.

There was a time when the Tribune would have opposed this liberal freak on other grounds than mere policy. It would have denounced these "reformers" as little better than savages for attempting to turn back the wheels of progress. But it dared not open its batteries lest it might hurt the feelings of its new-found friends, so it gently hinted that the amendment had better go by the board lest it be "trumpeted and paraded from one end of the country to the other, as proof positive that the concurrence of the late Democratic National Convention in the Cincinnati platform is a fraud and a sham."

In order to let its rebel friends down as gently as possible, the Tribune continues: "There is not the slightest excuse for this attempt at proscription. The blacks of West Virginia are but a mere handful, who have had no offices under Republican ascendancy, and stand no chance of getting any, no matter what party may rule."

"How have the mighty fallen!" This is the language of the Tribune, once the mouth-piece of principle, now the slave of policy. Like its Chief, it has turned its back on truth, justice and equality, and has become the active champion of Democratic injustice. This is what the language of the Tribune means in plain English: "If the blacks were more numerous, your amendment would be all right, but as they can't get office in any way, make a show of justice by permitting them to claim a right which they can never exercise." And yet, in face of all this it asks the black man to believe that this Liberal party is friendly to them. Its impudence in asserting this is only equaled by the unanimity with which the blacks reject it.

This outcropping of the new Greeley doctrine in West Virginia, is what may be expected in other Southern States. Charles Sumner may see in it "practical reconciliation," but the people will not care to indorse it in November next.

Mr. Greeley, when he shall have reached New York from his Western trip, will find that he has not benefitted his cause more than Andrew Johnson did his when he "swung around the circle," or more than Horatio Seymour did his, when he took the stump in 1868. Mr. Greeley is struggling against the flood and he will find it irresistible. Semi-apologetic speeches concerning his personal record and views will not tend to lessen the well-grounded popular distrust of the corrupt and absurd coalition of which he is the candidate.

PRAYING WITH CAUTION.

We have a fresh anecdote of Elliston, one of the most delightful actors of England a hundred years ago. When scarcely eighteen, he was one day engaged in earnest conversation with the hostess of a tavern at Wapping, with whom he was smitten. An alarm of fire was given, and as it was necessary to conceal young Robert William, he was placed in a hushed chest. Five minutes had elapsed; still the noise continued—nay, it increased. He tried to raise the lid, but she had prudently fastened it. He listened; the confusion in the house became more evident. He heard persons running to and fro; he heard the drippings of water. All considerations but those of personal safety vanished. He sought with all his might to extricate himself—in vain; frightful thoughts of being burned alive flashed through his mind. "At last," to use his own words, "I had nothing for it but patience and prayer." "Prayer!" exclaimed his hearer; "you should have said repentance also." "Sir," he replied, "I did not pray directly for myself, but that those who were endeavoring to subdue the fire might be induced to take care of the furniture."

Elliston's flame went out with the fire, and he went to that tavern no more.—EDITOR'S DRAWER, in Harper's Magazine for October.

Nathan Simon was before Judge Shandley, in New York, Friday, for whipping his wife Emily. This brute of a husband is 13 years of age, and the fragile woman he assails is 35. The Judge told the old man that if he ever abused his wife again he should be sent to the Juvenile Asylum until he was old enough to know better. He has been in office as a husband only one year, having been drawn into silken meshes when he was about 12 years of age.

Local News.

Since the claying of Eighth Street, we can boast of one the finest drives in the West.

We have received two numbers of the Grand Haven Herald in three weeks. Why is this thus?

The mail train going north, on the C. & M. L. S. R. R., was only twenty minutes behind time on Thursday last.

Material is being hauled upon the ground for building the second Reformed Church preparatory to building next season.

We learn that Mr. E. Sawyer, living one mile south of this city, had a valuable yoke of oxen stolen a few days since.

The term for holding the County Fair at Berlin has been extended until this evening, when it will close. We hear that it is the most successful County Fair ever held.

