Biography

Gerrit Jan (John) Kollen was born the youngest of five children on August 9, 1843, in Nyverdalen, the Netherlands. After the children's father passed away in February of 1846, Egberdina Kollen and her children travelled to Overisel, Michigan, in 1851 to settle near her brother who had moved to Michigan earlier. After Kollen completed school in Overisel, he continued to attend school in Allegan for a year before teaching school in Lubber's district. By the year 1862, Kollen entered Holland Academy in the preparatory program. He then continued with his studies at the newly formed Hope College, graduating as one of five men in his class.

After completing his course of work at Hope, Kollen was hired to work in Overisel until 1871. He was appointed tutor in the Grammar School for mathematics, natural philosophy, and astronomy.

Gerrit Kollen was quite involved in activities outside of teaching. In 1872, Holland celebrated its 25th anniversary, of which he served as secretary of the committee. He was involved with the Ebenezer Fund, serving as the financial agent.