The corner stone of the Episcopal Church was laid Wednesday. The contract for building the church has been awarded to R. K. Heald and is to be completed in early spring.

E. Van der Veen has built a very fine residence on Ninth street, west of River, and is with his family occupying it. A few days ago he was presented with about "nine pounds." It was a girl.

MANISTEE, September 30.—The United States Hotel, owned and run by Lorenzo Magoon, was burned this afternoon. The building is a total loss. The insurance is $4,500. The personal property is a partial loss. The latter was fully insured.

SALT LAKE, Sept. 25.—There was a heavy snow storm in the neighboring mountains Monday night. Between Evansville and Wahsatch the drifts were three feet deep. The telegraph wires were blown down.

The Dowagiac Republican says Mrs. Lippincott (Grace Greenwood) arrived in that village a week ago, on her way to Colorado, suffering with a severe attack of asthma. She is stopping with her brother, Joseph B. Clark. Since her arrival she has been seriously ill, but her health is improving.

Capt. J. C. Burrows' appointment was not filled here last week, according to programme of State Committee. We had previously engaged the day for the Quarter Centennial Celebration, and could not revoke it. Can not the Capt. be induced to make another effort? We should be glad to hear him, or any other man that will "enthuse" us, and our Grant and Wilson Club.

TEACHERS INSTITUTE.—A Teachers Institute for the County of Ottawa, will be held at Coopersville, in said County, commencing on Wednesday, October 9th, 1872, at 10 o'clock, and continuing three days. All teachers of the County are earnestly solicited to be present, and avail themselves of its benefits. Several prominent educators will be present, and assist in the exercises of the occasion. Entertainment provided for Teachers free of expense in the families of citizens.

Supt. of Schools, Ottawa Co.

Colfax's Visit Postponed.

The following telegram has been furnished us:

Vice President Colfax has notified Mr. Morrison, Gen'l Manager of the C. & M. L. S. R. R. that the health of Mrs. Colfax will not admit of their taking the expected trip over the road. Hence their visit is indefinitely postponed. Notify all interested.

The work on our harbor is progressing very slowly. Much fault has hitherto been found with parties in charge of harbor work here, yet we think any efforts heretofore made, have resulted in a much larger percentage of profit to the Government than work done here this season. The appropriation is likely to be all expended, with but little benefit. A change there, is evidently required.

GROSS RECEIPTS.—The actual gross receipts of the Great Union Fair are not quite so large as was at one time estimated, but are much larger than any anticipated, and will be sufficient to pay all liabilities and leave a small surplus.

Sale of Entrance Tickets......$12,730.89
Membership tickets......707.90
Entrance tickets to Grand Stand......2,191.00
From entries for speed premiums......5,550.00
Entries for sweepstakes premium on cattle......314.00
Receipts from incidentals......550.00
Rentals of booths and stalls......2,000.00

Total......$24,283.39

To which may be added the amount yet unpaid which will swell the receipts to $26,000.—Grand Haven Daily Herald.

The Michigan Conference adjourned on the 25th inst. We notice that Rev. W. A. Bronson is still retained in charge here, and that the church here has been helped from the Domestic Mission Fund to the amount of $275, and from special appropriations for burnt districts, $500. This will be a great relief to the Methodist Society, and will probably, with what can be raised here, give us a good house for worship, free from debt. Due credit should be given to Rev. Mr. Bronson, for his energy and perseverance, in thus securing sufficient aid to re-build his church in so short a time after the great conflagration.

The Greeley party in this city have without any warning opened their batteries against Grant and Wilson, and evidently intend "to fight it out on this line if it takes all summer." On Tuesday evening Col. A. T. McReynolds, liberal candidate for Congress, assisted by D. E. Carbutt, opened the Greeley Campaign; a small audience of Democrats and Republicans, the majority being Grant men, assembled in Town Hall to hear what they had to say. A few shot were thrown in the Grant and Wilson camp, causing no disturbance whatever. Not succeeding in breaking the Grant and Wilson column, the Greeley committee determined to bring out their big gun, whom as their posters announce is ex-Gov. A. Blair, who advocates for "Greeley and Brown and Reform." That is a trio posted to catch the Holland vote, their poster is unique in phraseology and means anything or nothing, as does the anathema slinging of their speakers.

THE GALE.—During the gale the present week, the schooner, Hattie Fisher, belonging to J. P. De Coudre, of Ventura, went ashore near that place on Tuesday last; no lives lost.

On Wednesday, as the scow, Harriet Ann was making our harbor, the sea running high, she became unmanageable, struck the north pier, broke her side in, besides doing considerable other damage.

The damage done along the Lake Shore must have exceeded that of any former year. The Muskegon Chronicle says;

The storm of last Tuesday and Wednesday made havoc with our shipping on Lake Michigan. In our last issue we spoke of the schooner Hawkins as having been abandoned by her crew. She was picked up on Wednesday night by the tug Getty, and towed into Grand Haven.

On Thursday morning the tug Warner, found the schooner Lewis, loaded with corn, from Chicago to Buffalo, some distance out in the lake. off this harbor, in a sinking condition, and brought her in. She was pumped out and her leaks stopped as well as possible. The tug Campbell took her to Grand Haven on Friday.

The schooner Dan Newhall, left this port with a load of lumber on Tuesday. In some mysterious way she "drifted" against the hurricane from the north, and went ashore at the mouth of White River, the next morning. She was towed to this port on Friday, by the tug Leader, of White Hall.

The schooner Little Belle, bound in light, struck the end of the pier on Wednesday. She was towed inside, where she sunk in shoal water.

The Grand Haven Herald says:

The Muskegon came in at 11 o'clock to-day, after having experienced the roughest sea in the history of navigation on Lake Michigan.

PLEASURE EXCURSIONS ON Black Lake & Lake Michigan

We wish to inform our citizens and the public generally, that the steamer Fanny Shriver, of Holland, can be chartered any day or evening during the summer season of 1872 to run excursions on Black Lake and Lake Michigan, for the small sum of FIVE DOLLARS. We put the price down to the lowest figure, so that any one family, can afford to take pleasure trips during the hot, sultry summer season, and enjoy the cool and refreshing air of Lake Michigan. We wish to have it fully understood, that on trips when the boat is chartered, no persons will be allowed to go, only those parties that chartered the boat.

STEKETEE & KIMM'S Holland Stomach Bitters.

These Bitters are good for all diseases arising from a derangement of the stomach. As a corrective, it cannot be excelled. Pleasant to the taste, assists digestion, and keeps the system generally in good condition.

Reason why we have so great a Demand for

OUR BITTERS.

First—Because they are more foodsome than other Bitters. Second—Because the Bottles are as large as a great many Bitters which sell for $1.00, while ours are sold for the small sum of FIFTY CENTS.

Directions.—One-half wine glass before each meal. Take one-third Bitters and two-thirds liquor, and you will have a pleasant drink. Sold by dealers generally.

STEKETEE & KIMM, Sole Proprietors, 1-1. 67 Monroe St., Grand Rapids, Mich.

INSURE WITH THE OLD "North America"

INS. Co. OF PHILADELPHIA,

(ESTABLISHED 1794.)

Why? Because it is the oldest Ins. Co. the United States.

Because it was the first to pay its losses in Ready Cash.

Because it has paid over $36,000,000 losses.

Because it has a surplus (over and above debts) of more than any two Ins. Co's. in the United States.

Because it has a surplus of more than times that of all the other Ins. Co's. in the combined.

For proof, read the (Jan. 1872) Report of Superintendent of the Insurance Department.

Policies issued at the Holland agency, as by any other responsible company.
